Agreement Averts Phone Strike

Teletype Workers Stage Strike News Service Hit

By The Associated Press

The threatened country-wide tie-up of telephone service in the United States was averted early today by agreement of the striking maintenance and installation men to resume negotiations.

The action ended at least temporarily the week-long strike of 10,000 members of Division 6 of the Communications Workers of America (C.I.O.) only four hours before they were scheduled to set up picket lines at telephone exchanges in 43 States.

It was the picket line rather than the strike itself that was expected to hobble service. It was believed that most of the 230,000 other union telephone workers would refuse to cross picket lines to their jobs.

But another segment of communications was hit by a strike of teletype operators and other traffic workers against the United Press, a news service.

See End At Chrysler

There were indications that the end of the 97-day strike of 89,000 United Auto Workers against Chrysler Corporation was in the making at Detroit.

In New York, 12,000 service employees called off their four-day strike at 1,000 buildings. More than 280,000 apartment-house dwellers had been deprived of elevator service, telephone switchboard, heat, hot water, garbage disposal and other services by the strike.

In calling off their strike against the Bell Telephone System's manufactuing and supply unit, the Western Electric Company, the CWA's Division 6, decided to return to contract talks along with 23 other union divisions. The negotiations are with the Bell System's parent Corporation, American Telephone and Telegraph Company, and subsidiaries.

"PUT IT IN THE FRYING PAN, BABE", ordered Roy Locke (left) of Sherbrooke St. W., as he displayed a 1¾-pound speckled trout which he caught out Mount Pleasant way at dawn on Saturday morning. Restaurateur Babe Fontaine appears to be delighted, possibly with the hope of getting a few mouthfuls himself. The fish was 16 inches long, the only catch Mr. Locke had, "but worth a whole mess of little ones." he said. —(Examiner Staff Photo)

Three Killed In Collision

ST. ZOTIQUE, Que., May 1 (CP)—Three persons were killed instantly and four others were injured Saturday night when the light panel truck in which they were passengers crashed into a transport truck parked along the highway near here.

Dead are: Mrs. Dianna Addison, 44, her 17-year-old daughter, Pauline and Guy Desrochers, 19, all of Montreal.

Those injured include Mrs. Addison's husband, Rene, 52, another daughter, Lucille, 12, Josep Pitt, 59, driver of the panel truck, and his wife, Marie, 57. Their injuries were not believed to be serious.

Three other persons, also passengers in the panel truck, escaped unharmed. No one in the parked truck was injured.

St. Zotique is about 40 miles southwest of Montreal.

700 Foreigners Sail From Northern China

SAN FRANCISCO, May 1 — (CP).—American President Lines reported Sunday that the liner General W. H. Gordon has sailed from Taku Bar, off Tientsin, with more than 700 foreigners who had been stranded in Red China.

Aboard are 93 United States diplomatic personnel and dependents, completing the removal of American officials from the Chinese mainland and the closing of all official establishments of the US government in Communist China. In the group are also 61 other Americans.

Altogether the group of more than 700 is made up of 26 different nationalities. Departure of the Americans by way of Tientsin was arranged after the State Department three weeks ago had given up hope of moving the group directly out of Shanghai by water transport.

Railways Willing To Negotiate On Bd. Report

OTTAWA, May 1 (CP)—Canada's two major railways today advised Labor Minister Mitchell that they are willing to negotiate a settlement of a wage dispute with some 124,000 employees on the basis of two recent Federal Conciliation Board reports.

The Canadian Pacific Railway and the Canadian National Railways emphasized that "the additional costs involved can only be met by increasing the charges made for our services to the public."

The railways estimated implementation of the board's findings would cost between $19,225,000 and $27,000,000 annually.

The majority reports of the two conciliation boards handed down April 15 rejected the 17 railway unions' claims for outright pay increases. They recommended a formula that would give the employees a shorter work week, higher hourly rates and generally less in the weekly pay envelope.

The unions had asked for reduction in the work week from 48 to 40 hours with a five-day week and no loss in take-home pay, plus wage increases above that of from seve.. to 10 cents an hour.

The railways' acceptance of the boards' findings was contained in a joint letter delivered to Mr. Mitchell today. The letter was signed by S. F. Dingle, vice-president of the CNR and N. R. Crump, CPR vice-president.

Careful Study

"The executives of the railways have given careful study to the boards' analysis of this dispute," said the letter. "It is considered that the members of the majority have resolutely faced the problems laid before them, and that their

Soldiers Taking Over In Winnipeg Flood Zone

WINNIPEG, May 1—(CP)—The Red River cut loose with new flood blows today at soggy, groggy southern Manitoba. Manitoba telephone system officials in Winnipeg said the exchange at the border town of Emerson has been flooded out. Four telephone operators—living on the premises for the last week—were forced to abandon the premises.

The girls were evacuated by Red Cross workers. Their evacuation came as the Red river touched 46.18 feet at Emerson—highest level there in 124 years.

The Canadian Army moved into the flood zone today as the swelling waters of the Red poured towards Winnipeg.

Thirty soldiers were rushed to Morris, 41 miles south, to throw a sandbag dike around a hospital. An amphibious "duck" stood by to remove patients if the Army failed.

All of Morris, a town of 1,100 persons, was covered by the muddy river water. Scores of residents heeding their mayor's warning to evacuate, moved to Winnipeg and other places.

Almost Deserted

Morris was almost deserted. A hotel and snack bar were about the only business places open. Not more than one-third of its people were still in their own homes. The Canadian Pacific Railway lines on the town's outskirts were washed out.

In Winnipeg the river rose all week-end. By early today it stood at 23 feet—only five inches below the level reached in 1948 when the last floods occurred. Streets in some residential suburbs were under water.

The highest water was expected to reach Winnipeg Wednesday or Thursday. It seemed certain the peak of two years ago would be exceeded.

Even before Mayor Harry Shewman of Morris used a public-address system to urge every

Aerial Patrols Curb Poaching

TORONTO, May 1 (CP)—Aimed at putting a stop to fish and game poaching, aerial patrols along the banks and waters of the St. Lawrence River on the Ontario side of the U.S.-Canadian border are being made by the Department of Lands and Forests, it was disclosed today.

Using a Beaver aircraft, which can alight on the surface of small bays and inlets, conservation officers now cover hundreds of miles in a day where previously they were limited to the areas which could be covered by motor launch.

The check-up by air was started following recent complaints by residents of the Canadian side of the St. Lawrence, east of the Quebec boundary, that invasions of their territory were being made by fishermen and hunters from the adjoining state of New York who, they claimed, were without licences and had been operating almost at will.

"We are just going to do a bit of checking on the hunting and fishing activities of residents from both sides of the river," Lands and Forests Minister Scott said today.

First of the aerial patrols out of Gananoque, near the eastern end of Lake Ontario disclosed fishing nets which had been set illegally.

Nizam Has Millions Counts It Himself

BOMBAY, India, May 1. — (AP).—The Nizam of Hyderabad may not be the richest man in the world, but it still takes him a few days to count his money.

The Nizam does the counting himself. His money and fabulous jewels are stored in an air-conditioned vault that only he ever enters.

The latest estimate of his hoard shows these figures:

Gold, silver and currency notes, 350,000,000 rupees ($73,500,000).

Sales of his bullion through the Reserve Bank of India fetched 165,000,000 rupees ($34,650,000).

Crown jewels and heirlooms 100,000,000 rupees ($21,000,000).

This comes to nearly $130,000,000.

But no one knows exactly the value of the Nizam's wealth. Some of his household made a guess last fall that the Nizam must have about $1,500,000,000.

Bodies In Cellar

WINNIPEG, May 1. — (CP) — The bodies of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph (Micky) Kolt, both about 38, were found today in the basement of their home in north-end Winnipeg. A .22-calibre rifle was found close by.

Jets Roar Before Stalin In May Day Air Display

By EDDY GILMORE

MOSCOW, May 1 —(AP)—Roaring Russian Air Force planes staged their most spectacular peacetime air show over Red Square today with Generalissimo Stalin and more than 1,000,000 Soviet May Day paraders looking on approvingly.

Big four-engined bombers led the thundering air armada that featured the annual parade in celebration of International Labor Day. The Russian premier's son, Lt.-Gen. Vassily Stalin, led the air parade.

Behind the great bombers zoomed groups of jet planes.

Moscow's citizens, who jammed Red Square for their traditional May Day demonstrations, gave Stalin a mighty cheer as he mounted the platform near Lenin's tomb. He was followed by Soviet government and communist party leaders.

All eyes were turned on Stalin as he walked nimbly up the steps to the rostrum.

As Stalin watched, Gen. S. M. Shtemenko, chief of the army general staff, reviewed a huge parade of Soviet troops.

Shtemenko warned the "warmongers" that Soviet armies are ready to resist aggressors.

Asserting that a crisis is approaching in capitalist countries the general declared the "Soviet State advances confidently on the road of further improvements of living standards—on the road to communism."

"Warmongers," Shtemenko said, "The formation of aggressive blocs, the creation of military places and armies around the Soviet Union and people's democracies; and military provocations do not scare the Soviet Union."

Thousands Prevented From Rioting

Berlin Citizens Jeer At Each Other Across Barriers

BERLIN, May 1—(AP)—Hundreds of thousands of Berliners jeered at each other across sector barriers in this tense, divided city today during rival east-west May Day celebrations. There were sporadic flare-ups but police of both sides kept them from turning into riots.

Some 11,000 west-German police, backed up by 8,000 specially-trained western allied troops, kept affairs in the west sector in hand while an estimated 750,000 Germans cheered speakers lambasting Russia and Communism.

A few blocks away thousands of East Berliners converged on the Lustgarten for the Communist rally, a demonstration organized from start to finish and heavily guarded by Communist sector people's police.

Anti-Reds Surge

At one point anti-Communist demonstrators at Potsdamer Platz began surging toward the Russian sector border, despite efforts of West Berlin police to keep them in check. At the Brandenburg gate, some of the demonstrators began shouting insults at the Communist-controlled East Berlin police, calling them the "Black S.S." and "Communist pigs."

The West Germans—officials said they appeared to be led by young roughhouse elements who may have been drinking—began throwing stones at East-sector police. Allied reporters said the East Berlin police showed restraint, merely dodging the stones without even drawing their clubs.

After the incident, West-Berlin demonstrators seized two East Sector civilians and beat them severely, one of the victims was a photographer. West-Berlin police reserves, answering a riot alarm, dispersed the unruly elements.

British and American planes and helicopters circled over the central part of the city, with observers ready to radio the word to headfuarters at the slightest sign of disturbance.

West-Berlin's Mayor Ernst Reuter estimated the anti-Communist crowd at 750,000.

West-Berlin organizers charged that at least another 30,000 persons had been held back forcibly from the rally by Communist police at Soviet sector borders.

This huge demonstration cheered thunderously at every mention of "Freedom for Berlin from Communist tyranny," for calls for a United Germany and restoration of the Eastern territories which have been given to Poland by Russia.

In East Berlin, massed thousands of Communist marchers carried flags and portraits of Stalin and cheered attacks against the "Western war mongers."

A False Alarm

TORONTO, May - (CP) — The Toronto Fire Department made a quick run to answer a false alarm at the Parliament Buildings today when a signal was registered on the fire alarm system. Workmen engaged in extending the alarm system in the Parliament Buildings were thought to have accidentally crossed a wire, turning in the alarm.

Butter Price Drops

TORONTO, May 1.—(CP)—A drop of six cents a pound in butter, effective tomorrow, was announced today by a large grocery chain-store. At all its Toronto stores butter which sold for 62 and 61 cents will retail for 56 and 55 cents.

Find Driver Can't Read Test Loophole

TORONTO, May 1 (CP)—Highways Minister Doucett said today he thinks "quite a few persons who cannot read or write" have been issued drivers' licences in Ontario.

He commented on a report by Ivor S. Brake, manager of the Ontario Insurance Agents' Association, that an illiterate taxi driver in Kitchener held a licence.

"I think a man can get a licence if he can pass the test and answer the questions," said Mr. Doucett. "I would have to check with the records office to see if they have any idea how many drivers can't read or write. They may have some idea.

"The matter has never come to my attention. I will have to look into it. But there are many people who are illiterate. They can usually read the signs and signals."

Couldn't Read Sign

Mr. Brake said he has passed along to Mr. Doucett's department the information about the Kitchener driver, whose name was not disclosed. He said the man could not read highway signs.

Deputy Minister J. D. Millar said there was no reading or writing test in examinations for licences. Tests are verbal he said.

Mr. Brake said the Kitchener driver's illiteracy came when he applied for insurance. He couldn't sign his own name.

"He held a driver's licence which appeared to be signed and was in perfect order," he said.

In Kitchener, Police Chief John Patrick said he was "startled" to hear of the case. A man must hold a chauffeur's licence to get a cab licence, he said. He intended to check into the matter.

Couldn't Get By

Police and Taxi Drivers' Union officials in Toronto said an illiterate person could never get a licence here.

Chief John Chisholm said: "We test a man very thoroughly before he gets a licence to drive a cab. He couldn't get by us this way."

A union official said every Toronto cab driver has to make out a route sheet daily and "how can a man who doesn't know how to write do this?"

Grant 75,082 Loans In Housing Shortage

TORONTO, May 1 (CP)—Operation of the Ontario Government's second mortgage scheme to assist in alleviating the housing shortage resulted in the granting of 75,082 loans totalling $16,755,000, it was learned today.

The plan has been terminated by the government as a result of better terms offered home builders by Dominion legislation. The department reported today that a few loans were still being processed, applications having been made before cessation of the scheme.

Some 15,000 home owners were assisted during the operation of the scheme with an average loan of $1,000.

Favorable Balance Drops 270 Million In 1949 Towers Tells Parliament

Attributes Bigger Plunge Into Red Due To Dealings With U.S. Other Countries Show Better Balance

OTTAWA, May 1—(CP)—Graham Towers today estimated that the favorable balance in Canada's international payments ledgers dropped $270,000,000 in 1949. The governor of the Bank of Canada noted a decline in the over-all surplus from $452,000,000 in 1948 to $180,000,000 in 1949 and attributed the drop to a bigger plunge into red in Canada's trade and other dealings with the United States. Mr. Towers made his analysis of the country's 1949 international financial status as Chairman of the Foreign Exchange Control Board. The Board's 1949 annual report was tabled today in the Commons.

The international payments account measures Canada's foreign earnings in the sale of goods, gold and tourist-dollar earnings against her spending abroad for goods, shipping, travelling and other costs.

Generally Favorable

Mr. Towers disclosed that Canada had over-all favorable balances with all countries, with the exception of the U. S. In the case of the U. S., Canada's deficit grew from $398,000,000 in 1948 to $594,000,000 in 1949—an increase of $200,000,000.

He gave three reasons for this climb: an increase in spending for American goods, a step-up in Canadian travel south of the border, and a greater draining-off of interest and dividend payments by Americans who invested money in Canadian developments.

Nevertheless, Canada made progress in increasing her reserve supply of dollars. On Dec. 31, 1949, her holdings of gold and dollars totalled $1,117,100,000, compared with $997,800,000 in 1948 and $501,700,000 in 1947.

On other international financial horizons, Mr. Towers noted:

1. The Foreign Exchange Control Board made a multi-million-dollar killing—on paper—as a result of last September's world wave of currency devaluations. Assets of the government financial agency climbed $46,000,000 after a deficit of $28,800,000 accruing from 1946 devaluations had been written off.

2. The United Kingdom last year made repayments of $5,200,000 on the $700,000,000 interest-free 1942 loan. This compared with repayments of $64,000,000 in 1948 and left $299,000,000 of the loan still outstanding at the end of the year.

Ontario Lt.-Governor Visits King And Queen

LONDON, May 1 — (CP). — The King and Queen today received the Lieutenant-Governor of Ontario, Hon. Ray Lawson, and Mrs. Lawson, at Buckingham Palace.

A Palace spokesman said the Lawsons had a "very pleasant" visit with Their Majesties.

Lawson, on a vacation to Britain since before Easter, is sailing for Canada later this week.

Brinks' Robbery Stumping Crime Experts

BOSTON, May 1—(AP)—Can modern crime detection methods crack the United States' biggest cash robbery?

Today, after nearly 15 weeks, the top state and federal crime detection agencies still are stymied by the holdup of $1,200,000 in cash and $500,000 in cheques from the Boston offices of Brink's, Incorporated.

But investigation of the spectacular haul goes on. The case is the No. 1 target of the Federal Bureau of Investigation and all Massachusetts police.

With an eye towards reward money of more than $150,000, amateur sleuths, too, are devoting time to pick up a trail.

To date, not a single tangible clue has been uncovered. All "leads" have fizzled.

Investigators Stumped

Questions stumping investigators begin at the doors of the garage stronghold housing the money transportation firm's water-front offices in Boston's North End.

Even the actual number of gunmen who participated in the holdup on the evening of Jan. 17 remains unknown. There were at least six, possibly eight.

What's happened to all the "clues?"

The best still is being tracked down. It is a stolen truck, cut up into small pieces with an acetylene torch and a sledge-hammer, found a month after the holdup on a dump in Stoughton, a few miles south of Boston. A similar truck was reported seen by two persons near Brink's shortly before the holdup.

Also under way is a check of some 300 former convicts who learned welding in prison. If this has led anywhere police are keeping it to themselves.

Destroyer Saves Sailor's Life

VICTORIA, B.C., May 1 (CP)—A dangerously-ill seaman had a "favorable" chance for life Sunday, after the Canadian destroyer Sioux slammed through 300 miles of rough Pacific seas to bring him to hospital here.

The Sioux arrived at 4.30 p.m. EST with 44-year-old George Milandros aboard, suffering from a perforated duodenal ulcer.

The destroyer picked up Milandros Saturday night from the Greek freighter Maria G. Gouloucounti, en route here from Japan, after the freighter had sent out a call for assistance. Milandros first was believed to have a ruptured appendix.

Cmdr. E. D. Groos, of the Sioux, said: "We decided not to operate at sea because the man's temperature dropped from 105 degrees to 101 degrees."

Three Months' Fires Do 4 Million Damage

TORONTO, May 1 (CP)—Fires in Ontario during the first three months of this year totalled 3,460, accounting for a loss of $4,875,249. Some 1,120 were caused by smokers with damages estimated at $245,765. Stoves and furnaces caused 472, electricity 404. Another 464 were of unknown origin. Six persons were convicted of arson. The figures were released by Fire Marshal William Scott.

Flood Evacuees Arrive In Winnipeg

Old Woman In Wheelchair One Of 75 In Weary Group From Morris

By SHAIN McQUILLAN

WINNIPEG, May 1 (CP)—An aged woman — hunched in a wheelchair—clasped her gnarled hands.

"I am tired," she said.

One of 75 southern Manitobans who arrived here by train in the chilly early hours today, Mrs. Philip Krym was a victim of the flood-crazy Red River.

The weary, parcel - carrying group were evacuees from Morris —a totally-flooded community of 1,100, 41 miles south of Winnipeg.

"It happened so suddenly," Mrs. Krym said. "First there was no water, then—whoosh! My house was flooded in five minutes, and we were told to leave."

Stories All Same

The story from all was the same. Some were given a few hours' grace to evacuate. Others, like Mrs. Olga Lemke, had time only to bring a handful of personal belongings. None knew where they were going, or how long they were to stay. About two-thirds of the town's residents have moved to Winnipeg and other places of refuge.

"The water was up to our knees when the boat called to take us away," said Mrs. Lemke, a widow. "This was all I had time to bring." She held up a small paper bag containing personal oddments.

Forty-two of the evacuees—men, women and children—were taken to the old Immigration House near the CNR station. Eight rooms, each with four bunks, were provided and Red Cross workers started to organize meals for the temporary exiles.

Of the others, 20 went to the McLaren Hotel and the remainder to friends' homes.

Well In Hand

A mother with three children, two suitcases and the situation well in hand was Mrs. R. Schellenberg. The family had been living in a railway sleeping car for the last two days.

"The water in our house was not very deep at first," said Mrs. Schellenberg. "And we piled the furniture above the level.

"But the water kept rising and we kept piling the furniture higher. The water was two feet deep when we left."

Ontario Mayors Request Provincial-Municipal Meeting Before Autumn

Oppose Hydro, Phone Rate Increase; Asks Return Of Authority To Grant Birth, Death Certificates

TORONTO, May 1—(CP)—The Ontario Association of Mayors and Reeves Saturday asked the Provincial government to call a Provincial-municipal meeting to consider constitutional changes to come before the Dominion-Provincial conference next autumn. At the concluding session of their annual conference, delegates said their municipalities will send observers to the Ottawa conference and especially invited Boards of Education to send representatives. Boards of Education control the largest part of municipal tax levies.

Mayor Hiram McCallum of Toronto, opposed a defeated resolution from Swansea, a Toronto suburb. It called for a vote of property owners before municipal annexation or amalgamation proceedings went into effect. Taxation in some municipalities came only from homes, the Mayor said, because these places could not attract industries.

McCallum President

Mayor McCallum was elected president, succeeding Reeve Ann Shipley, of the Teck township (Kirkland Lake). Elected vice-presidents were Reeve Barry Atkinson, Sandwich East (Windsor); Mayor E. A. Bourque, Ottawa; Reeve W. Elmer Brandon, Swansea; Mayor W. C. Belson, Sarnia; Reeve J. E. U. Rouleau, Cornwall township; Mayor E. C. Sargent, Owen Sound.

The association approved resolutions opposing any increase in hydro and telephone rates; urging legislation to prevent railway crossing accidents; requesting the Ontario government to take advantage of Alberta and Nova Scotia fuel sources to assure a regular supply; asking the government to restore municipal authority to issue provisional birth and death certificates and to increase municipal grants.

It took no action on a resolution from the United Auto Workers' Union (CIO-CCL) calling attention to what it said was discrimination against Negroes. It also tabled, without comment, an Oshawa resolution urging legislation to permit Sunday "cultural and educational performances" and one from the Ontario Municipal Electric Association warning of danger to lives and property in the erection of high television aerials.

Share Responsibility

Other resolutions asked the federal and provincial government to share full responsibility for unemployment relief; for public works projects to provide more work; for increased old age pensions and higher unemployment insurance benefit. The conference also proposed elimination of municipal grants to hospitals.

The new executive officers are Mayor W. P. Reynolds, of Brockville, Mayor Trace Manes, of Leaside, Mayor E. Palmer, of North Bay, Mayor S. F. Leavine, of Kitchener, Mayor J. A. Clare, of Guelph, Mayor J. E. Wilson, of Barrie, Mayor H. J. Allin, of Belleville, Mayor E. A. Winkler, of Hanover, Mayor J. Pennett, of Perth, Mayor J. R. Black, of Oakville, Mayor F. W. Milburn, of Woodstock, Mayor H. G. Simpson, of East York, Mayor Jack Hogan, of Prescott, Mayor I. Ginsberg, of Huntsville, Mayor A. D. Norriss, of Mimico, Mayor H. Badanai, of Fort William, Mayor G. E. Cork, of Thessalon, Mayor Charles Lamb, of Lindsay, Mayor George Wenige, of London, Mayor W. S. Beaton, of Sudbury, Mayor Lloyd Jackson, of Hamilton, Mayor Joseph Vale, of Newmarket.

Daring Thugs Get Mills' $1,400

BEAVERTON, May 1 — Daredevil safecrackers escaped with $1,400 cash early Sunday after skirting a one-foot ledge and crawling through an 18-inch doorway to enter the Farmers' Co-operative Mill on No. 12 Highway here.

George Smallbones, assistant manager of the 70-year-old mill, discovered the break-in when he went to do some repair work Sunday morning. He said the thieves crept along a narrow concrete ledge beside a 15-foot water hole immediately below the millpond dam.

"They forced a little door, once used for dumping ashes when the mill had a steam boiler," Smallbones said. "Then they climbed the stairs inside and walked into the office."

Crowbars and heavy sledge-hammers, used to smash the 500-pound safe, were checked for fingerprints, Police Chief Hector Reid said.

Fred Clayton, Co-op. president, said no burglar insurance was carried. He explained that the directors believed no one would have the daring to try and break in, considering the mill's proximity to the road.

Buzzes Calgary Aviator Dies

CALGARY, May 1. (CP)—A 22-year-old aviation company employee was killed early Sunday when a light plane in which he had been buzzing the city crashed into a bungalow in North Calgary.

Dead is Jack Harper, advertising and sales employee of Foothills Aviation Ltd., Calgary. The bungalow's four inhabitants escaped serious injury.

Harper removed a twin-engined Cessna Crane from his company's hangar at the Calgary Municipal Airport at 2:38 a.m. Forty minutes later, after flying in what police described as a hazardous manner, he struck a telephone pole, sheared off another, and then crashed into the home of Marshall McDougall.

Both the plane and the house were demolished.

One hotel resident said he saw the plane flying past his sixth-floor room. A taxicab driver said he was forced to pull over to the curb when the plane flew low over his car.

Mr. and Mrs. McDougall suffered only minor injuries when one of the sheared-off telephone poles fell across their bed. Seventeen-year-old Donald was still asleep in his basement bed after the incident occurred, but his younger sister, Marcia, was thrown under the bathtub from her cot.

Industrials Climbing On Toronto Exchange

TORONTO, May 1 (CP)—Industrials pushed steadily higher as the session progressed on the Toronto Stock Exchange today. Mining stocks accounted for most of the heavy turnover. Volume for the first three hours was 1,639,000 shares.

In industrials gains were held to fractions but were widely scattered and more than doubled losses. Papers, steels, refining oils and constructions showed solid lists of gains. A few agriculture and liquors sagged.

A handful of junior golds traded heavily for some good gains. A low-priced prospect, Villbona Mines, gained four cents at 13 cents in turnover of more than 250,000 shares in three hours. Seniors showed a fractionally firmer tone.

Base metals sagged in early trading but were recovering at the half-way mark.

Western oils firmed with National Petroleum leading on a gain of 15 cents at $1.60.

Struggle Over Communism May Day Parade Theme

By The Associated Press

Generalissimo Stalin reviewed thousands of cheering Russians today in a mammoth May Day parade celebrating International Labor Day. The Communist slogans in Moscow's Red square were echoed around the world, from tense and divided Berlin to distant Burma.

The eyes of the world, however, turned anxiously toward Berlin where nearly 1,000,000 persons converged to hold rival Communist and anti-Communist demonstrations. Tough West Berlin police were quick to suppress the first scattered clashes and incidents. East Berlin police in their Soviet sector also were out in force.

Moscow, the capital of all Communist-style May Day celebrations, was engulfed in a sea of red bunting. A military parade marched past Lenin's tomb and Stalin's reviewing stand. Overhead soared Moscow's most spectacular peacetime display of Soviet aerial power, led by Stalin's son, Lt.-Gen. Vassili Stalin.

May Day, established as International Labor Day by the Socialist International at Paris in 1889, since has been traditionally celebrated throughout Europe.

But in the United States and Canada, Labor Day is designated as the first Monday in September.

Anti-Red Demonstrations

And this year in the U.S. May 1 was observed generally at the time for anti-Communist demonstrations.

Mosinee, Wis., had the most elaborate show, with the American Legion staging a mock "Communist insurrection" in which they rounded up city officials just before dawn and took over newspapers, banks, stores and other public activities for one day. Wisconsin Communists distributed copies of the Daily Worker Sunday scoffing at the idea.

In Canada, everything was quiet as leftist organizations observed the occasion with parades and meetings in most of the larger cities.

Police kept close watch at rallies in Montreal and Toronto.

Two Cars Collide Passing On Gilmour St.

Two cars collided when they tried to pass between a parked car and a parked truck on either side of Gilmour St.

Driver of one of the cars, Walter Head, 609 Gilmour St., reported he was travelling east. He saw another car driven by Carol Coulter, Omemee, approaching. He thought the other car was starting to pull over to the curb to allow him to go through, but the cars collided.

Head said his car also struck the right front corner of the parked truck, but only his car was damaged. Traffic Officer Gordon investigated.

Railways Willing

reports are as fair and impartial documents as could be produced in the circumstances.

"It had been hoped by the railway managements that the appearance of these reports would initiate a new and more fruitful stage of negotiations.

"Unfortunately the immediate reactions of the union representatives, as reported in the daily press, indicate that there has been no change in their attitude. This is all the more regrettable because railway unions have in the past enjoyed a reputation for moderation and restraint in the conduct of their bargaining activities."

Proposals Unreasonable

The two officials said the Conciliation Boards had rightly described the employees' proposals as "unreasonable." Cost of the proposals of the two union groups representing the non-operating employees—those who do not run in the trains—would amount to an estimated $84,147,000 annually. Should their demands be met, it would set a pattern for all employees on the railways. The cost of "all demands now in contemplation" amounted to an estimated $115,392,000 annually for both railways — "the equivalent of a 25-per-cent increase in their railway wage bill."

"Moreover," continued the letter, "the fact cannot be ignored that the granting of any such demands to railway workers, the largest single industrial group in Canada, would set a pattern which would clearly dislocate the existing wage structure of the country and impart a serious shock to business confidence. A price inflation of major proportions would be inevitable."

Meet Some Demands

Mr. Dingle and Mr. Crump said the majority findings of the board "would carry the railways over a considerable distance" toward meeting employees' demands. The standard work week would be reduced to 44 hours and at the same time hourly wage rates would be uniformly increased by 6.63 per cent.

"This general formula is so calculated as to leave unchanged the average weekly earnings of the non-operating employees involved in this dispute. In its application the plan would effect a modest reduction in the take-home pay of some groups and a counter-balancing increase in the take-home pay of certain other employees.

"The railways are aware that this formula runs counter to their long-established practice of dealing with the different classes of employees, whose relative positions are not altered without good reason."

Fresh Investment

3. Fresh inflows of dollars for investment in Canadian development—particularly petroleum — amounted to $88,000,000 in 1949 compared with $71,000,000 in 1948 and $48,000,000 in 1947. Bulk of the inflow of dollars took the form of Canadian dollars acquired in the unofficial market.

4. Devaluation of sterling currencies last September was of advantage to Canada, since it increased the ability of these countries to earn more dollars and thereby to buy more from Canada. However, if devaluation was to achieve its purpose of getting a better balance of world trade "there must be greater competition in the North American market from overseas suppliers."

Amplifying this latter point, Mr. Towers said this trade could not be increased unless those countries depreciating their currencies cut down their own consumption of goods and increased the flow to dollar countries.

Curb Inflation

It was essential that inflationary tendencies be curbed in these countries, or there would be temptation to divert supplies intended for dollar countries into high-priced sterling markets.

Turning attention on Canada's own trade troubles, Mr. Towers noted that although Canada's exports to the United States in 1949 were at the highest value in history, the volume was slightly smaller than in 1948.

If revision of US import policies, including changes in customs procedures, would lend encouragement to winning a bigger US market for Canadian manufactured goods, it would be of great value to Canada's balance of payments account, Mr. Towers said.

In imports, Canada was buying less oil from the United States, principaly because her own supplies had grown. Otherwise, the volume of imports tended to be higher than in 1948.

American investors in Canadian enterprise drew $285,000,000 in interest and dividends last year, compared with $230,000,000 in 1948, an increase of $55,000,000.

Focal Point

Emerson, at the international boundary, was the focal point of flood news up to Saturday. There the Red's rise was almost stopped as the flood crest moved slowly but relentlessly northward toward Lake Winnipeg.

Today Morris took the main brunt of the river's fury. A built-up roadway collapsed without warning Sunday. A wall of water 2½ feet high poured down Morris' main street—Highway 75 from Winnipeg to the border.

Reports to Winnipeg over jammed telephone and telegraph lines said 15 inches of water swirled into the hospital. The town and the RCMP both called for army help to build a higher sandbag wall. Civilian workers were exhausted after hours of ceaseless work.

Twelve Patients

Twelve patients—including two mothers and their three and four day old babies and four expectant mothers—were in the hospital. Some of the patients were seriously ill. Some had been moved in only a few days ago from another hospital now inundated.

Agreement

Reinstatement

One condition of the back-to-work agreement was reinstatement of 104 workers at South Bend, Ind., who had become an issue in the strike call. They had struck in support of six men in the "muddy field" incident. The six men had refused to walk across a muddy field to their jobs on a television tower and were threatened with dismissal. The 104 South Bend workers then left their jobs and two days later, with the case taking an important place in negotiations, the strike was called.

The 230 teletype operators and 35 equipment maintenance men in 35 United States bureaux of the United Press struck for a wage increase of $6.50 a week after first asking a boost of $15 a week. The company offered $2.20.

Leftist Group Planning Speaking Tour

MONTREAL, May 1—(CP)—The leftist Youth Assembly for Peace, ousted from downtown Dominion Square Sunday when members attempted to stage a "memorial" service at the cenotaph, today planned a "speech-making" trip to Toronto.

A spokesman for the assembly said a delegation probably would leave here today to attend the Canadian Peace Congress in Toronto next week-end. En route, the delegates will stop off at several points, including Cornwall, to deliver speeches.

Meanwhile, the chairman of the Youth Assembly faces arraignment in court today on a charge of carrying a banner without a civic permit.

Leo Hardy, 27, of suburban Rosemount, was arrested Sunday by members of the city's anti-subversive squad for carrying the banner—a papier-mache torch—to the cenotaph in Dominion Square. Tardy's companions were ousted from the square by police, who then herded several hundred strollers from the grounds and stationed a guard to prevent people from entering.

Memorial Service

The assembly decided to hold the "solemn memorial service" at the cenotaph after police refused permission to stage a "peace torch" rally at Fletcher's Field in north-central Montreal. The rally would have included a non-stop relay from Montreal to Toronto with the final runner arriving in Toronto for the opening session of the peace congress.

Hardy is the fourth person connected with the assembly to be arrested in less than two days. Two men and a woman were arrested Friday night on charges of being found in possession of and distributing subversive literature. Aline McGregor, Joe Elbling and Homer Smith appeared in court Saturday and were remanded one week for trial.

1950 Hereford Show Slated For Norwood

NORWOOD, May 1—(ENS)—The secretary of the Ontario Hereford Breeders' Club, Mr. R. R. Graham, Toronto, recently notified directors of the Norwood Fair of their intention of holding their Eastern Ontario Club show in Norwood this year.

Winning Herefords at the earlier fairs in that area between Yonge St., Toronto and the Quebec border will be eligible to show at Norwood. This show was held last year at Renfrew and several important fairs in this region made application for this show, but the Ontario Hereford Club deemed Norwood suitable for the holding of their 1950 show, because of the assured support of leading hereford breeders if the regional show was held at Norwood.

What Kind Of Fish?

COBOURG, May 1—(ENS)—Fishing for smelt the other night in the Factory Creek, George Rogers of Cobourg landed what he thought was a big sucker. When he pulled the flopping fish out of the net he was completely puzzled at his catch.

The fish weighed five pounds and was 18 inches long. After asking about two dozen people in Cobourg what species of fish it was, he was told it was a dogfish.

The fish does not resemble the ocean-going dogfish that belongs to the shark family. It had a dark green back, a head like a big trout and a long dorsal fin ran the length of his back from just behind the gills to almost the tail. The tail was thick, and the tail fin was broad like a brown trout. The belly was salmon in color.

Pacific War Unlikely

MELBOURNE, May 1 (Reuters)—Admiral A. W. Radford, commander in chief of the United States Pacific Fleet, said in an interview today that war in the Pacific in the near future is unlikely. He arrived here as guest of the Australian government for Coral Sea Week, which commemorates the Coral Sea battle of 1942, the allies' first major victory over the Japanese fleet.

Took Food For Dance

COBOURG, May 1—(ENS)—Vandals who broke into the Collegiate home - economics room while a dance was in progress Saturday night, stole some of the cakes and sandwiches which were stored there for the students at the dance.

When the committee went to get the refreshments they found sandwiches strewn on the floor and three of the home made cakes gone. More sandwiches were found lying in the school grounds.

The intruders left enough food for everyone at the dance to be served and the dance was not interrupted.

Entrance had been gained through a window, the home economics room being on the ground floor.

Maple syrup, plentiful, varied in price throughout the market depending upon the run. A price of $3 a gallon was asked for the last run syrup while the best syrup was $4.50 and $5 a gallon. Some farmers were asking $4 a gallon, $1 a quart and 50 cents a pint. Maple sugar was general at 10 cents a cake.

Eggs were generaly 42 cents a dozen for Grade A mediums and 45 cents a dozen for grade A large. The low price on the market was 36 cents a for mediums and 40 cents for large. A few extra large eggs were selling at 50 cents a dozen.

Old carrots and beets were selling at 35 cents a six-quart basket, parsnips were 40 cents a six-quart, cabbage 15 cents each, turnips 5 cents each, potatoes were $1.50 for a 75-pound bag of Chippawas, Katahdins or Sabagas.

Challenge Land Title

MANILLA, May 1 (AP)—The Philippines house of representatives has challenged Britain's title to North Borno. The house adopted a resolution authorizing President Elpidio Quirino to negotiate with Britain for return of North Borneo to the Filipino heirs of the Sultan of Sulu, who sought the aid of the Philippines when Britain annexed the 30,000-square-mile territory in June, 1946.

Sea Lion Spring Slaughter Under Way On BC Coast

KNIGHT INLET, B. C., May 2 (CP)—The spring slaughter of the predatory, bewhiskered sea lion is in swing along the rocky British Columbia coast.

Their lust for the tasty Colachan—or Candlefish—has made the big, fawn-colored sea lions the outlaw of coast fishing grounds.

Every spring two or three Dominion Fisheries patrol boats hunt the mammals in the inlets some 120 miles upcoast from Vancouver. Knight Inlet is one of these.

From March through May, the six to 12 inch smelt-like Colachan head for the inlets and the glacial streams. The sea lions are waiting for them.

This year, the patrol boats Atlin Post and Chilco Post were, in turn, awaiting for the sea lions. Armed with rifles, the five-man crews bagged 145 lions, all but 11 of them in Knight Inlet at the mouth of the Kleene Kleene River.

Not Extermination

"There is no intention of exterminating the sea lion population," said J. Frank Tait, supervisor of fisheries on Vancouver Island. "It is valueless as far as we know but is part of our natural animal population."

Once the lions are shot, they are allowed to sink below the surface. Occasionally one is hauled aboard so a crew member can save the head as a souvenir. A sea lion weighs between 600 and 1,000 pounds.

The sea lions started thronging the inlets to gobble Colachan after sharp-shooters drove them from the west coast of Vancouver Island and Queen Charlotte Sound where they had preyed on salmon and halibut.

Since the number of lions has been brought under control, the Colachan runs have increased.

An Assessment Of Our Music

Today the week-long Kiwanis Music Festival began in Murray Street church. It is the fourth in what has now become an annual series of "competition festivals," as they are termed on the program. It is engaging hundreds of performers or contestants who have entered one or more of the 108 classes: children of six painstakingly fingering Lollipop Parade, skilled pianists of nineteen playing Haydn and Mozart, and adult choirs singing motets and famous choruses. The Festival reaches a wide district and the events should attract large audiences.

* * *

The name "Competition Festival" indicates a double purpose: to provide a competition in which performers may test themselves against others and try for the scholarships and prizes offered; and an opportunity for the entrants to perform before skilled adjudicators, and for the public to assess and enjoy the kind of music being made in Peterborough and the surrounding counties. The title page of the Festival program gives Sir Walford Davies' definition that "In Music Festivals the object is not to gain a prize, nor defeat a rival, but to pace one another on the road to excellence". Of greatest worth will be the adjudicators' detailed, careful and informed criticism, through which the performers can measure their attainments against other than local standards, and by which this east-central district of Ontario can learn whether our music is "on the road to excellence."

A Stupid Proposal

The Royal Commission on the Arts and Sciences has heard a good many ill-considered proposals in its investigations across the country, but few to equal the one that the radio license fee should be raised, and that the extra money so obtained should be spent to send the C.B.C. Times into the home of every owner of a radio.

The C.B.C. receives a good deal of revenue from commercial advertising programs, and the listing of those programs in the C.B.C. Times constitutes not only advertisement for those programs but for the products which they are designed to sell. By making every holder of a radio license a compulsory subscriber to the Times, the Government would be subsidizing those products in an utterly unjustifiable way.

The newspapers naturally object to such a scheme, for they sell advertising space themselves, and see no reason why the Government should give it away at the public expense. Furthermore, the newspapers do a good deal of public service, and they support themselves by advertising revenue to a great extent. They object to having their throats cut by a government agency which foists an advertising medium upon every holder of a radio license, whether he wants it or not.

Radio listeners who want complete listings of radio programs are now able to subscribe to the C.B.C. Times at very reasonable rates. That is as it should be. To thrust that magazine upon every license holder, as a condition of owning a radio, would be unjust and dangerous for such a magazine could become a dangerous engine of propaganda. We are glad to see that the Chairman of the C.B.C., Mr. Davidson Dunton, has opposed it.

Literacy In The Deep South

Politics in the Deep South of the United States are often characterized by amusing antics and incidents, and the three current campaigns in Florida, Alabama and North Carolina are no exception. A circus was raided in Alabama to provide donkeys for Democrats and an elephant for Republicans, and reports from the other two states tell of slapstick campaigns playing on popular ignorance of perfectly good big words. The report from Florida has been denied by the candidate involved, George Smathers, but the story persists. A somewhat similar report comes from North Carolina.

The Smathers speech is said to have been as follows: "Are you aware that Claude Pepper (his opponent) is a shameless extrovert? Not only that, but this man is reliably reported to practice nepotism with his sister-in-law, and he has a sister who was once a thespian in wicked New York. Worst of all, it is an established fact that Mr. Pepper before his marriage habitually practiced celibacy."

Reports from North Carolina say that the same thing is going on there, but only a one-sentence sample has been given. The Senator running in the primaries there is Frank P. Graham, one-time president of the University of North Carolina. His opponents are saying that when he held that post, he encouraged matriculation.

We do not know whether the reports ar truthful or not, but they have appeared in numerous United States newspapers and other publications. If they are truthful, it would seem that the two states in question are not infested with literacy.

Puritanism In West Germany

Because puritanical fusses about nudity are so common on this continent we sometimes forget that the idea that the naked human form is indecent is not an exclusively North American delusion. It comes to us from Europe, and an interesting example of it is observable at present.

A new German five-mark note carries, on its reverse side, a picture of the goddess Europa, being carried away on the back of a bull, as she was in the classical myth. Europa's bosom is bare, and apparently some straight-laced Germans have been drawing a suitable veil over her charms with pens and pencils. Finance officials report this sort of activity chiefly in the district near Bonn, and particularly in the town of Beuel; last year the citizens of Beuel had an iron brassiere fitted upon its famous statue of a nude washerwoman. Let us hope that these pernickety folk never get their hands on Canadian bank notes, most of which bear pictures of men and women in various stages of classical undress; no doubt they would destroy the offending currency.

It is really too bad that people should be so obsessed by what they believe to be modesty that they think that the human body is too indecent to be seen. Such an attitude makes us wonder about their private lives. Do they undress in the dark, or under the bedclothes? Do they wear swimming suits in the bathtub? How do they meet those physical exigencies which Nature imposes upon us all? How, in fact, do they deal with the nastiness of mind which they mistake for modesty. Why do they suppose that God clothed the human spirit in a form which they consider too dreadful to behold? It must be strange indeed to inhabit a realm of thought where clothes are decent and flesh is not.

Melted Fame In Wax

Madame Tussaud's waxworks in London needs no introduction to our readers. Even if they have never seen that hall of fame and infamy, they know that our own former Prime Minister, Mr. Mackenzie King achieved the eminence of having his effigy in wax set up there, among the heroes, statesmen, criminals and kings of Time. Is it not as distinctive and permanent an honour as the admission to the Order of Merit? Wax melts, of course, but Madame Tussaud's waxworks remain; for more than a century Nelson and Napoleon have faced each other through the waxing and waning of Time and Tussaud's.

But alas, change infiltrates even into wax halls of fame, because fame itself is transient, and the waxworks pretends to be a faithful image. Fame fades because, as even a statesman like Mr. Mackenzie King knows, the mob who pay a shilling or two to gain entrance to Madame Tussaud's is fickle and popularity passes. The New York Times notes additions and deletions among the present exhibition of 497 figures. Among the newcomers are Vivien Leigh, Laurence Olivier, Dr. Malan, Prime Minister of South Africa and Louis Brough, Wimbledon singles champion.

Among the figures melted down, the wax to be used for other forms and phantasies are Mae West, Stanley Baldwin, Field Marshal Rommel, Rudolf Hess, Norma Shearer—and Mackenzie King.

Musical Notes

By PETER PIPER

THIS is the week of the annual Kiwanis Music Festival in Peterborough, and competitors in all classes are breathing hope and fear. Some of them have already had experience of performing in public, some are already seasoned veterans, while a few will be having their first experience. Naturally the dominant thought is one of nerves. More poor performances are caused by nerves than by any other factor in competitions, and yet they do not appear to worry professionals. Now, the important thing to remember about nerves is that they are quite natural. They are the instinctive reaction of the animal side of one's nature to an emergency. It is "nerves" that stimulate one to do better than is normally possible: for instance if one is pursued by a bull in a field. To try and suppress nerves, to pretend that they do not exist, is to run counter to the deepest seated instinct in nature, the instinct of self-preservation. This is no new idea; there is an old Latin tag which runs "Drive nature out with a fork, she will come back again". If you try to ignore nerves they will take their revenge in such things as unaccountable lapses of memory. The wise course is to ask yourself the reason for your nerves. You may be nervous because you are afraid of the audience. Why are you afraid of the audience? They have come to enjoy themselves. They are not hostile bogies; they are composed of average decent music-lovers with human sympathies. Try to establish a human relationship with them; they will respond to anything that touches their emotions. Every artist worthy of the name has "nerves", but instead of working against them he enlists their aid and controls them gently but firmly. Anybody who takes the trouble to know himself, without false pride or false modesty can do the same.

✧ ✧ ✧

TODAY is the tercentenary of the Scottish Psalter in its latest form. I wonder how many churchgoers realize that hymn-singing in the reformed churches is a comparatively recent custom and encountered considerable opposition at first. For some time the only music authorized in the churches of the Calvinist persuasion was the metrical psalter. The Church of England also used metrical psalms extensively, though they were supplanted later by the Anglican chant which had developed from plainsong in the Cathedral use. The old Scottish psalm tunes are stark and dour, with few airs and graces, but with a strength and sincerity that has won them a place in the heart [illegible] words of Burns:

"They chant their artless notes in simple guise;
They tune their hearts, by far the noblest aim:
Perhaps 'Dundee's' wild warbling measures rise,
Or plaintive "Martyrs", worthy of the name:
Or noble "Elgin" beats the heavenward flame,
The sweetest far of Scotia's holy lays:
Compared with these, Italian trills are tame;
The tickled ears no heartfelt raptures raise;
Nae unison hae they with our Creator's praise."

✧ ✧ ✧

FORGETFULNESS has been blamed for many things, and yet life would be awkward indeed if the mind had not the capacity of passing over the great majority of impressions. If it were not for forgetfulness it would take twenty-four hours to recall an event that happened a day ago. Unfortunately the process of selection and rejection is entirely automatic. Scientists have however discovered some interesting things about this question of forgetfulness. In one experiment a number of people were induced to learn a piece of nonsense poetry by heart. Each of them, on becoming word-perfect, was sent away and asked to report again at certain intervals. It was found on an average that after half an hour half the poem had been retained; after eight hours, one third of it; after a month, one fifth. It will be noticed that the rate of forgetfulness was high in the initial stages and flattened out considerably later on. This has a bearing on practice. Assuming that the pupil has learned something of value in his lesson it would appear that the sooner he can get a practice after his lesson the better, in order to reinforce his memory while it is still fresh. It is also far preferable to have a number of short practices evenly spaced than to have a smaller number of longer practices with long gaps in between, in order that mental and muscular memory may be kept continually in trim.

A FURTHER difficulty connected with memory and forgetfulness arises out of its automatic nature. It is perfectly possible to memorize a wrong note. Once it has been memorized you cannot dismiss the error from your mind by a mere effort of the will. If an error of this nature is taken in the early stages it may not cause very much trouble, but if the error has been allowed to become a deeply-rooted habit through dint of much practice it may well prove a most disheartening task to eradicate it. In fact it is true that it is easier to learn than to unlearn. Forgetfulness can (as I have mentioned above) be traced to "nerves": sometimes both forgetfulness and nerves are merely symptoms of a more deeply-rooted psychic disturbance which it is outside the province of the musician to discuss with authority, though the music teacher is continually in contact with pupils whose worst enemy is themselves. He may often by sympathetic and tactful treatment be able to help his pupil over his self-made difficulties without any specialized knowledge of the workings of the human mind, but there are some cases which call for a combination of musician and psychiatrist. I know of only one person who professes some knowledge of this type of work, and yet there should be quite a demand for it. The only danger is that owing to the lack of any recognized technique or qualifications the door is wide open for charlatans and quacks. Perhaps our Universities and Schools of Music may one day recognize the importance of this aspect of musical education, and institute courses of study and diplomas.

BATTERED BUT STILL AFLOAT

Letter To The Editor

NAUSEATED BY KINSEY REPORT

Sir: I have read with amazement the two articles in your paper re the Kinsey Report. I am not prude and I do believe in the freedom of the press. But when the very sanctity of the marital act, created by God Almighty for the express purpose of perpetuation of the human race is treated as a scientific entity, as a test tube experiment, as a thing to be argued about over the back fence as fish-mongers wives would argue over the price of a cod, and when human beings are treated as laboratory rabbits, then I lose my respect for science and the so-called proponents of scientific investigation. So also when the press makes headlines out of such I am very much inclined to lose my respect for it.

Human nature, as such, is at its best no pretty picture stained as it is with original sin. Yet we in our sophisticated society have endeavourred to cover up its weakness. Why should we now in the abortive name of science try to undo what centuries of living have tried to build up? In other words, why should we be bothered in trying to lift sunken humanity out of the gutter by pretending an interest in music, art, poetry if pseudo-science is going to undo it all, the most sacred and private activities of the human being has been desecrated by this report.

I have always admired the tone of your paper and I have always felt that you have tried to be uplifting rather than degrading. However, to read those two articles was simply nauseating not only to me, I am sure, but to many many other decent people of Peterborough.

Please accept my thanks if you see fit to print this letter. I felt prompted to write because, as father of four boys, I feel very strongly that such material as the Kinsey Report in print violates my social familial and religious principles and this has been done by pseudo-scientific acrobats.

RONALD M. MACPHERSON.

The Stalin Plan for Transforming Nature

By EDWARD CRANKSHAW

THE first full-scale progress report on the gigantic "Stalin Plan for Transforming Nature" which was announced by decree in October 1948, indicates that the fifteen-year-programme has begun to make headway. From the maze of detailed and often overlapping statistics with which the Government has just regaled the Russian people it is clear that a tremendous initial effort has been made, in many aspects far in excess of schedule. What is not clear, and is never likely to be clear from official reports, is the quality of the effort and the permanence of the work done.

The plan has four main objects. First, the creation of tremendous shelter belts crisscrossing the vast, treeless expanses of the exposed but fertile steppe; some of these belts, running parallel with the great rivers, will be hundreds of miles long. Secondly, the afforestation of large areas of barren steppe. Thirdly, the permanent irrigation, by the digging of ponds and the planting of smaller shelter belts on thousands of collective farms, of areas liable to drought. And fourthly, the introduction of ley farming—i.e. the temporary pasture sown down as part of the regular crop rotation.

The all-embracing object of the whole colossal concept is to improve the productivity of Soviet agriculture everywhere, to combat soil erosion in the vast treeless plains (a danger made acute now, when after centuries of scratching the surface, modern farm machinery is making it possible for the Russian peasants to plough deeply), and to limit the effects of the all too frequent droughts which afflict the most fertile regions of Russia and, in the past, have too often spelt famine and starvation.

THE Soviet Government is in deadly earnest over this plan, as well it may be. In the days when Russia had few great cities, when 80 per cent. of her people were peasants who ate when times were propitious and starved when they were not, she could afford to neglect the most elementary attempts to improve her agricultural production. But today, with half the population working in the cities and absolutely dependent for their food on the other half, plainly two or three bad harvests in a row could mean disaster, not merely in terms of immediate hum in suffering through hunger, but also in terms of a serious interruption or breakdown of industrial production.

It is this urgency which makes the pessimistic predictions of foreigners irrelevant. When the Soviet Government is really determined to carry out a particular scheme it usually does so, no matter how wastefully and blunderingly. And this one it really is determined to carry out, because it must.

The fact that it surrounds the plan with fanfares of megalomanic ballyhoo is neither here nor there. It is characteristic, for example, that Pravada should wind up its editorial on the official report by declaring that only in the Soviet Union is any attention at all paid to the proper conservation of the soil. "Meanwhile," it says, "the system of robbing the land, employed in capitalist countries, leads to the exhaustion and destruction of the soil, to the lowering of the yields of agricultural crops".

It does not mention that until now the crop yields of Soviet Russia could hardly have been lower than they were, or that the ordinary Russian peasant is the most feckless and wasteful cultivator outside darkest Africa. Speaking of the problem of erosion in the United States, it goes on to say: "No radical measures capable of preventing this national catastrophe are undertaken or can be undertaken by the Governments of the capitalist States"—ignoring absolutely the Tennessee Valley Authority and other successful schemes.

BUT this nonsense should not blind us to the fact that the Stalin Plan is magnificent in conception and that, if the peasants can be kept actively on the side of the Government, will soon or later—though probably not in fifteen years—transform the face of Southern Russia. There will be enormous difficulties. The present report hints at a few: careless preparation of the ground for planting, the wiping out of thousands of acres of young trees by the fearful frosts of the open steppe, the strangling of tree nurseries by weeds which have their own way in Russia more than anywhere else in Europe, the planting of unsuitable varieties of trees because they come in handier. There will also be strong peasant resistance to the laying down of good arable land to temporary pasture, and so, as they would say, locking up valuable ground.

But with all these difficulties, a start has been made, and, other things being equal, in due course great benefits will accrue. If they do not, it will mean that the Soviet Union is still in no fit state to support heavy industrialization on an ever-expanding scale and that the Kremlin will have to think less in terms of factories and much more in terms of agriculture than it cares to think at the moment.

Bible Message

(From the Authorized Version)

To every thing there is a season, and a time to every purpose under the heaven... A time to weep, and a time to laugh; a time to mourn, and a time to dance... A time to get, and a time to lose; a time to keep, and a time to cast away.... What profit hath he that worketh in that wherein he laboureth?...

I know that, whatsoever God doeth, it shall be for ever: nothing can be put to it, nor any thing taken from it: and God doeth it, that men should fear before him. That which hath been is now; and that which is to be hath already been; and God requireth that which is past.

And moreover I saw under the sun the place of judgement, that wickedness was there; and the place of righteousness, that iniquity was there. I said in mine heart, God shall judge the righteous and the wicked: for there is a time there for every purpose and for every work. (Eccl. 3: 1, 4, 6, 9, 14-17.)

And the angel which I saw stand upon the sea and upon the earth lifted up his hand to heaven, and sware by him that liveth for ever and ever, who created heaven, and the things that therein are, and the earth, and the things that therein are, and the sea, and the things which are therein, that there should be time no longer: but in the days of the voice of the seventh angel, when he shall begin to sound, the mystery of God should be finished, as he hath declared to his servants the prophets. (Rev. 10: 5-7.)

Money In Stamps

(A Letter in the Montreal Star)

Sir,—In the Star of April 21st is a letter from Mr. H. Duyns regarding the investment value of stamp collections that is quite incorrect. Mr. Duyns stated, in part, that "the average collection does not command nearly its original cost when put on the market." This statement is of itself quite correct. But your correspondent then draws the wholly erroneous conclusion that stamp collections are not a good investment. Any sincere philatelist knows that the opposite is the truth.

The reason that the "average" stamp collection does not command any sum approaching its aggregate original cost when placed on the market is because the collector did not purchase, select or assemble his collection with care. May I point out just one example of the investment possibilities of stamp collecting. Any person with modest means who purchased the George V Silver Jubilee stamps at any stamp dealers shop when they were issued in 1935, and kept a complete set tucked away in a drawer for a period of ten years could have realized a 250 per cent. return on his investment. And this return mind you, without even bothering to mount the stamps in an album. The so-called 'average' stamp collector today does not purchase wisely or economically, mounts far too many damaged or low-value stamps in his album, does not specialize in stamps of any country or group of countries, and accumulates a vast collection of trashy stamps. The small minority of collectors who purchase wisely, economically and specialize in certain countries, who mount their purchases carefully and aim at quality instead of quantity in their collection can, in most cases, receive a return of 100 to 500 per cent. on their original investment after a period of fifteen years. The really accomplished philatelist spends half a lifetime building up a profitable collection and at the same time learning the investment trends of stamp collecting.

Unfortunately, too many collectors purchase anything that the unscrupulous dealer offers if the price seems a bargain, and believes that quantity adds to the value of a collection. Quality and selection should be aimed at if stamp collecting is to be pursued mainly for its investment possibilities. Moreover, few casual collectors realize that stamp collecting is a long-term investment. What the collectors of 'junk' fail to realize is that a huge collection of poor stamps requires too much time and effort to dismount the stamps from an album to make it worth while for the dealer to offer anything more than a nominal price. The actual market value of unused (mint) stamps of such countries as the British colonies increases steadily every year. A good collection acquired with care and held for a reasonable period will, in most cases, bring a bigger financial profit than the best preferred stocks sold on the various exchanges of this country, or any other country.

A recruit reported sick and complained to the Medical Officer that he could not eat. The M.O. first inspected his teeth and tongue, then his throat and tonsils. Finding nothing wrong, he prodded the lad in the stomach and back and asked if he had any pain at all.

"No sir," replied the recruit.

"Well, can't find anything wrong," replied the M.O. "How do you feel yourself?"

"Quite O.K., sir."

"Well, why on earth can't you eat?"

"I've lost my knife and fork."

Christian Science Girdles Globe After Very Small Beginning

BOSTON, May 1 —(AP)—From smal beginnings to a world-girdling religion is the story of Christian Science, which this year marks the 75th anniversary of the publication of its textbook.

The denomination, whose followers feels that prayer can heal the sick, has 3,014 recognized churches and societies. There also are 107 organizations at colleges, and a large number of small scattered groups holding informal services.

Christian Science first attracted attention in 1875 with publication of the first edition of its textbook, "Science and Health With Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy. About the turn of the century the movement grew from a relatively small group to a well-known church. Its growth has been steady.

In accordance with its by-laws, the churches publishes no membership figures. Outsiders, working from figures supplied by the census bureau in 1936, place the total well in the hundreds of thousands. Size alone is not considered important by Christian Scientists.

Have Publishing House

One function of the mother church, the first church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, Mass., is operating a large publishing house. It produces annually an estimated 75,000,000 pieces of literature about Christian Science.

The Christian Science publishing society is widely known for daily newspaper, the Christian Science Monitor, read by many who are not members of the denomination.

The discoverer and founder of Christian Science was a New England woman, Mary Baker Eddy (1821-1910). Its doctrines each that God, the loving father of man, is infinit good, eternal spirit, unchanging principle; that the true man is his image and likeness; that natter is a "mental concept" and actually unreal, the true universe being spiritual; that the need is for men to become Christ-like.

Healing Through Prayer

Christian Science places great emphasis upon healing the sick through prayer that embodies absolute faith and spiritual understanding.

Adherents include 10,753 officially-listed Christian Science practitioners, who devote themselves to healing the sick. Christian Scientists in general rely entirely upon prayer as understood in their religion for healing.

The faith has spread to remote parts of the earth. There are groups in such out-of-the-way places as Nairobi in central Africa; Kuala Lumpur, Malaya; and Hobart, Tasmania.

The growth of Christian Science has been an eventful and sometimes turbulent story.

It was discovered in 1866 when Mrs. Eddy, for years a deep Bible student, was healed of the effects of a critical accident, she said, simply by reading her Bible.

Nine years later—on Oct. 30, 1875—she published Science and Health in a first edition of 1,000 copies.

Appearance of the book stirred much controversy, which hasn't entirely subsided yet. But despite denunciations heaped upon the author, the book gained staunch adherents.

Believes Soviet Misquoted Him

TORONTO, May 1 — (CP) — Dr. James Endicott suggested Sunday that perhaps the Soviet press had misquoted him.

Recently returned from a one-month tour of Russia, Dr. Endicott took exception to statements made about him by External Affairs Minister Pearson in a speech Saturday in Montreal.

Mr. Pearson read an excerpt from a Moscow newspaper quoting Dr. Endicott as saying that while Moscow represented peace, in Canada airfields and military bases were being built instead of apartment houses.

Dr. Endicott said the statements to which Mr. Pearson referred were made at a press conference 'at which there was lots of give and take" but "at no time did I contrast peace conditions in Canada and Russia."

"If the reports say that, I was misquoted. Soviet reporters are as human as any others about sometimes getting their facts wrong. What I did say was that I had seen enough of the enormous construction program in Russia to convince me the Soviet needed peace."

MEAFORD, May 1 — (CP) — A firecracker tossed into an empty packing case Saturday is believed to have started fire that caused $10,000 damage in this Georgian Bay town and disrupted telephone communications for more than an hour.

Police said the fire broke out in the rear of a department store and rapidly spread to adjacent apartment buildings.

Firefighters were hampered when they were forced to push the fire truck half-a-block to the scene. The truck was in a garage for repairs.

Council members said later they were considering action to ban sale of firecrackers—except for two days prior to May 24.

Stockholders Who Own Business Found Own Best Customers

By RADER WINGET

NEW YORK, May 1 —(AP)— What kind of a car does Henry Ford drive? What did the Smith Brothers do when they coughed?

The answer to those questions is making money for a number of corporations. The answer is that Ford and the Smiths patronize their own businesses.

Corporations have discovered that stockholders, who actually are the owners of the business, are becoming their own best customers.

That discovery was a more or less accidental outgrowth of a "be-kind-to-stockholders" campaign. Stockholders demanded and got detailed information on their company's operation from officers and directors.

Don't Pull Punches

Company officials pulled no punches in telling their stockholders what fine things they made or sold and just how the company operated.

They talked to a huge and wealthy audience.

General Foods is a pioneer in selling its wares to its own stockholders. The drive is carried on in annual reports, quarterly stockholder news bulletins, special sales to stockholders, and through plant meetings and tours. General Foods regards stockholders not only as customers but also as salesmen.

A recent survey showed General Foods stockholders had 14 per cent more General Foods brands on their shelves than their non-stockholder neighbors, and they kept a 32-per-cent-larger supply of these foods.

E. I. Du Pont de Memours has worked up a "one big happy family" idea among stockholders.

Stockholders listen avidly to their company's radio program, they write letters in this vein: "I think our program was lively. Don't you?" And Du Pont always writes back a personal letter.

Ken Kingston Re-elected To Head PMLA

Ken Kingston was re-elected president unanimously of the Peterborough Minor Lacrosse Association at the annual reorganization meeting held over the week-end. Walter Murphy was returned as secretary-treasurer, with the rest of the executive being three conveners: George Hill for juveniles, Jack Cooper for midget, and Walter Firth for bantam.

Reports were presented and the association was said to be in fair financial condition. Plans for the season were outlined, with practices opening a little later this month under head coach Jerry Fitzgerald, who will also handle peewee and tadpole teams during the daytime. Present coaches are: Juvenile, Ben Keller, Wilf Schweirs, and Bill Jackson; midget, Jim Dunstan, Bill Turkington, Joe Whitnall and Bill Bruce; bantam, Ed Woodcock, Mal VanAllen, Herb Reynolds and Jerry O'Toole.

A Large Setup

Several hundreds of boys from tadpole class up to junior perform in this large minor lacrosse setup, and the various all-star playdown teams from here made an excellent showing in provincial playoffs last fall. There appears no dearth of good sponsors and the OLA will again send sticks which may be obtained cheap by the boys. Exhibition games are planned when the season gets under way and all-star squads will be chosen earlier, five teams being affiliated with the OLA. Considerable work is needed to put the secondary box in good condition.

Lou Vitarelli suggested a four-team junior setup this year to take care of graduating juveniles and others over age. It was generally agreed that this might be a sound idea if some over-age players were permitted to perform, too, and possibly a real junior team might get a bye into playdowns. A few open drills for this class will be called soon and the idea followed up if the boys show sufficient interest.

RETURNS TO OHA — Frank Buckland, of Peterborough, was returned to the executive of the Ontario Hockey Association at the annual meeting held in Toronto on Saturday.

Montreal Edges Pats 5-2 In Second Tilt

TORONTO, May 1 — (CP) — Memorial Cup hockey will be making a return to Toronto Tuesday night when Montreal Canadiens tackle Regina Pats in the third game of the best-of-seven junior classic. The first two games were at Montreal.

The two clubs arrived today Toronto fans, always red-hot on the fast and furious junior brand of hockey, will watch them battle in the first final series game here since Port Arthur Bruins polished off Barrie Flyers in the 1948 championship set.

They'll probably see something, too. Montreal, leading the series with a 2-0 edge, just squeezed by, 8-7, in the opening game and had to cash in four last-frame goals before taking Saturday's tilt, 5-2.

It won't, however, be the first look Toronto fans have had at the classy Junior Habitants. The Montrealers played two games here in their semi-final series with Guelph Biltmores. Toronto fans were impressed by the speed and aggressiveness shown by the lighter Canadiens.

Plays Superbly

Bob Tyler, playing superbly in the nets for Regina, held off the Montreal marksmen for a single goal in the first two frames at Montreal Saturday while his mates up front smashed in a pair.

Ernie Roche opened the scoring for the Habs at 1.31 of the first but Gordie Cowan's marker at 10.12 and Capt. Morley MacNeill's goal early in the middle session made it 2-1 for the Pats.

Then the roof fell in. A shifty piece of centre machinery named Billy Goold personally wrapped up the contest for the Canadiens. He whistled in the tying counter midway through the last period and followed Art Rose's winner with his second. Jaques Nadon added a second insurance tally 45 seconds before the final bell.

There won't be any change in the officiating. Al Pickard, president of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association, announced at Regina Sunday night that Vic Lindquist and Windy Lyndon, both of Winnipeg, will continue to call the series.

WITH THE RETURN of the grapplers Thursday night at the Brock, Manager Jim Laidlaw has lined up a starry card for this show. The main bout will bring together Fred Atkins (above), Australian champion and Warren Bockwinkle, the St. Louis flash. Both men are big, fast and rugged and fans can look forward to plenty of fireworks. Both Atkins and Bockwinkle have yet to turn in a dull performance in the local ring. For the semi-final handsome Johnny Barend will take on towering Hi Lee. The opener will feature the popular Roy McClarity and Al (Krusher) Korman.

Hint Loophole For OHA In Sport Tax

TORONTO, May 1 (CP) —The Ontario Hockey Association on Saturday heard a hint of a possible "loophole" in Ontario's new sport tax.

The possibility arose out of an objection by Stafford Smythe of Toronto Marlboros to a suggested rule-change that would have meant an automatic $25 fine for any player given a match misconduct penalty.

That would be tantamount to admitting professionalism in the OHA, he argued at the association's 61st annual meeting. The fine proposal was dropped.

"We'd be leaving ourselves wide open. If money is involved, we are considering ourselves not to be amateurs."

Then Smythe offered his observation about the Ontario government's 15 per cent tax on professional sports for which admission of 50 cents or more is charged.

Doesn't Elaborate

"Loopholes in the regulations might make it possible for us to get around this tax."

He didn't elaborate.

(The government has indicated it may consider many an "amateur" organization as professional for tax purposes.)

George Panter, OHA manager, said a fine is the only way to control some players.

"We have found nothing else works. If you hit the player in the pocketbook, it is the only thing that hurts. There is not a chance in 10,000,000 that the class A teams can escape the tax anyway."

Retiring president J. J. McFadyen of Galt recommended that the Junior and Senior A teams be put in a division separate from the other OHA clubs.

"They should operate under special regulations. It would eliminate much of the confusion which now exists in movement of the players."

No Action Taken

No action was taken on this suggestion.

Record revenue from playoffs —$37,000—was reported by Panter.

"Hockey is growing in Ontario" he said. "There now are 52 artificial ice arenas. Seven more are being built and a number of others planned. We need a bigger reserve fund. We have to be prepared for a number of contingencies, such as possible difficulties with the professional teams, player injuries, court cases and the like."

An annual honorarium of $1,000 to the president and $500 to each of the vice-presidents was voted.

J. M. Roxborough, Simcoe, was elected president; Stewart McTavish, Oshawa, first vice-president; M. L. (Tory) Gregg, Wingham, second vice-president.

TORONTO, May 1 — (CP) — Edward F. Dennie, a hotel owner, said Saturday he has filed a writ for libel against Joe Ziegler, manager of Toronto Maple Leafs of the International League.

SPORTS SHOW WINDOW

By CEC. PERDUE, Sports Editor

Perhaps tomorrow we'll have a chance to use some info from the OBA regarding taxes on so-called amateur sports—and it ought to interest local junior, intermediate and senior clubs in all branches of sports. Looks like they'll have to kick in to the government. Meantime, we note this item from the Ottawa Journal re Sydney Millionaires where Bob Greenlaw and Don McRae played the past winter: "Fred Hildebrand, who played hockey with Sydney this year, reports Murph Chamberlain was paid nearly $8,000 and could get $12,000 next year. Hildebrand claims he had an offer to turn pro with Boston and play hockey on the Pacific Coast but wasn't offered half the amount he received to play with Sydney." Real amateurs, eh? Greenlaw was asked by Chamberlain, who may coach Ottawa Senators next winter, to play for him again.

Word comes that the OLA senior "A" schedule this year will be reduced from 36 to 30 games, all clubs agreeing it was too stiff a schedule last hot season, followed by strenuous playoffs. Teams concerned will likely again go for the same playoff setup. Seven in—if Toronto isn't added—include: Owen Sound, Brampton, Hamilton, St. Catharines, Mimico, Peterborough and Weston. All clubs are rebuilding; and the Petes aren't the only team to go as far away as British Columbia for talent, Brampton having a couple of newcomers from the coast, also. Whitey Severson and Lewis Landis are the guys. Play opens in a couple of weeks.

Enter Lakeshore Loop

While the senior baseballers are working out, and the minor diamondeers are about to re-organize, we notice where a Peterborough intermediate squad has been accepted into the Lakeshore League. Along with Cobourg, Colborne, Oshawa, Whitby, Bowmanville and Lindsay. Neither Newcastle nor Trenton in this semester. Don't know yet who is running the local intermediate outfit nor what players will perform out of here, but no doubt they'll drop around to tell us in time to plug the first home game. Schedule opens May 20, the locals not seeing action till they buzz off to Lindsay on June 2.

Glad to see a hustler like Ken Kingston back as prexy of the PMLA, ably assisted by Secretary-Treasurer Walt Murphy. Also on the executive are three conveners, George Hill for juvenile, Jack Cooper for midget, and Walter Firth for bantam. Probably 20 teams in again, counting tadpoles and peewees run in the day time by Jerry Fitzgerald. He'll also oversee such experienced minor lacrosse coaches in the higher brackets as Ben Keller, Wilf Schweirs, Bill Jackson, Jim Dunstan, Bill Turkington, Joe Whitnall, Bill Bruce, Ed Woodcock, Mal VanAllen, Herb Reynolds and Jerry O'Toole. Maybe a junior section, too. Story on their meeting is in elsewhere.

Re-Elected To The OHA

Frank Buckland of this city was re-elected to the OHA executive Saturday in Toronto at the annual hockey convention. Also voted to the executive were Lorne Cook of Kingston, Roy Reynolds of Chatham and Earl Brill of Guelph. The president will make a few appointments shortly. Other officers were returned by acclamation. It was pointed out that there are now 52 artificial ice arenas in Ontario with seven more being built and others planned. Amateur hockey had a big season in the province. The meeting turned down the proposal to pin a $25 fine on players drawing match misconduct penalties, evidently fearing this would give the government an idea the OHA was a pro outfit and should be taxed as such.

Hugh Outram Winner For Harriers

Hugh Outram, 16-year-old high school athlete, repeated his victory of two weeks ago for the Harriers Club on Saturday when he took the third annual cross-country race at Jackson's Park in 14 minutes, heading a field of five. Jack Brown, 1948 winner, placed second and Mike Basciano, junior half-miler, was third. The time was well off the record of 11 minutes, 30 seconds, but he wasn't pushed.

Brown jumped into the lead, followed by Basciano and Chapman, with Outram and Flowers 10 yards back. It went that way for a quarter of a mile and then Flowers came up fast to take the lead, but later fell back as Outram and Basciano went ahead of Brown. Halfway through, on a long slope, Outram moved ahead 30 yards with Brown and Basciano together, and Flowers and Chapman about 100 yards back.

Moved Ahead

Later, Brown moved up on Basciano and passed him, with Flowers closing the gap. The latter moved up on the heels of Brown and Basciano in the final stretch, with Brown well in front. Brown then took over second position with a sprint and Basciano got in ahead of Flowers, Chapman being some 200 yards back of the winner.

Coach Morewood presented the cup to the champion, with silver medals going to the runners finishing second and third. The harriers now go into training for a duel track meet and hold open workouts at Nicholls Oval on Tuesday and Thursday nights at 7:15 under the coach. Information may be had by phoning Coach Morewood at 21866. Brown's time Saturday was 14 minutes, 51 seconds, while Basciano did the race in 15 even.

TCS Captures Triumph Over P-W Club

By C. H. IRESON.

Trinity College School defeated the Peterborough - Whitaker Cricket Club 91-80 for four wickets Saturday in Port Hope to open the season. The local club took the field with no practice and, up to a point, made a fair showing.

They batted first and, owing to good batting by F. Booth 36, W. Wright 21 and T. Scott 10, had 73 runs scored with only four men out, but the rest failed and the total was only 80. On the school going to bat against bowling of F. Booth and B. Roberts, the first wicket fell for one but then C. Ketchum's 32 and J. Bruce's 50 won the match, and then both retired. One more wicket fell and the score ended as stated.

Booth tried seven bowlers, took the first wicket and had one for 11 runs. J. Wild took the other wicket which fell for 12 runs. Next Saturday, the Peterborough-Whitaker Club plays Grove School at Lakefield. Following is the Saturday summary:

Peterborough-Whitakers — F. Booth, b. R. Cooper, 36; E. Cotton, b, Cox, 4; W. Wright, run out, 21; T. Scott, b, Case, 10; R. Rollwagen, b, Cox, 3; B. Roberts, b, Muntz, 2; H. Dibben, b, N. Cooper, 0; W. Freeman, b, Muntz 0; R. Webb, not out, 1; S. Jennings, lbw, b, N. Cooper, 3; J. Wild, did not bat. Total 80.

In bowling, M. Cox took 3 wickets for 21 runs. N. Cooper 2 for 17 and R. Cooper 1 for 21.

Trinity College School—Batting R. Cooper, and Rollwagen b, Booth, 0; J. Ketchum, retired, 32; L. Bruce, retired, 50; N. Cooper, b, Wild, 0; M. Cox, not out, 1; A. McDermott, not out, 1. Extras 7. Total (for 4 wickets) 91.

"CHRYCO Cyclebond BRAKE LININGS GIVE ME 3 TIMES THE WEAR", SAYS MONTREAL CAB DRIVER YVON BELLEMARE

"I am more than satisfied with the exceptional service I have had with Chryco Cyclebond Brake Linings", writes Yvon Bellemare, 5330 St. Denis St., Montreal. "They were installed 31,000 miles ago on my taxi . . . in use 24 hours a day in heavy traffic. Life of ordinary riveted linings used previously was from 12,000 to 14,000 miles." Reports from coast-to-coast in Canada tell the same story . . . Chryco Cyclebond Brake Linings give up to three times the wear under tougher-than-ordinary use!

Boston's 19-0 Shellacking Nothing New For Athletics

By JOE REICHLER
Associated Press Sports Writer.

When bigger and better horse collars are fashioned, it is a pretty safe bet Philadelphia Athletics will wear 'em.

When a team wins by a lopsided shutout score, the A's are almost certain to be on the receiving end.

Until Sunday, 14-0 represented the largest shutout score in the American League in the last 10 years. One such game was played in 1943. Another in 1944. The Athletics were the victims both times.

The luckless Mackmen made those two games seem like pitchers' battles Sunday. In the first game of the American League double-header the final score was Boston 19, Philadelphia 0. The Red Sox also won the nightcap 6-5.

Boston missed by two runs in equalling the record league high of 21-0. Who do you think lost that one? Why, the A's of course. August 13, 1939, Red Ruffing of New York whitewashed Philadelphia 21-0.

Maul Athletics

Boston crowd of 34,697 watched the Red Sox maul four Philly hurlers for 17 hits, good for 34 total bases in the opener. Ted Williams, back in action after missing seven of the last night games because of the grippe blasted two home runs. He drove in seven runs. Vern Stephens and Bobby Doerr also homered.

Sore-armed Dick Fowler, the Toronto righthander, made his first start for the As and was tagged for seven runs in the two innings he worked. The Sox slugged Harry Byrd, Joe Coleman, and Bobby Shantz for 11 runs in the fourth.

Boston built up a 5-0 lead for southpaw Chuck Stobbs in the first three innings of the second contest. The Young bonus pitcher weakened gradually, putting the tying run on base in the ninth. Al Papal took over and retired the next three batters. Hank Wyse was the loser.

The Red Sox now have beaten the A's 14 straight times at Fenway Park.

The White Sox emerged with a victory and a tie in their double-header with the league-leading Detroit Tigers. After Lefty Bill Wight hurled a two-hit 5-0 triumph in the opener, White Sox overcame a 7-0 deficit to gain a 7-7 tie before darkness halted the contest at the end of nine innings.

Home Run Counts

Del Rice broke up a brilliant 13-inning hurling duel with a home run to give St. Louis Cardinals a 1-0 victory over Chicago Cubs. The catcher's home run gave Harry Brecheen, his battery mate, a hard-fought triumph over Johnny Schmitz.

Cincinnati swept both ends of a double-header from Pittsburgh 4-2 and 2-1, although held to two hits by Mel Queen in the second game

Boston Braves and Philadelphia Phils divided a twin bill. The Braves won the opener 4-1, and the Phils took the nightcap 9-3. Rookie Norman Roy held the Phils to five hits in his debt as a starter.

Sam Jethroe played his best game as a Brave. He hammered a home run, triple, and single, drove in two runs and scored twice. Russ Meyer, who started for the Phils, was ejected by Umpire Al Barlick in the third for protesting a decision. Heading for the dugout; Meyer tossed the ball in back of him. It hit Barlick on the leg.

Telepluffs Add Unscheduled Script Laughs

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD, May 1 (AP)—Telefluffs are providing TV titters that aren't in the script.

Telefulff is a word I have just coined and it is available without charge to all accredited dictionaries. In a radio a fluff is a mistake or boner which is usually laughable. One of the most famous occured when an announcer introduced the former President of the United States as "Mr. Heobert Heever."

One of the most noted telefluffs occured a few weeks ago. Art Baker, the Benign character of the movies and radio, was about to introduce a movie. He was trying to think of the star's name and without warning said "what the hell is his name?"

Miscued Cue

At another station one day a program was switching from the studio to the ballpark for a baseball game. The picture got there, but the sound didn't. An unknowing announcer at the studio remarked "where the hell is my cue sheet?' 'And his words came out of TV loudspeakers.

"Complaints lit up the telephone switchboard like a Christmas tree," recalls a studio official.

Props can provide laughs, too. On a cooking show, Mike Roy was demonstrating a strawberry shortcake. He tried to put on whipped cream with an automatic gadget, but the thing wouldn't work. He shook it up and whipped cream blew the strawberries off the cake and squirted all over Roy and the camera, too.

Frozen Ad

In another case, a beauty was hired to read a one-minute commercial for a canned product. The gal rehearsed for five hours, but when her big moment came she froze. She was too stunned even to read the label off the can she was holding and the audience was treated to one minute of silence.

In another commercial-television mishap an announcer was spieling about an unbreakable drinking glass. Suddenly the glass slipped from his hand and fell to the studio floor in a shattering crash. Needless to say, the sponsor cancelled the next day.

Many Fishermen But Trout Turn Cold Fins

If you smelled fish frying from your neighbour's kitchen over the weekend, it was more than likely of the store-bought variety—not trout. Fishing was mighty slim going although the cold weather did not discourage the great army of trouters trying one district after another.

Cavan and Millbrook streams saw the greatest coverage with Alex Wilson of Oshawa taking one 2½-pounder and six other keepers. Fellow townsmen Ron Lambert and Drew Lindsay reported a fair catch each, as did Mel Johnston of Peterborough. Bob Fisher of this city took 10 beauties. A group of the local Cavan boys, Barry Whitnell, Geo. Clark, Earl and Bob Armitage, Jack Keller, Bob Schneider and Bob Stinson, took 10 fish among them. Roy Locke of Sherbrooke St., landed a 1¾ pound speckle west of Mount Pleasant; it was 15 inches long.

Saturday was one day that Bob Gimby of radio's Happy Gang was unhappy; together with W. Byles of Toronto, their luck on the upper Ganaraska amounted to about three fish. "A chap needed a traffic cop in some places to find a spot to park with a pole," complained unhappy Gimby.

There was no luck at all at Bannister's or Mercer's Ponds, several Toronto fishermen reported. Manley's Creek was the choice of some of the local Bewdley boys; Norman Sidey and Ted Shenkle took four speckles each, Ross Gardiner, 7, and Harold McAllister, 12 fish. Paul Gosselin at the same stream had to be content with one.

Three-Pounder

Swinging north around Bancroft way, although lakes were still locked with ice, one stream produced a whopping speckle over three pounds for Clayton Selkirk who, together with Bob Rooke, took 14 others besides.

A few fish were taken from Plato Creek in the Havelock district although veteran rodman George Hubbel said it was very poor; he took none himself, John Rogers tried Eagen Creek, south of Bancroft, with no better returns. At Menzies' creek near Warkworth, Barbara Cook and Jim English brought two speckles to creel, neither fish much over legal length.

Shelter Valley Creek, Grafton way in Northumberland County, rang the gong when George Owens of Oshawa landed a rainbow weighing 6 pounds, 2 ounces and measuring 26 inches. His lure was a streamer and the battle took 20 minutes.

8 Playgrounds In Parks Open July 3

Eight city parks will be used by the Recreation Commission as playgrounds for their summer program, Alex Sinclair, recreation director, announced today. The parks are the same as used last year, Riverside, Inverlea, Turner, Hamilton, McKellar, King Edward, Fleming Place and Confederation School grounds. The program is expected to begin July 3.

Mr. Sinclair said the weather will determine when lifeguards will be on duty. If the weather turns warm, guards will be placed earlier than July 3 at Riverside and Inverlea beaches.

Applications for both lifeguards and playground supervisors are now being received by the director. The youths and girls selected to fill the positions will attend a two or three-day training school before the playgrounds are opened.

Minor Fires Receive Firemen's Attention

Early today firemen were called to the Outboard Marine Co. plant when a zinc furnace in the die casting department overheated.

Cause of the overheating has not been determined but it may have been the failure of the automatic temperature control unit. There was little damage.

Grass fires were reported both Saturday and Sunday on a vacant lot at Reid and Edinburgh Sts. Handpumps were used to put them out.

Mid-Saturday afternoon a large rubbish fire at the rear of Cherney's store, George St., was extinguished with a couple of booster lines. And a bonfire in an Elias St. backyard was also reported Saturday afternoon.

100 More Entries This Year As Music Festival Starts

Youngsters under the age of seven started off the Kiwanis music festival today in Murray St. Baptist church. Of 700 contestants, the youngest are a group of seven children under the age of seven, who were the first to perform in the week long festival. Playing "Lollipop Parade" on the piano, Eleanor May McClelland of Port Hope led the class with 81 marks, followed by Penny Sparks, Peterborough, with 76, and Sharon Ball, Millbrook, 75.

Next came the piano class for children under eight, whose set piece was Jumping Beans. Carol Harvey of Bowmanville was first with 84, Karen Ethel Wood, Peterborough, was awarded 83 points and Franklin W. Montgomery, Peterborough, had 82.

The Cat's Reel was played by the under nines, Malcolm Ray of Peterborough winning with 80 points. Melvyn Petersiel, Peterborough, won 76 points and Patricia Hope, Port Hope, 75.

Last class before the noon intermission was boy's solo, under 13, in which Roy Fisher, Port Hope Public School, came first with 84 points; Bobby Richey, Peterborough, second with 83 and F. J. Siddall, Peterborough, 82.

The festival was officially opened by Al Plaskett, president of the Kiwanis Club. It was encouraging to the Kiwanians, Mr Plaskett said, that entries had increased this year by 100 in comparison with last year and had more than doubled since the first festival four years ago.

Mr. Plaskett said the interest taken by teachers not only in the city, but also in the rural areas and small towns, was greatly appreciated by the Kiwanis Club

Dr. C. S. Lang, D. Mus., ARCM Examiner to the Royal Schools of Music, England, who adjudicated the morning session, was introduced by Mr. Plaskett. John J. Weatherseed, FRCO, Toronto, is the other adjudicator and verse speaking will be adjudicated by Mary A. Lockhart, Ottawa.

UNESCO Greek Studies Our Democracy

"In Canada I have already seen real freedom and the practical application of the spirit and principles of democracy," said Mr. George Sakellaridis, a senior official of the Greek Ministry of Internal Affairs, in an interview with the Examiner today.

"One of my major impressions is this; the people of Canada understand and appreciate their duties and obligations as citizens of a free and democratic nation," Mr. Sakellaridis said. "To me it is wonderful what they have accomplished as a young nation, and everywhere I go I find that Canadians are proud of their country and its achievements."

Mr. Sakellaridis has been in Canada since Christmas Day on a UNESCO Fellowship to study governmental administration in its national, provincial and municipal levels.

He came here through the agency of the Canadian Council for Reconstruction, headed by Major Vincent Price, "a fine soldier and idealist of whom I cannot speak too highly." UNESCO means the United Nations Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization.

"Canada is the first country to put this scheme into effect, and it may surprise you to know that there are now in this country 28 representatives of various countries, Greece, Austria, Malaya, Luxembourg, and others, engaged in the same study and survey of the working of democracy in Canada."

Mr. Sakellaridis is a young man, a graduate in law and political science of the University of Athens, and is attached to the State Department of Internal Relations in Greece.

"This Fellowship is for six months. I understand that the first financing of the scheme here was made possible by a contribution of $200,000 from the government, followed by a subscription of one million dollars raised by the people of Canada.

"I was appointed to make a study of government administration. But, there are also others. Greece will have five representatives here this year. One of our men is an electrical engineer of the Vocational School in Athens. He will make a special study of schools and industries. There is also a lady teacher from our High Schools who will inquire in more detail into the educational system.

"A man from our Department of National Finance will study fisheries; and a blind officer of the Greek Army, a hero in our country, is to find out what Canada is doing in the education of its blind people, and particularly those who lost their sight in the war. The director of Norway's broadcasting system is also here.

"I hope that gives you some idea of the importance of this UNESCO scheme, and the part which Canada is playing in it.

"At present in Canada is a representative of the Health Department at Singapore, Malaya; also a musician from the same place; the leader of the National Choir of Luxembourg is another."

Mr. Sakellaridis has been a week-end guest of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Yeotes. He called this morning on Mayor M. J. Swanston and City Clerk Outram, and during his stay he was taken on a motor trip of the city.

"I am delighted with what I have seen in Canada. Before the war your economy was almost unknown in Greece. Our professors extended their studies in Germany and France and some in England, but very few crossed the ocean. This is a first approach to the democracy of Canada. Just to mention your school system, it seems to me a perfect application of the advantages of democracy Your schools are administered by trustees who are elected by the people, and you receive great assistance from your provincial government. You have wonderful equipment, and it impresses me as a model method of giving professional and technical education for your youth."

Mr. Sakellaridis has been in Montreal, Ottawa, Toronto, Kingston, Guelph, Kitchener and other cities.

"Everywhere I have been so kindly treated. When we go back to our countries we will take with us the ideas which have gained here. I shall have to report to my Department, and I am sure that this work of UNESCO will have some day the results we are hoping for.

"It seems strange that Greece once gave so much of its democratic civilization to the world, including this young country, and now so many centuries later, we are looking to you for ideas which you have developed in this democracy.

Thanks To Canada

"Our people have thanked Canada for the great gift of flour which you sent us during and after the war. It literally saved many of our people from starvation.

"I am also happy to see the freedom you have in Canada. I hope all your people thoroughly appreciate it. It is also a great satisfaction to see that our people who have been living in Canada for many years have made good citizens of your country."

Mr. Sakellaridis used this phrase: "The people of Canada deserve each other."

He was asked to expand that impression: "Simply that you have a beautiful country and a fine people. Any visitor can see that."

Canada's application of the UNESCO scheme should have in time results that would be very widespread, as indicated by the different countries which are making use of the Fellowship," he said.

25-Foot Fall

Bert Hamilton, a Toronto worker with the Cullen Construction company had a 25-foot fall Sunday morning when he was helping put up a fire escape at the Quaker Oats company plant. He was rushed to Civic Hospital, where his condition today is reported to be good, and no bones broken.

Merchant Seeks Removal Of Surplus Store

TORONTO, May 1 (CP)—Judgment has been reserved in the case of a Peterborough haberdashery operator who is trying to force a war surplus goods dealer to get out of the building next door.

Mr. Justice G. A. Urquhart shortly will hand down his ruling on a motion to discover whether Bertram Levy should be allowed to continue operating the war surplus store.

"I know what these stores are like," said Mr. Justice Urquhart. "I've been in them myself looking for bargains in fishing equipment. Nobody wants a junk shop next door to a good business. They are detrimental to good stores adjacent to them."

The action arose from a complaint by Eric and Pauline Howard, operators of a clothing store at 329 George St. in Peterborough The hearing was held in Peterborough, and Mr. Justice Urquhart announced in Toronto that he was reserving judgment.

Levy, former Miami, Fla., business man, bought a chain of war surplus stores in January.

"The stores stretch from coast to coast," he said at the hearing "Howard is the only one objecting to me."

Infant Baptism Case Goes United Church Conference: Should Conform or Resign

The case of the Rev. W. N. Crandall, B.A., who refuses to baptize infants will go before the Bay of Quinte Conference at the United Church meeting here May 20 to June 2. Mr. Crandall has about 500 in his congregation in the communities of Bethany, Ebeneezer and Yelverton. When his views became known the Peterborough Presbytery recommended that he resign. On Friday he indicated he had not made up his mind whether or not to resign. But he has clarified his position to the extent of saying, that if forced, he will resign "only to the Conference, not to the Presbytery."

"That's all the Presbytery can do about it," commented the Rev. M. J. Aiken, St. Andrew's United Church, newly-elected chairman of the Presbytery. "It's now up to the Conference."

Mr. Crandall has stirred up theological controvery in these three small communities by stating flatly there is no biblical authority for infant baptism, and he believes they should not be baptized till they reach the age of discretion.

He says he is motivated by the desire "to get back to the teachings of Christ and practice of the Apostles."

"There is no record of Christ baptizing infants or of His commanding us to do so," he said. "In my vows I said I'd preach nothing that was contrary to the Bible . . . and there's nothing in the Bible about infant baptism."

Conform or Resign

"The issue seems quite clear," commented Mr. Aiken. "Mr. Crandall ought to abide by the usages of the church or resign."

While unwilling to officiate at the infant baptism ceremony the Bethany minister said he was willing to officiate at a "dedication service" for children.

At this service the parents pledge on behalf of the child. Such a service has no standing in the United Church, Mr. Aiken declared.

Mr. Aiken said the parents act on the child's behalf when he is baptized and the child makes his own decision when he reaches an age suitable for confirmation.

The 500 members of Mr. Crandall's congregation are split on the controversy. An indication of the attitude was the fact that only half of the 40 members attended his service in nearby Yelverton Sunday.

Strong defence of the minister was made by 75-year-old William Finney who rode over bumpy gravel roads to get to Ebenezer Church.

"Preachers today are falling down by not preaching enough from the Bible," the sturdy old farmer growled. "I have read my Bible and there is nothing in it to support infant baptism. It is just a custom started in Rome a long time ago. But Jesus Himself was not baptized until He was a young man."

Conflicting Opinions

Howard Malcolm, a steward at Yelverton Church, thought baptism was "sort of an introduction to the church, proving the parents are doing the right thing by their children."

"Mr. Crandall took 10 years of study to make up his mind. Now he expects us to change ours overnight," he said.

An official of the United Church in Toronto said that if asked to resign, Mr. Crandall would not be stripped of his clerical title or unfrocked.

"Once a man has been ordained he cannot be unordained very easily," the official said. "But if he should refuse to resign his charge, there are various processes of ecclesiastical procedure that might be invoked. I can't recall when a minister has refused to resign when requested to do so."

A special committee of the Presbytery was formed some time ago to take up the matter with Mr. Crandall. And in the meantime he has been instructed not to mention the subject from the pulpit.

According to Mr. Aiken, the purpose of the committee was also to ensure the congregation "did not feel neglected."

Donoghue Remanded For Another Week

John Donoghue, Toronto, was remanded today in police court for a further week on $2,000 bail on a charge of stealing a .38 calibre automatic revolver from Michael O'Leary, 781 Snelgrove Rd., during February.

Charges of drunk driving, careless driving and having liquor in a place other than his residence were adjourned to the same day.

Cathedral Ordination

Among twelve young men ordained as priests of the Church of England by Bishop Beverley at St. James' Cathedral, Toronto, on Sunday were the Rev. George Joseph Ball, Fenelon Falls and Cameron; Rev. Lloyd George McFarlane, Kinmount, and Rev. George William Byars Wheeler, Highland Creek. Bishop Beverley also received eleven young men as deacons, among whom were John Arnold Purser of Cobourg and David Earnest Lemon of Brighton, whose father was formerly rector at Norwood.

Carnival Air On Market Day Small Towns, Large Markets

By JEAN E. STENTON

PONTOISE, France, May — Market day in a small French town is an experience which shouldn't be missed when visiting France. Pontoise, while only a town of 11,000, has a market seven or eight times the size of Peterborough's and its appearance is quite a contrast with Canadian markets.

Jean Stenton

Like many French towns, Pontoise is built on a hill. No matter which way you turn, you are climbing steep, narrow cobblestone streets. There is no such thing as a straight street in France. The market begins in the Pontoise Square. From there it overflows into the narrow streets on either side and extends for several blocks.

There is a market three times a week, but Saturday is the big day. There is a carnival air about the place as hundreds of peasants flock in from surrounding areas and villages to buy their weekly provisions and other necessities.

Din Deafening

There are all kinds of vegetables and fowl shown in the open stalls, but that is a small part of this colorful market. Stores in Paris and towns radiating out from Pontoise, have stalls where they display their wares and advertise them at the tops of their voices. There are curtain materials, dresses, suits, butcher shops, flowers, candy, gadgets that we would find in a department store, soap and household appliances One side of the bazaar houses the very expensive items in clothes, etc. Throngs of people jam the narrow passageways between the stands. The din of shouting merchants is deafening and the bargaining interesting to watch.

A very narrow and very old street leads out of one corner of the market. It is one of the oldest sections in the town, the Jewish quarter. Several of the residents fell into German hands during the occupation. If you persevere on the uneven cobblestone road, you arrive at a high cliff, which originally was an old fort. During late years, many houses were built there overlooking the Oise River. It was here the bomb damage was heaviest The Germans bombed the centre of the town in 1940, but the Allies in 1944 were after two bridges which these houses faced. All the buildings on this section of the cliff were razed. On the part beside the river, a hospital was destroyed and other buildings so badly damaged that they have had to be torn down. Rebuilding is going on at a rapid pace, but the war scars are still apparent.

Both bridges have been rebuilt France is a land of bridges across small rivers and no matter what section you visit, you will see new ones being built or repaired.

During the occupation, several Pontoise homes were looted and destroyed by the Germans and one of their last acts before retreating was to set fire and destroy the post office. Just a Nazi pastime.

Accidentally Killed At Target Practice

FORT ERIE, May 1 — Donald Plato, 12-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Plato, was accidentally shot and killed Saturday night as he and his father practiced target shooting in the yard.

The boy had run to check his father's marksmanship when he was hit in the left chest. Police said the father was standing, rifle in hand, when a younger son, David, 3½ brushed against the rifle and discharged it. The bullet grazed Donald's heart.

Father and son had been shooting at tin cans with .22 calibre rifles. Mr. Plato had held his weapon with the muzzle pointing toward the ground when the younger child bumped into it, raising the barrel and tripping the hammer, police said.

Spar-Making Business Will Be Sold

By The Canadian Press

The supersonic and atomic age has caught up with the 189-year-old Bentley and Flemming Limited. The Halifax firm, only one in Nova Scotia which makes spars for sailing ships, is up for sale.

Thomas Bentley opened his spar-making establishment on Lower Water Street, fringing Halifax harbor, in 1761. It flourished until 50 years ago, when steam made heavy inroads on the high seas and sails disappeared over the horizon.

Before the founder died he took another spar maker, John Flemming, into partnership with him. Now his grandson, A. P. Flemming, 65, reports spars are not in demand and he wants to sell out. No buyers have turned up yet.

The proprietor says 50 years ago when he entered the business 14 men were employed in the yards, cutting the pine with broad axes. They received $7 a week, with foremen getting a dollar extra.

When the market for four-section masts began to disappear the company branched out and produced oars, paddles and other wooden ships' supplies.

The spar-making company experienced a temporary boom during the first world war, when wooden ships were in demand, and again in the second world war the company was kept busy making wooden equipment for ships.

More Service For Tourists

Nova Scotia is preparing to give the tourists improved service and more for its money this season. Industry Minister Harold Connolly expects visitors to spend more than the $29,000,000 they left behind in the province last year. But he has warned that though more tourists than ever came to the seaside province, individually they spent less than in 1948.

As a matter of fact, the province's information bureau estimates that in 1947 the tourist spent $10 a day. In 1948 the daily average dropped to $8, while last year the per capita take was only $6.56.

Mobster Gargotta Revealed $34,000,000 Racket

KANSAS CITY, May 1 (AP)—Charles Gargotta, the muscle-man mobster slain this month with his boss, Charles Binaggio, had turned stool pigeon in a multi-million dollar gambling racket that involved 15 of his pals, a federal grand jury said Saturday.

Sam Hayden, assistant county prosecutor; George Clark, former county assessor; and Robert Green superintendent or county buildings, were among those involved in racketeering, the jury said.

Prosecutor Henry Fax Jr., promptly fired Hayden and said he would start an investigation of the alleged violation of state laws. Hayden said the accusation was absolutely untrue.

Both Gargotta and Binaggio would have been indicted had they not been murdered, the grand jury said, in connection with the $34,500,000 racket that included the county officials.

Slayers Free

Binaggio, one-time ward heeler in the old Tom Pendergast political machine who took over a large faction of the Democratic Party here, and Gargotta, one of the most feared men in the underworld, were slain April 5 in a political club. Their slayers have not been found.

Gargotta, Hayden, Green and 12 others were named as the operators of the largest dice game in Kansas City.

Gargotta, "one of the most feared of the Kansas City underworld leaders . . . was first to violate the code of the underworld by disclosing the names of his partners and associates in wire news enterprises and gambling interests," the jury said.

The 15 men named as operators of the big dice game also were involved in other phases of the racket which the jury listed as doing this gross business.

Dice games, $19,000,000.

Numbers or policy racket: $3,500,000.

Bookmaking operations on horse races: $8,500,000.

Books on other sporting events: $3,500,000.

Seven Fatalities Over Weekend

By The Canadia Press

Seven fatalities, including a double drowning at Almonte, were reported in Ontario during the week-end, a Canadian Press survey showed today.

Besides the drownings the other deaths were caused by a fall from a tractor, an accidental shooting, a planing-mill mishap and two traffic accidents.

Harold McGrath, 15, and John J. Lyons, 14, were drowned when their canoe overturned, throwing them into the near-freezing waters of the Mississippi river. They were on a boating expedition with eight other members of the Scout troop.

Alphonse Bezaire was killed in a fall from his tractor near Windsor while Donald Plato, 12, was accidentally shot by his father with a .22 calibre rifle at Fort Erie. Norman Smith, 62, a planing mill employee at Kincardine, was killed when the pulley he was testing snapped, fracturing his skull.

The traffic victims were: Wtadystaw Haduch, 30-year-old Polish immigrant, at Simcoe, and Grant Robinson, 24, near Streetsville.

Contempt Rules Under Discussion

TORONTO, May 1 — (CP) — Ontario magistrates were advised Saturday "not to be too thick-skinned" after handing down court decisions.

Mr. Justice J. Keiller MacKay, speaking on public comment regarding contempt - of - court charges, said: "Without the scrutiny of the public, the danger of reaction, without doubt, would be great. The judiciary after all, is human."

He was addressing delegates to the annual convention of the Ontario Magistrates' Association.

Rules governing contempt of court were designed to protect magistrates from insult and to maintain proper order in the courts, he said.

However, he stressed the need of protecting the rights of persons accused when public comment may jeopardize their position during a trial. "The public now wants, according to the newspaper press, the accused's whole life history so that the case may be thoroughly prejudged before the accused comes to trial."

Y Boys Win At London Swim Two Ontario Championship

Ontario YMCA championships were won by Lorne Hale and Jim Heffernan of the YMCA Swimming Club at the Ontario YMCA swimming championship meet held in London over the weekend. The meet attracted a record number of entries, 192.

Jim Heffernan zipping through the 50-yard stretch for the under 14 years breast stroke class successfully defended his championship won last year. His time was 37.2 seconds.

In the under 12 years one metre diving Lorne Hale earned double the points of his nearest rival to win easily the Ontario diving championship for that division. Hale did four dives, two compulsory and two optional. The compulsory dives were a running forward header, pike position (jack-knife), and a backward header; his optional dives were a forward 1½ somersault and a backward somersault.

Peterborough Third

Toronto West End YMCA ran away with the meet on total points with 111 while the host club of London slipped into second position on the second to the last event with 31. Peterborough then placed third with 28. Other teams points were: Woodstock 21, Toronto Broadview 13, Hamilton 12, Stratford 12, Brantford 12, Toronto Central 3, Sault Ste. This accident enabled Dave Thomson of Woodstock to take the championship. Scott Pearton of the local club also placed third in the same event which started with a field of 24 swimmers.

Boorman also placed second in the 50-yard free style event for boys under 14 years. He took his heat easily and won his semi-final swim but lost out again to Thomson of Woodstock. This event started with 36 swimmers.

A split second behind Tom Sweeney of London, Michael Triggs, Ontario open 100 yard free style champion for boys under 10 years, was second in the event for boys, 25-yard free style under 10 years. Sweeney swished through the distance in 15.1 seconds.

Relay Events

Two Peterborough relay teams finished in events second to Toronto West End YMCA. The 200-yard free style relay for boys under 14 included John Boorman Scott Pearton, Alec Baptie and David Cuffe. Their time of 2.07 minutes in the first heat was the fastest for all the heats. That time was also the final time of the West End YMCA team.

Ross Dobbin, Lorne Hale, John Mason and Michael Triggs, the relay team entered in the under 12 years 100 yard event, placed second to Toronto West End YMCA only a touch behind. The Peterborough time for the event was 1:15 minutes.

Other swimmers who placed in the events were: Ross Dobbin, fourth in the final heat in the under 12 years 25-yard free style; David Cuffe fifth in the under 14 years 50-yard free style final heat; the junior relay team, Jim Starr, Don Wood, Ralph Wood and Dan Goodfellow fifth in the final; Donald Wood, second in the 100-yard back stroke for boys under 17 years, disqualified for a faulty turn in the final heat; David Pryde, third in his heat for the boys under 12 years 25-yard back stroke.

The Peterborough team was accompanied on the trip by Lloyd Hale, Gordon Dobbin, Donald Duncan, Dennis Hale and Coach Gordon Minty.

Menzies, Labor Coalition At Odds Over Allowance And Banking

By LOUIS L. LECK.

SYDNEY, Australia, May 1 (CP) —Prime Minister Menzies' Coalition and Labor opposition in Australia currently are at odds over two significant domestic issues—family allowances and banking.

Both cropped up during the early weeks of the first Parliamentary sitting since Menzies formed a Liberal-County party government following last year's general election. The coalition holds a majority in the House of Representatives but in the Senate where only one-third of the membership normally is replaced at each election, Labor still controls most votes.

The government has introduced a bill under which it would pay an endowment of five shillings (about 62 cents) a week to the first or only child under 16 in every family. Since 1941 the Federal government has paid a family allowance of 10 shillings a week to all children under 16 except the first-born.

In Canada the Federal government instituted a system of family allowances for children in 1945.

Want It Higher

The Labor opposition in Australia announces it will seek to amend the Menzies' government bill to make the allowance for the first child 10 shillings instead of five. Labor hopes to put through the amendment by virtue of its Senate majority.

The banking issue concerns a proposed change in the set-up of the Commonwealth Bank, a government-owned institution. The Labor government in office in 1945 replaced the Commonwealth Bank Board with a governor bound to carry out the instructions of the treasurer of the Federal government.

This bank is both a central bank with power to issue notes and a trading bank competing with those under private ownership.

The amending bill issued by the treasurer Arthur Fadden sets up a board with the governor as chairman. It is to include four members of the existing advisory board and five new appointees. The four current members and the governor both were appointed while labor was in office.

Have Deciding Vote

Fadden assured parliament the new members would not represent any sectional interest or have any association with the private banks. In the event of a deadlock, the governor would have the casting vote.

Labor wants to retain the system as it was organized in 1945. Joseph Chifley, former Prime Minister and now opposition leader, is the driving force in this Labor attack on the government. He long has been an ardent advocate of nationalized banks.

Menzies has announced in a public broadcast that if Labor insists on amendments to the family allowances and banking bills he will ask for a general election in a bid to obtain a new mandate from the people.

By inference, he threatened a doubled dissolution. This means election of a complete Senate as well as an entirely new lower house. The Australian constitution provides that in case of prolonged disagreement between the two houses, the entire Senate may be dissolved along with the House of Representatives. This manoeuvre would open the way for Menzies to seek control of the Upper as well as the Lower House.

Douks On Rampage Fire Another Building

NELSON, B.C., May 1—(CP) —A Doukhobor winter community dwelling's destruction at Gilpin near the international border was reported by police Sunday, breaking a skein of peaceful days in fire raiding by radical elements of the religious sect.

Police said no arrests have been made. A small number of young persons were observed around the fire and questioning, police said, disclosed the building was fired to indicate agreement with similar instances further north.

Gilpin is seven miles from Grank Forks, B.C., and about 55 miles southeast of here.

Main incendiarism has occurred at Krestova, "capital" of the radical Sons of Freedom movement, 23 miles from here.

Professor Says State Of Health Indicated By Adam's Apple

By ALTON L. BLAKESLEE

NEW YORK, April 30—(AP)— Your Adam's apple may become a mirror of what age is doing to you, how healthy you are staying. It already has been found to be a fairly good mirror of how much your arteries are hardening. This hardening is one of the leading causes of death.

The studies are being made by Dr. Gustave J. Noback, associate professor of anatomy at Cornell university medical college.

In childhood and youth, your Adam's apple consists of cartilage or gristle. As you grow older, it slowly changes into bone through deposits of calcium. Finally, at about 75 or 80, the whole Adam's apple will be bone.

This changeoccurs in everyone. At 55, the Adam's apple is about half bone, half gristle.

Dr. Noback traced the change by X-rays of hundreds of living people. The parts of the Adam's apple which have changed to bone show up as white areas on the X-ray picture.

When half of the Adam's apple has changed to bone, there's a good chance that your arteries have started to harden, Dr. Noback discovered.

Autopsy Findings

This was learned by autopsy findings, comparing the degree of ossification of the Adam's apple with the appearance of mineral deposits in the aorta, the great artery leading from the heart. A man of 35, whose Adam's apple is like that of a man of 70, may be aging much more rapidly than normal, Dr. Noback said.

He is investigating whether the Adam's apple changes may also be related to other defects of aging, such as brittleness of bones, and the ability of the eye to adjust quickly to changes in seeing conditions.

Your Adam's apple consists of two rectangular slices of cartilage, set at an angle and joined at the front. In men, each piece is about two by 2½ inches. In women, each piece is smaller.

The Adam's apple keeps your air passage open, and forms a protective chamber for your vocal chords. The inevitable hardening doesn't affect your voice.

Two Magnates Rap Policies

LONDON, May 1 (Reuters)— Two leading British shipping magnates today attacked government policies, which, they said, hinder maritime building and are otherwise inimical to private fleets.

Chairman Frederick A. Bates of the Cunard Steamship Company, in his annual report published today, said taxation of the company's profits is endangering long-term shipbuilding plans.

He stated that the total taxation for 1947-8-9 was £10,025,449 ($31,078,892) which was "too heavy a drain on resources required for replacements of the fleet, and maintenance of our industry, especially under conditions of devalued sterling."

Kenneth R. Pelly, managing director of a company dealing largely in Scandinavian trade, complained that four-fifths of the timber brought to Britain from the Baltic for the government's timber control board during the first nine months of last year came in foreign ships.

Pelly, in a statement reviewing the accounts of his firm, William France, Fenwick and Company, described the Baltic and Scandinavian timber trade as "most unsatisfactory during the last two years."

Ida Wease Weds Walter J. Watson

Daffodils and ferns in St. John's Anglican Church, Lakefield, formed the setting Saturday for the marriage of Ida Alberta Wease to Walter James Watson, performed by the Rev. L. J. Delaney. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Wease and the groom a son of Mr. and Mrs. Percy Watson, all of Lakefield.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was gowned in white nylon net with yoke of Chantilly lace on the fitted bodice, buttoned to the waist in front with self-covered buttons and finished with a small pointed collar. The full gathered skirt extended in a long graceful train. Her veil of imported illusion net was fingertip length and caught to a coronet of seed pearls and her bouquet was of red roses. Miss Irma Dayman of Peterborough as her bridesmaid was in a frock of pink taffeta with mittens and hat to match, and she carried a nosegay of sweetpeas.

The groomsman was Mr. Allen Watson and the ushers were Blake Matthews and Wesley Lee.

Music for the wedding was played by Mrs. J. Twist.

The reception following was in the parish hall where the bride's mother received in a suit of brown gabardine with brown accessories and corsage of pink carnations. The groom's mother, also receiving, was dressed in pale blue crepe and wore a navy hat and pink carnations.

For the wedding trip to Niagara Falls the bride chose a navy dress and accessories and a light grey shortie coat.

13 Institutes All Represented At Directors' Meeting

Director's meeting of the Women's Institute for Peterborough District was held Friday at the Agriculture Rooms, Hunter St., Mrs. Harry Shearer presiding and each of the 13 branches was represented.

Mrs. Joseph Moore, district secretary read the minutes. Two members of the newly-formed branch at Selwyn were introduced. Notice was given that Brookdale W. I. had decided to disband owing to the lack of sufficient active members.

Final details were given by Mrs. Shearer on the quilt competition to be held at the district annual at Havelock, June 15 and Miss Hopkins of the Home Economic Dept. will be judge and guest speaker. It was decided to ask Belmont W. I. to cater for the lunch. Entertainment for same was arranged. As last year a basket of flowers will be placed on the platform in memory of members that have passed in during the year.

Transportation to the convention at Quelph was discussed, Lakefield W. I. stating they had chartered a bus for the day.

It was decided that each branch at their next meeting should prepare nominations for officers to be elected at the district annual."

The 1951 district annual will be held at Lakefield when classified handkerchiefs made by members will be judged and on display. It is also hoped the prize winning quilt this year will be shown at annual convention in Toronto in November.

It was felt necessary to encourage the schools as far as possible to take part in the annual oratorical contest.

A Peterborough merchant has himself loaned his window for the month of June for display of articles to be loaned by members in the district as part of the Peterborough Centennial interests. With the usual enthusiasm of W. I. members it is expected this will be a large and interesting exhibit.

The officers are hoping to form several new branches before November. Any interesting groups might contact Mrs. Joseph Moore, Lakefield, or Mrs. Harry Shearer, Buckhorn.

Tea Assistants Model Hats At YW's Spring Hat Tea

Spring hats being modelled by tea assistants and models was an added attraction which on Saturday afternoon kept the YWCA Green Room filled throughout the tea hours. About 200 came to admire and sometimes to criticize the latest creations, and, incidentally, made up a display of millinery themselves.

An idea of the Members' Council, the Spring Hat Tea proved itself a distinct attraction. A hat to match or contrast perfectly with her dress had been chosen for each of the assistants with the help of Miss Olga Haskill. White was the favorite since many of the costumes were navy, but with the favored shade for spring they also wore wide-brimmed hats in colours, with flower trim.

Seven models made appearances throughout the afternoon wearing hats which were described in detail by commentator Miss Aileen Patton.

These included the first choice for summer, white pique, one a Robin Hood style and one a cloche with navy velvet trim, both worn by Mrs. Rita Shaughnessy. Miss Nancy Powell showed a youthful navy taffeta brim with white pique facing and also a head-hugging cap of Madagascar straw which has just returned to the Canadian market.

Miss Fern Carveth showed to advantage a beige nylon hat with brown ribbon piping and framing veiling, and again wore a beige picture style which featured a double brim with buttercups. Mrs. Berta McBride, a lovely blonde, looked best in coffee-colored baku straw with brown velvet trim. She also modelled a tiered natural straw with French grape trimming.

Miss Pauline O'Brien displayed what is called a "walking hat," of coffee baku with veiling and flower trim, which sat firmly on the top of her head and defied the wind to dislodge it. She also modelled a becoming natural straw. Mrs. Thomas Cooke, petite sophisticate, wore picture hats of red straw and navy taffeta. Mrs. W. R. Titshall showed a dainty pink crocheted straw and a white pill box hat.

Mrs. Roma Brindle convened the fashion showing while the tea was convened by Miss Annie Williams.

The table was lovely with spring flowers in pastel shades and pale yellow candles. Presiding in turn were Mrs. Paige Rowell, Mrs. F. M. Somerville, Mrs. C. K. Hurst, Mrs. H. Waddell, Mrs. W. Gilling and Miss Margaret McIntosh.

Servers were Miss Jean McIntyre, Mrs. R. Cochrane, Miss Doreen Samis, Mrs. D. Clements, Miss Elsie Hill, Miss Wanda Deyell, Miss Ruth Ann Brown, Miss C. McHugh, Miss Anne Crowley, Miss Mary Martin.

Music was provided by Miss Ruby Leach and Miss Dorothy Harle.

Booths offered home-made candy, home cooking and an assortment of greeting cards and notepaper. These were attended by Miss Dorothy Menzies, Mrs. Richard Beck, Mrs. E. Thomas, Mrs. A. Callaghan, Mrs. R. Quirt.

Mrs. T. J. Carley, president of the YWCA Board, received at the door with Mrs. H. T. Rehill, Mrs. Betty Killingbeck and Miss Jean Hammond.

Miss Sandra Menzies, wearing a spring bonnet of white straw with lily of the valley, was taking tickets.

Women Fighting New War For Equality

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK, May 1 — (AP) — The smouldering war between the sexes seems to be busting out all over in a spring offensive, with the women snatching the initiative.

First, there's the reorganization of the old, bolsterous lucky stone league. The league made a lot of noise in the 1920s when women's rights was a dramatic subject. Then it dropped from sight during the war years. Now it's back again, fists doubled for the fray and exhorting women at work to keep their maiden names as a "symbol of identity," the leaguers say first thing you know it will be a man's world again.

The commission on the status of women recently got its parent United Nations to release a report showing that only one woman was represented in the U. N.'s 96 top jobs—and although women hold the 180 positions paying $8,300 or more.

Just Not Fair

Then along came the Women's bureau of the United States Labor Department with figures showing that the Federal Government's employment of women dropped 60 per cent within two years after the war, while male employment dipped only 23 per cent. It also found the average male government employee averaged $400 a year more than the average female.

The end of the Second World War began an active campaign against the female of the species. Mostly the attack was psychological, with women—from grandmothers to little girls — blamed for all world ills and human failures.

"Women were—and still are—taking a wild spanking," said Doris E. Fleischman, a long-time feminist and now vice-president of the new lucky stone league.

"Man have had the upper hand throught our civilization and have made women a sub-species," she said. "They are afraid of losing the lovely slave race they have created."

Fear Women

She added that men are secretly scared stiff women have found out that their own sex is not inferior at all.

Decrying the male idea of "throwing into the discard all women's abilities except housekeeping," Miss Fleischman thinks women have been attacked so much they have begun to believe the allegations.

Men aren't making enough money to support their families and if women really did quit working, standards of living would shoot down — and men wouldn't like that either, she says.

St. John's Wardens, Groups Honor Archdeacon Balfour

Archdeacon C. W. Balfour, was honored Sunday afternoon by the congregation of St. John's Anglican Church, the occasion being the 50th anniversary of his ordination into the priesthood.

The Archdeacon of Peterborough, Ven. Archdeacon W. P. Robertson, read telegrams and messages of congratulation from former parishes and from the Rural Dean on behalf of the clergy of the rural deanery of Peterborough.

In paying testimony to his colleague, Archdeacon Robertson stressed the influence for good which Archdeacon Balfour has had, not only upon his former parishioners, but also upon all with whom he came incontact.

Wardens, on behalf of the congregation, presented a cheque. Gifts were also presented from th church groups.

Tea, served from a table artistically arranged with a 50th anniversary cake in the centre and spring flowers and gold candles in silver candalabra was poured by wives of wardens, Mrs. E. V. Morphet and Mrs. J. A. Nornabell.

Knox Church YPU Hosts To Presbyterial Convention

About 100 young people assembled at Knox United Church on Saturday and Sunday to attend the annual convention of Peterborough Presbytery Young People's Union. The theme was "Forward Be Our Watchword," and the theme speaker the Rev. Edward Newberry of Jarvis, Ontario.

Registration commenced Saturday afternoon with Edward Potter of Knox Y.P.U. acting as registrar. The afternoon session opened with group singing led by Miss Hilda Northey. George Street Y.P.U. conducted an inspiring worship service, during which Miss Hazel Mutton and Miss Shirley Packard sang a duet. Mr. William Piercy, acting president, welcomed the delegates.

After the presentation of the minutes of the last convention and the treasurer's report an hour was allotted to airing the troubles of young people. There was considerable discussion regarding getting younger people to attend meetings. It was suggested that there is not anything to keep young people interested, that programs are not interesting. It was also suggested to try to keep older people in the unions to supply leadership for younger people. There was considerable discussion regarding the temperance issues and whether young people are sincere in their undertakings.

The Women's Association of Knox catered at the evening banquet, at which about 90 sat down. Miss Hazel Wilson conducted a very lively sing-song, assisted by Mr. W. F. Potter at the piano.

Interdenominational greetings were brought to the convention by Miss Betty Warner, representing the Presbyterian Y.P.S., Mr. Clare Dayman the B.Y.P.U. and Mr. John Gireaux the A.Y.P.A.

What's Right

In conversation someone makes a statement which you doubt.

WRONG: Say "I don't believe that," or "That isn't true."

RIGHT: Put your disbelief in more courteous terms if you feel you must voice it. Something like: "I may be wrong but it seems to me ..." is a mannerly way of disagreeing.

Four Attend Wilma Floyd Bride of Jack Byers

In St. James United Church Saturday afternoon the Rev. F. W. Craik solemnized the wedding of Wilma Alice Mary, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William N. Floyd, Brioux Ave., and Jack Oswald Byers, son of Mr. and Mrs. R. J. Byers, Park St. S.

Daffodils and ferns formed the setting at the altar and Mrs. Charles Renaud played the wedding music. During signing of the register, Mrs. R. J. Hull, great aunt of the bride, sang "Because."

Mr. Floyd gave his daughter in marriage and she was gowned in white duchess satin which fell into a full train. A nylon yoke inset was banded with white satin frilling, as was the waistline peplum. A pleated headdress of the satin held her veil of white tulle, caught with lily of the valley. She carried red roses with calla lilies in a cascade.

Wedding attendants were Mrs. John Conlin, matron of honor frocked in pale green taffeta, Miss Valetta Bolton, Miss Freda Floyd, bridesmaids, in yellow organdy over satin and pale pink taffeta, and Donna Byers, flower girl, in pale green taffeta with poke bonnet to match. Matching headdresses of pleated net were worn by the other girls and they carried bouquets of mixed flowers. The flower girl carried a basket of sweet peas.

Grooms man was Mr. Raymond Craig and the ushers Donald Floyd and Donald Byers, brothers of the bride and groom.

The reception was held in the YWCA recreation room. The bride's mother received in figured navy silk with hat of navy straw and corsage of Talisman roses. The groom's mother, who assisted in receiving, wore navy silk with navy and white straw hat and white roses.

DOROTHY DIX

Blushing Is An Asset Only Youth Accomplishes

DEAR MISS DIX: I am 17 years of age and am afflicted with an ailment that is to me equal to death itself. It is blushing. It has already robbed me of my friends. It makes me a failure at school. It cuts me off from all the pleasures of my time of life. I am ashamed to go among people because I flush up every time they speak to me. I am unpopular, for it seems as though other people are embarrassed in my presence. What shall I do?

E. R.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: The best thing for you to do is to go and talk it all over with a psychiatrist. Perhaps he could make you see what a silly attitude you are taking toward what you call our "affliction." For, believe me, you have the act of blushing and the effect it has on other people all wrong. The ability to blush is an accomplishment and not a handicap. Personally speaking, I think it charming to see the quickly young blood flash into a girl's or boy's face as he or she speaks or is spoken to. It gives an appearance of response, of sensitiveness to impressions, of eager interest and intelligence that is lacking in the flat, dull faces of those whose color never changes.

Time Will Cure

And don't worry about not being able to cure yourself. Time does that. Blushing is one of the feats that only youth can accomplish. You will get over it only too soon and be just as monotonous and commonplace as the rest of us.

Don't you see, when you think it over, how true what I am telling you is, and how lacking in common sense you are to let the fact that you blush spoil your life, as you are permitting it to do when you withdraw from your friends and make it an excuse for flopping in your schoolwork? I am giving it to you straight, son, that it is not the blood that comes up into your face that is ruining you, it is the lack of blood that goes to your brain.

I can give you a sovereign remedy for your troubles, and that is to quit worrying about it. Quit exaggeratng its importance. Stop thinking that you are so important that every eye is fastened on you and everybody counting your blood pressure. They are not. This is a self-centered world and everyone is so busy with his own affairs that he pays precious little attention to ours.

But your blushing will wreck your life if you make it an alibi for your laziness in not studying and for dodging the responsibilities of life. Then your face will have a right to be red. And with shame.

DEAR MISS DIX: Our mother has been a good mother to us and we love her and appreciate all she has done for us and we are anxious to repay her in every way we can, but has she a right to make us sacrifice our whole lives to her. Her complaint is just as soon as we are grown we leave her. When I married she almost went into convulsions. When my sister married she reproached her so cruelly that she left for her new home with the tears rolling down her cheeks. My 18-year-old sister has never had a date and will not go out because she knows what a scene Mother will make if she does. My mother's position is that our leaving her for our own homes is an act of ingratitude and shows that we do not love her. Can anything be done about it.

A DEVOTED DAUGHTER

ANSWER: Your mother is one of the possessive, selfish mothers who are perfectly willing to ruin their children's lives to gratify their own morbid maternal passion.

There are pelnty of them. They warp their children's characters by never letting them have any association with youngsters of their own age. They ruthlessly shut the door of opportunity in their children's faces because they cannot bear to be parted from them. They keep their children from marrying because they can't bear to give them up.

There is no use in arguing with a possessive mother, because she accounts it for righteousness to be so frantic about her children that she wants to own them body and soul, and keep them right in her hands all the time. But the children are weak and foolish and wrong to let her dominate them. They should break away from her and save their own lives.

The right sort of mother wants her children to do with is best and happiest for them. She is the one who sacrifices herself to her children. She does not exact the sacrifice of their lives to her.

DEAR MISS DIX: I am a girl 20 years old considering marrying a man of 50. We love each other very much. What is the usual outcome of such a marriage?

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: Divorce. Anyway unhappiness for both parties. A few years' difference in age between a man and a woman makes no difference, no matter which is the elder, but thirty years is too much. Three decades make a gulf that not even love can bridge.

Don't try such a hazardous experiment.

ENQUIRY COLUMN

By MARY MOORE

Question: I am very anxious to get the recipe for "Pine-apple Honey", having lost mine some time ago. It is delicious, but has to be made exactly to recipe or it goes to sugar. I thought you might have it and others would like it, as pineapple time is coming along; thanking you and best wishes. Mrs. F. G.B.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: It is years since I have thought of pineapple honey.

Pineapple Honey

For each cup of freshly grated pineapple and juice take 2 cups sugar and 1 cup water. Boil water and sugar together just until it will "thread". Add the grated pineapple and cook until as thick as honey—maybe a trifle on the thin side. Just before removing from fire add ⅛ teaspoon cream of tartar for each 2 cups sugar used, stirring it in well. Pour into sterile pint sealers and seal while boiling hot. This is best if stored in a dark cupboard.

Question: Your recipes for Chinese Chef's Chop Suey in yesterday's paper pleased me immensely. I wonder if you have the recipe for Spare-rib Sweet and Sours and Plain Fried Rice, such as that served at the "Pagoda" in.....

My friends and I would be very grateful to you for these two recipes, to go with your Chop Suey. Mrs. F. P.

Answer: Now if we could start a custom of everybody wearing name plates, when you and I eat in the same restaurants we can stop being pen pals and start being flesh and blood friends.

Spare Ribs With Sweet And Sour Sauce

Have the butcher cut 2 lbs. back ribs into pieces so that the rib bone is about 2 inches long and there is meat on both sides of it. This way he discards every other rib but it is trimmed clean of meat. Serve about 4 of these pieces to each serving. (You may use thin slices of pork tenderloin instead of ribs.)

Combine ¼ cup sugar, 2 tablespoons each catsup and soy sauce, 1 teaspoon molasses, 2 teaspoons salt, ¼ teaspoon black pepper and ¼ cup chicken stock or boiling water. Pour this over the raw ribs and let stand covered in refrigerator 7 or 8 hours, basting the meat with the sauce occasionally.

About 2 hours before serving time remove meat from refrigerator and place on broiling pan so that there is drip pan beneath; add 1 cup cold water to drip pan and roast ribs at 350 deg. Fahr. for about 1½ hours, turning after 45 minutes, and basting them frequently with the sauce left from marinating in refrigerator. Very thick back ribs may require a little longer than 1½ hours. Serve with the pan sauce and pass as an extra.

Sweet-Sous Sauce: ¼ cup spirit vinegar, ½ cup each pineapples juice and brown sugar, 1 tablespoon each cornstarch and cold water, 1 teaspoon salt, ¼ teaspoon MSG (monosodium glutamate). (This latter ingredient may be bought in some Chinese supply stores or in large Groceries.) Combine all ingredients in saucepan after blending the cornstarch with the cold water, and bring to boiling point, stirring, for 5 minutes. Cool. If too thick thin with pineapple juice. The pineapple juice may be replaced with apricot puree or good quality, chillsauce.

Fried Rice (Cantonese style)

Wash well 1 cup uncooked rice and drain thoroughly. Add 1¾ cups boiling water, ¾ teaspoon salt, 1 tablespoon butter, cover and bring to boiling point quickly. Reduce heat as much as possible and cook very slowly about 30 minutes. It should not be too soft but all water should be absorbed by rice. Turn off heat and let stand covered for 15 minutes. This gives 3 cups cooked rice.

Put ¼ cup peanut or corn oil in large heavy frying pan. When very hot add 1 slightly beaten egg and cook just 2 minutes. Remove from heat and cut up the egg. Add the cooked rice, 1 teaspoon salt, ¼ teaspoon pepper, ¼ cup finedly chopped green pepper, about 1½ tablespoons soy sauce. Stir over rather high heat about 8 minutes. Serve as an accompaniment to almost any Chinese meat dish.

Question: Upon reading your column I was quite impressed. I would really appreciate it if you would send me a calorie chart. I am 24 years old and last time I was weighed the scales registered 200 lbs. if I remember correctly. So you see I need a calorie chart or something. I am quite fond of candy and pop and many othe things, but I would like to try a low calorie foods.

I cannot afford to buy mny extras. My Husband likes high calorie things mostly, and with food prices as they are it is not so easy to buy one thing for him and another for myself, but possibly I could prepare it differently. Well, anyway that is the situation. In answering please let me know of some inexpensive meals. Thanking you, Mrs. Betty W.

ANSWER: Take heart Betty, there are thousands in the same predicament, and because you are so young and have enough initiative to write for the chart you can handle it.

First, you must learn food values.

I am mailing to you, along with the calorie chart, a bulletin containing 16 basic meals where nutrition is stressed. The foods you must eat are included.

And what is best of all, supplementary foods are suggested that may be added for those members of the family that are not on the diet, or for families where liberal diet can be afforded. It will suit you exactly, and please your husband too.

You say you are fond of candy and pop. In the next sentence you say you cannot afford extras. In all kindness may I point out that candy and pop are extras. Also that they should be cut out entirely- 1) for the sake of reducing 2) for the sake of your teeth and 3) to save the money for "extras" that are suggested in the menus.

Two or three "musts" I have to add.

Eat 1 egg and ½ slice whole wheat bread toasted with no butter, and one orange and ½ grapefruit and 1 cup tea or coffee with milk and no sugar, every morning. That "every" applies to the egg and the fruit.

For lunch have 8 oz. skim or buttermilk, 2 slices whole wheat bread without butter, with thick slice lean meat in sandwich with double leaf lettuce and no butter or mayonnaise; an orange or an apple.

At four o'clock have 1 cup of tea with milk and a rye crisp wafer.

Dinner: 4 oz. lean meat or fish, 2 vegetables (not potatoes or rice, or corn or macaroni 1 salad with 1 teaspoon mayonnaise. No sauces. One-half grapefruit, 1 cup coffee with milk, no sugar.

Bedtime: 8 oz. glass tomato juice. Every day walk outside for 1 hour with "tummy" pulled in all the time. Write again after 2 weeks and tell me how it goes. Drink water when you feel tempted by food.

U.K. Housewives Boycott Fruit

LONDON, May 1 — (AP) — British housewives, up in arms about the high cost of fresh vegetables and fruits, are plotting against their grocers.

They are planning a week's boycott, starting May 8, in an attempt to force prices down.

The leader is 46-year-old Mrs. Diana Lanigan, chairman of the Shrewsbury Housewives' Association. She said Saturady housewives couldn't pay the prices asked by grocers for their vegetables.

"In some cases these prices are three times as much as a year ago," she said.

The rebellious Shrewsbury housewives received quick support from similar organizations in the Midlands—from Merseyside, Bradford and Darlington in Yorkshire. In Leeds, Middlesborough, and Stockton-on-Tees housewives scheduled meetings to discuss the boycott.

The National Federation of Fruit admitted prices were high but blamed bad weather for the shortage of supplies and consequent high prices. Retailers claimed they were selling at practically cost price.

ARMSTRONG—In loving memory of my Dad, Robert Armstrong, who passed away one year ago today, May 1, 1949.
—Ever remembered by Keith and family.

ARMSTRONG—In loving memory of a dear husband and father, Robert Armstrong, who passed away May 1, 1949.
Time speeds on, one year has passed,
Since death its gloom, its shadows cast,
Within our home where all seemed bright,
And took from us a shining light.
We miss that light, and ever will,
His vacant place there is none can fill.
Down her we mourn but not in vain,
For up in heaven we will meet again.
—Ever remembered by Keith and family.

EASON—In loving memory of Pilot Officer Richard Frederick Eason, son of Mr. and Mrs. F. A. Eason, Keene, who was reported missing after operational flight off Dover, England, on May 1, 1944.
He marched away with head held high,
So young, so brave, so true:
None prouder of the uniform
He wore of navy blue.
But out upon a stormy sea
The Pilot called him home;
Dear thoughts of him will always be
In the hearts he left at home.
"Too dearly loved to be forgotten."
—Ever remembered by family.

FAIRBROTHER—In loving memory of Mrs. John Fairbrother, who passed away, May 1st, 1943.
In the silence of the night God's message came.
—Ever remembered by the family.

Marmora Cast Presents Lively Minstrel Show

MARMORA, MAY 1.—(ENS)—The Dark Town Minstrel Show staged by a local cast of 35 under the auspices of St. Paul's Ladies' Guild scored a great success in Marmora Town Hall on Thursday and Friday evenings.

Stan Hawthorne of Madoc was the musical director and Percy Gray of Deloro the interlocutor with Ford Woodhouse and Alex Cunningham as end men.

Included, in the cast were 14 women who, in their black faces, were as hard to recognize as the men. In the first half of the program dialogues were furnished by W. M. Regan, R. Frost, M. J. Corrigan and G. Brooks with the interlocutor as well as between R. Frost and P. Webster. Songs were rendered by M. J. Corrigan and G. Mantle and an action skit was put on by the end men. An action song "Yours and Mine," was sung by Arthur Pordham and Mrs. R. Frost.

The boys' octet sang "Here Comes the Showboat" and Roy Frost and Doug Jones did step dancing. The end men, Doug Jones and Don Donaldson, comprised a band whose selections were enlivening to the audience.

Women's Chorus

Intermingled between the various acts were lively choruses by the women's chorus and the full chorus.

Opening the second half was the enactment of the Dark Town Ladies Guild Sewing Circle. The women's chorus opened with "Carry Me Back To Old Virginny" following which Mrs. Percy Gray sang "Shortnin' Bread". A skit by Percy Eamer and Mrs. Eugene Brady terminated with the former singing "Life Gets Teejus". William Regan then sang "Old Black Joe" in response to which the ladies chorus sang "If I Knew You Were Coming." Mrs. L. R. Rundle sang "Mighty Lak a Rose" succeeded by two choruses by the women. The boys' octet gave another number.

Skits and Dialogues

An egg skit by the end men followed and the dialogues between P. Webster and W. Regan and the interlocutor. The end men put on another skit. Dialogues in which M. Corrigan, G. Brooks, R. Frost, F. Woodhouse and A. Cunningham figured were succeeded by a song by F. Woodhouse. Three choruses comprised the grand finale.

During the intermission, candy and soft drinks were sold.

Thanks to the cast and the audience were expressed by Rural Dean J. M. Brownlee and on Friday evening, members of the cast and their families were served refreshments by the Ladies' Guild.

Expert Speaks On Conservation

OMEMEE, May 1 — (ENS) — Omemee and district Horticultural Society was addressed at the April meeting by R. A. Patterson of the Lindsay Collegiate staff. His subject was conservation of soil, water and wild life by preserving forests and re-claiming waste land by reforestry.

Mr. Patterson is a member of a forestry club whose qualification for membership is to have planted a minimum of 100 trees. As it was a joint meeting of the adult and the juvenile branches of the society, Mr. Patterson adapted his address especially to the young members.

President J. A. Bent announced that garden seeds for the children's plots were ready and stated the varieties available for each age group. Those present received their allotment.

Supplies for Children

Wesley Wilson, director of juvenile gardening, said his committee had decided on a change this year in the arrangement of the plots, so they could be cultivated with the main vegetable gardens.

He also said each child would be presented with a typewritten instruction sheet to guide him in making selections and preparing exhibits at the annual flower and vegetable show.

A vote of thanks moved by the Rev. V. E. R. Zufelt was extended to Mr. Patterson. The May meeting will feature a planting demonstration on Mr. and Mrs. R. E. Brooks' grounds just west of Omemee.

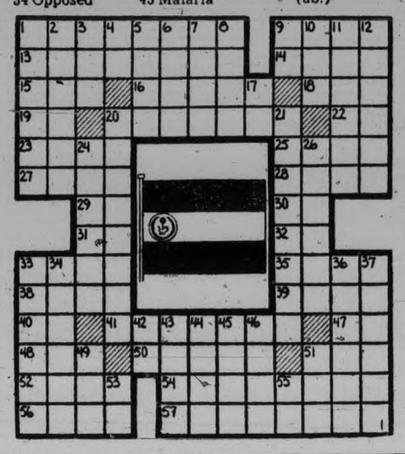
Answer to Previous Puzzle



Knox Church YPU

Mr. John Lewis brought greetings from the neighboring Lindsay Presbytery; Mr. Ken Symons, of Harwood, President of the Bay of Quinte Conference Y.P.U. from the Conference Executive. The Rev. H. G. Douglas welcomed the delegates to the church.

The Rev. F. R. Vanderburgh, of Havelock United Church, said a few words regarding summer camps—a C.G.I.T. camp is being organized by the Girls' Work Board, the dates not definite yet. Summer School at Oak Lake July 28 to 29, and an executive leadership camp from July 30 to August 7. At Quin-mo-Lac on Moira lake near Madoc there will be work camp from July 24 to September 4. It is hoped to have the camp ready for dedication by [illegible]

Saturday night's program consisted of a variety concert presented by different members of the Young People's Unions. This session was climaxed with a fitting meditation by Rev. Newbery.

Sunday sessions began with Communion service, conducted by Rev. Douglas of Knox church, followed by a lead to worship conducted by Mr. Robert Clark who plans to enter the Christian ministry of the United Church next fall.

The group was divided into the following discussion groups for Sunday afternoon: "Forward" in Christian Fellowship led by Rev. Douglas; Christian Missions led by Eileen Thompson; Christian Culture led by Hilda Northey; Christian Citizenship by Marion Foster; Christian Recreation by Robert Clark.

The banner for the largest attendance at the convention was presented to Mr. Lloyd Storke, president of George Street Y.P.U.

Rev. Edward Newbery of Jarvis, Ontario, presented inspriring addresses during the convention of Peterborough Presbytery Y. P. U. one on Saturday evening and one Sunday morning at the regular church service.

He commenced his first address by reading a portion of the 14th chapter of Exodus where Moses was leading the way out of Egypt and compared the predicament of the people of that day to the predicament young people find themselves in to-day. "Behind are voices of propagandists and ahead the fear of war. The church itself does not seem to have the answer to the problem, he admitted. Rev. Newbery referred to one mission field where the membership has decreased whereas in Northern Saskatchewan there is a tragic shortage of missionaries.

"Just what does advance mean?" he asked. Does it mean numbers in our churches, more money? It may. As industry has progressed we have been progressing in sin and there has been a decilne in spiritual values. In order to advance as Christian young people we must go in the direction in which God is going. Study the Bible to find out what God is doing. God is endeavouring to redeem and restore to himself all mankind. The church must be concerned about the redemption of mankind."

"Greatest force in the world today is the spirit and purpose of God working through willing and obedient lives. Everyone has great reserves strength and energy which are never used. With the help of God we can find power to use these reserves. We must give our lives to God to advance and go forward.

Mr. Hutton Burns, president elect, spoke at the evening service. He compared the young people of today to the Prodigal Son as recorded in Luke. "Young people of today are not putting their efforts where they should, but are wasting their time. We live in an advanced age and we are not ready for it. We lack decision and have no purpose in life. We attend young people's meetings, but if anyone asks why, we do not know."

"We [illegible] train ourselves to do the work," Mr. Burns concluded.

Can Make Agreement

GUELPH, May 1 — (CP) — Dominion-provincial agreements are possible without amendment to the constitution but a workable method of amending the British North America Act would make agreements easier, Justice Minister Garson said Saturday. The federal minister was addressing the annual meeting of the Wellington South Liberal Association.

Spring Seeding Late In Western Ontario

GUELPH, May 1—(CP)—Only three times in the last half century has spring seeding been as late as this year in Western Ontario, according to Dr. G. P. McRostie, head of the field husbandry department at the Ontario Agricultural College.

It is usually well under way by May 1, he said.

I. B. Whale, manager of "Weldwood," the Farmer's Advocate farm, reports that there is usually more seeding done "after April 20 than before" in this immediate vicinity, but it's usually started by now.

Few district farmers have commenced operations, nor are they likely to while present weather conditions continue.

Wakefield Stubborn

By The Canadian Press.

Frank C. Lane, general manager of the Chicago White Sox, on Sunday informed the New York Yankees that he is calling off the trade of outfielder Johnny Ostrowski and cash in exchange for outfielder Dick Wakefield.

Lane said he based his decision upon the refusal of Wakefield to join the Chicago American League ball club without a salary increase.

The White Sox Friday sent Ostrowski and an unannounced sum of cash to New York to obtain the services of the one-time University of Michigan athlete.

Wakefield refused to join the White Sox unless the Chicago club restored the pay cut he took when signing his first Yankee contract several weeks ago. Wakefield, traded to New York by Detroit last winter for first-baseman Dick Kryhoski, is said to have suffered a $5,000 pay cut from the $22,500 the Tigers paid him a year ago.

In Ann Arbor, Mich., Wakefield said "it's all up to Mr. Lane. It's strictly in his hands. He knows where I am."

Wakefield said he knew of reports that the Yankees might ship him to their Kansas City farm club in place of Ostrowski, and commented:

"That's a laugh. I wouldn't even consider that. I would quit baseball first.

"In fact I am close to it, anyway."

Remind Doctors How To Behave In Profession

By WILLIAM BOSS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON, May 1 — (CP) — Doctors belonging to the British Medical Association have just been reminded how to behave professionally.

A 16-page booklet entitled "Ethics and Members of the Medical Profession" has been distributed among them. Every "I" and "T" in the medical equivalent of "It isn't done, old top" is meticulously dotted and crossed.

B.M.A. doctors mustn't accept for treatment patients under the care of other doctors, for instance.

A new rule entitles a doctor to examine such a patient and to disclose his findings to the man or woman, "but save for any emergency which exists he shall not accept the patient for treatment."

A B.M.A. spokesman said the rule enables women uncertain of pregnancy or men suspecting they have a disease to obtain diagnosis without consulting the family doctor, if they desire.

The booklet discusses even how a practitioner's "shingle" should be put up, approves ways of establishing a practice, gives "a doctor's code of professional conduct," rules on advertising and professional secrecy and even about medical men's appearances at lectures and in television.

Reaction Surprise

General reaction to the code was one of surprise.

A Liverpool practitioner with 40 years' professional experience commented: "It is outrageous to be treated like a naughtly schoolboy."

And one in Leicester: "Surely we do not need to be reminded about how to behave."

On the other hand, a Manchester doctor said:

"Doctors have been hauled before health committees for being rude to patients or failing to attend to them at awkward times. It is time they were reminded of their code."

Perhaps the last word was that of a London doctor's wife. She said: "I think most doctors will do what my husband did with it —glance at the first few lines and chuck it into the wastepaper basket."

BalloonMakesNorway After Quick Trip

NEW YORK, May 1 —(AP) —A 20-foot plastic weather balloon has made a high-speed trip by air across the United States and the Atlantic Ocean to land 7,000 miles away in Norway.

The unguided balloon certainly set some kind of a record, New York University said Friday in announcing the flight.

The university said it made the trip in about 48 hours at speeds from 120 to 160 miles an hour and at 40,000 feet altitude.

It was not explained how an object unpowered except for the push of the wind could hit such a high speed.

The balloon was launched on March 2 at Holloman Air Force Base, Alamgordo, NM.

The US Air Force, co-operating with the University in weather research projects, trailed the balloon by plane until it crossed Georgia and headed out to sea.

Millions Across Europe Wait For New Homes On Rubble Heaps

By EDWARD CURTIS

LONDON, May 1 — (AP) — Five years after the war, millions still are waiting for a home of their own to rise from the rubble of the conflict in Europe.

From Moscow to London new homes and business structures are going up. But it will be years before all the bomb-and-shell-shattered buildings are replaced.

The war's end brought a heavy demand for home.. War-weary veterans wanted a place of their own for their families. The birth rate rose sharply.

In Britain, 795,000 new homes have been erected since the war. The country now has more houses than before, but thousands still are on the waiting lists.

A survey of the countries hardest hit shows the grim figures of the tremendous job of reconstruction.

In Britain, 470,000 homes were destroyed or damaged so badly as to be unliveable. Another 4,070,000 were damaged slightly.

Expensive Business

The war damage commission already has paid out £876,000,000 ($2,751,600,000). Part of the money came from a special insurance fund set up during the war, most of it from the treasury.

About 40,000 of the destroyed homes have been rebuilt, 142,000 of the severely-damaged buildings have been put back in shape. Repair of the slight-damaged structures is virtually complete, but officials estimate it will be many years before such badly-blitzed areas as London's east end are rebuilt.

High Casualties

In France, battles and bombings destroyed 462,000 buildings of all types and damaged 1,661,600.

From France's liberation until last Sept. 30, new homes for 92,700 were put up. Housing for another 10,300 families is under construction. In this same period 19,000 restroyed residential buildings were rebuilt and work is under way one another 40,000. Some 642,000 damaged houses have been repaired.

Western Germany still is digging away at the rubble. Reconstruction official say one of the big jobs is to remove 1,000,000,000 cubic feet of smashed masonry.

The estimate it will take a quarter of a century to build all the houses needed in the war-battered western German republic. The cost would be $12,000,000,000 to $14,000,000,000, in western Germany, and $1,500,000,000 to $2,000,000,000 in west Berlin.

They say one-fourth of western Germany's pre-war housing was destroyed.

In sprawling Russia, the government says the reconstruction of war devastated areas has made great progress.

War damage caused by the German invasion in terms of destruction of buildings, equipment and the like was officially listed in 1945 at $128,000,000,000.

Takes 25 Years

Poland lost 720,000 homes and buildings worth an estimated $2,000,000,000. Under a 25-year program, the old city of Warsaw will emerge again as it was before Hitler struck.

In the Netherlands, the war left 85,000 home units destroyed and more than five times that many damaged for a loss of $164,000,000. Biggest loss was to farm land flooded by the cutting of dikes. Damage is estimated at $207,000,000.

Since the war, 90,329 new homes have been built and the damaged farm lands have been reclaimed. Plans call for construction of about 55,000 dwellings yearly for the next 10 to 15 years.

Compared with surrounding countries, Belgium emerged lightly damaged. Nevertheless, 700,000 buildings valued at 35,000,000,000 francs ($700,000,000) were damaged or destroyed. By the end of 1949 the country had removed all traces of war in industry, but it sacrificed its housing policy. The nearest approach to a "house for all" date from official circles is "about 1960."

Some 5,000,000 to 6,000,000 Italians have been rehoused since the war, but a like number still are homeless or poorly housed. Land, sea and air attacks destroyed about five per cent of Italy's homes and buildings. The loss is put between $800,000,000 and $1,200,000,000.

2 Die In Blaze

FREDERICTON, May 1 (CP) —Death toll of a house fire Friday at the Kingsclear Indian Reservation rose to two Friday night when Mary Ann Atwin, 19, died in hospital. She suffered severe burns in trying to save the other victim, her two-year-old brother, Aloysius.

The woman who's "talked" with the dead

Toronto Doctor Flouts City Order Refuses To Break Law; Occupants Still Without Electricity

TORONTO, May 2—(CP)—Water supply was restored today to 17 families in the Ryding Avenue trailer camp who have defied a city order to evacuate the west-end site they have occupied since 1947. The city, which Monday cut off electricity, toilet and water facilities, had decided to stand pat on the order it issued after a Ratepayers' Association protested against the trailer camp's existance. But Dr. G. P. Jackson, city Medical Health Officer, ordered the water turned on again. He said a Provincial law requires property owners to provide occupants with enough water for drinking and sanitary purposes.

TORONTO—(CP)—Toronto's Board of Control today cancelled a Health Department order which restored the water supply to 17 families in the Ryding Avenue trailer camp who are defying a city order to vacate the North Toronto site they have occupied since 1947.

"Board of Control and City Council cannot break the law," he said.

The 50 men, women and children, reported preparing a deputation to ask the city for permission to remain on the land indefinitely, remained without electricity.

"We regard the trailer dwellers as trespassers," said Property Commissioner G. D. Bland. "They have got to move and that is all there is to it."

After a chilly night of trying to light and heat their trailers with candles, lamps and small oil stoves, the group today expressed new concern, particularly for the children.

Daughter Ill Agent Bars Indian Father

TORONTO, May 2 — (CP) — An Indian trapper who seeks to enter an Indian reservation near Hearst to assist his severely ill daughter is prevented from doing so by order of an Indian agent, Magistrate E. R. Tucker of Cochrane said today.

A timber company gave the Indian, Xavier Chokomolinis, permission to build a wigwam one mile from the reservation. He lives there now, but is barred from visiting the daughter.

The ban was imposed following an argument between the Indian and a Federal Government nurse. Chokomolinis was reported to the Indian agent as a trouble-maker, and ordered to leave the reserve.

"The action of the Indian agent is autocratic on the face of it," the magistrate said in an interview here. "It is cruel, too, for the agent to prevent an Indian father from visiting his daughter when she so badly needs him and he has been of great help to her.

"Remember, too, the agent was able to issue such an order without recourse to any court proceedings which might determine the rights or wrongs of the case. It is another example of the many reasons for the repeal of many undemocratic sections of the Indian Act."

Ex-Mayor Dies In Philadelphia

PHILADELPHIA, May 2 (AP) —J. Hampton Moore, two-term mayor of Philadelphia and a member of the United States Congress for seven terms, died today after an illness of two years. He was 86.

Moore was president emeritus of the Atlantic Deeper Waterways Association which he headed from its foundation in 1907 until his retirement in 1947.

He was the author of two published books of poetry and drew from personal experiences to write two other works, "Roosevelt (Theodore) and the Old Guard" and "With Speaker Cannon Through the Tropics."

Moore served as a Republican representative in the U.S. House from 1905 through 1919. He focussed his Congressional activities on the improvement and maintenance of existing waterways and the maintenance of new ones along the Atlantic coast.

In 1881 he joined the reportorial staff of the public ledger. He spent 13 years as a reporter covering general assignment but specializing in labor conditions.

Block And Tackle, Rum Put Koko On Her Feet

BUFFALO, N.Y., May 2 (AP)—When Koko got the colic it took a block and tackle, six bales of hay and a fifth of rum to put her on her feet.

The 50-year-old elephant was lifted by the block and tackle. Each time a little space appeared, hay was shoved under Koko until she was on her feet.

The swig of rum helped revive her, but didn't make her tipsy.

"When you weigh 9,000 pounds a fifth of rum doesn't mean much," said zoo curator Joseph A. Abgott.

To Be Named Senator

OTTAWA, May 2—(CP)—Appointment of Gordon B. Isnor, senior Liberal member of the Commons for Halifax, as a Senator for Nova Scotia, will be announced this afternoon, it was learned today. Mr. Isnor was first elected to the Commons in 1935 and after serving two terms in the Nova Scotia Legislature. He has held the Halifax seat in the Commons ever since 1935.

Single Vote Awards Attlee Victory

LONDON, May 2—(AP)—The Labor government Monday night won a House of Commons ballot on a minor issue by a single vote, beating back a surprise Conservative attack designed mainly to shake Labor prestige.

Parliamentary observers said an adverse vote on such a minor issue—a Conservative proposal for a £1,000 ($3,100) appropriation cut—probably would not have forced the government to resign.

The Commons, sitting as a committee of the whole, cast a tie vote of 278-278 over the Conservative proposal to reduce the salaries of Transport Minister Alfred Barnes and his assistants. The Labor committee chairman, James Milner, broke the tie with a vote in the government's favor.

Wins Nine Votes

Prime Minister Attlee's government already has lost one such vote on a minor motion since the February general elections gave it a majority of fewer than 10 votes over the combined Conservative and Liberal opposition. Labor has won nine test votes, most of them on major "issues of confidence," since the new parliament met on March 6.

Though defeat of the motion Monday night would not have forced Labor out of office, it would have damaged the government's prestige seriously, observers said.

As a result, Labor party leaders were expected to require even more regular attendance from Labor MPs at future house sessions.

Newspaper Predicts

London's leading Liberal newspaper, the News Chronicle, said Attlee might call for another vote today on the budget proposal to show that his government still is in effective control.

Though the Conservative motion was a sudden opposition action, it had been rumored earlier in the day. One Labor member of Commons, Seymour Cocks, flew back from Paris after getting a hint early in the evening that something was up.

Several Conservative deputies arrived half an hour before the balloting, in evening dress. Wives and friends of the members thronged the galleries.

As it became apparent that the Conservatives might ask for a vote, government whips were busy rounding up missing Labor members.

FEAR TALENT HURT

TORONTO, May 2 (CP)—Canadian talent may be hurt by a 50-per-cent increase in fees announced Monday by the Toronto local of the AFL-Affiliated Musicians' Union, a survey of cocktail lounge operators showed today.

500 Shop Men Laid Off By CPR

MONTREAL, May 2 (CP)—Immediate layoffs affecting about 500 shop workers, in western and central Canada were announced by the Canadian Pacific Railway today.

Vice-president N. R. Crump said in a statement:

"Lower rail traffic and consequent slackening in demands for equipment maintenance will cause minor reductions in the staff of C.P.R. repair shops, particularly back shops, throughout the system."

"Back shops" are the shops where general overhauls and large-scale repairs are carried out. Temporary repairs and general maintenance are carried out in "line shops."

Layoffs would be instituted immediately and would mainly affect temporary employees or those with less than six months' service.

Cabinet Now Considering Emergency

Say Rampaging River Higher Than 1948, Morris Badly Battered

WINNIPEG, May 2—(CP)—The Red river flood crest rolled on towards Winnipeg today as the Provincial Cabinet gathered to consider emergency measures.

All along the river, from the International border at Minnesota to this city of 300,000, it's the same story—one of higher flood level readings than experienced in the serious floods of 1948.

At 6 a.m., the Red stood at 23.6 feet above datum in Winnipeg. Peak level in 1948 was 23.4 feet. Winnipeg had a three-inch rise in the last 24 hours.

At Morris, 41 miles south, the river moved up more than four inches Monday. The flood crest has yet to hit Morris although the town of 1,100 population has already been badly battered.

Premier Campbell and several other members of the Legislature toured the flood-stricken areas of southern Manitoba by plane on Monday.

Latest reading at Morris put the river at 19 feet—a foot past the 1948 level.

Protect Hospital

Army and volunteer workers toiled at Morris to erect a dike around the town's new hospital before the river reaches its full fury. Already, a four-foot dike bulwarked by more than 3,000 sandbags encircles the building.

The situation apparently has eased at two points—Emerson and St. Jean Baptiste. The flood crested Sunday night at Emerson, on the Manitoba-Minnesota border and the liver level has dropped 1½ inches. There has been no recent rise in the river at St. Jean Baptiste, 47 miles south of Winnipeg.

Hip-booted men maintain a 24-hour watch, checking for breaks and adding sandbags at weak points.

The Red Cross has asked volunteers to work on the ramparts on Kingston Row and Kingston Crescent, a peninsular district which the Red threatens to cut of completely. Much of the property has been under water since Sunday.

Water was within two feet of the top of the Lyndale Drive dike in St. Boniface. In Fort Garry 70 men patrolled a half-mile stretch of 27-foot dike which bars the river from Wildwood Park residential section. Another foot and it would be over.

Trenton Unions Urged Shutdown

TRENTON, May 2 (CP)—The general membership of eight district unions was to be asked Monday night to support a general shutdown of major Trenton industries in support of striking textile workers, out for four months over a wages dispute with the Downs Coulter Company here.

The decision was announced on Sunday night at a meeting of striking Local 105 of the United Textile Workers (AFL).

Does Russian Family Need 71 Beds?

$65-Question Driving New York Town Crazy, Asking U.N. For Answer

GLEN COVE, N.Y., May 2 — (AP)—How many beds does a Russian family need to stay happy?

That's the question keeping folks awake in this pretty little Long Island residential centre.

It's even got the United States State Department whistling the sleep-time blues. The whole affair could turn into a diplomatic nightmare and set the United Nations tossing and turning.

The question hinges on Glen Cove's strict residential zoning laws.

The town began to open its eyes the other day when Soviet U.N. diplomat Leonid A. Morozov rented the old 47-room J. P. Morgan mansion for the summer—at $3,650 a season.

And Glen Cove's slumbering suspicions were definitely roused when it watched van after van of Morozov furniture arrive.

One Glen Cove scout, lawyer John Finn, Jr., managed to mingle with the movers and do a little mental arithmetic.

He counted 71 folding beds, 67 canvas chairs and eight big cafeteria tables.

To Glen Cove it all added up to one horrid thought—a budding Russian summer resort in their suburban paradise. Yet all the house deeds are clear on this point: one house, one family.

It is true that Glen Cove hasn't found out exactly how big the Morzov family it. But still it's a lot of beds.

The state department in reply to a letter from Mayor Luke Mercadante suggested that Glen Cove write a letter to Warren Austin, U.S. Ambassador to the U.N., and tell him their troubles.

While Finn and the mayor sat down to draft the letter, another piece of news reached them.

They heard that Jakob Malik, Deputy Soviet Foreign Minister, has rented the $100,000 Reynolds estate about a mile from the Morgan home.

The Reynolds house has 24 rooms.

Now Glen Cove is wondering how many beds Malik is going to need to keep fresh and fit.

Canada Tipped Britain Off On Fuchs In '46

OTTAWA, May 2 (CP)—Canada tipped Britain in 1946 about Dr. Klaus Fuchs, a top, German-born atomic scientist since convicted in Britain and sentenced to 14 years on charges of atomic spying for Russia.

The tip was given about the time Dr. Fuchs was returning to Britain four years ago from the United States where he had been in touch with the closest atomic secrets. British intelligence was told his was one of five British names found in an amazing notebook owned by one of 13 Canadians rounded up as suspects on Feb. 15, 1946. The Canadian was one of six of those original detainees later acquitted.

This was discussed in a statement Monday night by External Affairs Minister Pearson. The Minister insisted it was Britain's duty, not that of Canada, to shoulder full responsibility for investigation of those five names—a mere fraction of some 436 found in a small, alphabetically-indexed address book. The other four, he said, were "just names."

Narrowing List

Mr. Pearson's testimony before the Commons committee on external affairs narrowed to six people the possible identity of the owner of the notebook. Those among the original 13 detainees later acquitted were Matt Nightingale, Dr. David Shugar, Scotland Benning, Fred Poland, Eric Adams and Israel Halperin. Four others among those arrested later also were acquitted.

Mr. Pearson said that of the 436 names, 150 were those of people then living in Canada, 163 in the United States, five in Britain and 118 "entries were of a miscellaneous character." Canada made a "very thorough" investigation of the 150 Canadian names and had thoroughly investigated the owner and interviewed him about all the names.

When Gordon Graydon (PC-Peel) continued to press for facts about Canada's followup and duty, Mr. Pearson replied with heat: "Surely it was Britain's responsibility to investigate those five names when we gave them all available information and when we had to accept responsibility for 150."

Trade Decline Said Blundering

LONDON, May 2 (CP)—The Daily Telegraph today blames "major ministerial blunderings" on the part of the Labor government for the decline in some types of Anglo-Canadian trade.

The Conservative newspaper, commenting on a debate in the House of Commons Monday on trade between the two countries, says in an editorial:

"The British government has repeatedly cut and cancelled contracts to the chagrin of the Canadian exporter.

"The reason for these unfortunate changes has not, of course, been malice, but the shortage of dollars.

"But the shortage of dollars has been due partly, at least, to major ministerial blunderings and partly also to the desire for political reasons to sell to our enemies beyond the iron curtain goods which our friends across the Atlantic would gladly have taken from us."

Charge Chinese Treated As Second Class Citizens

OTTAWA, May 2—(CP)—Repeal of the present Chinese Immigration Law would prove to the world that in Canada "we practise as well as profess human rights," the Senate Committee on Human Rights was told today. In its 2,000-word submission to the Senate group, the Committee for the Repeal of the Chinese Immigration Law claimed that discrimination against Canada's Chinese on account of race still prevails in the immigrations laws.

"Of course, it may be said that the discrimination is not against our Chinese brethren as members of the Chinese race, but because of their membership in the so-called Asiatic race," said the brief.

"The distinction . . . is about as important as the difference between Tweedledum and Tweedledee. Whether we discriminate against the Chinese as Chinese or as Asiatics, the result is the same—we treat them as second-class citizens on account of race."

Some Changes

The brief, similar to one which a delegation from the three-year-old organization presented in March to Citizenship Minister Harris, emphasized that no request was being made for implementation of a policy of extensive Oriental immigration.

It asked:

1. That the Chinese immigration law be repealed and everyone in Canada brought under one law "free from the present form of racial discrimination."

2. That the new law provide for the admission to Canada of the wife and children—regardless of age—of legal residents of this country.

Under present regulations Chinese residents cannot bring children over the age of 18 into Canada, and a Chinese must become a naturalized citizen before he can bring his wife and children here.

Europeans and South Americans are permitted to bring children into Canada, regardless of age, as soon as they become legally resident.

TREATY RATIFICATION

WASHINGTON, May 2 (AP)—President Truman today asked the Senate to ratify a treaty between the United States and Canada establishing new controls over use of Niagara River waters for power purposes.

Mock Revolution Ends In U.S. City

MOSINEE, Wis., May 2 (AP)—Mosinee "Communists" became loyal Americans again today, their one-day mock revolution at an end.

But while they went back to preparing for belated trout fishing trips and other everyday activity, their Mayor lay critically ill in hospital after suffering a heart attack.

Just as the town was about to be delivered from "Communist dictatorship" Monday night, Mayor Ralph Kronenwetter, 49, was stricken.

Mayor Kronenwetter had participated actively in the "Red invasion," staged as an object lesson by the Wisconsin Department of the American Legion.

He was the first to be arrested by Legionnaires acting as security police troops.

They routed him out of bed early Monday and rustled him from the house clad only in pyjamas and a bathrobe.

The day of oppression ended with a giant fire in the park. All traces of Monday's May-Day demonstration went up in the blaze including Red flags that had flown above municipal buildings.

A Game Of Car Tag Ends In Driver's Death

DETROIT, May 2 (CP)—Albert Foster, 66, died in hospital Monday night as a result of what police said was a game of automobile tag on an express highway near Detroit.

Anthony Coccia, 20, driver of a car which locked bumpers with Foster's car, told police the fatal accident occurred after Foster's car passed him and he in turn passed Foster.

Coccia said that Foster was trying to regain the lead when the two cars locked bumpers. Both cars skidded 300 feet and Foster's car overturned.

Pearson Sees Closer Ties Between Nations of Pact

BELLEVILLE, May 2 (CP) — External Affairs Minister Pearson expects that next week's Atlantic Pact meeting in London will draw up plans for new social and economic co-operation between the nations in the alliance.

Addressing the Rotary Club here Monday, he said the Atlantic Pact is the best reply to Soviet aggression the democracies have yet been able to find in the political field. During the last year, plans for military defences have been made.

"At the meeting next week, we must face the realities of the difficulties of converting plans into performance," he said. "But I hope that at this meeting we shall do more than create a military alliance. I hope we shall begin a social and economic process that will produce a North Atlantic Democratic Union that will be above and beyond our sovereign States.

"Through the North Atlantic Pact, we have convinced the men behind the Kremlin walls that, if they attack one, they attack all. And this time the aggressor will know that he will not be able to destroy his victims piecemeal."

Mr. Pearson said the Russians are using the same tactics in current political conflict as they used in a military sense during the Second World War. He said they are provoking crises throughout the world so that the democracies must spread their forces thinly.

"We need a steady nerve and total diplomacy, so that we can be alert on all sections of the front."

It would be a mistake to reorganize the United Nations without Russia, as suggested by Herbert Hoover, former United States president, he said:

"Perhaps, in time, the Soviets will drive themselves out of the United Nations. But for us to do it would be a final and complete confession of bankruptcy of the United Nations organization—and I am not ready to admit that yet."

MacArthur Urges Outlawing Red Party

Warns Japanese Communist Minorities Abuse Freedom

TOKYO, May 2 (AP) — Gen. MacArthur today urged the Japanese to defend their new constitutional liberties against the "international political perfidy" of Communism. For the second time in 10 months he suggested the possibility of outlawing Japan's Communist party.

The supreme Allied commander in Japan took the third anniversary of Japan's constitution as the occasion for a statement denouncing a new Communism here and abroad.

Japan's Communist party, MacArthur said, is "an avowed satellite of an international predatory force and a Japanese pawn of alien power policy, imprealistic purpose and subversive propaganda." Then he added:

"That it has done so at once brings into question its right to the further benefits and protection of the country and laws it would subvert and raises doubt as to whether it should longer be regarded as a constitutionally recognized political movement."

He made it clear he felt no danger of the Communists coming to power through constitutional means, but warned that "Communism now makes but a shallow pretense of seeking such an objective."

Abuse Freedom

Instead, he said, there was the danger of the small Communist minority making "abusive use of freedom" to create conditions of lawlessness and unrest to open the way for seizure of power through "intimidation and force."

He said: "The issue is therefore clear and unequivocal—how far may the fundamental human rights be exercised unabridged without becoming the instruments of their own destruction?

"It is an issue which confronts all free peoples, forewarned that others have lost their liberties because, blindly following an ideal, they have failed to see the dangers inherent in reality."

MacArthur's attack on the Japanese Communists comes at a time when they have heavily lost prestige with most segments of the population.

The Reds reached a high point of popularity in January, 1949, when they elected 41 members to the Diet.

Ruling Bars Firemen, House Burns

Policeman Sees House Razed By Flames Can't Get Any Help

HUNTSVILLE, May 2—(CP) — A Provincial policeman watched his home burn to the ground near here Monday night after his wife was told by Huntsville firemen they could not operate outside the town.

Constable Joseph Jones, 26, was on duty when a stove explosion started the fire. His wife Elizabeth and two small children fled in their night attire.

Several hundred people who came from Huntsville in cars were unable to help because the pump was too close to the blazing building. A sister-in-law, Joy Gillies, who was also in the frame bungalow, said she ran nearly a mile to telephone for help but none came.

Lose Everything

Nearly everything but a bundle of winter clothing was burned. The family is staying with friends.

Huntsville is 115 miles north of Toronto. The Jones house is in suburban Chaffey township.

Fire Chief A. W. Plowright of Huntsville said the town fire-fighting force has only one piece of equipment, a pumper.

"We couldn't go to the fire because it wouldn't leave anything in the town," he said. "This happens every two weeks around here."

Cycle Changes Being Speeded

TORONTO, May 2 (CP) — A speed-up in changeover of electrical equipment from 25 to 60 cycles in two southern Ontario districts was announced today by chairman Robert H. Saunders of the Ontario Hydro-Electric Power Commission.

Areas affected are one immediately east of Toronto extending as far north as Sutton to slightly west of Bolton, east to Stouffville and south to Lake Ontario at Scarboro Township and another extending from Courtwright, Sarnia and Point Edward on the St. Clair river in the west to slightly beyond Thedford, Arkona and Watford on the east and from just south of Oil Spings and Alvinston to Lake Huron on the north.

A total of 5,001 consumers in the first district will have their equipment standardized during May, an increase of almost 50 per cent over the number handled in April. In the second area 1,641 consumers will have equipment changed, compared with 1,532 in April.

First changes in power supply will take place in June in a third area extending north to Lake Huron and Zurich and Hensall, east to Thorndale and Thamesford, south beyond Mount Brydges and Lambeth and west of Strathroy.

4 Youngsters Wreck Car During Joyride

WINDSOR, May 2.—(CP). — Four youngsters climbed from a wrecked car today and for two hours led police and a search-party of citizens in a chase through yards and streets. Police later picked up three youths and a 14-year-old girl.

The car crashed against a post on the southwest outskirts of the city. The joyriders, who ranged in age from 14 to 17 years, escaped serious injury.

The automobile was owned by Victor Percy and police said they believe Percy's son took the car to give his three companions a ride.

Witnesses told police that two of the youths carried the girl away after she had been stunned by the impact. They were later picked up near the centre of Windsor and police detained all four for questioning. No charges were laid immediately.

King's Title Outdated; Revision Of Terms Regarded As Necessary

Issue Raised First In South Africa; Canada Not Pressing Matter, Although Eventual Change Seen

OTTAWA, May 2—(CP)—The King's title has been outdated by Commonwealth constitutional evolution and revision of its terms is regarded here as a likely and necessary future development. However, the issue is not considered in informed circles to be a matter of urgent or immediate importance and the government is not pressing for any swift change. The issue was raised in South Africa Monday when Prime Minister Malan said changes in the Commonwealth's structure leave "no doubt that there would be a change in the present title of King George."

Mr. Malan said, too, that Canada was "particularly dissatisfied with her position in the Commonwealth," a statement which brought only puzzled conjecture here. A cabinet source said he knew of no issue current or impending that would warrant that assumption.

Not Pressing

However, while the government is not pressing the matter, there is a feeling that the King's title is behind the times and, in time, should be altered.

The title now is "His Most Excellent Majesty, George the Sixth, by the Grace of God, of Great Britain, Ireland, and the British Dominions beyond the seas, King, Defender of the Faith."

This could be criticized on these grounds at least:

1. Ireland no longer is in the Commonwealth.

2. Canada no longer considers herself a "British dominion" but a "member of the Commonwealth."

3. Moslem Pakistan, one of the other members, could hardly accept for its king one who is the defender of the (Christian) faith.

May Discuss

In London it was suggested a change in the King's title may be discussed the next time the Commonwealth prime ministers get together.

The Conservative Daily Telegraph said that although no formal proposals have been made, several Commonwealth countries and "particularly" Canada feel that the present style is not accurately descriptive of the King's position.

It said Canada is seeking an amendment by which the King could be described as "King of Canada."

In London, British and Canadian spokesmen disclaimed knowledge of any Canadian move to have the King's title changed. A spokesman at Canada House said there have been no official statements or ministerial pronouncements on the question in the last few weeks.

An official at the Commonwealth Relations Office, also denying that Canada has made any official approach, recalled that when Eire became the Republic of Ireland, there was "a sort of hint" from Canada that the word Canada might be included in the King's title. But nothing came of it.

Flood Damage Discussed By Commons

OTTAWA, May 2—(CP)—The disastrous Manitoba floods held the attention of the Commons through an afternoon and part of a night sitting Monday and then members got going again on the subject of Western oil pipe lines.

The floods debate, initiated by Rene Jutras who Liberal constituency of Provencher is mostly under water, was entered by almost every Manitoba member in the House. It drew from the government these statements:

1. Justice Minister Garson, as Manitoba's representative on the cabinet, said the floods had not reached their peak and no one knew what the damage would total except that it would be in millions. The government would wait for a clearer picture before announcing possible federal assistance.

2. Acting Revenue Minister Winters said sympathetic consideration would be given individual cases of late filing of income tax returns—the deadline was Monday night—in the flood area where the taxpayer could prove tardiness was due to circumstances beyond his control.

Pipe Line Clash

Discussion on the bill to incorporate the Alberta Natural Gas Company, which seeks to build a pipe line from Alberta to the Pacific Coast, went to its usual stalemate. The bill now is in committee stage and the debate produced an open clash between Prime Minister St. Laurent and Howard Green (PC, Vancouver-Quadra).

Mr. Green charged Ralph Maybank (L, Winnipeg South Centre) with "high-handed and arbitrary" methods as chairman of the Private Bills Committee which considered the legislation.

Mr. Maybank rose to say he didn't care what Mr. Green said and walked from the chamber.

The Vancouver members said if Mr. Maybank was not acting for the government as committee chairman, then Mr. St. Laurent

Toronto Master Plan Approved By Council

TORONTO, May 2 (CP)—City Council Monday approved the "master plan" for public works projects for the second time in six months, despite a concerted effort to block it being sent to the Ontario Planning Department for approval. The plan calls for expenditures of $180,000,000 in the next 30 years and already had been amended by the provincial planning department.

Much of the opposition to the plan Monday was based on the contention that its public works projects would prove a stumbling block to the negotiations for amalgamation with the 12 smaller municipalities in the greater Toronto area.

Mayor Hiram McCallum said that approval of the official plan is expected shortly from the Ontario government.

Senators Check Gambling Racket

WASHINGTON, May 2 (AP)—Senators today dug into Kansas City's gambling situation looking for any underworld link in the country-wide distribution of horse racing news to bookmakers.

Their first move was to call representatives of the Continental Press Service of Cleveland, O., before a Senate commerce subcommittee which is studying anti-gambling legislation.

A federal grand jury reported Saturday that Racing News is brought into Kansas City by Continental and distributed by the Standard News Service to bookies doing an $8,000,000-a-year business.

Several officials have identified Continental as the chief distributor of Racing News used by bookies in the United States—and as the major link in big-time gambling on races.

THEFTS IN HALIBURTON

District police are investigating a chain of thefts from five Haliburton garages and service stations in the past seven days. Sunday morning break-ins were discovered at two garages owned by Garnet Lytle in Minden where a total of $40 was scooped from open tills. A similar amount was taken from Curry Motors at Haliburton where the till was pried open. Last week a total of $40, cigarets and tobacco were taken from Boice and Auston Garages in Haliburton.

Likely Spend More Money On Defences

WASHINGTON, May 2—(AP)—Informed United States officials predicted today that the North Atlantic countries will agree to spend more money and effort on their defences.

They said a close-up look at the price tags on the master defence plan drafted earlier shows higher spending is needed.

State Secretary Dean Acheson is reported ready to urge quick action on an intensified defence program at the 12-power Atlantic Council meeting in London May 15—even if it means Europeans must increase their defence budgets.

Acheson believes, these officials said, that a stepped-up effort in the military field is absoutely necessary to put into effect the integrated defence plan worked out April 1 by the 12 defence ministers at the Hague.

The 12 treaty countries spent a total of $20,147,000,000 last year in their collective defence effort. The United States carried about 72 per cent of this financial load.

American officials are convinced that the Europeans must bear a greater share of the cost of any proposed increase in effort next year.

President Truman already has announced he will ask Congress for a total of $1,147,000,000 for a second year of military aid. Officials said it is unlikely the President will increase this amount during the next fiscal year.

A solution to the problem now being discussed informally in advance of the London meeting is for member countries to:

1. Increase their defence budgets where it will not interfere with recovery.

2. Review planned military expenditures to eliminate "low priority projects" and make better use of available funds.

Request Full Rights For Canadian Indians

OTTAWA, May 2 (CP)—Anti-discrimination laws and extension of full rights to Canada's Indians were urged in a brief which the Trades and Labor Congress today placed before the Senate Committee on Human Rights.

In its 25-page submission, the congress said education on human rights and fundamental freedoms should precede any legislative action. Within Canada's trade unions this educational process had progressed far enough "to no longer justify any further delay in the enactment of a bill of rights."

The brief urged enactment of laws against discrimination and recommended greater protection in the constitution for all minorities.

It asked for the extension of full rights to Canada's Indians and recommended that they be mentioned specifically so that the federal parliament, in discharging its obligations to the Indians, could not reduce their rights below the levels established in the constitution.

A Canadian bill of rights should include "the right to an education and to the free choice of employment; the right to security in the event of unemployment, sickness, disability, widowhood, old age or other lack of livelihood in circumstances beyond the individual's control."

Fewer Jobless In April; Down To 1,120

Unemployment insurance claims took a decided drop during April but were still considerably advanced on April 1949, William Mellis, manager of the National Employment office, said today.

At April's end in the entire Peterborough district (including adjoining counties) jobless persons drawing insurance funds totalled 1,120 as compared with 812 for April and 1,628 for March, 1950.

Mr. Mellis said a large number of claimants were dropped April 15 when the special benefits, included in the unemployment insurance act in February, were stopped. More than 200 unemployed were receiving benefits under this measure.

Jobs Opening

Job opportunities are beginning to open up in the city and district, explained Mr. Mellis. Construction in Peterborough and the surrounding territory has accounted for a large number of the March claimants returning to work. A few, said Mr. Mellis, have taken positions in local industries as vacancies occur. The third source of increasing employment is on the railroads which are once again hiring track men.

Further work will be available when other construction projects in the city open with the arrival of better weather conditions, predicted Mr. Mellis.

During April men on claim numbered 834 while there were 286 women on benefits. Postal claims totalled 380 for the month. During March this year the number of claims at the office was 1,628, including 153 special benefit claims, and 511 postals.

During April 1949 unemployment insurance claims were composed of 562 male and 250 female claimants. Of that number 256 were postal claims.

Sight Seeing Bus Service

Peterborough Bus Lines will be given by the council an opportunity of indicating whether they are interested in a proposed sight seeing service.

That was a Monday night decision on a letter from J. W. Moore of DeNurse coach lines seeking permission to establish a "sight seeing service" around the city during the summer months, on a trial basis. It is said to have been inspired by a suggestion from the Chamber of Commerce.

City Clerk Outram provided the information that the service would be an experiment for this year, "but the council should charge a healthy fee next year if it succeeds".

Mr. Outram said there might be some complication with the bus company and their franchise.

Ald. Adam Sands said the council should as a matter of courtesy consult the bus company "before we stick our necks out".

"I think you are right," Mayor Swanston said. "We can find out whether the bus company would have any objections."

A motion by Ald. Dodds and Ald. T. D. Miller left the courtesy consultation to Mayor Swanston.

Chrysler Negotiators In Session 62 Hours

DETROIT, May 2 (AP)—Negotiators in the stubborn Chrysler strike, now at the start of its 98th day, gave in to exhaustion early today.

But it was only for the time being in the marathon drive to write a full agreement and sent 89,000 strikers back to work.

At 4 a.m. EST the silent negotiators called a five-hour recess.

Bargainers for management and the United Automobile Workers Union (CIO) at that time had been in almost constant session for 62 hours.

Late Groomsman: DST

Morris Duke was both photographer and best man at the Widdis - Armstrong wedding Sunday at 8 a.m. at Bailieboro United Church.

In his professional role he was there by special engagement, but as participating witness the irregularity to nuptial convention traced directly to daylight saving, the hazard of which was left out of reckoning when the arrangement for the early Sunday morning event was made.

The groomsman forgot to advance his clock an hour, and when he arrived at the church the "I do's" had been uttered and the ceremony was ended.

The affair was fixed on a time schedule that permitted little latitude for dilatoriness, and when the best man did not show up, Mr. Duke was pressed into that duty, with Mrs. Heywood as the bride's attendant. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Bernard Heywood, of Bailieboro United Church.

Find Industrial Stocks In Strong Demand

TORONTO, May 2 (CP)—Selected industrial stocks were in strong demand as the session progressed on the Toronto Stock Exchange today. Mining issues continued heavy traders and western oils attracted considerable early attention.

Volume for the first three hours was 1,664,000 shares.

Gains ranged from fractions to a full point in leading industrials as the list continued Monday's advances and pushed into new high ground.

Powell River added a full point at a new high at 53½ and Canadian Celanese was ahead a like amount at 36½. Utilities, steels and papers were strong in groupings while liquors eased.

Senior and junior gold producers dipped while small prospects traded heavily for some good gains. Jaculet, Newlund, New Dickenson and Dulama were feature performers. Base metals brightened with Consolidated Smelters leading on a gain of a full point at 101¾.

18 Africans Perish In May Day Riots

JOHANNESBURG, May 2 — (Reuters) — Eighteen Africans, including a woman died in May day riots in the Witwatersrand area, 16 of them shot by police and two suffocated in a burning theatre, it was announced today.

More than 30 others—including a woman and three children—were injured, four of them seriously.

The "freedom movement" which had organized an unofficial May Day strike in the area, claimed the government was responsible for the riots.

Lady Councillor Enters Protest

COBOURG, May 2—(ENS)—Mrs. Rhena Stephens, Cobourg's only lady member of the town council, who some time ago served notice on the Council that the term "Madame" councillor was not dignified, had another "beef" to air to the council last night. She has expressed the opinion that she was not being given enough important council work to do and that it would appear that she was not consulted on everything of municipal importance. As chairman of the by-laws committee she had anticipated that it would entail fairly important duties but on some maters she was not consulted until a by-law was ready to be presented. After all she had headed the polls at the last municipal elections. Mayor Jack Burnet and members of the council hastened to assure Councillor Stephens that there had been no such intention.

Alderman Gets Clean Air Channel Between Flanking Smoke Screens

The seat Ald. E. C. Braund drew in the circle of the council placed him between two fires. On the left is Ald. Sands' cigar, and on the right is Ald. Hurrell Dodds' pipe. The sensory perception of Ald. Braund appears to question the aromatic quality of both those forms of tobacco in their burning. That is a fair deduction from his silent action Monday night, suggesting that their separate fumes and likewise their bouquet affected him with the same repulsion as zephyrs from the incinerator, or a combination of smouldering rope and cabbage leaves, with a tincture of horse hooves.

So when Ald. Sands sat down beside him last night Ald. Braund drew from his left pocket one bottle of Airwick, a new deodorant designed to neutralize domestic cooking for instance, such as fried onions, even with a soupcon of garlic.

This bottle was placed on the corner of the Braund desk nearest to the Sands position. A few minutes later Ald. Dodds arrived with his pipe newly stoked, tamped and lighted, presumably an aid to the deliberative mood and cerebration. At that, Ald. Braund reached into his right hand coat pocket and drew forth a companion bottle of Airwick (it might have been a publicity stunt for Braund wares), and set it at the corner of his desk giving out toward the Dodds' smoke.

Nothing was said, but the council was amused by the implication of this protective screen. The stuff may be a neutralizer of malodors, but it is not likely to have any deterrent result.

Faces Charge Of Assaulting Prov. Constable

COBOURG, May 2 (ENS)—Albert Scriver, Jr., of Hastings, was charged in police court Monday with assaulting Provincial Constable D. W. Coffey at Hastings on April 29. It is said that the officer was attempting to seize liquor at the time. Scriver was allowed on bail to appear at Hastings on May 18.

Victor Vennell of Cobourg was sentenced to seven days on drunk driving and was allowed suspended sentence for joyriding. A charge of car theft was withdrawn. Evidence of Chief W. J. Carey was that on April 1 he received a complaint from Mrs. Lillian Stephenson that her car was missing and almost at the same time her car was found badly damaged on William st.

Douglas White, Cobourg youth, appeared in court on a breaking and entering charge but was remanded for one week, during which time he will be given a mental examination.

Arthur King, no address, who was released on a theft charge in Port Hope on Friday and was picked up next day in Cobourg on a drunk charge, was fined $10 and costs or ten days. He toop the jail term.

Harry Brown of Port Hope was charged with drunk driving and dangerous driving, the case being adjourned for a week with bail fixed at $500.

A charge of drunk driving against Sam Warsalth of Hope township was dismissed. The charge was laid after Warsalth, who is a Polish tobacco farmer, ran into a pole near Welcome last month. The magistrate found that the evidence of the degree to which the accused might be considered under the influence of liquor was not sufficient.

Bantam Hockey Runners Up Receive Trophy

CAMPBELLFORD, May 2 (ENS)—Members of the Rotary-sponsored Campbellford Bantam Hockey Club, who were the intermediate C finalists, were guests of honor at the meeting of the Rotary Club on Monday. Also present were the coach and manager.

After dinner, each member of the team was presented with an OMHA crest, which had been sent to the club by the association. Dr. W. W. Baker read a letter from the president of the association, praising the lads for the clean cut hockey and good sportsmanship they had displayed in reaching the finals and being the runners-up.

It had been hoped to be able to give the boys each a Rotary crest at this time also, but there has been a delay in delivery. They will be given to the team at a later date. Each member of the team also received a framed group photograph of the team.

Douglas Maybee of Campbellford was a guest at the meeting, and presented a trophy which he donated to the captain of the team Glen Wilson. Mr. Maybee has donated the trophy to be presented each year to the runners-up in the Ontario finals.

The Campbellford boys reached this position on their first try, as this was their first year in organized hockey. The team also made a presentation to their manager, Bernard Allen, and to their coach, "Toey" Ibey, to show the team's appreciation for the services of these two men.

Want Swim Instructor

During the business part of the meeting, it was decided to advertise for a swimming instructor to supervise the bathing beach north of town. Rotary will sponsor this project and will try to procure the services of a competent supervisor with the proper qualifications.

The club has not yet been able to secure a building lot on which to erect the cottage they hope to raffle later on this summer. I. Glover announced that the Easter Seal campaign had surpassed the figure obtained last year, and stated that Wellman's Women's Institute had made a donation of $10 to this fund. President Charles Calver said he would like the secretary to express the thanks of the club, in a letter to the Institute.

Bell May Seek New Boost In '52 President Indicates

OTTAWA, May 2 (CP)—Frederick Johnson, president of Bell Telephone Co. of Canada, indicated Monday that his company may seek another boost in Ontario and Quebec telephone rates in 1952.

He told the Board of Transport Comissioners that proposed increased rates now sought by the company would not be adequate after 1951. The company is seeking rate boasts that would increase Bell's revenue from telephone service in the two previous phone service in the two provinces by about 20 per cent.

Saying that the company now is failing to earn its dividend requirements on current outstanding stock by about $500,000 a month, he said the decline in earnings was caused principally by the higher costs associated with the increasing plant investment per telephone. At Dec. 1, 1946, plant investment per telephone was $236, by the end of 1952 it was expected to reach $340.

Same Facts.

The same factors that exist now would continue through and beyond 1952.

"Because of this trend," said the president, "it does now appear that the rates we have applied for will not be adequate beyond next year."

This condition was anticipated despite the fact the company's plant was expected to be working at capacity.

C. E. Abbs, president of A. E. Ames and Co. Ltd., said Bell needed to increase earnings to maintain credit.

From the investors' standpoint the company's surplus which represents only about four per cent of the par value of the stock, is pitifully small, he said.

Bar Visitors BeforeOperation Separate Twins

EDMONTON, May 2 (CP)—All but the surgeons and nurses attending them have been barred from the hospital ward when Brneda and Beverley Townsend, siamese twin babies, await an operation to separate them.

The children, born last Nov. 17 at Tofield, Alta., are joined at a seven-inch section of the abdomen in front.

The babies were brought to hospital here Saturday and the first bulletin on their condition, issued today by Dr D. R. Easton, hospital superintendent, said the children are "happy and gaining weight. All tests to date have been entirely satisfactory."

One reason for isolating the children is to guard against danger of them catching a cold before the operation, scheduled for about May 14. Bone, skin and abdominal surgery will be involved in the attempt to separate them.

Medical authorities said the babies have "good chances of coming through the operation and being restored to normal health."

After bringing the children to hospital here, the parents, Mr and Mrs. E. A. (Bud) Townsend, returned to Tofield, 42 miles southeast.

Innocent Bystander Takes Rap Again Bridegroom-To-Be Mistaken For Car Thief

DETROIT, May 2 AP)—The innocent bystander—this time he was driving a car—takes the rap again.

Maurice J. d'Haene, 28, cruised along happily Monday in his new car. The sun shone brightly and in a few days more he would be married.

Suddenly z-z-zing, a bullet whipped into his front seat. d'Haene was caught in a cops-and-robbers chase.

He braked his car to the roadside and stepped out with his hands held high. The pursuing officers, who had been chasing a stolen car, rammed their patrol car into the side of the new car.

It took d'Haene five minutes to explain that the car was his. Then the officers apologized and helped unhook the two vehicles.

But d'Haene said that Prosecutor Fred Nicholson told him any damage claims would be denied because "the officers were performing their duty."

Now the prospective bridegroom will have to have the car repaired himself. And he wonders if it will be ready in time for the wedding trip.

Russia Thinks She Can Outwait Us

On Saturday last we expressed the opinion that if the Western world is patient, the cold war will dwindle into nothingness, for Russia will be too much occupied with the problems of her empire to pick quarrels outside it. It is possible, we suggested, for us to outwait Russia. On Saturday the U. S. Secretary of State, Mr. Dean Acheson, told a large conference of newspaper men that high authorities in Russia believe that it is possible for her to outwait us. Their notion is that capitalism is so rotten—so hopelessly crippled by its own viciousness and incompetence—that it must collapse soon.

* * *

This is an extremely happy state of affairs, if it is true. We can imagine nothing more reassuring than the knowledge that Russia is going to wait for the Western world to fall to pieces through its own ineptitude. Russia will have a long wait.

* * *

What the Russians probably cannot see or understand is that capitalism is undergoing rapid and radical changes. In the past twenty-five years there have been social changes in Britain and the U.S.A., and in all the countries like Canada which are associated with them, which have banished old-style capitalism indefinitely. What we now have is a system of free enterprise strongly limited by state controls, and shot through with a greatly increased sense of social responsibility. It is not capitalism as it was in 1900, or even in 1925. There is every reason to believe that this alteration in our social and economic system will continue, and there may be nothing which we can call economic stability for another fifty years.

* * *

The important fact is, however, that our system is capable of change, and that the changes can be brought about without revolutions. Our Western political genius, though strange to Russian eyes, is supple and powerful, and in the midst of a great deal of arguing and bad temper, we do get things done. If Russia really intends to wait for our collapse before picking a fatal quarrel with us, we may count on an indefinite period of peace.

Has The Modern Parent A Bad Conscience?

Twenty-five years ago Bernard Shaw told T. E. Lawrence that the most striking characteristic of the age was its bad conscience. That uneasiness of conscience seems to persist, for surely at no time in history have parents been so willing to accept blame for the doings of their children. If children do not do well at school, parents are expected to feel that it is all their fault; the home atmosphere is not conducive to good work. If children go to the bad, the parents are blamed; they have been either too severe or not severe enough. The latest notion that we have seen expressed is that parents are not telling their children enough about marriage, and are therefore to blame for many broken homes.

If many parents allow themselves to have bad consciences on this score they must be uncommonly stupid. Anybody who knows anything about children, or remembers his own childhood honestly, knows how reluctant children are to listen to their parents on the subject of marriage. Most children give very little thought to the married condition of their own parents; they have grown up too close to that situation to take an objective view of it. Furthermore, when they are beginning to think about marriage with any degree of seriousness, their parents have been married for twenty years or more, and probably do not present a picture which has much romantic appeal to the young.

It is part of the deathless optimism of youth for young people to believe that they are going to make a better job of life than their parents have done, and this belief is very strong in regard to marriage. And it is well that this should be so. Any progress which civilization has accomplished has been the result of children behaving more intelligently than their parents before them. They hope to improve on the marriage which they have seen at home, and if they are lucky, they do.

It would be a wretched world indeed if children gained all their knowledge of life from their parents. It is far better for them to find out about life, within reason, for themselves.

This being so, we cannot see why parents should reproach themselves unduly if their children come to grief. Compassion and sorrow they may feel, but why guilt? They cannot live their children's lives for them, as the children are the first to point out.

Hollow And Stuffed Men

Specialists look at the world through their own peep-holes; they get a long view but a narrow one. An atomic physicist sees man and time in terms of nuclear power—a big view but still restricted, for so much is left out of his vision—politics and irrational, hungry man for instance. An economist calculates without the atomic bomb, without man's spirit and imagination, and when he deals with society's jobs and food and houses, it is by averages, statistics and by putting people inside the framework of his economic laws, not by adapting the principles to the people. Lord Boyd Orr is a specialist in world food problems; his view is also restricted. For instance, national and international economics are not allowed to obtrude on his vision when part of the world has plenty and another part is starving. But such a view as Lord Boyd Orr's is probably less narrow, if less stellar, than a physicist's or an economist's, for humanity is his field.

On Sunday this Nobel Peace Prize winner told a New York audience that:

"America is already embarrassed with unmarketable surpluses of food. In Europe, even after the devastation of the last war, there is the threat of unmarketable surpluses of steel, coal and other industrial commodities within the next three years. Unless we can adjust human society so that these two dangers—revolt against poverty and unmarketable surpluses—cancel each other out, our civilization cannot survive even if another atomic bomb is never dropped."

The warning is clear: poverty must be countered with surpluses; peace is meaningless to a hungry man or nation, and cannot be sustained against the force of starvation. Has the West's foreign policy changed disastrously from the Atlantic Charter for peace and prosperity to the Atlantic Pact for a war of defence?

More Than Modest Trade

An official of the Department of Trade and Commerce, D. G. W. Douglas, spoke to the Peterborough Rotary Club yesterday about Canadian trade, and specifically about the International Trade Fair to be held this year as last in Toronto. Most people know that a third of the payroll of Canadian workers depends on exports, that our foreign trade aggregates five billion dollars a year, but these statistics have little colour. When Mr. Douglas tells his listeners that last year Canada sold 35,000 silver fox pelts to Italy, the picture warms up. And when Mr. Douglas, a Briton recently turned Canadian remarks with the impartiality of a comparative outsider that "we don't want to be too modest about what our nation is doing, in international trade" the indigenous Canadian tends to perk up and think more and better of our trading importance in the world. So let the old cliches come out for a dusting: Canada the arsenal of democracy, Canada the bread-basket of the world; and let us take pride in being able to say them with truth. The wheels of Canadian industry are grinding forcefully, for the good of Canada and the world's use.

Profile Of Augustus John

AT the very mention of the Royal Academy, which opens its 182nd exhibition this week, the name Augustus John comes to mind. He is exhibiting (as this year) or he is not, it makes no difference: his is the amplest personality in the little world of British artists.

Some Academicians laugh, some still shudder, when they remember the rumpus of 1938. After ten years in their fold, the fiery veteran—he was already sixty at the time—the doyen of English painting, champion of tradition against the onslaughts of the modern school, suddenly resigned, as a protest against the rejection of Wyndham Lewis's portrait of T. S. Eliot.

"I shall be happier and honester in rejoining the ranks of the outsiders, where I naturally belong," he remarked as he followed Sickert and Stanley Spencer into the Bond Street galleries. He held a rival show of his own and sold £7,000 worth of pictures in a week.

* * *

IT is a tribute to the generosity of both parties that John was back inside the Academy within two years. Since then he has remained faithful to Burlington House, been elected president of the National Portrait Gallery, and received the much-coveted Order of Merit. Is the lion tamed? Only a rash man would answer. "Like making a new friend," John once wrote slyly, "to break with an old one is one of the major satisfactions within one's reach."

There is no doubt that Mr. John is deeply traditional, even in his eccentricities, which are like those of a certain peer who used to arrive at the House of Lords in a yellow landeau. He can be counted on to shock the bourgeois, but the shock will be of that half-expected kind that gives more pleasure than pain. The bravura of his violent tweeds, his flowing beard and mane; his moods, alternating between bacchic jollity and sulphurous gloom; his wit, his ruderies, the whole disorderly panache—it is the very prototype of The Artist in the established tradition of the past hundred years.

As the Welsh are less boastful than other Celts, we have not been continuously reminded that Augustus John is a Welshman. He was born the son of a solicitor in Tenby and, in his childhood, developed a great love of mountains and wild coastlines. His artistic career began when he joined the Slade School in 1896.

At that time the school was spiritually a suburb of Paris, and Bloomsbury was known as the Quartier Latin. There were, of course, no cafes in Gower-street, but the youngsters in the local pubs could have walked on to the stage during "La Boheme" and passed unnoticed. John was among the most splendid of them, with his russet hair worn long and parted in the middle, his rich beard and gold earrings.

* * *

THOSE were his days. The vitality and brilliance of his mind, and his staggering facility as a draughtsman deeply impressed the artistic circles that he entered in the late nineties. He was at once successful and this had the effect of fusing him into that happy epoch. For the rest of his life he was to carry with him the aura of a world in which genius could wander freely, burning candles at both ends. Even his politics recall the evenings when, sketch-book in hand, he listened to Kropotkin holding forth on anarchism: today, he is a supporter of the Douglas Social Credit system and an enemy of generals.

An early marriage obliged him, on leaving the Slade, to take a teaching job in Liverpool, and it was there that he met John Sampson, an authority on gipsy lore. His soul was fired by the discovery of gipsies, those modest vagrants who have been with us for centuries, but have gained a special significance since the Industrial Revolution produced its claustrophobic nostaliga. Soon he had thrown up his job and was wandering across England in a caravan. "From Cambridge," he records typically of this time, "we trekked to Norwich, where I left the family encamped on a piece of waste ground while I proceeded to Liverpool to paint the Lord Mayor."

Since those days, mere Lord Mayors have been replaced by the greatest celebrities of the day and his caravan has been exchanged for a succession of studios in England, France, and America. But his cronies have remained the same—those who defy convention, and who regard restraint and discretion as doubtful virtues. Perfectly at ease in the company of the exotic or that of tramps, he has never felt entirely at home in the age of the Common Man.

* * *

THE great upheavals of two world wars, have not been reflected in the work of Augustus John. Yet he has witnessed many great happenings at first hand. Barred from active service by a box on the ear at school and a knee injury incurred while racing Gogarty over a stone wall in Galway, he was appointed an official war artist to the Canadian Army in the First World War (he was one of three Army officers allowed to retain their beards), and, afterwards, official artist, to the Paris Peace Conference.

In Paris, he led a titanic double life of ardent work and play. At that time, the seeds of Cubism and Surrealism floated on every breeze off the Rive Gauche. But neither then nor since have the seductive influences of Picasso and Dali been noticeable in the robust and gracious lines of this aesthetically immovable master-vagrant.

It is to certain giants of the past—El Greco, Watteau, Goya, Rubens—that he has turned for inspiration. John's early works were mostly of wild-eyed natives of the remote hinterlands of Ireland and Wales, or of his own wife, Dorelia, posed against deserted stretches of country at Martigues in Southern France. In these pictures he expressed, with wonderful ease and poetry, his own very personal vision—a Celtic vision, not always so far removed from "the sorcery of Mallory's dim and lovely world" as he claimed. The mournful lake at Martigues often has a Keatsian nostalgia; his girls are faery creatures in spite of their uncombed hair.

But John's penetrating eye and stylish brush marked him down from the first as a portraitist, and it is in this genre that he has made his name and fortune; he has equalled Sargent and Orpen in fashionable demand without ever being guilty of flattery or slickness. The late Andrew Mellon once offered him £11,000 for a portrait, but the commission was turned down. He has a genuine ignorance of money matters, will haggle obstinately to get his price, and then forget to cash the cheque.

* * *

TO sit to John is an ordeal; whoever submits to the gaze of those pale, prominent blue eyes may well tremble. He paints sitting down, settling himself in a forward posture, like a Cossack before a charge, and then, after a terrifying piercing stare, attacking the canvas in a silent frenzy of concentration. "The exploration of character," he has said, "should be left with confidence to the eye alone. Heaven knows what it may discover!"

The result has not always been flattering. The late Lord Leverhulme hit back; on receipt of his likeness, he cut the head from the canvas and returned the remains to the artist. Field-Marshal Montgomery, painted at the height of his renown by John, at once commissioned a second study to be made by another artist.

"Sometimes," remarked the wife of a famous man after his first sitting, "I think my husband looks like a Roman Emperor—sometimes like a butler. What do you think, Mr. John?" "Don't all butlers look like Roman Emperors?" muttered Mr. John.

When a subject interests him he works tirelessly. The famous portrait of Mme. Suggia, which hangs in the Tate and is probably John's masterpiece, took seventy sittings.

* * *

HIS hatred of what he calls "the invisible callosities of habit," and his love of landscape and of picturesque characters have kept him constantly moving about. His friends delight in the colourful record he has brought back from every journey; his detractors say that Sickert could make a masterpiece from an old bedstead, and (well out of earshot) compare his search for subjects with the excursions of a ladies' sketching club.

Perhaps the most serious criticism of John as an artist would be that he has never felt the doubts and heart-searching which lead to experiment and discovery. He may well feel that our age has cultivated too many doubts, experimented too much—and only produced a mass of solemn mediocrity, what he calls "universal pokeyness."

Mr. John has no need to bother about criticism. A born artist, with a magical sense of line, endowed with humour, pungency and eloquence, he has been everywhere and known everyone. He has always done as he pleased; he once painted the Emperor of Japan in an hour and then ducked round the corner to his local pub. He has only to draw a few lines, scribble a sentence or enter a room for the warmth and flavour of his personality to be felt. And he has always encouraged the weak and snubbed the mighty.

Augustus John is as certain as any man living of a "niche in the hall of fame." But it is extremely hard to think of anyone, alive or dead, who would loathe spending eternity in the posture which this phrase brings to mind.

There are, for example, the foot tappings of those who, when a melody is played or sung in the theatre, keep time to the music with a steady tap-tap-tap of their toes. Abatement of this small noise would be welcomed by devotees of stage and screen everywhere. Whispers at the theatre and during concerts ought also to be abated (or, better, outlawed), but those who have studied this problem agree that it is unsolvable. As long as theatre audiences continue to include persons who have seen at least once the performance in progress on the stage, or who know someone else who has seen it, or who have read the book on which the action is based, or who do not like what is being unfolded before them, as long as man and women possess the gift of speech there will be whispering in the theatre.

Montreal's Crazy By-law

(Financial Post)

A Montrealer venturing beyond the city limits is going to have to watch his pennies. Every bit of merchandise purchased outside is subject to the municipal sales tax. If he forgets to mention a shirt bought in Toronto or a hairbrush acquired in Halifax, he is liable to a fine of $40 or three months in jail. Now that law surely sets a new high in this suicidal attempt of certain municipalities to shut themselves off from the rest of the country. For a city that was founded on outside trade and is still vitally dependent on national and international business, this new decree represents the height of foolishness and shortsightedness. The law will be unenforceable, of course, but it will antagonize every other municipality in Canada and invite retaliation. In the end, Montreal, being the largest city in the country, will be the one most seriously hurt.

A BRITISH OPINION

UK Tories Fret Over Trade With Canada

LONDON, May 2. (Reuters). — Conservatives are worried about Britain's commercial relations with Canada, Oliver Lyttelton told Parliament Monday.

Opening a debate on Anglo-American trade in the House of Commons, Lyttelton listed four main causes for what he described as deterioration in these relations:

Four Causes

1. Abrupt cancellation of food contracts a year or two after the war.

2. The bad history of the newsprint contracts.

3. The propaganda, "no doubt much of it unintentional," carried on by ministers against British trade.

4. The increased cuts in Canadian exports to Britain caused by devaluation.

"The Canadians are prepared to forgive and have forgiven much. But it is necessary to look wide-eyed at some of our misfakes in our commereial and trading relations," he said.

Wrong Impression

Lyttelton said that in 1945 British ministers gave the impression that ths sky was the limit for food imports from Canada.

"But as always happens in a democratically-planned economy, these statements were made without a proper realization of what the difficulties might be," he declared.

An impression had gained ground in Canada, with some justification, that British estimates and assurances were unreliable.

Newsprint Contracts

On the "vexed" matter of the paper contracts, Lyttelton said he was certain it was not bad faith but false assessments which made the government "tear up solemn undertakings."

First thing necessary was for Britain to try to restore her good name in Canada for reliability, he said.

He was convinced Britain's adverse trade balance with Canada of $400,000,000 could be reduced to manageable shape over the years. But Britain would want help from Canadians in doing this.

Fine Queen's Nephew For Drunk Driving

PERTH, Scotland, May 2 (AP) —The Earl of Strathmore, 32-year-old nephew of Queen Elizabeth, Monday was fined £10 ($31) on a drunken driving charge. His driver's licence was suspended for one year. The Earl, who had pleaded innocent, was arrested last December after a collision between his jeep and another car.

Oil Tankers Form Half Merchant Ship-Building

By DON GILBERT

LONDON, May 3 — (CP) — British shipyards are feeling the magic touch of oil. More than half the merchant ships under construction are oil tankers.

World-wide demand for the black gold is indirectly filling the pay envelopes of thousands of British shipyard workers. It is helping ward off the feared recession in the shipbuilding industry.

On a recent visit to the Tyneside, Princess Margaret launched the first of 10 giants of 28,000 tons, the largest tankers ever built in European shipyards.

50,000 Tonners

Experts see the day not far off when oil tankers of up to 50,000 tons will be hauling petroleum from pipe-line termini to refineries in industrially developed areas.

Keeping pace with tanker construction, big new refinery developments are going forward in Britian. At a cost of £125,000,000 ($387,500,000) refining capacity is being expanded eightfold from 2,500,000 to 19,500,000 tons a year.

Each of the new 28,000-ton tankers will make eight round trips a year to the Persian Gulf and bring back annually some 200,000 tons of oil apiece.

Six of the monster tankers, which cost about £1,250,000 each to build, are for the British Tanker Company, shipping organization of the Anglo-Iranian Oil Company. Four for the Anglo-Saxon Petroleum Company of the Shell group.

The contracts are being divided among the United Kingdom's four main shipbuilding areas, Tyne, Clyde, Mersey and Belfast.

"But for the wonderful oil industry the state of employment in British shipyards today would present a very different picture," said J. W. Elliott of the Wallsend shipyard where Princess Margaret christened the Velutina.

He recalled the vessel was the 31st built by his firm for Anglo-Saxon, which since 1945 had placed contracts with that yard alone totalling £4,000,000.

Utilities Agrees To Instal Flood Lights

"We operate for the city in these things, and it is something that's mighty hard to refuse," said G. S. Matthews, chairman of the Utilities Commission, prior to their decision Monday afternoon to take on the job of erecting flood lights at Riverside Park.

"They want us to do the job," Mr. Matthews said, referring to an interview of last week with Mayor Swanston on behalf of the council, and representatives of the Recreation Commission and Peterborough Baseball Club.

Require Derrick

"Our difficulty is that we haven't a derrick tall enough to hook on to those 90-foot poles at the 60-foot level," Mr. Matthews remarked.

"There may be one down with Hardy Construction Company at the sewage disposal plant, or we will have to rent one."

Mr. Matthews said Harry Beatty of the Commission staff was already look around for a derrick.

"We'll have control of the job, and send the invoice monthly to the council."

Collect Monthly

Substance of the motion was that the Commission buy the equipment, set up the poles, and collect monthly.

"It will take some time for the concrete bases to settle," Mr. Matthews said. "We'll tell them that we'll do the job as fast as we can, but we can't make any promises."

Recreation Commission is thinking of the high-powered illumination by July 1. A possible date mentioned yesterday was even as late as August 1. But, there is no exact promise, one way or the other.

Steals Seal Skins

TORONTO, May 2 (CP) — A box containing 284 Hudson seal skins valued at $1,200 was stolen Monday from the offices of a Spadina Avenue wholesaler. Police believe the thief lifted the furs from an empty office and descended in an elevator from the seventh floor of the building without being noticed.

Accidental Drowning

BUFFALO, May 2 (AP)—District Attorney Gordon R. Steele Monday said the drowning of a Great Lakes seaman, who plunged from a steamer in Buffalo harbor, apparently was accidental. The seaman, Loyal St. Onge, 34, of Toledo, Ohio, fell into a lake-front slip early Sunday.

NEAR THE TOP — This Canadian Pacific Railway line across Bradley Coulee near Emerson, Man., has faced the threat of being cut by floods. The swollen Red River was within six inches of the rail. Normally water is 20 feet below the top of the rails. Railway officials think the track, running across a long fill and reinforced with 60 cars of gravel, will not wash out as the flood crest roars toward Winnipeg. Water at Emerson today has dropped ½ inch.

7 Candidates Named For Two By-Elections

TORONTO, May 2 — (CP) — Seven candidates—two of them women—were nominated Monday to contest federal by-elections scheduled for May 15 in Toronto Broadview and Hamilton West.

The candidates:

Toronto Broadview — George Ilces, Progressive Conservative; Ruth Radford, Liberal; Prof. George Grube, CCF; Charles Weir, Labor-Progressive.

Hamilton West: Harold Lazier, Liberal; Ellen Louks Fairclough, Progressive Conservative; Alfred Collingdon, CCF.

Miss Radford and Mrs. Fairclough are attempting to win seats in what has been exclusive male stronghold since the general election last June. The only woman member of the last parliament, Mrs. Gladys Strum, was a defeated CCF candidate in the Saskatchewan constituency of Qu'Appelle.

Greek Words Too Confusing

CARDIFF, Wales, May 2 (CP) —The Greeks had a word for it. But why not use an English word? asked Canon Tissington Tatlow.

The Council of British Church-academic qualifications fill half a column of "Who's Who," asked: "How many people know what at (Ecumenical) means? Everywhere I go I find it a most unassociation of the Ecumenical movement. Canon Tatlow, whose fortunate word. Always someone asks for an explanation. Why use a Greek word?

But it seemed all right to Edinburgh's Dr. John Baillie, a former theology professor at the University of Toronto.

"What is the alternative?" he asked. "At four years of age I knew what Presbyterian meant. At six I knew what Episcopalian meant. By 10 I was fully instructed in Supralapsarianism!"

Canon Tatlow was outvoted.

Ecumenical: universal, related to the whole Christian world.

Supralapsarianism: a high Calvinist doctrine on redemption.

Wildcats are risky

To an oil man a "wildcat" is a well drilled in an area where oil has never been found. Drilling a wildcat is a risky undertaking and a costly one. Some wells have cost more than a million dollars—and have not been successful.

For that reason oil men make as certain as they can, before drilling, that there is a good chance of finding oil. They use the most modern instruments and skills to locate each drilling site; but still the odds are 20 to one against them. Only about one wildcat in 20 becomes a producer.

Over the past 30 years oil men have worked continuously against these odds. In western Canada Imperial alone drilled 134 wells—all dry—before the Leduc field was discovered in 1947.

But the end result has been new oil for Canada and benefits for Canadians. There are thousands of new jobs. Millions of U.S. dollars are being saved as the need for imported oil lessens. And, as another natural resource moves toward full development, the Canadian standard of living climbs higher.

These are real benefits to Canadians and they will increase as more oil is found. But to find more oil and to spread the advantages it brings, oil men must continue to work against long odds.

Sometimes a job that must be done can't be done without great risks.

Bringing you oil is a big job . . . and a costly one.

About Canada's Oil—Canada's proven oil reserves now amount to about one billion barrels, as compared with only 72 million barrels in 1946.

It is estimated the oil industry will spend $150 millions for exploration and development in western Canada this year.

Last year Imperial drilled or shared in the drilling of 70 wildcat wells.

Wells drilled by Imperial to find and produce oil in Canada during 1949 totalled 231 miles in depth.

Windup Dinner Enjoyed By YM Bowlers

George Coleman's Artists were presented with the Canada Packers Trophy, emblematic of the championship of the YMCA Men's League at a banquet held last night in the YMCA dining room.

President Bill Saunders extended a warm welcome to the bowlers and guests and said that the league this year had been the most successful since its inauguration, both financially and from a bowling standpoint. Thirty of the bowlers bettered the 200 mark in the averages.

Secretary Percy Johnson, in his report, stated that Ray Bennett's average of 237 was the best since he had been keeping the records for the last 10 years. Harry Graham presented the treasurer's report.

Mr. G. H. Roper, general secretary of the YMCA, spoke to the gathering. He congratulated the bowlers on their fine showing and the officers of the league for the manner in which they handled the operation. Mr. Roper said this would be his last year with the YMCA and recalled that he captained a team in this loop 20 years ago, and some of the men on that team were still bowling.

In presenting the Canada Packers Cup, Fred Scates mentioned the excellent bowling of the winners, the six regular men on the team all averaging better than 200. This was the second year in a row that the Arists have taken the championship. The winning squad was made up of Ross Hopkins, Bob Dyer, Herb Frost, Nelson Routley, Vic Coleman, Reg Dyer and George Coleman Jr. George Coleman Sr. was sponsor.

Secretary Percy Johnson handed out the individual prizes to Ray Bennett, high average, 237.4; George Coleman, high three, 930; Mike Dorris, high single 428. Dorris single is the highest ever rolled in this league.

Draw prizes were won by Harry Graham, Bill Saunders, Aaron Black, Ab Guerin, V. R. Henry, Herb Schacter, Joe Weir, Al Worsencroft, Harold Dormer, Eddie Dixon, Jack Dormer and Reg. Kingdon.

Last year's officers were returned by acclamation: President, Bill Saunders; secretary, Percy Johnson; treasurer, Harry Graham; executive, team captains.

ERNIE ROCHE can just be barely seen in the right background with arms in air after scoring Canadiens first goal in the second frame against Regina Pats. Regina players in the picture are Morely McNeil (2) behind the nets. Goaler Bob Tyler down in front of the nets and Brian McDonald (6) and defenceman Jim McGowan (5). Canadiens won the game 5-2 to lead the Memorial Cup final 2 games to 0.

Take 'Y' Doubles

Charley Orr and Fred Dearborn won the doubles tournament held at the YMCA Alleys last by the YMCA Men's League following their annual banquet. The alleys were kindly donated by the Y for this yearly event. Only two games are bowled and the winners turned in a 959 mark.

Second prize went to Jack Dormer and Gerry MacDonald with 906. Third, Reg Kingdon and Fred Willison, 904; fourth, Roy Suddards and Ab Guerin, 897; fifth, Herb Frost and Reg Dyer, 870; sixth, Bill Stanbury and Ray Bennett, 840.

SPORTS SHOW WINDOW

By CEC. PERDUE, Sports Editor

After an absence of two weeks, the pro wrestlers return this week to the Brock Arena, going Thursday night in a three-bout card. Fred Atkins, hard-driving Australian heavyweight champion, tops the program against rough Warren Bockwinkle. Latter is really a tough big matman, but they don't come too big or brash for Atkins. He can play it clean or he can mix it like nobody's business, just whatever way his opponent asks for it. Popular Johnny Barend faces Hi Lee, a towering and mean hombre, in the semi-final. The prelim has Roy McClarity in against Al (Krusher) Korman, he of the bear-hug and the bag of illegal tricks. Should be a right interesting card for the city and district grapple fans.

Concerning that 15 per cent amusement or Ontario hospital tax by the provincial government, the OBA has sent out an explanation. However, it doesn't concern only baseball but all sports, junior, intermediate and senior, which aren't judged purely amateur. It might well affect hockey, lacrosse, baseball, softball, rugby, basketball and perhaps a few more in Peterborough. Any sport where admission charges are 16 cents or over—and that certainly affects most of them, eh? The pros, of course, have been paying this tax all along, but now many of the so-called amateur clubs may feel the bite and shortly.

* * * * * *

Needs An Affidavit

An affidavit for such tax exemption is required for review of the Controller of Revenue, with this information: (a) Audited financial statements for the years 1947, 1948 and 1949, showing in detail income and expenditures for these years; (b) full details of salaries, wages, travelling expenses, etc., for these years; (c) what merchandise vouchers, awards or other valuable considerations were given to players during those years. And the government regards an amateur as "a person who has not at any time entered or competed in any athletic contest or exhibition for a staked bet, private or public moneys or gate receipts, or received any consideration for his services as an athlete except reasonable travelling and living expenses actually incurred while going to, remaining at and returning from a place of contest or exhibition."

* * * * * *

To put teeth in the thing, the assistant director of the hospitals tax branch of the Office of Controller of Revenue in the parliament buildings writes: "Accordingly, unless an exemption from tax is secured from this office before each team in the senior, intermediate and junior groups of your association commences their 1950 season, it will be necessary that each individual club or park management responsible for the collection of admission charges have a licence issued by this office to sell admission to place of amusement in Ontario, and collect the necessary tax as pointed out in the second paragraph of this letter."

* * * * * *

Hope They Trim It

Many of the so-called amateur leagues are busy now looking for loopholes, leagues like the Inter-County, for instance, and may find a way of getting around this tax. But they may not, and it might be that most will eventually tack the tax onto the general admission price to games. Hitting the fan again. We call this amusement or hospital tax against amateur clubs (even when they're not 100 per cent amateur) a nuisance tax, and an unfair one. It hits at one class of people only, and it threatens to curtail sports to a considerable extent. Which contradicts the Ontario governmental policy of encouraging athletics for the benefit of citizens.

Marlies Take First Edge Stamps 6-5 In Last Seconds

CALGARY, May 2— (CP). — A couple of classy juniors are rated the pick of the Eastern senior champion Toronto Marlboros, but it was two of the older boys who clicked for the payoff markers in the Duke's victory Monday night in the Allan Cup finals first game.

Twenty-nine-year-old Scotty Mair banged in the winning counter for the Duke's 6-5 victory over Calgary Stampeders, Western Canada champions. The game-winning effort gave the 6,000 fans a climatic thrill, coming with only 14 seconds of the third period left.

A last-minute penalty to defenceman Hugh Coflin for tripping starry Danny Lewicki started the win-producing play. Mair flicked in from eight feet out a rebound from the shot of linemate Bill (Red) Johnson.

Johnson seven minutes earlier tied the contest at 5-5 after the Stampeders took the lead for the first time in the game early in the third period.

Upholds Rating

The Toronto victory in the first game of the best-of-seven series for the Canadian senior amateur title upheld the favored rating given the Marlies, the first Toronto aggregation to make the Allan Cup final in 18 years.

Club manager Harold Ballard will handle the Dukes for the second game of the series here Wednesday night.

Penalties proved costly also to the Toronto Club. Two Stampeder goals came when Marlboros were playing two men short and a third while the Eastern team had one man in the penalty box. In all Montreal referees Red Storey and Ernie Mundey handed out 18 penalties —10 to Marlies, including a 10-minute misconduct to Lewicki.

The 18-year-old Fort William star was right in there in the goal-scoring department in the early going, counting Dukes' third and four goals.

His brilliant solo rushes and the work of linemate George Armstrong, 19-year-old right winger also brought up from the junior Marlboros for the Allan Cup drive, indicated plenty of trouble for Stamps in the future contests.

Matches Performance

Mair also scored two goals, to match Lewicki's performance, with one each going to Johnson and Don Rope.

Hard-working Stan Devico led the Calgary attack with a brace of goals, while Roy Heximer, Mitch Pechet, and Bunny Dame got a marker apiece.

It was a tough game for the older Stampeders, who were playing an uphill battle for most of the route. The smooth-passing Marlies moved into 2-0, 3-1 and 4-2 leads at various stages, but Stamps came back for a 4-4 even break at the end of the second period. They started the third period with their only lead of the game, but did not have enough in reserve to stem the powerful closing attack of the Eastern titlists.

Curlers Choose Directors For Next Year

Six of last year's board of directors of the Peterborough Curling Rink Company were re-elected to the board last night at the annual meeting in the clubrooms, with 100 shareholders present. They are H. Bradburn, T. Doughty, W. B. Gordon, N. Hamley, S. Lowe and F. Stenson. Dr. C. McKee and J. Sinclair were returned after a year's absence, and Dr. A. McCartney and O. Price were new members named. Retiring were T. McArthur, G. Braund, B. Ashmore, and C. Giroux. The directors will meet shortly to elect officers and choose chairmen.

At the start of the session, President Stan Lowe paid tribute to all who had helped make the past season the best yet. He briefly reviewed highlights of the season. Ira Moore presented the secretary's report and the financial statement. There were 13 nominations for the board and, while ballots were being checked, many suggestions were made in a general business discussion.

Remember When—

Fred Toney, Cincinnati, and Jim Vaughan, Chicago, pitched hitless baseball for nine innings 33 years ago today in a scheduled National League game. Toney did not allow a hit in the 10th but his teammates nicked Vaughan for two to win the game 1-0. It was the third and last time this feat was accomplished.

WRESTLING RETURNS to the Brock Thursday night after a two weeks' layoff with a standout card. The main bout will feature Fred Atkins pitted against Warren Bockwinkle. These two grapplers need no introduction to the fans and a fiery bout can be expected. In the semi-final Johnny Barend takes on Hi Lee, shown above, and the opener brings together Roy McClarity and Al Korman.

Cards Trip Hated Rivals Trounce Brooklyn 3-2

By JOE REICHLER
Associated Press Sports Writer

St. Louis Cardinals are up to their old tricks again. Next to beating the Dodgers, the Redbirds get the greatest delight out of making the experts look foolish.

Remember those pre-season reports on the Cards? Too old. No reserves. A one-man ball club

With a line-up shot full of holes, the scrappy St. Louis gang has managed to win five of its last six games. They capped it off Monday night with a thrilling 3-2 victory over their hated rivals, Brooklyn Dodgers.

Things Changed

Until the last half of the ninth inning, Brooklyn was in front 2-0. Starter Joe Hatten had held the Redbirds to three hits up to that point.

Hatten began the last inning by walking Chuck Diering. Enos Slaughter singled Diering to second. Marty Marion, making his first appearance of the season, batted for Steve Bilko and fanned.

Eddie Kazak, another pinch-hitter, lined out. One more out to go and the Dodger lefthander would own two straight shutouts. But it never came.

Red Schoendienst singled, scoring Diering. That was all for Hatten. Another pinch-hitter, Bill Howerton, faced Willard Ramsdell. Howerton singled, scoring Slaughter with the tying run as Schoendienst raced to third.

A wild pitch by Ramsdell allowed Schoendienst to cross the plate with the winning run. Hatten was charged with the loss.

Winning Pitcher

Clyde Boyer, who has taken over the ailing Ted Wilks' relief chores, was the winning pitcher. He relieved starter Max Lanier in the ninth and kept the Dodgers away from the plate in the one inning he worked.

The victory moved the Cards into a virtual tie for second place with Pittsburgh, 1½ games behind the front-running Dodgers.

It was the only game played in the major leagues.

Buffalo Bows 9-6 To Orioles In 7th Setback

By The Associated Press.

Francis Michael Skaff inherited a pennant winner when he took over as manager of Buffalo Bisons this season. So, what happens? His "champions" are last today in the International League, five full games off the pace.

And what's more, Buffalo's immediate future is none too bright. Skaff's pitching staff, the best in the league last year, is coming apart at the seams. He's had to use 24 hurlers in the Bisons' first nine games, with only Al Burch being able to go the full distance.

Monday night was no exception. Skaff used three pitchers against Baltimore, but his club lost 9-6. It was Buffalo's seventh setback in nine starts.

Final Game

The only consolation was that it was Buffalo's final game of a disappointing road trip. The Bisons now return to Offerman Stadium, and its friendly 297-foot left field foul line.

Ed Pellagrini, Russ Kerns and Clyde Kluttz hit home runs for Baltimore as the Orioles staged an 11-hit attack. Karl Drews Baltimore starter, received credit for his first victory of the season.

A crowd of 4,343 saw Jack Hussey and pinch-hitter Walt Novick homer for Buffalo. Phil Marchildon of Penetanguishene, Ont., making his second start since coming from Philadelphia A's, was belted out in the sixth inning and charged with the loss.

Say Flying Dutchmen May Leave League

KITCHENER, May 2 (CP) — Kitchener - Waterloo Flying Dutchmen will likely drop out of the Ontario Hockey Association Senior A League unless the loop is enlarged, club president Walter Weber said Monday.

"The report brought back by our representation from the OHA annual meeting was anything but encouraging," he added. "It looks like the OHA doesn't care whether they have a senior group or not."

Club officials said the annual meeting at Toronto brought out some vague talk of trying to induce Oshawa, Niagara Falls and possibly Buffalo, N. Y., to enlarge the present four-team loop, but "nothing was done about it."

Mr. Weber said a 30-day limit would be set by his club for action by the OHA.

Douthuille KO's Steve Belliose

MONTREAL, May 2 (CP) — Flashy Laurent Dauthuille of France earned the right to take a crack at Jake Lamotta's middleweight crown Monday night as he swept aside New York's Steve Belloise with a seventh-round technical knockout in a scheduled 10-round main bout.

Once the pride of New York's fistic lanes, Belloise gave a disappointing show before 11,593 fans, who contributed a gross gate of $44,353.

Referee Tommy Sullivan halted the one-sided affair just after the seventh round started when Belloise, a 31-year-old ring veteran, was incapable of offering any more resistance to his 26-year-old ringwise opponent.

Throughout the fight, the crowd voiced its disapproval and shouted for the American-Italian to "fight." But Steve appeared to "black out" after the Frenchman tagged him with a walloping right hand midway through the first round that sent the New Yorker down for the automatic eight-count.

Gelineau Wins Calder Trophy

MONTREAL, May 2 (CP) — Jack Gelineau, goalkeeper for Boston Bruins, is the 1949-50 winner of the Calder Trophy as outstanding rookie of the year, the National Hockey League announced Monday night.

He is the third netminder to win the award. The others were Frankie Brimsek, whom Gelineau succeeded in the Boston nets and now is with Chicago Black Hawks and Frank McCool, formerly with Toronto Maple Leafs. Brimsek won the trophy in the 1938-39 season and McCool in 1944-45. Goalie Mike Karakas of Chicago was the outstanding rookie in 1935-36, before the Calder Trophy was put up for competition.

Gelineau, who went to the NHL from a starring net role with the McGill University hockey team, receives $1,000 from the league in addition to the trophy.

The selection was made by 18 sports writers and broadcasters, three from each of the six NHL cities. On a 3-2-1 point basis for first, second and third choices, the 25-year-old netminder received 39 points.

Here and There In Sport

Reports from Ontario lakes and streams indicate that, despite bad weather, a good number of trout were caught during the weekend. The season opened Saturday, two days earlier than in previous years.

One of the largest reported was an eight-pound, nine-ounce rainbow beauty taken by Frank Morris of Toronto Argonaut Football fame. Team-mates Len Cassidy, Steve Levantis and Fred Lindsay saw the lineman catch the rainbow trout in Sturgeon River.

The record is held by Dr. Ray Lymen Wilbur who got a 20-pound rainbow trout in Stuart Lake, B. C., July 5, 1937.

"Fred Lindsay was so excited", said Morris, "he jumped into the water and grabbed the struggling fish with his hands because we didn't have a landing net."

Another Toronto fisherman, Don Allison, caught a five-pound rainbow near Alliston.

At Rouyn, Quebec, Bagotville Allies took a one-game lead in the Eastern Canada Intermediate Hockey finals Monday night, blasting Rouyn Flashes 6-3 in the opening game of the best-of-five series.

Bagotville displayed a smartly drilled team that outclassed the hard-fighting Rouyn club. The flashes kept up to the speedy visitors for the first period but then dropped out of the running as Bagotville turned on the pressure and ran away with the verdict.

Archibald, R. Leger, Gilbert Baudoin, Hyryluk and Federonick were the Bagotville marksmen while Lajoie, Guy Baril and Bendo clicked for the losers.

Ottawa has pitched its hat into the ring in the contest to see who gets the 1954 British Empire games.

Ernest Lee, chairman of the National Council on Physical Fitness, said Monday a move had been made to bring the meet to Ottawa, and that Jacques Greber, town planning consultant for the capital, is in favor of the scheme. A proposed site would be at Brewer Park, on the banks of the Rideau River at the south edge of the city.

E. P. Taylor's colt Bon Vivant, a joint favorite for the King's Plate until he went wrong in training in Kentucky recently, will arrive in Toronto today from New York and a definite decision is expected Wednesday on whether he will run in the classic.

The recently-appointed Ontario Racing Commission ruled Monday at Toronto that stable accommodation will be refused horses five years old or over that have not raced at least eight times in the last two years and finished at least first, second or third.

Joseph Primeau, 69, father of the coach of the Toronto Marlboros senior hockey team, died in hospital Monday from injuries suffered a few hours earlier when struck by an automobile in East Toronto.

On word of the death of his father, Joe Primeau, Jr., left Calgary by plane for Toronto as his Marlboros tackled Calgary Stampeders in the first game of the best-of-seven Allan Cup final for the Canadian Senior Amateur hockey championship.

The Canadian Lawn Bowling Council will send six rinks to South Africa next winter, K. B. McKellar, council chairman, announced Monday at Toronto.

63 New Members Welcomed At Mark Street

Sixty-three new members were taken into membership of Mark Street United Church at a most impressive service held on Sunday evening. There were 27 by profession of faith and the remainder were by transfer from other congregations. Mr. Steve Saywell, of the North Oshawa Church, delivered the address to a capacity congregation. Mr. Saywell is an active worker among the young people of the United Church. The new members were received by the minister, Rev. B S. Morwood.

Following the service a friendship hour was held in the Sunday School with the official board having charge of the program. This program consisted of numbers by the Searles String Trio, a violin solo by Bobby Searles aged nine, and solos by Mrs. Jessie Spencely. Pictures of Florida were shown by Mr. Saywell. The heads of the different organizations welcomed the new members. Mr. Ward Gamble spoke for the session, Mrs. Fred Stephenson for the WA and WMS, Mr. Carlyle Ferguson for the Sunday School, Mr. Max Pomroy for the Board of Stewards, Mr. Ken Kidd for the Young Married Couples, and Mr. Robert Clarke for the Young People's Union. Refreshments were served by the committee.

Flood Damage

should ask for his resignation. This remark brought the prime minister to his feet.

Issue Farcical

Mr. St. Laurent said he would do no such thing. Mr. Green should know the whole pipe-lines issue was "farcical." Mr. Green retorted that Mr. Maybank's actions had illustrated the government's thought that Canada now was a "one-party state."

Mr. Green charged that Mr. Maybank, as private sponsor of the bill, had sought to shut off debate in the House Private Bills Committee last week by moving that no further witnesses be heard.

Mr. Maybank rose and said it did not mean "very much" to him what Mr. Green had to say and that he wanted to make clear to the chamber his "utter indifference" to Mr. Green's charge.

He turned and walked towards the lobby behind the chamber.

That, continued Mr. Green, was "typical" of Mr. Maybank's attitude before the committee.

Can't Take It

"I see he is walking out." Mr. Green went on. "He can't take it."

Mr. Maybank swung around and began to make protest on a point of order. Then, with an obvious change of mind, he said:

"Oh, I really don't want to speak. I'd better let him talk."

Committee chairman Rene Beaudoin rose and asked Mr. Green to preserve order in the chamber. He knew the Vancouver member did not want to use words which were unparliamentary.

George Drew, Progressive Conservative leader, asked what words could conceivably be considered unparliamentary.

Mr. Beaudoin said the words "high-handed" and "arbitrary."

In the flood debate many of the members who spoke agreed that the Manitoba flood situation now constituted a national emergency and the government should act.

Coldwell Backs Aid

M. J. Coldwell, CCF leader, said the people had a right to expect national assistance to rehabilitate themselves and his party would support the government in every step. Solon Low, Social Credit chieftain, took the same line and said he was confident the government was taking a "level-headed view" and would take the same "decent action" in Manitoba that had been taken in British Columbia in 1948 when a grant of $5,000,000 and other assistance had been extended.

John Diefenbaker (PC-Lake Centre) said the floods were just a repetition of conditions that had been recurring for more than 100 years. The International Joint Commission on Flood Control should have taken action before this. He was critical of the government for giving little more than an expression of commendation to the relief agencies and the Red Cross.

Most speakers followed Mr. Garson. He recalled that Prime Minister St. Laurent had already given assurance that all parts of the country would be treated alike. If any part of the country suffered as had the Fraser Valley area of British Columbia two years ago then it could expect the same Federal assistance.

Wait and See

At present Mr. Garson said no one had any idea what the Manitoba flood damage would be. Therefore no "honest" public man could give an undertaking at this time except in general terms, as had been done.

"The disaster is only partly complete now," the Minister continued. "I think we could very well let the matter rest in the hands of the government of Manitoba with the knowledge that when the time comes that they can properly divert their attention from the emergent matters at hand to discuss these other important questions, we will be more than happy to deal with them."

Ask Higher Rates

TORONTO, May 2 (CP)—The Ontario Hydro Commission has received applications from 121 municipalities for permission to increase rates, R. H. Saunders, Commission chairman, said Monday. Mr. Saunders said most already have begun billing their customers at higher rates—with increases running from three to 30 per cent.

WATER CURTAIN—Europe has its Iron Curtain. Just now there's a watery counterpart between Canada and the United States in southern Manitoba. This is the International Boundary at flooded Emerson, Man. Motor traffic is impossible but trains are getting through.

Mayor Withdraws Suspension Of Chief

MAGOG, Que., May 2 (CP) — The Magog Town Council, at a private meeting, Monday prevailed on Mayor Ernest Simard to withdraw his suspension of police captain Gedeon Rouleau.

The police officer was suspended Saturday a few hours after he left a parking ticket on the mayor's automobile which was blocking a lane on Main Street.

The mayor ordered the suspension, giving no specific reason for his action.

However, Mayor Simard said he had withdrawn the suspension order on the condition that councillors advise their departments to accord him the respect due a man in his position.

Investigates Reports

OTTAWA, May 2 (CP)—Justice Minister Garson said in the Commons Monday night he would investigate reports that blood tests for motorists arrested for drunken driving would be made compulsory but "offhand" he did not think they were correct. The minister was answering a question by John Diefenbaker (PC-Lake Centre.)

Two CCL Unions Negotiating With Employers

By DAVE WHITE

Two Peterborough CCL unions are at present negotiating with their respective companies for new contracts and a third has applied for certification.

Local 822 Textile Workers' Union (CIO-CCL) have been negotiating with the Brinton-Peterborough Carpet Co. for about a month and a half. More than 250 workers would be affected by the terms of the new contract.

About 50 employees of Fannings' Launderers and Dry Cleaners, recently certified as a TWUA union, meet with management again this Thursday to try to arrange terms for their first contract.

Initial talks were held last Thursday.

Meanwhile the efforts of A. E. Johnston, CCL representative, to organize the beverage room workers is proceeding rapidly.

Eligible employees of four hotels — Queen's, Grand, Empress and Windsor — have already applied to the OLRB for certification as members of the Wholesale, Retail and Department Store Workers, also CIO-CCL.

The four other hotels will likely soon follow suit, Mr. Johnston said. Altogether there are nearly 100 beverage room employees.

Shut Off Ticker

WASHINGTON, May 2 (AP)—The United States Labor Department Monday shut of its United Press news ticker, contending that continued use of it during the strike against the news service would be, in effect, "crossing a picket line." Teletype operators and maintenance men have called the strike in UP offices across the United States to support wage demands.

You can help to build this business even bigger—(1) by finding out all there is to know about it; (2) by kindling your friends' interest in it; (3) by impressing its importance on your elected parliamentary representatives; (4) by doing everything possible to make our visitors welcome. NEGOTIATIONS AT PETERBORO LOCK CO., LTD.

U.E. Local 527, in hand bills distributed Saturday, April 29th, and in the Peterborough Examiner the same date, have made statements which are far from accurate. Here are the facts which can be verified by our auditors or by reading the Majority Report of the Conciliation Board.

After eight months' negotiations during which time conciliation procedure was completed, the basic differences between the Company and the Union are now reduced to the following points:

1. Reduced hours of work with maintenance of take home pay.
2. Seniority.
3. Time limit on temporary piece work prices.
4. Retroactivity.

The Company is willing to abide by the Conciliation Report on all these matters

In the Majority Report of the Conciliation Board, they specifically stated there should be no increase in rates of pay and that the Company should have a guarantee of increased productivity. On the other items mentioned above, there were basically no changes recommended by the Board.

PROFIT POSITION

Contrary to statements issued by the Union, the Company's profits in 1949 were less than half those of 1948 and were disappointingly small. This was brought about by the high cost of labour. Employees earnings during the year were over 50% of our sales.

It should be noted that our rates are from 4c to 30c per hour higher than all the other Builders Hardware manufacturers in Canada and considerably above the community level in Peterborough.

Due to the above, we are at present unable to meet many prices of our competitors and during the past year have had to reduce some prices, which has affected the profit position. Other reductions are in the immediate offing.

Average Earnings for the last quarter

1. All employees (including boys & girls) $1.09½ per hr.
2. Male Productive Workers 1.21 per hr.
3. Female Productive Workers .93 per hr.

The U.E. have signed contracts with other Lock manufacturers in Canada at rates lower than ours and and yet in the face of the fact that sales, profits and prices are declining, they are endeavouring to get greater rates from this Company.

A BIT OF HISTORY

1. Over ten years ago the Company instituted one week's holidays with pay to all employees with five years' service and this has now been increased to three weeks with twenty years' service.

2. A Group Insurance Plan has been in effect for eleven years, covering Life and Sickness Insurance, with the Company paying 50% of the cost.

3. Pensions—the Company for the last twelve years has been paying pensions to employees. The cost of pensions and Group Insurance amounts to practically 11% of our capital stock—a ratio which we feel is not equalled by any other firm in Canada.

It is the responsibility of both parties to keep the Company in a strong financial position and a strike at this time would jeopardize the future of all employees.

The Company has done everything within reason to avoid a strike and feels absolutely no responsibility if the employees take any ill-advised action.

City 30-Year Master Plan Adopted By Council Vote Next Phase: Zoning Bylaw

Peterborough's master plan and the 30-year program of directed development were adopted by the city council Monday night in a bylaw introduced by Ald. H. F. Waddell. The plan was prepared by Dr. E. G. Faludi and his associates of Town Planning Consultants Limited, who were commissioned in June, 1945. This action of the council presumably will stimulate completion of preliminaries required for formally establishing the zoning bylaw. City planning board has been hampered by the statutory provision for consulting the property owners. By-law, the zoning proposals must be fully publicized prior to a hearing of the Ontario Municipal Board.

"The first thing we should do," said Mr. James Dutton, chairman of city planning committee, today, "is to revise the bylaw, and make sure that amendments and corrections which have been proposed from time to time have been made in the draft. Then we shall have to decide on the procedure of publicizing the bylaw as required by the provincial statute. It may be that meetings will be held to inform the citizens by discussing with them the clauses of the by-law."

The Faludi report "Thirty Year Program for the Development of Peterborough" was presented to the City Planning Committee in May 1947.

Citizen Interest

Presenting his report at that time, Dr. Faludi said in a covering letter to Mr. Dutton:

"The program represents the result of comprehensive studies over a period of one and a half years made by the City Planning Committee, and the Planning Consultants and their staff, working with the full co-operation of the citizens of Peterborough.

"At public meetings and at the Exhibition displaying the plans for the development of Peterborough, the citizens clearly showed their interest in this work and their desire to support this program. About 8,500 people, more than 25 per cent of the total population, visited the Exhibition—no other Canadian city has shown such interest in civic affairs as Peterborough. Such public opinion and interest indicates clearly that once the Thirty Year Program has been adopted by the City Council, the implementation will not be difficult.

"It should be remembered that the adoption of the plan will not, of itself, suffice to effect the recommendations. To do this will require the constant attention and effort of the Planning Board."

The Plan has now been adopted, through the Waddell motion Monday night. The implementing of it has yet to come, and the first phase will be the passing of a zoning bylaw, as Mr. Dutton suggests.

Frost Arrives Wednesday At St. Joseph's

The opening of the new wing of St. Joseph's Hospital by the Hon. Leslie M. Frost, Premier of Ontario, Wednesday, at 3 p.m., formally marks the completion of another phase of the expansion of that institution and of provision for ample and modern facilities by the community of Peterborough for the care of the sick of the city and district.

Mr. John R. Corkery, K.C., chairman of the board, will preside at the opening ceremony, and those assisting with Premier Frost will be Mayor M. J. Swanston, Hon. H. R. Scott, Gordon K. Fraser, M.P., and Dr. Herbert N. Young. The new section of the hospital will be blessed by Bishop Berry.

The graduation of student nurses will follow at 4 p.m. in the auditorium of the nurses' residence.

Rat Catch Poor One-Third Usual

The catch of muskrats in the Peterborough district was about one-third of the usual quantity, Mr. Cyril Lech told the Examiner today. Final prices ranged from $2.25 to $2.40 in a market that was steady to firm.

"This season has been a disappointment to our local trappers," Mr. Lech said. "Time for them to sell their pelts ended Monday night. The catch in this district is in about the same proportion of the normal annual marketing reported from the Maritimes to western Ontario. Some of the rats started running during the long mild spell in January. That was before the legal trapping season, and no doubt had an adverse effect on the recent catch."

The poor catch is likely to have an effect on the Hudson seal fur coat market.

Bucket Brigade Manhandles Flash Farm Fire

ROSENEATH, May 2 (ENS) — Backfire of a tractor in a shed on the farm of Ross McCracken, Alnwick township, at 11 a.m. today, started a blaze that destroyed the building and the machine and spread to the big modern barn.

The flash fire prevented the tractor from being moved out of the shed. Prompt response by neighbors and the Alnwick volunteer fire brigade saved the barn from serious damage.

The McCracken farm is in the seventh concession of Alnwick, on the shore of Rice Lake. It is about 3½ miles from here. The fire apparatus is kept in Roseneath.

Water supply was inadequate for the full effect of the brigade's pumper. The firemen and other neighbors resorted to pails and buckets, snuffing out the flame that had spread to the barn which is 35 ft. by 70 ft.

The extent of the damage to the barn was not known here early this afternoon but reports were that the water bucket line had saved the building.

Seek Information About Resorts

Requests for information on the Kawartha Lakes and Trent River tourist areas are being received daily by the Chamber of Commerce office, James Fraser, manager said today. More than 225 requests have been received through the three channels, the federal government tourist bureau, the provincial tourist bureau and direct enquiries to the chamber's office.

Residents of Ohio still top the list with 83 enquiries while 38 requests for information have been received from Pennsylvania and 67 from New York state. Other requests have been received from Michigan 21, Indiana and New Jersey four each. Enquiries have been received from Florida, West Virginia and North Dakota.

In enquiries where specific lakes have been mentioned, information has been asked for Rice Lake 23 times, Pigeon Lake 15, Stony Lake 10 and Buckhorn Lake eight.

Mr. Fraser said that the requests are passed on to the resort owners who answer them.

Don Wood Wins Allen Trophy

Donald Wood, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. Wood, was presented with the Victor Allen Memorial Trophy at the annual Swimming Parents' Night at the YMCA Monday night. The trophy was awarded to Wood for a nearly perfect attendance at the YMCA Swimming Club meets, 59 out of 60, and for ability and interest in the club. Throughout the season Wood earned 238 points.

Ralph Wood, 858 Water St., placed second for the trophy with 207 points while Jack Prest, 548 McCannan St. was third with 193. The boys were also presented with medals, gold to Donald Wood, silver to Ralph Wood and bronze to Jack Prest. Donald Wood will also hold the monthly swimming trophy, which he won three times this season. Holders of the monthly trophy received medals. Besides Donald Wood they were Terry Reid, Alec Baptie, David Cuffe and Frank Furphy.

Larry Greig, 409 Bethune St., the Tadpole club, and William Doherty, 551 McKellar St., the Minnow club, were presented with bronze medals as representatives of their groups for interest in the club, ability and attendance. A special award was made by Chris Graham to Ralph Wood for the best scrap book.

Moderator Says Church To Retain Infant Baptism

MEDICINE HAT, Alta., May 2. —(CP).—Infant baptism will remain the practice of the United Church of Canada, Rt. Rev. Willard Brewing of Toronto, moderator of the United church, said Monday.

Dr. Brewing was asked for comment on the case of Bethany United church minister, Rev. W. N. Crandall, who refuses to baptize infants on the grounds that they have not reached "the age of discretion." His action has reached a contentious stage in the Peterborough presbytery.

Dr. Brewing saaid he would not enter the controversy either as an individual or as moderator.

Utilities Buys New Substation

The Utilities Commission is thinking of setting up on the west side of the city another outdoor substation. The third of this series will likely be placed on High St. hill.

Canadian General Electric Company has quoted $58,548, with three feeder units. The Romaine St. unit cost $30,000.

That seems to indicate that the price of substations is up close to 100 per cent, and delivery is still a year away.

Ross Dobbin, general manager, reported to the Commission Monday: "This station is needed because of increased load in that district which we expect will occur from Civic Hospital and other users. We have the approval of the Hydro-Electric Power Commission."

Terms of payment are 50% on shipment; 30 days after erection 40%; and the balance 60 days after completion.

Mr. Dobbin was instructed to order the apparatus. It will be a duplicate of the Romaine St. job.

ONTARIO DIVISION of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association held its annual meeting at the Kawartha Club today. Two Peterborough men, Ian F. McRae (Right), works manager of the CGE, and W. A. Richardson (Left), president of the Peterborough Canoe Company, were elected to the executive committee, while G. W. Lawrence, Sangamo Co., Leaside, was elected chairman.

Ball Park Lights City Financed

The financing of floodlights for Riverside Park was defined in a bylaw passed by the council Monday night. Utilities Commission in the afternoon had agreed to undertake the work of setting up the lights.

The bylaw introduced by Ald. Herbert N. Young gave authority for the installation of floodlighting equipment at Riverside Park as recommended by the Recreation Commission.

The sum of $15,000 is to be advanced by the city on the "distinct understanding" that the Commission will raise the balance of the money required to cover the cost of the lights.

The Commission is to repay a reasonable amount this year, and an annual $2,500 beginning in 1951 until the council's $15,000 is repaid in full.

ST. MARY'S PAVING

A deputation from St. Mary's St. asking the council Monday night for early action this season on their petition for sidewalks learned that this work was included in a bylaw which had been held up for third reading. After the second reading the bylaw had been sent to the Ontario Municipal Board for approval, and had just been returned. Third reading by Ald. H. Dodds, chairman of the board of works, cleared the way for City Engineer Chalmers to proceed with walks on Park St., Park Hill Road, Wolsley St., St. Mary's St. and Hillcrest St. This work is done under the Local Improvement Act.

Strike Thursday Ultimatum To Lock Company

Unless the Peterborough Lock Co. makes some move toward settling the contract dispute with Local 527, United Electrical Workers, a strike will begin Thursday.

That was the ultimatum handed E. H. Howson, president and managing director, early today by the negotiating committee of the union. Monday night the membership decided on this move to force a settlement.

The union is asking for a 42½-hour week with the same take-home pay, retroactive to October 1; men's minimum rates raised from 93 cents an hour to $1, and women's from 82 cents to 87 cents; a revision in the time schedule and seniority protection.

About 180 production workers are in the bargaining unit.

Support Pledged

Monday night the UE stewards and officers in Peterborough gathered to pledge their support, morally and financially, to the lockworkers. This includes the large CGE union, Local 524, the bargaining unit for about 3,000 production workers, and the two other members of composite Local 527—Raybestos and Ontario Marble.

The special meeting called on the public to ally themselves with the lockworkers and declared: "We pledge full support to the workers at Peterborough Lock until their struggle to protect their jobs and their living standards has been won."

Meanwhile the union is clearing the decks for action. Strike committees have been formed, including: publicity, strike kicthen, finance, food collection, entertainment and sports, picket and welfare.

Last Saturday the union passed leaflets around to city shoppers in the downtown district giving their side of the dispute. Chief Constable John Thompson and Mayor Max Swanston have been informed of the intention to strike.

The Hon. Harold R. Scott, minister of lands and forests, has been approached by a Local 527 committee and told of the 48-hour ultimatum. Union sources indicate he has communicated the matter to Labor Minister Charles Daley who might intervene.

Another meeting has been arranged Wednesday with Gordon K. Fraser, MP, Peterborough West.

Protest Parking On Alfred St.

Residents of the west side of Alfred St. complained to the council Monday night that employees of Canadian General Electric Company park their cars along that side of the street, blocking every entrance.

From shortly after 7 a.m. until 6 p.m., according to the statement, the street is lined with cars for which the company has provided space within the fence line. The deputation said they were deprived of right and facility of "ingress and egress" and could not use their own cars.

The grievance was referred to the legal committee. To this committee went another protest from residents of the vicinity of Aylmer and Rink Streets objecting to the manner of use of a lane by the trucking company at their rear, on Rink St.

JIM HEFFERNAN successfully defended his 1949 Ontario YMCA, boys under 14 years, 50-yard breast stroke championship in London over the week-end. Outdistancing his opponents Heffernan swam the 50 yards in 37.2 seconds. He represented the Peterborough YMCA Swimming Club, under Coach Gord Minty.

New Power Developments Will Give Ontario Great Industrial Expansion

G. W. Lawrence, President, Sangamo Co., Limited, Leaside, was elected chairman for 1950-51 at the annual meeting of the Ontario Division, Canadian Manufacturers' Association, held this afternoon at the Kawartha Golf and Country Club. T. A. Rice, Vice-President, International Harvester Co. of Canada Limited, Hamilton, was elected vice-chairman. More than 200 members from all parts of Ontario were in attendance.

Two Peterborough men and one from Port Hope are included on the executive committee.

They are Ian McRae, works manager of Peterborough CGE plant, and W. A. Richardson, president of the Peterborough Canoe Co. Also on the committee is L. T. Sylvester, Mathews Conveyor Co., Port Hope.

The province's industrial growth, said Drummond Giles, president, Courtaulds (Canada) Limited, Cornwall, retiring chairman, was reflected in the membership of the division, which now stood at 3,086, the highest since the division was organized 31 years ago. Ten years ago the membership was 1,698.

Period of Expansion

He believed that Ontario is on the verge of a period of industrial expansion equal to, if not greater than any experienced in the last half century. He made this remark as he referred to the new power developments in the province which he described as "almost breath-taking in their immensity." As electrical energy was the life blood of our productive process, it was gratifying to know, he said, that an abundant supply was rapidly becoming available.

Speaking of the conversion of frequency of electrical power to 60 cycle, which, he remarked, was proceeding satisfactorily, he emphasized that industrial power users were the only class of consumer required to make a direct contribution toward the cost of this $195,000,000 project. As they stood to benefit perhaps more than any other class of consumer, he felt that this might be considered an equitable arrangement. The direct charge, he pointed out, amounted to $18,000,000.

Settle Claim For $4,250 In Car Crash

A settlement of $4,250 was reached in the suit being brought by William Steele, general merchant of Keene, against Percy Wilson, an Otonabee farmer, before it appeared before the Supreme Court of Ontario which began Monday before the Honorable Mr. Justice Wilson.

The suit was started as a result of a car accident June 28, 1949, on the Hastings road about six miles southeast of Keene. The cars collided on a curve of the road. Steele suffered a broken kneecap which it was alleged left him with a permanent disability. Steele's light truck was completely demolished in the crash.

Alex L. Elliott, KC, represented the plaintiff Steele and the Toronto law firm, Hughes, Aga, Thompson and Amys, represented Wilson in the action. Steele had originally been suing for about $12,000.

Quebec Shale May Boost Steel Industry

MONTREAL, May 2 — (CP) — A development which might have a big effect on Quebec province's economy was made [illegible] last week when Premier Duplessis told of a plan for making steel from Ungava iron ore and graphitic shale.

The premier, a lawyer, rather than a metallurgist, had few details of the plan, but he said it was laid before him by two geologists, Arthur Lindsly, of Ottawa, and L. J. Lichty, of Toronto.

He told reporters the government's own scientists will start research on the process, and he showed them a fountain pen-sized bar of steel made from the iron ore, of which 300,000,000 tons have been proven in Ungava, and the shale which occurs abundantly in Quebec.

Ever since it became known that Northeast Quebec held vast quantities of iron ore, rivalling Minnesota's once-great Mesabi Range, voices have been raised urging establishment of a steel industry in Quebec province. With no basic steel mills at present, Quebec's fabricating industries bring their steel from other provinces or from the United States.

Bishop Backs It

One of the most prominent advocators of a Quebec steel industry has been Msgr. N. A. Labrie, Roman Catholic Bishop of the Gulf of St. Lawrence, in whose diocese the iron-ore beds lie.

About a year ago, Msgr. Labrie published a brochure, "The North Shore and the Steel Industry," in which he urged that some at least of Quebec's iron ore be processed in this province, rather than exported to benefit refining industries elsewhere.

But several factors stand in the way of establishing a steel industry in Quebec. One is that the great steel mills, potential customers for Quebec's ore, lie in the mid-eastern United States. To uproot a capital investment of billions of dollars to bring it closer to Quebec's ore is hard to imagine.

Another factor is Quebec's lack of coal which with ore is one of the two basic materials in steel-making. Possibly, however, Quebec's graphitic shale might take the place of coal in refining the ore.

Should government investigations show that shale may be used economically as a substitute for coal, it is conceivable that a part of the projected 10,000,000-tons-a-year output of the Ungava ore might be refined into steel in Quebec province.

SOME 30 PASSENGERS ESCAPED uninjured when this bus caught fire and exploded on a roadside on the outskirts of Ste. Therese, Que. The passengers left the vehicle when the fire began. They were helpless as the flames spread to the gas tanks and exploded, completely shattering the vehicle. All that remained of the interior was a charred mass and the skeleton frames of the chairs. The flames even ate through the steel covering on the exterior. Ste. Therese Police Chief R. Donis placed the cause of the fire tentatively as a short circuit.

Sellar Knew Secrets

OTTAWA, May 2 (CP) —Canada held no war secrets from Watson Sellar. The Auditor-General Monday told the Commons committee on Public accounts that he knew all about Canada's wartime defence secrets including development of atomic energy. So did a couple of his assistants. But they didn't say a word about it, because they were sworn to secrecy.

Semi-Literacy Widespread Among Birmingham Youth

By MICHAEL O'MARA, Canadian Press Staff Writer

A depressing condition of "sheer intellectual poverty" among teen-aged Britons is reported in a sociological study of the youth of Birmingham, the country's second biggest city. Semi-literacy is widespread and ambition generally low, boys and girls have lives that are "empty and barren, rather than anti-social and vicious," the Survey says.

The Survey—"Eighty Thousand Adolescents" was conducted by 60 of the students and staff of Westhill Training College, Birmingham, over a three-year period among 81,976 persons between the ages of 14 and 19 who live in Birmingham.

The 188-page report makes these points:

1. Pocket money—At 16, boys and girls average 11 shillings ($1.70) weekly spending money. Four out of 10 boys and one out of three girls spend a sizeable portion of this on cigarets. There are 80 movie houses, three vaudeville shows, 17 swimming pools, 104 dance halls and 1,389 public houses in Birmingham, and teenagers patronize all of these to some extent. One girl in 20 and one boy in eight gamble regularly.

Some Drinking

2. Liquor—One boy in six between 16 and 19 spends more than five shillings weekly drinking. Many girls drink too — but leave the paying to the boy friend.

3. Church-going—40 per cent go to church fairly regularly, the rest only when a relative is married or buried.

4. Entertainment—The movies and dance halls are favorite teen-age haunts. 41 per cent said they "never read books."

5. Dead-end Jobs — Although Birmingham has about 1,500 different trades, youngsters generally have at least two jobs within two years of leaving school at 14. Some have as many as 10.

Interested In Trade

6. Ambitions — One girl in seven regards marriage as an ideal career but only one boy in Birmingham mentioned that he wanted to be a good husband. Ambition generally followed the trade in which the adolescent worked — for instance, bus conductors wanted to be drivers. But they ranged all the way between a 17-year-old girl who wanted to be "bally dancer" and a 19-year-old boy who wanted to be an Egyptologist and could spell it.

The kids aren't altogether to blame.

Of Birmingham's 283,611 houses, 29,182 have no backyards. One home in seven is in an area where dwellers are crowded 62 to the acre. There are 142,523 houses without bathrooms and 34,965 without toilets.

Make Communism Crime, Drew Urges

OTTAWA, May 2 (CP) — George Drew Monday night called on Canada to stamp out the Communist fifth column in this country by making Communism a crime.

The Progressive Conservative leader, in a speech prepared for delivery before the Ottawa Junior Board of Trade, urged that all Canadians use the right of free speech to press for passing of laws by which Canadians who knowingly serve the Kremlin can be dealt with as traitors.

SOCIAL CREDIT M.P.—Victor Quelch, 58, a native of Georgetown, British Guiana, is Social Credit member of the House of Commons for Acadia, an Alberta constituency. First elected in 1935, he won re-election in the general elections of 1940, 1945 and 1949. A farmer in the Morrin area of Alberta, he served in the First World War, rose to the rank of captain and was awarded the Military Cross.

Lives On Candy While Hidden Week In Theatre

CORNING, N.Y., May 2 (AP)—A week ago Saturday, 11-year-old Ralph Ballinger didn't come home for dinner.

His parents, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Ballinger, called police. Searching parties scoured fields and streams, and teletype alarms covered the east.

Along about Wednesday employees of the Palace Theatre discovered the glass front of a candy machine had been smashed and several bars of candy stolen. They replaced the glass. A couple of nights later the machine was smashed again and more candy was taken. They fixed it again, and on Saturday night they waited round after the theatre closed.

Shortly after midnight a small figure stole down from the stage and headed up the darkened aisle straight for the candy machine. Ralph walked into the arms of theatre attendants.

"I like movies," he said.

He had been in the theatre one week.

He said he had slept on a ledge behind the screen and watched every show backwards.

Sellar Asks System Of Profit And Loss

OTTAWA, May 2 (CP)—Watson Sellar Monday suggested that the business-like "profit and loss" system be introduced in the operations of government agencies.

The Auditor-General urged the Commons public accounts committee to consider "matching up" the expenditures of many of these services against their revenues to see whether they are actually operating on a profit or loss.

Under the current system, the revenues of such branches as the Patent Office, the Trade Marks Office, the Canada Gazette, Board of Grain Commissioners and others go into the consolidated revenue fund.

Rap Highway Route

PEMBROKE, May 2 (CP)—Indignant mayors, reeves and townsfolks from many districts of the Ottawa Valley gathered at a protest meeting Monday night over re-routing of the Trans-Canada Highway. Some said the route had been switched for "purely political reasons." Outcome of a lengthy discussion was a resolution demanding that the Trans-Canada route should follow Highway 17 through the Ottawa valley. It was decided to send a delegation to Toronto to speak for the valley.

Seaway Project Declared Vital

WASHINGTON, May 2 (AP)—An executive of the Republic Steel Corporation told Congress Monday the St. Lawrence Seaway and power project is vital to national defence and the continued industrial development of the United States.

Norman W. Fox, general manager of sales for Republic, testified before the House of Representatives Public Works Committee. It is considering a bill to authorize the project.

"It is our belief," he said, that the seaway can and should be constructed on a self-liquidating basis. We favor a fair toll charge on each ton of cargo that moves through its waters.

"If such a policy is adopted by Congress and construction is then expedited the seaway will eventually become a national financial asset instead of a tax liability."

He said the joint Canadian-American project would make available to steel producing centres in the Great Lakes area the newly-discovered Labrador iron ore.

Earlier witnesses had said the Labrador ores, without the seaway, cannot be economically shipped to the midwest.

NS Company To Raise 14 Sunken Freighters

MONTREAL, May 2 (CP). — Sydney J. Simon of Halifax announced here Monday he has purchased 14 sunken freighters and will salvage their steel from the bottom of the Atlantic off Canada's east coast.

Mr. Simon, managing director of the Guard Wrecking and Salvage Company of Halifax, said the freighters range up to 10,000 tons and salvage work will begin within six weeks.

Explosives will be used to blast the steel from the ships.

Mr. Simon said some of the freighters still have rich cargoes in their holds and efforts will be made to recover them before blasting. After the hulls have been blown apart the steel will be raised to the surface by means of floating cranes. The steel then will be sent to eastern mills for melting.

All the freighters but one foundered off the east coast in storms. Some of them, said Mr. Simon, lie deep in waters believed treacherous for diving operations.

Mr. Simon said he estimated it will take more than two years before the last of the steel is brought up.

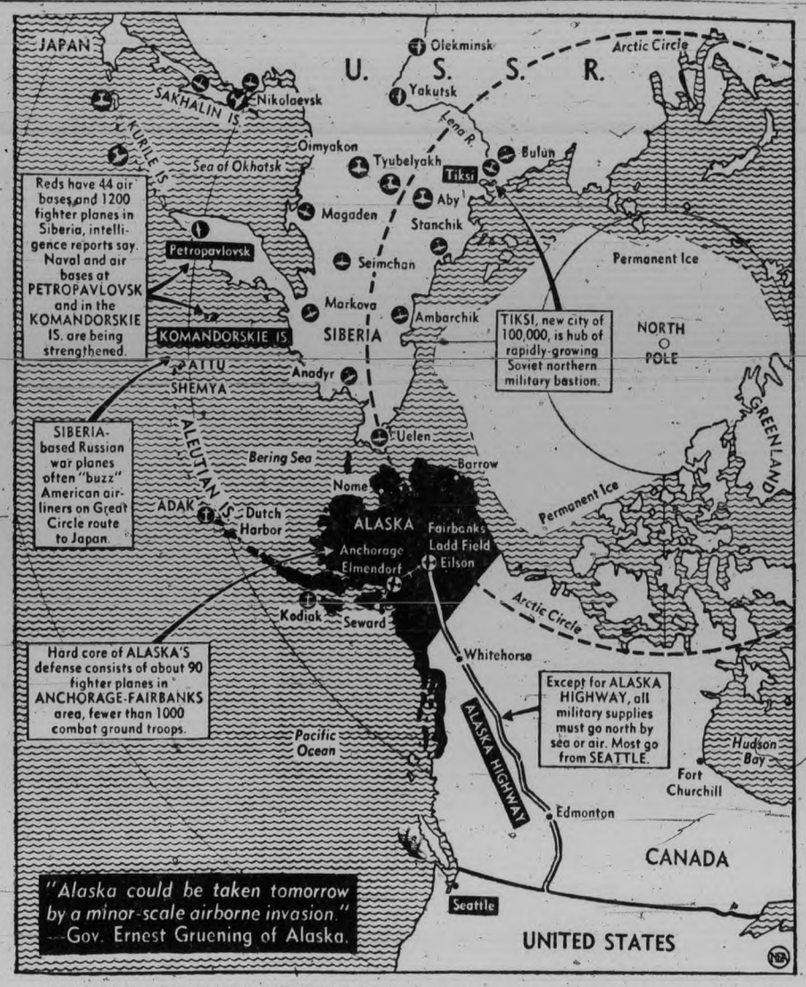
Theatre Men Fined

TORONTO, May 2 — (CP) — Two theatre owners Monday were fined $20 or 10 days in jail, one for allowing conditions that would have made it impossible for Patrons to use an exit in case of panic. An Ontario theatre inspector testified that one exit of the east-end Vogue Theatre, owned by Stella Gregoraschuk, could not be opened. Walter Misiisky, proprietor of the West-Toronto Lasalle Theatre, was fined for crowding the aisles.

Made First Manager

LONDON, Ont., May 2 (CP)—The first personnel manager for Victoria Hospital was appointed Monday by Victoria Hospital Trust.

He is Slade C. Nix, 36, of Winnipeg, a recent graduate of Queen's University, Kingston, where he took the professional course in industrial relations. It is the only such course offered by a university in Canada. Mr. Nix also is a graduate of University of Manitoba with a B.A. degree.



ALASKA'S APPEAL FOR STATEHOOD and her need for more adequate military defences — including a "tighter" radar screen—are being considerd by Congress at this time. Meanwhile, Soviet Russia's ever-growing military might in far eastern Siberia becomes more and more a threat to this strategic US territory. The Newsmap above shows how growing mass of Soviet air bases confronts the Alaskan frontier, which General Eisenhower called the "weakest link in our entire security system."

Trade Fair Boosts Canada— 35,000 Fox Pelts To Italy!

Canada's International Trade Fair is an international shop window for Canadian manufacturers which will catch the eye of foreign buyers, D. G. W. Douglas of the federal Department of Trade and Commerce, told the Rotary Club Monday "The trade fair brings businessmen from all over the world to witness the growth of this young and virile nation," he said.

Mr. Douglas, who was born in England and is now "within reach of Canadian citizenship", promised visitors to the fair a glimpse of foreign dress, and snatches of conversation in foreign languages.

"Great Achievement"

He referred to the trade fair as "a great achievement in what is industrially a young country." As an example of Canada's cosmopolitan trade, he referred to the sale last year of 35,000 silver fox pelts and hundreds of cattle to Italy.

"To Canadian manufacturers, the Canadian International Trade Fair is an international shop window to catch the eye of the foreign buyers who is looking for merchandise and ideas," he said.

Mr. Douglas warned his listeners that "we don't want to be too modest about what our nation is doing—both in international trade and affairs." He said Canada was rapidly gaining an ear in international politics, and that "when our representatives speak, they are listened to respectfully."

40% Bigger

This year's fair, Mr. Douglas said, will be 40 per cent larger than 1949's, with representation from 30 nations. Seventy per cent of exhibits will be from foreign lands, and the remainder Canadian. The fair will begin May 29.

Later in 1950, the United States will follow Canada's example and hold their own trade fair at Chicago, he went on. Canada is giving its neighbor to the south all possible help, he said.

He suggested that local organizations send representatives to the fair when it is open to the public to get an idea of what Canada and the world are doing industrially.

Following Mr. Douglas' address, color films of the 1948 trade fair were shown, depicting the organization of the fair, and the facilities for potential buyers.

Change To Diesel Hits Unemployed

TORONTO, May 2 — (CP) — A railroad employees' convention was told Monday that the Diesel engine, already introduced on Canadian railroad lines, is making the steam engine obsolete and creating a field of unemployment in the process.

Delegates from nine unions of the Railroad Employees' Department (AFL) met Monday. They represent 35,000 workers employed in servicing Canadian railways and their equipment.

The convention is expected to deal with resolutions for improved pensions for railway workers and will be asked to support one calling for the elimination of the means test.

At present CNR employess have a basic pension of $25 a month payable at age 65 to those with more than 15 years' service. The basic payment can be augmented by a contributory system. The CNR pension plan is said to be slightly higher.

Trial Begins In Stock Case

TORONTO, May 2 — (CP) — The trial of George Hamilton Babcock, 46, of Ayr, opened Monday before Magistrate Thomas Elmore on a charge of trading in shares while not being registered.

The Ontario Securities Commission charges that he realized $42,200 from sale of shares in two mining companies of which he is president and general manager, the Thirty-One Mile Lake Hematite Company and Babcock Corporation Ltd. The properties are in Quebec about 60 miles north of Hull.

A. B. Swayne, an investigator for the Securities Commission, testified Monday, and another Crown witness remains to be called. Swayne testified that 200,000 shares of stock were issued for each mining firm and Babcock is alleged to have retained 106,000 shares of stock in each. The Crown alleged that a selling price of $50 was set for each share, meaning a potential profit of nearly $10,000,000.

Stelco, Union Reach Agreement

TORONTO, May 2 (CP) — Agreement in principle has been reached on all major matters in dispute between the United Steel Workers of America (CIO) and the Steel Company of Canada (Stelco) at Hamilton.

Announcement of settlement proposals providing for a 13-cent hourly wage increase and such major items as pensions, hours of work, health security benefits, was made Monday by Louis Fine, conciliator for the Ontario Labor Department.

The proposed agreement runs two years.

Terms, still to be endorsed by a vote of the membership, include:

1. A 13-cents-an-hour increase, (eight cents retroactive to April 1, 1950) and additional five cents, effective in April, 1951. If accepted, this will boost the basic rate from $1.04 to a maximum $1.17.

2. A reduction in the work week from 44 to 40 hours, with overtime to be paid at time-and-a-half after an eight-hour day or 40-hour week.

3. A joint committee will be set up to study the present pension plan now administered solely by the company. The plan now provides a maximum of $1,000 a year, but paying an average of $50 a month.

Explosion At Fort 32 Die, 40 Injured

PATIALA, East Punjab, May 2 (Reuters) — Thirty-two persons died and 40 were injured Monday in an accidental ammunition explosion in Patiala's old fort.

Store buildings in the area were crushed as part of the massive wall of the fort blew out, burying most of victims under shattered stone and brick.

Ten hours later 400 sappers and miners assisted by police were still digging in rubble for possible further dead or injured.

An official announcement said the explosion was caused by an accidental fire.

The Maharaja of Patiala was at the scene of the explosion most of the day, directing rescue work.

Charge Reds 'Using' Schools

TORONTO, May 2 — (CP) — The chairman of the Board of Education said Monday that recent "pressure" on high-school students shows that Communist and left-wing organizations "are going all-out to try to destroy the democratic attitude" of boys and girls.

G. Blair Laing said this is the aim of persons distributing leaflets advertising meetings of the "Toronto Youth Peace Council." In one school, leaflets were jammed into pupils' lockers, it was reported.

Mr. Laing said a disturbance Monday at west-end Parkdale Collegiate, where police questioned two women for leaflet activity, underlined his statement that a near-riot last week at Harbord Collegiate was Communist-inspired.

(Some 1,000 Harbord students refused to attend classes and held a mass meeting outside the school to protest what they said was unwarranted interference by the school principal in student affairs.)

The meeting closed with the serving of refreshments by Miss Genevieve Murray and her committee.

Hadassah Bazaar, Carnival Small Exhibition Draws Several Thousand Citizens

Several thousand people flocked into the Brock Arena Monday night for the Hadassah Bazaar and Carnival. They found it an affair with appeal to those with the gambling spirit, the sophisticate with an eye for the unusual, the particularly fashion-conscious, and the woman who loves the push and scramble of a rummage sale.

Modelled after the yearly venture of a sister chapter in Toronto, the Hadassah member actually presented a small-scale exhibition. One side of the arena was entirely concessions to local merchants who had taken much care in setting up attractive displays and their representatives were on hand to give out the leaflets that are a part of every "fair".

Bingo took up the larger part of the centre floor, enjoying the customary line-up of "waiters" for seats. At the next booth they were winning good woollen blankets—those with their money on the lucky number that it.

A "Treasure Shop" was a big attraction at the left side, with jewellry and accessories, crystal, china, tiny potted plants, and knick knacks for sale. "Fashion Row" offered quite a wide selection of dresses, coats, lingerie and dress goods remnants. Also very attractive tea aprons designed and made by the Hadassah members.

"Aunt Jemima" herself came from Toronto for the evening and assisted in the booth displaying the products she sponsors. Washable Aunt Jemima dolls to delight the young folk were available with several boxes of cake mix.

Attracting the most attention, and buyers, however, were the beautifully iced and decorated cakes, and the cookies, made in the three flavors of "mix" by the Jewish housewives of the city.

Wheels of fortune spun round and round and the "gamblers" placed their money on numbers in hope of winning grocery and fruit baskets. Luckily for the Hadassah members, their husbands took over the games, and, as "midway barkers" they did most excellent jobs.

Hadassah members, who are women of the Jewish Community, have not yet calculated the amount of financial success from their first appeal to the citizens of Peterborough. However, they have a high rate of evidence of personal support from other women's organizations in the city.

Mrs. Harry Cherney, Chapter president, with Mrs. Allan B. Collis and Mrs. Chas. Levine, convened the carnival. The proceeds will be used for local charity and welfare work.

GOOD NEIGHBOUR POLICY

Hanging out my laundry I noticed that Mrs. Layton's, next door, was whiter. I couldn't help asking her why. 'Reckitt's Blue keeps out that yellow tinge', she said. 'Just swish it through the final rinse. You can only obtain pure white with blue, and you don't take chances with anything that may damage fabric.' That's what I call good neighbourliness and good advice. It's Reckitt's Blue for me from now on, particularly as it costs so little.

Produce Variety of Cookies With Minimum of Effort

By MARY MOORE

There seems to be a rash of teas breaking out all over the countryside, and while I am invited to some of them I cannot figure how I can have one myself.

So I will have to take my urge out in talking about it, and the cookie that belongs in the afternoon tea category.

If you are geared for high speed you know the advantages of making cookies press cookies, and good cookies presses may be purchased in Canadian hardware stores now.

The reason I mention these little numbers today is because of the variety you can produce with a minimum of materials and effort.

Cookie Press Cookies

One-half cup high quality shortening or butter, 1 cup sugar, 4 egg yolks, well-beaten, 2 cups sifted all-purpose flour, 2 teaspoons baking powder, ¼ teaspoon vanilla. Cream the shortening until fluffy and light, then add the sugar creaming well, until mixture is light. Add the yolks and beat well. Add the sifted dry ingredients and vanilla, and mix thoroughly. Press through cookie press as directed on manufacturers' instructions and bake one ungreased cookie sheets. Bake at 400 deg. Fahr. about 10 minutes.

Note: It is advis[illegible] use one-third of the dough for two shapes; divide remaining two-thirds of dough in two parts. To one part add 1 teaspoon cinnamon; to the other add red or green colouring. Change cookie disc and make different shapes for each flavour of cookie. Before baking press a blanched almond on top of each spice cookie.

Now you have 4 egg whites left over so they should be used up in.

Cocoanut Meringue Kisses

Beat the 4 egg whites (leftover from the cookie press cookies) until stiff but not dry; then gradually add 2/3 cup of sugar, while continuing to beat. Add ½ teaspoon vanilla, then fold in another 1/3 cup sugar. These may be baked as they are now, but are best if 1 cup moist shredded coccoanut is added, and better still, one-half cup sliced red or green cherries or ¼ cup sliced glace cheeries and ¼ cup chopped or broken pecans. Shape with a spoon in small mounds on cookie sheet covered with plain parchment paper. Bake at 250 deg. Fahr. (very slow oven) for about 30 to 35 minutes, then cool them. Remove from the paper with a spatula when cool.

DOROTHY DIX

Husband Told Deal Firmly With Wife Who Insults

DEAR MISS DIX: I have the best mother in the world and I am devoted to her. She owns the house in which we live and to which I brought my wife when we were married a year ago. My wife know all about the conditions, that I had to support my mother, and I urged her to wait for a few years until I was making more money before we married, but she insisted on an immediate marriage in order to escape unpleasant conditions in her own home. Since we have married, and although we are living in my mother's house, she treats my mother in the most dominating way and never speaks to her except to say something spiteful and cutting and so insulting that I an stunned. We have a baby and she will not even let mother touch it. My mother is amiable, sweet-tempered and easy to get along with and is in no way at fault. What shall I do?

ALBERT

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: I know well enough what you should do, but unfortunately in our civilization we have evolved the theory that no man should raise his hand to a woman save in kindness.

Tell Her Off

As that source of reformation is closed to you, the best thing you can do is to tell your wife in the strongest language that you can summon that you have stood her outrageous conduct just as long as you intend to and that she has either to behave herself or you will send her back to the home that she was so anxious to escape. That will probably bring her to her senses. She doesn't want to leave her good home. She is trying to run your mother out of it.

It is a wonder that any woman who has a child of her own does not look ahead into the future and foresee that as she treats her mother-in-law her son's wife may treat her. Does your wife never think how bitter it would be to her if her son's wife insulted and reviled her without cause, if she made her old age lonely and desolate by driving her out of her own house?

Of all men in the world, none are more to be pitied than those who are torn between the two women they love, and especially ar those to be pitied who see their wives breaking the hearts of their mothers and who are powerless to save the dear old gray heads from the sufferings inflicted by a virago.

DEAR MISS DIX: I am a boy of 19, very much interested in a nice girl of 18. The other day she said to me: "I am never going to get married. I don't want to be tied down. I want to get the fun out of life." This has caused me much concern. Will she change this outlook? What shall I do?

C.D.Q

ANSWER: Instead of disapproving of her you should applaud her for having enough sense not to want to marry at 18. She knows she isn't ready to marry then, that she hasn't seen enough of the world and known enough boys to be able to pick out a mate. She knows that she is a child still with a child's changing taste, and that the boy she is crazy about today she won't look at tomorrow and that she would be in a pretty pickle is she got tired of her husband almost as soon as she had got him home.

And, of course, she isn't ready to settle down and to be tied down with a husband and house and babies at 18. She wants to have her fling.

Don't worry about your girl saying that she will never marry because she wants to get some fun out of life. When she is a little older she will reverse that opinion. She will think that marriage is next to heaven and that there is nothing that is so much fun in the world as having her own home and her own husband.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR DOROTHY DIX: I am a widower 52 years old, no children, good health, very fond of home life. My sister-in-law is 66 years old; a widow, no children, good disposition, good health, good housekeeper. I am thinking of marrying her as I can give her a good home and feel sure we will be happy together. This is no wild love affairs. Just good judgement on our part. But our families are much opposed to it and think it wrong. First because she is my dead wife's sister. Second, because she is fourteen years older than I am. What do you think of it?

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: I think it is a grand idea and have no doubt it would prove a most suitable and sensible match. At your age people are past the romantic time of life and they are wise to marry an old friend, who will fit into their lives far better than any stranger would.

As for her being older than you, that does not count at your age.

MOVIE COLUMN

Screen Writer Goes To Jail To Get Story

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD, May 2 —(AP)—Virginia Kellegg is a comely greying, soft-spoken screen writer of 42 years. You'd never suspect that she has been a prison inmate or that she packs a rod.

But it's true. And what's more the whole business has paid off extremely well for her.

Virginia considers herself a was as you do," she told me. "The difference is that you write it for newspapers and I write it for the screen."

She is the only screen writer who "lives" her stories. "I will never take an assignment unless I can go right to the source of the story," she said. She does this for two reasons: to catch the lingo and the "feel" of her subject: so people can't say, "that doesn't sound like real-life." She can show the doubters that her plots and dialogue are authentic.

Hospital Story

The whole thing started back in 1934 before she wrote "Mary Stevens, MD," a story of a woman doctor. Virginia spent three weeks as a nurse observer at a Los Angeles hospital to gather material. Then she wrote "Stolen Holiday" about the Parisian fashion world. She attended the Sorbonne and was an apprentice in fashion houses in Paris.

She retired to be a housewife for a decade and then returned to write "T-Man." She worked closely with treasury agents on that one and through them uncovered Elaine Townsend, the former school teacher who now is a gambling operator in Havana. The Townsend yarn is expected to reach the cameras soon.

The treasury agents also provided information for "White Heat," the tough Jimmy Cagney film. She conferred with several 'ropers," the operatives who work themselves into gangs in order to make the pinch.

For "Caged," an expose of women's prisons, Virginia investigated three eastern prisons and was even an inmate at another one for three weeks.

Oh yes—about Virginia's gat. She is an auxiliary policewoman and she carried it in her purse at all times. Cute little thing, too.

JACOBY ON CANASTA

"Everybody talks about good hands," complains Mrs. J. R. S., of Pittsburgh, "but nobody has a word to say about the miserable assortments that seem to come my way whenever I play. For example, take this hand:

K J 10 8-8-8 7-7 6 6 5 4

"Last night I held these twelve cards, after drawing a card, at a time when both sides needed 120 for the first meld. Don't experts ever get a hand like this? If so, is there a magic way of playing such a hand?"

Well, Mrs. S., I was hoping we could avoid this sort of talk. After all, lots of people read this column while they're eating, and just looking at that sort of hand is enough to give them the collywobbles.

As long as the subject is out in the open, however, the answer is that experts get miserable hands too. I could tell you about hands that would make you burst right into tears! What's more, every expert could tell you the same story.

For another thing, experts are not magicians. They just do the best they can. That's usually enough to prevent disaster, but not always. In a game against skillful opponents you must expect to lose points on your bad hands, no matter how well you play them. And once in a while you must expect to take a really bad beating. That goes for experts as well as for the newest beginners.

I must point out that the expert doesn't jump out the window when he holds a bad hand. For example, with the hand just described, the expert doesn't make a serious effort to scrape together a meld of his own. He would change his mind if he picked up a few wild cards, particularly a joker or two, but he would not count on such extraordinary luck.

Instead, the expert plays the hand in the expectation and hope that his partner will eventually be able to meld. When that happens, the expert wants to be in position to add to his partner's melds. The idea is to make a canasta in a hurry and then meld out as quickly as possible.

When you are in this sort of spot, you watch your partner's discards very closely. Your object is to save the same cards that he saves. The simplest way to do that is to make the same discards that he makes. After a few such discards, your hands should begin to match pretty well.

Q—We had a canasta in sixes and some other melds. I had a six and a joker, after drawing. I didn't want to meld out. Could I meld the six or the joker and then refuse to discard?

A—No. The only time you can refuse to discard is when you meld out. If you don't want to meld out you must discard either the six or the joker, and you cannot meld either of those cards in that case.

Q—When the deck is frozen, are you allowed to count the top card of the discard pile as part of your first meld? For example, you have a deuce and a pair of kings, while the top discard is a king. Can you meld 50 points, using that discarded king, or must you have the 50 points all in your own hand?

A—You are always allowed to count the top discard as part of your meld. It doesn't matter whether the pack is frozen or not. In this case, therefore, you would be able to take the king and meld 50 points.

RESTRICT IMMIGRANTS

HONG KONG, May 2—(AP)—Hong Kong border police turned back an estimated 2,000 Chinese attempting to enter this British colony Monday from Communist China. It was the beginning of Hong Kong's new regulation to restrict immigration into this overcrowded colony. Chinese coming from the mainland now must provide "valid travel documents" to be allowed entry.

Gas Pump Crash Drunk Driving Case Evidence

The case of Frederick Christie, Parnell St., charged with drunk and dangerous driving, and illegal possession of liquor, today was adjourned for judgment to May 9 by Magistrate W. R. Philp.

Christie was charged in connection with an accident on highway 28 in which a car driven by Christie hit two gas pumps at Howard Berry's service station.

Berry testified he heard a "terrible crash", went out and saw the front of his store "all on fire". He told the court one of the pumps was knocked 40 feet by the impact, and the other about 15 feet.

Provincial Constable Thomas Fitzpatrick said Christie at first denied driving the car, but later admitted he had been. There was a strong smell of liquor on Christie, the officer said.

Walking Straight Line

"Did you take accused to your headquarters and ask him to walk a straight line?" asked defence counsel Gordon Farquharson.—"Yes."

"Didn't he walk it all right?"—"Yes".

Provincial Constable George Henderson testified he asked Christie to walk across a room at OPP headquarters, and that Christie "staggered slightly".

Speaking in a low voice, Christie, a short blond man, had to be told several times by His Worship to speak up.

He said he had "six or seven beers" the night of the accident, but had nothing from 11 p.m. until the time of the accident at 3:20 a.m. Before he started to drive, he said, he had a heavy meal.

Christie said he was driving west on highway 28 about 3:20 a.m. on April 9, and came "unexpectedly" on the turn by Berry's service station. "I was going about 55," he said, "and was partway around the curve when I felt the car start to skid. I turned the wheels in the opposite direction and drove into the service station. Things just happened so fast I couldn't do anything at all."

"How long have you been driving around Peterborough?" Crown Counsel Bradshaw asked.

"About three years."

"How was it you came on this curve unexpectedly?" "I hadn't driven that way for some time."

"I don't think the curve has changed much," Mr. Bradshaw remarked.

Mr. Farquharson argued that the Crown had not proved Christie had been drunk at the time of the accident. "I submit," he said, "that Christie was sick after the accident, and that is what the officers smelled."

"I think Mr. Farquharson is going by what Robbie Burns wrote. A man's nae drunk who frae the floor
Can rise and take at least one more," said Mr. Bradshaw.

Feast Of Our Lady Held At Marmora

MARMORA, May 2 (ENS) The Feast of Our Lady of Good Counsel was celebrated at the Sacred Heart Church on Sunday with high mass celebrated by the pastor, the Rev. J. A. O'Neill.

The altar and the statue of the Blessed Virgin were decorated with spring flowers.

After the mass, which was held at 10 a.m., the Exposition of the Blessed Sacrament was held until 3 p.m. and concluded with the Holy Hour and Benediction of the Blessed Sacrament. Appropriate hymns were sung by the choir.

Feel Like Visiting Royalty Attending Opera In Paris

By JEAN E. STENTON

PARIS, April—One of the most glittering experiences a visitor to Paris can have in his book of memories is to attend an opera or ballet performance at l'Opera.

The Opera can be seen only at a concert because it is never open for visitors. I was fortunate enough to hear a performance of Faust — the first in many months because there has been a strike. It has been said that of all the operas the one French artists do best is "Faust" and certainly it was a more superb presentation than that of the Metropolitan Opera Company, three years ago in Toronto.

Jean Stenton

For one evening, the concert-goer has the feeling of being visiting royalty. On entering the hall there is a huge white marble staircase leading to a gallery on the second floor. This gallery is supported by pillars of rose and white marble, each one a single stone.

Gorgeous Sight

The auditorium itself is breath-taking with its brilliant crimson and gold hues. In any other building it would appear gaudy. But at l'Opera it is perfectly suited. All seats are a vivid crimson plush and the pillars, boxes and ceiling are covered with a great deal of gilt work. There are five tiers of boxes and gallery seats in a U shape around the stage. The ceiling is covered with an unusual painting by Lenepveu. It is noted for its brilliant colors because it is painted with copper.

The crowning touch to this artistic achievement is the huge chandelier which sparkles as though covered with hundreds of tiny diamonds. The great light weighs three tons and when it is turned off, it dims slowly and resembles an enormous circle of delicate white lace.

The foyer with its coupled double loggia, where everyone promenades between acts, has the same royal decor. Vaulted ceilings, beautiful inlaid floors and gilt work leave the onlooker breathless. Nothing in modern architecture produces the same impression.

Outside Impressive

The exterior of the building is also interesting. Around the first floor there are medals in stone showing the heads of musicians. On the second storey, there are columns and the names of composers are written above. The great building was inaugurated in 1875 and is justly considered one of the most splendid palaces ever made for the united arts of music, acting and dancing.

The 80-piece orchestra was one of the best in France under the direction of Robert Blot. The leading artists were: Miss Jacq. Brumaire as Marguerite; Mr. Libero de Luca as Faust; Huc-Santana as Mephistopheles; and Marcel Clavere as Valentin. The scenery which has recently been altered, was very attractive.

No More Germans

I heard more than one Frenchman say how wonderful it was to see their beloved opera again without a sea of green. During the war, the Germans took all the ground floor and the first three balconies. The remaining two were left for the French. The opera and ballet were so popular, that even during the war, people would queue for hours. My friend used to come at 5:30 a.m. and stand in line till 9:30 a.m. Then her sister would take her place until they finally got one of the few remaining tickets.

There is one other little custom at l'Opera that the visitor should know and that concerns tipping. It is practically compulsory, to tip the hatcheck girl, the program seller and the attendant who shows you to your seat. Anyone unfortunate enough to ignore this unwritten law, is treated to a demonstration of abuse before spectators.

Not Satisfied With Route Of New Highway

PEMBROKE, May 2.—(CP).—Residents and officials of the Upper Ottawa Valley are not satisfied with the Ontario route of the Trans-Canada highway, and they intend to do something about it.

At a protest rally Monday night, called by J. J. Carmody, of Pembroke, a resolution demanding that the highway follow route 17 through the Ottawa Valley was made by mayors, reeves and citizens of district towns.

Outcome of the lengthy discussion was that a delegation would be sent to Toronto to speak for the Valley and protest the present route along Highway No. 7.

Mayor Carmody said Ottawa and Toronto "must be made to realize that people of the Ottaway Valley are not satisfied." "A day or so after they announced the route, they tried to soothe us by saying they would put up a sign or two. That is not enough."

Makes Promises

Shortly after the signing of the agreement, Highways Minister Doucett promised that Highway 17 would be on a par with the Trans-Canada and new surfacing would be done on some sections of the highway.

Mayor R. M. Simpson of Arnprior, said he found it difficult to find any logical basis for sending the highway through the new way and charged that the decision to place a sign designating Highway 17 as an alernative route was an afterthought.

The meeting instructed Mayor Simpson, Mayor Carmody and D. A. Jones, resident of the district, to draw up the proposed resolution. All municipalities from North Bay to Ottawa are expected to be brought in on the matter.

The general view was that Highway 17 should form a part of the Trans-Canada Highway, but if this were not possible, a lot of work should be done on it between Pembroke and Ottawa.

Lions Hear J. W. Bateman

Members of Peterborough's Lions Club Monday night learned a few pointers about light and color from J. W. Bateman, manager of CGE's lighting service.

He briefly sketched out the theory of light and demonstrated how white light is broken down into his component colors. His address was aided by the use of considerable equipment, including lantern slides and a variety of fluorescent tubes.

Being business men his audience were particularly interested in the way products such as rugs, wallpaper and several cloth materials appeared under standard room lighting.

Mr. Bateman concentrated on fluorescent lighting and displayed seven varying tints of room lighting. They ran from the "cold" daylight tint to the "warm" tints, the latter more akin to the light thrown from the standard tungstein filament bulb.

One of the best-known men in the field of illumination engineering in Canada, the speaker briefly told of the troubles of one chemical plant. Although top chemists they found that their colors did not always have the same appearance. The problem was cleared up when they were shown that the whole thing could be laid to lighting.

A lively question period followed the main address with problems of fluorescent lighting being dealt with chiefly.

Mr. Bateman was introduced by J. E. Girven and thanked by Gordon Powell. James Marshall, president, was in the chair.

Hardwade Store Not Allowed, Against Zoning

A request from Percy Archer, 643 Chamberlain St., for permission to build a hardware store on that street was refused by the council Monday night on a report from the City Planning Board "that this lot is zoned for residential use only".

Mr. Archer wrote to the council that there were already two commercial businesses in that section of Chamberlain St. One is a grocery store and the other a dry cleaning plant. He expressed the opinion that there was an opportunity for a hardware store and also a community need for it.

The motion by Ald. H. Dodds, implementing the zoning restriction, and thereby refusing a building permit, was seconded by Ald. T. D. Miller.

Another bylaw introduced by Ald. Dodds authorized execution with the C.P.R. for the laying of a sewer along the right of way of the railway in Ashburnham to connect finally with the 24-inch pipe that was laid across the river at Burnham's Point last year.

This project has been referred to several times. It provides for the diversion of Ashburnham sewage into the trunk line on the west side of the river, leading to the disposal plant. The sewer on Maria St. will be laid westerly to the C.P.R., then along the railway right of way to the lakeshore opposite the foot of Burnham St. The pipe line continues along the shore to Burnham's Point.

When this job is completed the use of the virtual septic tank on the north side of Maria St. will be ended, and its effluent will no longer flow into Little Lake.

Stage Hit 'South Pacific' Pulitzer Prize Winner

NEW YORK, May 2 — (AP) — The fabulously successful Broadway hit South Pacific Monday won the 1950 Pulitzer Prize for drama, while the annual fiction award went to A. B. Guthrie's best-selling historical novel, The Way West.

These and other Pulitzer Prizes in journalism, letters and music were announced by President Dwight D. Eisenhower of Columbia University.

South Pacific, a standing-room only hit since it opened April 7 1949, was written and produced by Richard Rodgers and Oscar Hammerstein II. It is based on James A. Michner's book Tales of the South Pacific, which won the Pulitzer Fiction Prize in 1948.

Awards for disinterested and meritorious public service went to the Chicago Daily News and the St. Louis Post-Dispatch for a series of articles disclosing the presence of 51 Illinois newspapermen on the state payroll. The articles were written jointly by George Thien and Roy J. Harris.

Good Reporting.

The prize for distinguished local reporting was awarded to Meyer Berger of the New York Times for his account of the neighborhood slaying by Howard Unrah, a crazed war veteran, at Camden, N.J., in September, 1949. His report was published at the time in

Other journalistic wards included:

National Affairs — Edwin O. Guthman of the Seattle Times for stories that provided information clearing Professor Melvin Rader, University of Washington, of Communist charges.

International Affairs —Edmund Stevens of the Christian Science Monitor for his series, "This Is Russia — Uncensored." Stevens' stories were summarized in a series of articles distributed by The Associated Press.

Editorial Writing — Carl M. Saunder, editor, the Jackson (Mich). Citizen-Patriot, for an editorial resulting in official designation of Memorial Day—May 30— as a day of prayer for peace.

Cartoonist Winner

Cartooning —James T. Berryman of the Washington Starr for his cartoon, "All set for a super-secret session in Washington."

This cartoon showed a witness stand surrounded by microphones television cameras and other instruments of publicity. Berryman, won a Pulitzer prize six years ago. Today's award marks the first time that a father and son have attained the honor.

News Photograph —Bill Crouch Oakland (Calif). Tribune, for his photo of a near-collision between a B-29 bomber and a stunt flier's plane. The picture was transmitted by Associated Press Wirephoto October 3, 1949.

The prize for biography went to John Quincy Adams and the Foundations of American Foreign Policy by Samuel Flagg Bemis of Yale University. The only two-time winner on this year's list, he won a previous award in 1927.

3 Cabbies Prevent Suicide In Ravine

TORONTO, May 2 — (CP) — A 28-year-old girl was pulled from the railing of a bridge today, seconds before she would have thrown herself to the ravine below, her rescuers believe.

Suburban Forest Hill police said three taxi-drivers, S. Raznick, Ben Baker, and Cecil Straus jumped from their cabs when they saw the girl climbing the parapet.

The girl was charged with attempted suicide. No reason was given for her action.

White Sox Stuck With Wakefield

NEW YORK, May 2 —(AP)— Chicago White Sox appear to be stuck with or without Dick Wakefield.

Well-informed baseball men insisted today that Wakefield, traded by New York Yankees to Chicago last Friday, is the property of Chicago White Sox. He must report to the Sox or quit baseball.

The decision on Wakefield's status is expected to be made by commissioner A. B. Chandler within the next few days.

On Chandler's decision may hang the fate of all future player trades and sales between big league clubs.

The ruling not only will affect Wakefield and the teams involved, but it will have a distinct bearing on all future transactions involving assignment of a player or players from one club to another.

"Do you know what it would mean should Chandler order the Yankees to take Wakefield back", a veteran baseball man asked. "It would mean that all a player had to do to stop any deal was simply refuse to report."

Give Rapt Attention To Estonian Violinst

MILLBROOK, May 2 (ENS).— Those attending the inter-church fireside service sponsored by the Young People's Group after the evening service at St. Thomas' Church on Sunday, heard a brilliant violin recital by Mr. Alect.

A displaced person from Estonia, Mr. Alect has been in Canada nine months and is working in a hydro camp north of Millbrook. George Ingham accompanied Mr. Alect on the piano, and Don Spicer, the president, led a sing-song of spirituals. Helen Ingham gave a reading. Prayer was offered by the Rev. A. A. Chote of St. Thomas' Church, and the Rev. T. G. Husser of St. Andrew's pronounced the benediction. The Young People's Group, under the direction of Jean Smith, served cookies and tea.

New Power

A committee of the association, reported Mr. Giles, in order to assist manufacturers who gave apprenticeship courses in factory trades, had produced a manual for such trades as tool and die-making, machinists and various electrical factory trades, which was being found most useful. The chief object in using a standard curriculum was to improve the quality of apprenticeship tuition now being given by Ontario manufacturers with a view to achieving a common standard which would make apprentices acceptable wherever they might seek work.

New Labor Code

Mr. Giles described the new Ontario Labor Code, enacted at the last session of the Legislature, as an interesting document. "Legislation of this nature," he commented, "enacted in the most highly industrialized province in Canada, requires the most careful drafting, as it often sets the pattern for similar legislation in other provinces and it is therefore important that, while every consideration should be given to the legitimate demands of labor in respect to the collective bargaining process, certain fundamental principles governing the relationship between management and workers be maintained."

In referring to the recent enquiry into the Workmen's Compensation Act and its administration, which Mr. Giles said was long overdue, he voice a protest against a recent tendency in some circles to consider the Act as being something different from what its framers intended. Describing the Act as one of the most generous and all-inclusive measures of its kind in the world, he said that the Association had always maintained that the fundamental principle of the Act was to provide compensation for disability arising from the hazards of industrial occupation, whether of accident or ill health.

Not Social Security

"It is not a social security measure, nor is it health insurance," he declared. "It is what its title implies; workmen's compensation."

Far-reaching changes, he remarked, had been made in the Act at the 1948 session of the Legislature. The Association felt that these had been made without sufficient investigation into the facts to determine whether or not they were justified. Hence the Association welcomed the Government's enquiry.

"When one considers that the gross value of products manufactured in Ontario is over five billions of dollars computed annually," said Mr. Giles in conclusion, "and that over half a million Ontario citizens are engaged in this production, I suggest that we are making an important contribution to that contentment of mind and body in our people which, if nourished, will preserve that desire for freedom of thought and enterprise which, I am convinced, is so necessary in the struggle for peace."

City Buys Lot To Arc Corner

City council is buying for $400 from Fred J. LeVasseur the property at the northwest corner of Park St. and Cameron St.

This purchase was recommended by City Engineer Chalmers to make a wide arc of the sharp corner as a facility for traffic. After that alteration is completed the city will still own the lot, and may sell it.

The arrangement with Mr. LeVasseur was made by Norman A. Wilkes, assessment commissioner, and was ratified by the council Monday night in a motion by Ald. H. Dodds.

The offer of Harold J. Keates, 511 Aylmer St., of $75 a year for rental of the Minicola property on the west side of Erskine Ave. was accepted. Mayor Swanston said Mr. Keates wished to use the ten acres for grazing. He agrees to vacate the property on one month's notice.

Narrow House Lot

With no additional frontage available, Frank Ephgrave was given permission to build a house on a lot of 38 ft. 5 in. frontage on the west side of Stewart St. north of London St. The city's usual minimum frontage is 40 feet, but in this instance Ald. E. C. Braund said there was no adjoining land that could be bought. His motion was seconded by Ald. Adam Sands.

C. S. Purser, secretary of the Burnham's Point Property Owners' Association, appealed to the Council to fix the speed limit on their streets at 15 miles an hour maximum. Cars and delivery trucks often drove in a reckless manner, he wrote, menacing the children of the neighborhood. This letter was referred to the legal committee.

Three Examiner Carriers With a Total of Nine Years Service Have Saved $935.00

Here are examples of real industry and thrift. These three Examiner carriers, Paul Hetherington, Arthur Bromley and Alice Hann have not only saved the money in their Examiner Trust Fund (on which the Examiner pays 4 per cent interest) but have bought their own clothes and school books and provide themselves with spending money.

The total deposits for Examiner carriers in the Examiner Trust Fund is now $4,372.12, which indicates that not just a few, but most Examiner carriers save regularly.

Being a newspaper carrier gives a boy or girl a sound business sense at an early age.

Thrift and self-reliance learned by carrying papers has been the groundwork for many successful careers.

Unification Plan Discarded Commission Told

OTTAWA, May 1—(CP)—The Canadian Pacific Railway now does not advocate the railway "unification" plan it advanced in 1938, the company Monday told the Royal Commission on Transportation.

K. D. M. Spence, CPR commission counsel, gave this information as the commission continued inquiring into the extent of co-operation between the two major railways under a 1933 statute instructing them to effect joint economies.

Mr. Spence said the CPR now is opposed to the 1938 proposal, which called for the use of physical rail facilities as a single system, with each company keeping its corporate identity.

The purpose of that plan had been "complete co-operation" through the elimination of effective competition.

Have Leeway

(Earlier CPR evidence had been to the effect that different operating conditions from those of the depression years now left leeway for savings through joint economies.)

Today, John E. Armstrong, CPR chief engineer, also expressed opposition to a proposal of the Canadian Federation of Agriculture for a tribunal to supervise co-operative economies.

The CFA proposal, made to the commission last year, was that the tribunal should recommend economy measures to the railways and report to parliament annually on those which had, and which had not, been undertaken.

Mr. Armstrong said it seemed to him the purpose of the federation plan was to force co-operation. He believed it was impossible for force and co-operation t go hand-in-hand.

IN A VERY HAPPY MOOD, Prime Minister Louis St. Laurent explains to nine-year-old Diane Boivin the real meaning of the "golden key to the City" which he received a few minutes earlier from Mayor P. Cut Off Water In Toronto At Trailer Camp

TORONTO, May 1 (CP)—Civic authorities said Monday water and electricity would be discontinued for a number of families in trailers who were supposed to move Sunday.

Property Commissioner Bland said 19 families in the camp in the northwestern part of the city were supposed to leave April 30. So far, he said, only one family has shown signs of leaving.

The families are part of a group moved from a downtown site in 1947 to make way for a new hospital. The camp was located on Ryding Avenue for a two-year period. Last October a six-month extension was granted. It expired Sunday.

Commissioner Bland said he expected "some trouble" in moving the families.

Many have taken the wheels off their trailers and it looks like we will have to take legal action and possibly move the trailers off the camps ourselves," he said.

OTTAWA, May 2 (CP)—External Affairs Minister Pearson said Monday night Canada gets "very interesting information" from Russia but it all comes from sources that are "open and above board."

He made the statement before the Commons External Affairs Committee.

There was no "espionage or counter-espionage" going on in any Canadian mission abroad.

Canada's small embassy in Moscow sent back the "very valuable information as the result of travel, of reading magazines and newspapers. The Canadians on the staff learned the Russian language.

War-Blind Publisher Will Visit Canada

LONDON, May 2 (CP)—W. T. Curtis - Willson, war - blinded Brighton publisher, has been elected president of the Newspaper Society and soon will visit Canada.

The Newspaper Society is a newspaper proprietors' organization embracing the whole of Britain's provincial press.

Curtis-Willson, managing director of the 144-year-old weekly Brightly and Hove Herald, lost the sight of his right eye when wounded by shrapnel at Bethune, France, in 1916.

In later years the sight of his left eye gradually declined and he has been totally blind since 1942.

Next month Curtis-Willson will lead the British delegation to a Rome conference of the International Federation of the Press, of which he was a founding member.

Then he goes on to Quebec as one of the British delegates to the Imperial Press Conference opening June 8. His wife will be with him.

Police Nab 34 In Gambling Raid

TIMMINS, May 2—(CP)—In one of the largest gambling raids staged by Timmins police, 34 men were booked early Sunday for being found in a gaming house, and Stanley Pietrzyk, 47, was charged with keeping a common gaming house.

The six constables who staged the raid were forced to hire a bus to take the large number of found-ins to the police station.

Pietrzyk, who is a floor sander by trade, furnished the $50 property bail for many of the men arrested and all 34 men were released.

Police Arrest 39 In House Basement

WINDSOR, May 2 (CP)—Cecil Sawyer, a Windsor bus driver, appeared in court Monday charged with keeping liquor for sale and was released on $1,000 bail for trial May 9. Thirty-eight others were charged as found-ins and released on bail.

The charge was the aftermath of a police raid early Sunday on a home in suburban Sandwich East. Police said Sawyer and 38 others were arrested in a lavishly-appointed bar in the basement of Sawyer's home.

RCMP officers assisted Sandwich East police in the raid. They seized a large amount of beer and liquor in the basement room, which they said was equipped with an upholstered bar, tables and chairs, a television set, uniformed waiter and even a hat-check room.

Prisoners Learn Trade Very Quickly

TORONTO, May 2 (CP)—Prisoners at the Ontario Reformatory at Guelph learn more in less time than they could as apprentices in industry, says Col. Hedley Basher.

The reformatory superintendent told the Ontario Magistrates' Association Saturday the prisoners "don't have to spend the first nine months of their training sweeping up the shop and running errands for the boss."

"In some cases outside it is nine months before an apprentice learns the names of the tools he is going to use," he said. "We don't have any of that."

The prisoners' production record, however, was no match for the reformatory cows'.

"Our cows have set one world record and two Canadian records in milk production during the past year."

Dancing Most Popular

Man Papering Room Held Up By Gunman

EDGELEY, May 2—(CP)—Arthur Buel, 55, standing on a stool, was papering the living-room walls Sunday night when a well-dressed, fast-moving gunman jammed a revolver in his back.

It all happened so quickly, said Buel, that it wasn't until the bandit had stolen $38 and his watch —and fled—that Buel even got down off the stool.

End Of Flood In Sight At Morris

More Flood To Hit Winnipeg; River 24 Feet Up

WINNIPEG, May 3—(CP)—Army and civilian personnel today tackled the bloated Red river with the knowledge that the end of its three-week rise was in sight.

At two major points along its northward course through southern Manitoba towards Winnipeg the flood had begun to wane. At Morris, almost-submerged centre 41 miles south of here, it had apparently reached full peak.

But at Winnipeg, about the end of its course of destruction, there was more to come.

Steady Drop

Emerson, international border town 60 miles south, reported a slight but steady drop after more than a week of constant and frightening rises.

At Letellier, nine miles north, the water was at a standstill and was expected to ease off slightly.

Good news came from south of the border. Flood waters of the Red in North Dakota were declining steadily.

The reading at Grand Forks, N.D., yesterday was 15.9 feet—down nearly nine from the flood crest of 44 feet reached last week.

Battle Flood

Embattled Morris, its business section deserted and most of its 1,100 residents gone, fought to keep the rising tide out of the new hospital. Thirty Canadian army men from Winnipeg and a number of almost - exhausted volunteers kept building the sandbag makeshift wall around the building.

Water Tuesday night was five feet deep on one side and 30-odd inches on the other.

END OF FLOOD

SANDBAGGING HOSPITAL—Soldiers of the Winnipeg area took over dyking operations when civilian workmen became exhausted, and kept flood waters from forcing seriously-ill patients and expectant mothers from the hospital at Morris, Man. By Monday morning, the soldiers had strengthened the dyke and increased its height above the level of the flooding waters.

Police Halt Leaflet Handout

KINGSTON, May 3 — (CP) — Police escorted 15 Montreal youths through the city Tuesday night after warning them not to try to distribute pamphlets advertising a weekend Toronto meeting of the Leftest Canadian Peace Congress.

Members of the group, who identified themselves as belonging to a peace congress affiliate known as the Youth Assembly for Peace, said they would spend the night at nearby Napanee and resume their journey to Toronto early today.

Police Chief J. Truaisch met the group and stopped their procession of two automobiles, led by a white-clad torch-bearing runner. The travellers remonstrated with the Chief, claiming they were on "a worthwhile crusade." But the Chief told them to move on to the city limits and keep going.

They succeeded in distributing some of the pamphlets in Brockville Tuesday although many citizens refused to accept them. Most persons who took the pamphlets threw them away at once and street-cleaners were hurried into the area to clean up the litter.

Cost-Of-Living Index Released Thursday

OTTAWA, May 3—(CP)—With living costs now at their highest peak in history, the question is where do we go from here?

Canadians will know the answer tomorrow when the latest report on the cost-of-living index is issued by the Bureau of Statistics.

Bureau officials now are busy putting the last-minute touches to the March report. The index climbed 2.1 points in February to 163.7.

Which way it will turn is unknown. One thing is clear—there won't be a recurrence of the big jump in the rents sub-group. Since rents are surveyed quarterly the next change won't show for another three months.

Post Office Eases Mail Ban On Brokers

OTTAWA, May 3 (CP)—Post office officials said today that regulations denying use of the mails to a group of Toronto brokers "have been relaxed in some instances."

The mail ban was imposed on about 12 Toronto companies last April. It was made under a section of the post office act which gives authority for such action where here is reason to suspect the mails are being used to extract money by misrepresentation.

Officials said in a considerable number of cases the ban against mail delivery was extended to the home addresses of brokers involved.

"In cases where the department was given assurance that banned mail was not being short-circuited to home addresses the ban on residences has been lifted," said one official.

He estimated delivery of mail still was banned from some 15 home addresses.

At one time more than 80 Toronto businessmen were denied use of the mails under the regulation. However, the ban was later lifted from a number of businessmen who submitted proof that they no longer were connected with the companies involved.

The ban was imposed following investigation by postal authorities of complaints that the mails were being used to misrepresent stock being sold in Canada and the United States.

EDITOR DEAD

MONTREAL, May 3 (CP) — J. Amedee Roy, 75, financial editor of Montreal La Patrie since 1934, died in hospital today after a brief illness. One-time secretary of former provincial premier Honore Mercier, Roy worked on newspapers in Quebec, Montreal and Renfrew, Ont.

Rumor New Polish Purge To Tighten Grip By Reds

WASHINGTON, May 3—(AP)—Rumors that the Russians are planning a new purge of Poland's army and the Polish Community party have reached United States government officials here. If the shake-up comes, it will be the latest in a long series aimed at tightening Kremlin control over the Iron Curtain countries. State Department officials are convinced that the Russians have so entrenched their political agents and secret police in those countries that there is no possibility of an overthrow of Soviet power there in the predictable future.

Little Support

Little support is to be found among Congressmen and State Department experts on Eastern Europe for Paul Hoffman's views that the Soviet system of satellites will "crack and crack quite suddenly" some day from tensions now building up behind the Iron Curtain.

Persons familiar with Hoffman's views said his opinion was based on the belief that Eastern Europeans bitterly dislike Soviet Communism and that as Western Europe regains its power and economic health the Russians will be unable to hold the lid on the forces working against them.

Officials Hope

State Department officials generally hold hopes based on this line of reasoning. But they see little prospect of their hopes being realized.

Representatives Carl Vinson (Dem., Ga.) and W. Sterling Cole (Rep., N.Y.) called Hoffman's assertion "wishful thinking."

Gen. Omar N. Bradley, the country's No. 1 military leader, yesterday said there were no signs of let-up in Soviet pressure.

The latest purge known about in the West came in March when Verdimir Clementis lost his position of foreign minister in the Czech government apparently because Moscow suspected he had Western connections.

New Car Blazes, Hits Car, Post

TORONTO, May 3 —(CP)—Michael Dubey, 50, was taking one of his first driving lessons Tuesday night in his new automobile he'd saved more than 25 years to buy.

What resulted went like this:

Unexplained flames burst from the car's hood. Dubey became excited and stepped on the accelerator, the car jumped forward and struck another vehicle. Then it piled into a light standard. Dubey wound up in hospital with a fractured nose and face cuts. His new car was demolished by flames, blamed on a "mechanical defect."

His driving instructor, Stan Pudluby, and passenger John Jaciuk also went to hospital. Pudluby suffered possible concussion and Jaciuk dislocated his right hip and suffered severe cuts and bruises.

Say Blossom Sunday May Be Latest Known

ST. CATHARINES, May 3 (CP) —This year's blossom Sunday in the Niagara district shows signs of being the latest on record.

Unless the weather turns "terrifically hot and we have more rain," the blossoms may not make their debut even by May 13, one district fruit farmer said today.

In 1945, an all-time record was established when blossoms were out 100 per cent by April 14. Normal blossom time is between May 7 and 12.

This year's blossom queen will be crowned at the second annual blossom time ball.

Indo-China Showdown With U.S.-U.K. Seen

PARIS, May 3 — (Reuters) — The French government is preparing for a showdown with Britain and the United States over Indo-China at the conference of the three Foreign Ministers in London next week.

It was learned from the highest sources today that Foregin Minister Robert Schuman of France intends to put the point bluntly:

Either the United States decides to give France substantial and prompt aid in defending Indo-China against communist aggression, or else France may have to evisage bringing to an end her efforts to hold the strategic line in Indo-China unaided.

One high French official described aid at present promised by the United States of $15,000,000 (one-third in arms and two-thirds in medical and other supplies) as "ridiculously small."

Rainmaker Far Too Good NY Would See Sun Again

By ED. CREACH.

NEW YORK, May 3 (AP). — Personal to Dr. Wallace E. Howell, Chief Rainmaker, New York City:

Take it easy, will you, doc?

In one form or another, this plea went up today from New York baseball fans, golfers, rheumatism sufferers, and a number of other citizens who would like to see the sun again.

May Be Coincidence

It may be just coincidence but:

Last March 14, when the city hired Harvardas Howell to try his hand at artificial rainmaking, everybody was moaning about the water shortage. New York was being called "Sahara on the Subway."

Six weeks later the shortage is not over; but hardly a day has gone by that New York has not had rain, snow, sleet, fog or all of them in combination.

Offer Double

Tuesday the publicity-minded management of Palisades Amusement Park, across the Hudson River in New Jersey, offered to double Howell's $100-a-day salary—if he would call the rainmaking off.

The New York Post interviewed citizens at random, found the verdict four to one against rainmaking.

"If this stinking weather we've been having is due to artificial means, may those responsible suffer pains and aches as bad as mine!" said a writer to the Daily News.

Tried Eight Times

Howell has tried eight times to make rain, usually by "seeding" clouds. He declines to take credit—or blame. He says it is much too early to tell whether his efforts helped nature along.

Whatever the cause, New York's reservoirs were barely half full when Howell took over. Now they are at 83 per cent of capacity compared with 99 per cent a year ago.

Surrenders To Editor In Montreal

Young Thug Willing To Face Music, Would Marry First

MONTREAL, May 3—(CP)—Young Nick Cooper, wanted for questioning in connection with a bank hold-up and gun-battle a week ago here, Tuesday night surrendered to the city editor of the Montreal Herald—all for the love of a lady.

Red-faced Montreal police admitted after he had been turned over to them that they had been rushing heavily-armed officers at that very time to a summer cottage north of the city where Cooper was suspected of hiding out.

Elaine Masters, 19-year-old brunette, called the Herald Tuesday night and said: "Nick wants to turn himself in."

Meet Newspaperman

Shortly afterwards, City Editor Harold Gardner met the couple on a dark street corner and they accompanied him to the newspaper office. The couple were in each other's arms when Gardner met them.

"I'm willing to face the music—but we want to get married," said the 22-year-old Cooper before he was turned over to city police. He surrendered more than $2,000 in cash, which he told Gardner was part of the proceeds of the $4,000 Royal Bank holdup. Two youths have confessed to taking part in the robbery and a subsequent running gun battle with police and a third is in hospital suffering from a wound in the abdomen.

Cooper told Gardner he had escaped to New York with the proceeds of the robbery but had returned because he loved pale, pretty Elaine.

"I Loved Elaine"

"I loved Elaine and decided to return to see her," said the stocky, bushy-haired Cooper as he chain-smoked cigarettes at the Herald office. "We talked it over and came to the conclusion that I can't run away forever. Maybe it will be a year or maybe two but they'll finally get me. So I decided to turn myself in while I still had some of the money left and get the matter settled so that Elaine and I can be married."

Gardner wrote that Cooper had told him that he had spent part of the loot on his travels and part of it "gambling." He would not explain how he crossed the United States border. He also denied that he had any part in the shooting when four young men were surprised outside of the Royal Bank's Rosemount branch by Constables Gerard Ruel and Armand Bourret.

PM Declares Canada Content

OTTAWA, May 3 (CP) Prime Minister St. Laurent told the Commons Tuesday he knew of "no justification" for any statement by anyone that Canada is "dissatisfied" with her position in the Commonwealth.

He was commenting on press reports of a speech in which Prime Minister Malan of South Africa was quoted as making that statement about Canada. The report was called to the attention of the House by George Drew, Progressive Conservative leader who asked him to "remove uncertainty."

Mr. St. Laurent said the same dispatch referred to comments by Mr. Malan on dissatisfaction with the King's title.

This must be based on a resolution considered in the Commons two years or so ago when it was pointed out that the title was no longer "in strict accord" with the constitutional facts of the Commonwealth.

No dissatisfaction had been manifested but it had been stated that it no longer corresponded with the present situation. It included Ireland which no longer was a member.

He knew of nothing else to justify Mr. Malan's statement.

Ban On Receptions

TORONTO, May 3—(CP)—J. Palmer Kent, Deputy Chief Solicitor, said today Toronto may be forced to take action against home owners who rent rooms for wedding receptions and parties, in contravention of residential by-laws. The solicitor spoke to the Board of Control which was investigating reports that a resident in swank northside Rosedale district is using his Rosedale district is using his home for rented functions. The Board deferred action pending further examination.

British Dean Supports Mercy Killing

LONDON, May 3. (Reuters) — Dr. Walter Robert Matthews, dean of St. Paul's Cathedral, Tuesday night startled religious circles throughout Britain by supporting mercy killing.

Addressing the annual meeting of the Voluntary Euthanasia Legislation Society, the outspoken dean said he believes love and compassion should lead intelligent Christian people to support voluntary euthanasia as advocated by the society.

The 68-year-old religious leader added:

Christian Conception

"Surveying the arguments for and against, I have come to the conclusion that the society's proposal is quite in accordance with the Christian conception of human right and duty."

The principle of the sacredness of human personality did not, in his opinion, cover the case of a man who was incurably ill and relieved of pain only by administration of narcotic drugs.

"When we are confronted with suffering which, so far as we can see, can have no beneficial effect and which is wholly destructive in its consequences, there is, I urge, a prima facie duty to do what we can to bring it to an end."

Suicide Wrong

Quoting arguments that legalization of voluntary euthanasia would be equivalent to legalizing suicide and murder, the dean said suicide is wrong because it is the taking by a man of his own life solely on his own judgment. And there was no real analogy between the true crime of murder and what was proposed under voluntary euthanasia, he declared.

The dean, who has been at St. Paul's since 1934, said that nothing is more distressing than to see suffering transform a fine, firm character into something which could hardly be recognized as a friend.

Remarkable Recoveries

Some people argued that it was never sure that any case was hopeless, and it was true that remarkable recoveries had apparently proved the doctors wrong.

"I would not rule out altogether the possibility of a miracle," Dr. Matthews said. "But surely it is quite beyond question that there are cases which, from the human point of view, are incurable and where nothing but useless agony can be foreseen."

Advance of medical science had greatly altered the conditions of human life and therefore required adaption of accepted ethical standards, he said.

Lie Will Fly To Moscow May 10 To Urge World Leaders' Meeting

Hopes To See Stalin, Other Red Leaders To Press Conference; Situation Most Critical Since 1945

PARIS, May 3—(CP)—Trygve Lie, United Nations Secretary-General, said today he will fly to Moscow May 10 in an attempt to persuade Russia to agree to a conference of the U.N. Security Council and all world leaders. Lie told a press conference that he had proposed previously that the Security Council hold meetings with "heads of states and with cabinet members of all member nations." Lie left U.N. headquarters at Lake Success, N.Y., last month with the strong intention of going to Moscow.

He put off his final decision until he had consulted British and French foreign office officials on the Chinese question.

Sees Attlee

In London, Lie saw Prime Minister Attlee. In Paris, he has already seen French President Vincent Auriol and Foreign Minister Robert Schuman.

Lie said he expected to be in Moscow several days and to see Soviet leaders.

"If Premier Stalin is in Moscow and it can be arranged, I hope to see him," he said.

Lie's toughest problem is the crisis faced by the United Nations over the Soviet boycott of UN organizations. Since last Jan. 10 the Russians have been walking out of various UN meetings in protest against continued representation of the Chinese Nationalists.

Meetings Necessary

Lie told reporters today that meetings of the Security Council with world leaders are necessary because "the most critical situation since 1945 has developed this year, not only for the United Nations but for the future of the world itself."

Lie declared that a great and new effort must be made this year to bring the cold war to an end. He added:

"The first step clearly must be to restore the United Nations as a meeting place for negotiations and conciliation of differences and conflicts among the great powers.

Frost Offers Aid To Flood Victims

TORONTO, May 3 (CP)—Premier Leslie M. Frost today offered any possible assistance to the province of Manitoba in combatting flood conditions.

Mr. Frost wired Premier Campbell as follows:

"We are deeply concerned about the flood conditions in your province and I offer without reserve any form of assistance you may need. My deputy, Lorne McDonald, will arrive in Winnipeg Thursday evening and I have asked him to see you."

Mr. McDonald will confer with the Manitoba government with the view of determining what practical assistance can be offered.

Swank NY Bookie Raided Betting Slips Fill Truck

NEW YORK, May 3 (AP)—District-Attorney Frank Hogan swooped down on the swank Park Avenue office of million-dollar gambler Frank Erickson Tuesday and carted away a truckload of alleged betting papers.

The raid was the direct result of Erickson's admission before a United States Senate committee Friday that he runs a law-breaking $12,500,000-a-year country-wide bookie business in New York.

No arrests were made.

The investigators plan to go through the alleged betting papers with a fine-tooth comb to see if they can find grounds for prosecution.

Erickson's office is listed under the name of his brother, "Leonard J. Erickson, investments."

Erickson told the Senators he pays his brother $20,000 a year "to take his money to the bank."

On the Senate committee stand, Erickson said that in 30 years of making book in New York he had been arrested only three or four times and convicted only once—for loitering.

The committee has been studying a bill that would outlaw interstate transmission of certain gambling information in an effort to break gambling syndicates and cut down betting on sports events.

Erickson told the committee his "handle" was from $20,000 to $40,000 a day, but it sometimes slumped to $10,000.

Erickson said he takes not only local bets, but serves as a national "bookies' bookie" by accepting other gamblers' "lay-off" bets by long-distance telephone.

Rebounding Car Takes Life Of Bewdley Man

BEWDLEY, May 3 (ENS) — A Bewdley man was instantly killed Tuesday afternoon when struck down by a truck while walking along Highway 28, just north of Bewdley.

Dead is 74-year-old Sam Gyatt, a hired man who worked in this district.

Gyatt was killed after a truck collided with a car attempting to pass it and then rebounded into him. According to police reports the elderly man was walking south along the east side of the highway when the truck, driven by Stephen Lawrence, RR 1, Port Hope, turned out to avoid him.

At the same time as Lawrence swung his truck, a northbound car driven by Lloyd Grose of Toronto attempted to pass. The left front of the truck struck the right rear of the car and the former veered over to the east ditch, knocking Gyatt down.

The truck finished up in the ditch but the driver was uninjured.

An inquest will be held, the date to be announced later. The coroner was Dr. W. E. Wilkins of Cobourg.

The remains were taken to McFayden Funeral Home, Cobourg.

Left are three brothers: Edward of Bewdley, Belson of Baillieboro, and Caesar of Baltimore.

Corporal Douglas Wilson and Constable William Baluk of the Cobourg Provincial Police investigated.

Blown From Bed By Gas Blast

TORONTO, May 3 (CP)—A gas explosion in an east Toronto bakery today sent Archie McGuigan, 40, to hospital with burns, knocked the owner of the shop out of her bed on the second floor, and blew the front door into the middle of the street.

Mrs. Margaret Macdonald, the owner, said the blast broke all the windows in the front of the store.

A fire inspector said "usually there are a number of persons waiting for street cars at the stop outside the bakery. If there had been anyone there this morning they would have been killed for the window broke into a million pieces."

Cause of the explosion was not determined. It happened just as McGuigan opened the oven door to inspect baking bread.

Three Dead Following Ohio Truck-Bus Smash

ASHLAND, O., May 3 —(AP)—Drivers of a bus and truck and a woman passenger in the bus died today when the two vehicles crashed and burned near here.

Five passengers crawled from windows just before the bus burst into flame. They were treated for cuts and bruises.

Passengers who escaped from the bus said from three to five other passengers were trapped in it and perished, but police said they were mistaken.

The Greyhound bus, en route from Cleveland to Columbus, had just crossed a narrow bridge at a curve, a mile north of here when the collision occurred. The truck, an empty steelcarrier, was jackknifed across the two-lane highway.

Drew Suggests Communism Be Outlawed

OTTAWA, May 3 (CP) — A debate on Communism, its Canadian ramifications and possible threat to the peace of the world, has started in Canada's parliament.

It was initiated Tuesday by George Drew, Progressive Conservative leader who termed Communism an anti-Christ doctrine, the "most terrifying and brutal the world has ever known." He proposed that Communism and other "similar activities" be outlawed under the Criminal Code.

Prime Minister St. Laurent, External Affairs Minister Pearson and many other front-line speakers entered the discussion. It likely will continue today.

Most speakers agreed Communism was a menace, but cautioned against narrowing civil liberties by a criminal-code revision. The government's attitude was summed up by Mr. St. Laurent. He said:

"I would be sorry to see it become a crime to hold opinions, unless one did something in consequence of those opinions to threaten the security of the state."

In Decline

Mr. Pearson said Communism in Canada was in decline though Russian imperialism abroad was on the increase. Canada, he said, should not be led into "hasty or ill-considered action" either at home or abroad.

At the house opening there was a surprise announcement of the appointment of Gordon Isnor (L-Halifax) to the Senate.

Those entering the Communism debate besides Mr. Drew, Prime Minister St. Laurent and Mr. Pearson were Angus MacInnis (CCF-Vancouver East), Rev. Dan McIvor (L-Fort William), Rev. E. G. Hansell (SC-Macleod) and Donald Fleming (PC-Toronto Eglinton).

Oppose Motion

The CCF and Social Credit spokesmen indicated opposition to the motion.

In a 90-minute speech Mr. Drew said that Russia, through use of the fifth column, had brought 600,000,000 people under Surrenders

Two Have Confessed

(Eric McConnell, 26, and Jean Brunet, 25, have confessed to the robbery and will be sentenced today. George Wallace, 20, is in hospital recovering from the police-inflicted wound.)

"Can we get married right away before they come for Nick?" Elaine asked Gardner.

The newspaper man explained that it would be difficult because of the lateness of the hour—midnight—and the need for a licence. Miss Masters emphasized that she plans to press her case and be married to Cooper before he is sentenced. She said she met him shortly before Easter when they were co-workers in a Montreal manufacturing plant.

"He's Very Nice"

"He's very nice," Elaine told Gardner after police had taken Cooper away. "After our second date he took me home to meet his father and mother. She's a wonderful woman."

Detective Lieut. Romeo Longpre, head of the city hold-up squad, said Cooper would not be arraigned before Friday. Police said the suspect is believed to have taken part in other hold-ups in this district.

Nothing New

Receiving surrenders is nothing new to City Editor Gardner or to the Herald. Deskmen at the newspaper said that two years ago a man wanted in connection with the sex slaying of a small girl had walked into the city room and had surrendered to Gardner. He later was hanged.

Several years ago, a spectacular gambling world murder was solved when Louis Berkovitch gave himself up to Ted McCormick, then executive editor of the Herald, and confessed to the murder of Harry Davis.

RETURNS TO CITY

Horace Coon, originally from Peterborough, has returned to this city for a managerial post with R. Neill Ltd., George Street. He will be assistant to C. E. Blewett in the management of the store. Since leaving Peterborough he has been at branch stores in Ingersoll, Galt and Brantford. C. G. Collins is the general manager of Neill's.

Canadians' Charity Giving 30 Times Less Than Liquor

TORONTO, May 3—(CP)—Canadians annually spend 30 times more money on liquor and cigarets than they donate to charity, Dr. W. H. Stuart Stanbury, national commissioner of the Canadian Red Cross, said today. In an address prepared for opening sessions of the four-day annual meeting of the Red Cross central council, Dr. Stanbury said that in the year ended April 30, 1949, Canadians spent $630,000,000 on liquor and about $300,000,000 on tobacco. Contributions to health and welfare charities then were $35,000,000. During the calendar year of 1949 Canadian Red Cross income slightly exceeded $5,600,000.

These figures indicate the Red Cross "has not begun to tap all the subscribing resources of the country," he said. They represent a challenge to the thousands of volunteer workers "who sustain the organization."

He told the 100 delegates from the 10 provincial Red Cross organizations that "today is the time for exercising the faith which made the Red Cross and has kept it great. It must progress, or wither."

Report On Experiment

The council received a report Tuesday night on a 2½-year experiment at Toronto which said that children receiving scientifically-prepared meals at school showed marked physical improvement over a similar number of children who ate lunches at home.

A total of 600 children, selected from 1,000 pupils of three schools in Toronto's Moss Park area, were studied in the test in which the Hospital for Sick Children, Board of Education and other groups co-operated. The Red Cross national organization provided $125,000 for the survey.

Author of the report, Dr. E. Chant Robertson, woman nutrionist, said the children eating school meals showed improvement in growth, physical fitness, rate of tooth decay and absenteeism.

But the report added: "For the families living under similar conditions, the provision of a free noon meal at public expense would definitely not be justified. This is of interest to everyone who pays taxes. However, if the standard of living of the families was lowered, beneficial effect of an excellent school meal would no doubt be very great."

Transfusion Service

In another report Harold M. Leather, national chairman of the blood donor committee, reported a four-fold increase in the free blood transfusion service since it started in 1947. More than 12,000 Canadians received free Red Cross blood and plasma from the centres now operated in all provinces except Newfoundland and Saskatchewan.

L. A. Winter, honorary treasurer, reported 1949 income was $5,626,514 and expenditures $6,661,581. The blood transfusion service cost $1,602,221; various veterans' services spent $480,128 and nursing stations and clinics $1,348,902. From a special request fund, more than $500,000 was expended on British Columbia flood aid, another $132,000 on crippled children's work and more than $460,000 on international relief.

Fined $20 For Having Rum In His Car

Ross W. Heron pleaded guilty to a charge of having liquor in a place other than his residence in police court today and was fined $20 and costs.

Crown Attorney John A. Bradshaw said Heron had twice been seen weaving over to the wrong side while driving south on Water St.

He said when the police reached the car they found a young woman sitting behind the driver's wheel, but she said she couldn't drive. Beside her Heron was sitting. He told the court he had moved out from behind the wheel to start to get out of the car.

Police found two part bottles of rum on the back seat of the Heron car. The Crown attorney suggested a heavier fine than the usual $15 because of the circumstances.

Prices Steady Late On Toronto Exchange

TORONTO, May 3—(CP)—Prices steadied from early weakness as the session progressed on the Toronto Stock Exchange today. Moderate demand in a handful of leading industrials pulled that list slightly higher. Mining stocks also brightened as market leaders added.

Volume for the first three hours was 1,362,000 shares.

Paper stocks again featured the industrial list. International added 1½ at 48¾ and Consolidated and Eddy were ahead fractions. Utilities and steels also brightened. Liquors slumped on a loss of 1⅛ at 43⅜ by Hiram Walker's.

Base metals continued recent advances that have carried the list to the highest average price levels since 1937. Consolidated Smelters gained ⅝ at 103⅛ and Golden Manitou, East Sullivan and Steep Rock were in strong demand.

Recent featured performers in golds like Newlund mines were under brisk profit-taking pressure. Giant Yellowknife led junior producers slightly ahead on a gain of 15 cents at $8.70.

Home oil rejoined the western oil list following an absence of 16 months. The stock was delisted on Jan. 21, 1949. It opened today at $16 and dipped to $15.75. Other oil stocks were lower.

Color Photography Will Be Discussed

The Peterborough Camera Club was informed Tuesday evening that arrangements are completed for the Public Library on May 9 for a lecture on color photography by John Gerald of Ansco. A vote of thanks was extended to Ken Gwinn for obtaining the speaker and to Chris Kallay and Mr. Rickard for publicity direction.

V. R. Henry of PCVS teaching staff donated a large number of photographic books to the club library. It was suggested that the club exchange photo magazines with photographers in England and Mr. Leigh offered to assist in this project.

Rest of the evening was taken up with a discussion of advantages and disadvantages of various types of cameras. Bob Williamson conducted the forum with Jim Choate and Syd Bond demonstrating various features of Speed Graphic, Crown Graphic, and Commercial View cameras.

Widow Awarded $3,800 In Court After Accident

Mrs. Annie Ferguson, 67-year-old widow, 154 London St., was awarded $3,800 and costs by a Supreme Court jury today in a suit brought against David McCallum, Nassau, before Mr. Justice Wilson.

The civil action arose from an accident July 8, 1949, in which Mrs. Ferguson was knocked down by McCallum's car at George and McDonnel Sts.

Mrs. Ferguson told the court she had been walking north from Fanning's Laundry where she worked as an ironer. Before crossing McDonnel St., she said she stopped, looked east and west and started across. A short distance before she reached the north curb, she was struck.

McCallum told the court he had been driving his car north on George St. and was making a left turn to go west on McDonnel St. He said he slowed to about 10 miles an hour before starting to make the turn. He said he did not see Mrs. Ferguson, but did see a Jeep approaching from the west.

Object In The Sun

Just as he completed the turn he was blinded by the sun, but saw "an object" in the sun, jammed on his brakes and "felt a slight thud."

His car left skid marks five feet long according to Sergeant Leo Murphy and Constable Grant Gillespie of the city police force.

McCallum said he found Mrs. Ferguson lying face down on the pavement beside the right side of his car.

Blood was coming from her mouth and head.

Dr. Robert Bell testified he followed Mrs. Ferguson to St. Joseph's Hospital, after being called to the scene of the accident.

He said the skin and flesh had been ground away from Mrs. Ferguson's skull on her right forehead. He said there was no fracture, but she suffered concussion and was in a "very shocked condition." He said her whole face became black and blue and she had scraped her knees.

Aged Rapidly

He said as he treated her he was "struck with the rapidity with which she aged." He said she aged eight to ten years in the year since the accident.

Mrs. Ferguson complained of severe headaches, slight deafness, and at times her right knee gives out. She said she was "too nervous to stay alone" or go downtown.

She added that she had never been sick a day in her life before and had never had a doctor. She said she worked three years at Fanning's for 40 cents an hour, nine hours a day and sometimes overtime but "didn't mind it at all."

Dr. H. M. Yelland, who had examined Mrs. Ferguson for the defendant McCallum said she was not in very abnormal condition for her age. He said he thought she could do light housework.

On this he differed with Dr. Bell and Dr. Lloyd Thompson. Through her lawyer, Alex L. Elliott KC, Mrs. Ferguson was claiming $5,000 on the basis she could have worked another five years at her work which paid her about $1,000 a year. She also asked compensation for her pain and suffering and her permanent disability.

McCallum was represented by T. J. Carley KC.

The jury held that Mrs. Ferguson was not responsible to any degree for the accident.

Say Car Travelling 60 MPH Before Crash

LONDON, Ont., May 3 (CP)—A car driven by Robert Hanson, 25, of London was travelling more than 60 miles an hour just before it went out of control and crashed into a pole, according to crown evidence Tuesday at the opening of Hanson's Assize Court trial on a charge of manslaughter.

The youth is accused in the death of one of his four passengers, 23-year-old Pauline Neville of London. The others escaped with minor injuries.

The crash occurred on a suburban highway on the night of Feb 9 as several carloads of members of the So-Ed Club, a YMCA organization, were returning to the city after visiting a radio station transmitter.

The pickup truck is shown where it came to a stop in the east ditch. Eggs are scattered on the road. While Gyatt, the pedestrian, was killed, the drivers of both vehicles were uninjured.

Union Applies For Certification

TORONTO, May 3 (CP)—The Textile Workers Union of America (CIO) has applied for certification as bargaining agent for the employees of the Down Coulter plant at Trenton. Union officials said a hearing before the Ontario Labor Relations Board is expected within a month.

The United Textile Workers (AFL) recently lost a 16-week strike at the plant when a majority of employees responded to a back-to-work call by the company. Many of those who returned had switched allegiance to the CIO group.

End Of Flood

The troops were part of a 95-man contingent who are helping at danger points.

Railway crews fought to keep lines open through Southern Manitoba. The Canadian National Railways Tuesday night cancelled two trains running between here and Minneapolis, Minn.

They said lines were intact. The main danger point was an 11-mile stretch immediately south of Morris. Crews sought to buttress banks where water lapped inches from the tracks.

In Winnipeg, the river rose to 24 feet—three-quarters of a foot above the level reached in the disastrous 1948 floods.

Round-the-clock workers piled thousands of sandbags on already-augmented dikes in several Winnipeg suburbs. At one point—the fort of Lombard Street—it crossed CNR tracks to come within a block of the Winnipeg Grain Exchange.

At Crossroads

"We are at the crossroads. When the United Nations was established in San Francisco, it was created as an organization for the entire world. Now it is proposed to split the world permanently into two camps.

"That road will harden existing divisions in the world, create new ones, perpetuate and accelerate the armaments race, make economic warfare a permanent condition, condemn all the poor and hungry in many parts of the world to remaining poor and hungry, bring the propaganda war and its accompanying hysteria to new depths of intellectual and moral degradation and destroy the chance for agreement on control of atomic energy.

Third World War

"There is only one possible end to that road—sooner or later a third world war," Lie declared.

"The other road is the United Nations."

"SALADA" TEA

Wine, Bathroom, Beer, Vestibule, 2 Win Freedom

Of three men picked up by police on a complaint at 158 Charlotte St. two were freed when charges against them were dismissed and one asked for an adjournment for a week.

Thomas Flannery, Water St. N., was charged with having liquor in a place other than his residence and received a week's adjournment.

Charged with the same offence, Russell Bowers, 159 Aylmer St., said he did not have possession of the bottle of wine and Constable Allen Edmison testified he had only seen Flannery with the bottle in his hand.

Pair In Bathroom

Constable Edmison said he found Flannery and Bowers standing in a bathroom, but they were not known by the people at that address. He said both men had been drinking wine, but Bowers said he had only had beer to drink that day and not on those premises. Magistrate W. R. Philp KC dismissed the charge.

The third man, Roy Whatman, 230 McGill St., was charged with being drunk in a public place. Constable Edmison said he found Whatman lying on the stairs in a "helpless drunken condition."

Whatman denied he was drunk. He said he staggered when he walked because of a nervous condition and flourished his cane in court to show he needed help to walk.

He said he had been invited to the address to "talk to the old man" by a man he didn't know.

How are you going to get around the point that he is charged with being drunk in a public place? Magistrate Philp asked Crown Attorney John A. Bradshaw.

Vestibule Public?

Mr. Bradshaw said perhaps the vestibule could be considered a public place.

I hope my vestibule isn't a public place, the magistrate commented.

I think the people at 158 Charlotte St. had better lock their door so they won't have these people wandering in, Magistrate added.

Dismissing the charge he said to Whatman, "I have no doubt in my mind you were drunk."

No, by Jupiter, I wasn't drunk, Whatman insisted.

Peterborough Plan Accepted

Five years from the commissioning of Town Planning Consultants to survey the city's development, and three years almost to the day since the Faludi planning report was submitted officially, the City Council has adopted the "Thirty Year Program for the Development of Peterborough". It cannot be said that present and earlier Councils have rushed headlong into its acceptance, but in such affairs slow progress may be better than uncautious speed.

• • •

The adoption of the plan does not change the face of Peterborough overnight. The Council has merely approved the generalities a principle endorsed officially in 1945 when the city Planning Committee was established and Dr. E. G. Faludi briefed. The Faludi report is the basic chart but it is not law. It does not now, nor will it ever, govern every jog and crack of the city's fabric. It is a guide to the planning committee, the Zoning Committee and the Council in their efforts on behalf of all citizens present and future to bring about the orderly, efficient and economical growth of the city. The next thirty years are the most important; in them the pattern of the development must be established and the higgledy-piggledy growth stopped. Thus the Faludi report is termed a "Thirty Year Program."

• • •

The full and final power is not in the Faludi report. That is merely expert advice to the local authorities such as the citizens on the Planning and Zoning committees, many of whom have actively taken part in the planning since 1945. By adopting the Plan the Council has put an end to an ambiguous situation, and cleared the way for taking recommended action, for instance on the zoning by-law. The Plan is the egg; now the chicken can be hatched. In this case, the egg had definitely to come before the chicken. The Plan has been in official and unofficial minds for three or four years, and some of the building now in progress has been influenced, in situation and arrangement, by the Plan even before it was adopted. An example is the new city hall. So also have permits to private builders been given with an eye to zoning regulations yet to be made. Now the uncertainties can be met and appropriate by-laws enacted.

• • •

The first half of this century contorted Peterborough's physique. With planning and controls of the kind suggested in the Faludi report, the next half of the century may result in the city's finest flowering.

We Cherish The 'ugh

Altho Peterboro could be spelt so, thru thoro adherence to the American system of dropping silent letters, we have stood pat for Peterborough, and most respectable citizens of the city and Peterborough County are, we happily state, standing shoulder to syllable with us. An unexpected ally has come to our support, the Brantford Expositor, which gallantly devotes an editorial to the -ugh in Peterborough, with a side-long look at Brantford folk who would shorten that city's Marlborough street name.

Peterboro is a barbarism practised by railway companies on its signs, the Ontario Minister of Highway's minions, and, we regret to say, the Canadian Almanac, presumably because it is trying to save space and ink. Penny wise, -ugh foolish. Peterborough is the Honourable Peter Robinson's bo*rough*, the founder's memorial.

Even if there were no sound historical and linguistic reasons for retaining the ugh, there is an aesthetic one. Peterboro looks naked, mincing and short-panted. It gives an erroneous impression of our city as it really is: dignified like the long Peterborough, silent but reflective as the ugh, somewhat rambling and undulating as the sprawling city and the rolling countryside. Peterborough it is and shall be evermore; let the ugh-less waste away from their own niddering niggardliness.

Dr. Malan's Varicose Balloon

Dr. Malan, Prime Minister of the Union of South Africa has huffed and puffed up the most astonishing trumpery that has assailed Canadian ears in many a moon. In reviewing his own policies on Monday he forecast a change in the present title of the King, and says that Canada is the agitator for the change.

Dr. Malan and his Government may not approve of George being styled "of Great Britain, Ireland, and the British Dominions beyond the seas, King"; they might prefer that he be called King of South Africa, or to have their country drop its Dominion status with the King's title. But to scuttle around back alleys and come up at Ottawa's front door with the suggestion that it is Canada that is wanting the change, is more than the facts and a decent regard for honesty can allow. If Dr. Malan wants to float a trial balloon of that windy kind in South Africa, let him at least take the blame or credit, and not give Canada the guy-ropes.

Dr. Malan said that Canada "was particularly dissatisfied with her position in the Commonwealth," and that if any change is made by the senior Dominion, Canada's lead would be followed by South Africa. Who other than Dr. Malan thinks that Canada is "particularly dissatisfied with her position in the Commonwealth"? Some eastern Canadians in Quebec and some western Canadians on the prairies tease themselves by attaching a sinister meaning to the word "Dominion". But they are not all Canada, nor are they rabidly dissentient. Ottawa and London have both denied that Canada has made any move to have the King's title changed. Yesterday Prime Minister St. Laurent said in the Commons that Premier Malan's statement was unjustified.

Dr. Malan has pumped un-Canadian gas into a dime-store balloon.

The Unmade Cars Strike Back

From Detroit, through an automobile trade paper, comes an estimate of the cost of the strike at the Chrysler plant, which has been out of production since January 25th. Here is the analysis of the losses to the end of April:

To 10,574 dealers and factory, 455,000 cars and trucks worth $910,000,000.

To 6,500 suppliers, purchases worth $272,000,000.

To 89,000 strikers, wages worth $78,918,080.

To 50,000 idle supplier workers, wages worth $27,000,000.

The estimate is based on a total of 68 working days. The aggregate of the costs estimated above is $1,287,918,080.

Fun And Games

On May Day the town of Mosinee, Wisconsin, had a lot of fun pretending that the Communists had got it. The Chief of Police was shot—just pretending, of course—and various city officials were chased around by members of the American Legion pretending to be Red soldiers. The Mayor was hustled out of bed in his pyjamas and dressing gown and imprisoned for the day; unfortunately he suffered from a heart attack as night drew near, which must have dampened the merriment considerably. Apparently everybody had a lovely time, and congratulated themselves that it was just a game. At night several red flags were burned in a large bonfire.

It would be interesting to know what the Russians make of this kind of horseplay—particularly the burning of their flag. The Russians have a strong childish streak in them, but it does not take the same form as the childishness of the U.S.A. The news of the fun at Mosinee will probably convince any Russians who hear of it that all Americans are crazy. The flag-burning, we feel sure, will be used for any propaganda value that there is in it.

That might be more than at first appears. If the news reached the U.S.A. that several Stars and Stripes had been publicly burned in a Russian town, while a cheering mob looked on, what would be thought about it? Perhaps the fun-loving folk of Mosinee should have thought of that on April 30.

NOTE AND COMMENT

Dr. Brock Chisholm has been awarded a medal by United Nations. Not, you will observe, by Santa Claus.

A man who shot himself in the foot attempted to show how it happened and shot himself in the other foot. That fellow should give away his gun and take up the longbow.

A Detroit woman has been given a divorce because her husband kissed the dog in preference to her when he left home each morning. Without pictures of his wife and the dog we cannot offer an opinion on this case.

From The Critic's Notebook

THE BORZOI TURGENEV, translated by Harry Stevens (McClelland & Stewart).

THE first thing to be said about this collection of Ivan Sergeyevitch Turgenev's best-known works is that the translation is excellent. Excellent, that is to say, so far as a critic who knows no Russian may judge. But it reads excellently, with just enough foreign flavour to remind the reader that it is a Russian writer's work which he holds in his hand. Slowly the works of the important Russians are being re-translated, and their greatness is becoming more apparent to us; it is impossible to calculate what harm those earliest, muddy translations did to the reputations of remarkable men. Turgenev has been more fortunate in his translators than most; the complete translation by Constance Garnett is still, in many respects, the best, though that of Isabel Hapgood has its virtues; but Mr. Stevens' work is none the less welcome because others have done well before him. The book is also given value by an introduction from the pen of one of the leading authorities on Turgenev, Ayrahm Yarmolinsky.

The book contains four novels, beginning with "On the Eve", a study of a Bulgarian patriot who burns himself out in the service of his oppressed countrymen. "Fathers and Sons", which follows is probably Turgenev's greatest and best-known novel, the story of a young liberal, whose passion for reform ends ineffectually. Turgenev's unique blending of lyricism with an uncompromising realism appears very strikingly in this work; it would have been so easy to permit young Bazarov some minor triumph, but no—he dies an accidental and unheroic death, as hundreds like him did and continue to do in their attempts to turn the world in its course. "Smoke" is another exposition of Turgenev's liberalism; "Rudin", his first major work, is a study of a man whose capacity for analysis of himself and others inhibits any fruitful action on his part.

In addition three of the long short stories, including the exquisite "First Love", are presented in the book.

This book contains all that most readers will wish to read of Turgenev, and it is a generous portion. There will be a few, however, who will fall under his spell as people have been doing since his death in 1883, and they will not be content until they have read all of his work. For Turgenev, like every great writer, has the power to engage the fullest attention and affection of the reader and to absorb, for a considerable period of time, all that reader's attention, colouring his thought and leaving it substantially richer. He was one of the great novelists of all time, and to know nothing of his work is to leave a substantial and important part of the intellectual world undiscovered. R.D.

GENTLE GREAVES, by Ernest Raymond (Published by Cassel & Co.).

THE title of this book seems to me to be slightly misleading as the character of that name in the story is by no means the leading figure. It is the life story of Sir Theodore Allan Mourne, a publisher, and it is told in the first person; he has written the story and gives it to his natural daughter as he is dying, and he wants her to know that she is his real child and not just his god-daughter as she has always believed.

He starts from his early childhood when he is hated and despised by his sadist mother, and ignored by his self-centred but charming father, and follows the growth of his young love for his cousin Gentle Greaves through all its futility and longing and their final short-lived happiness together.

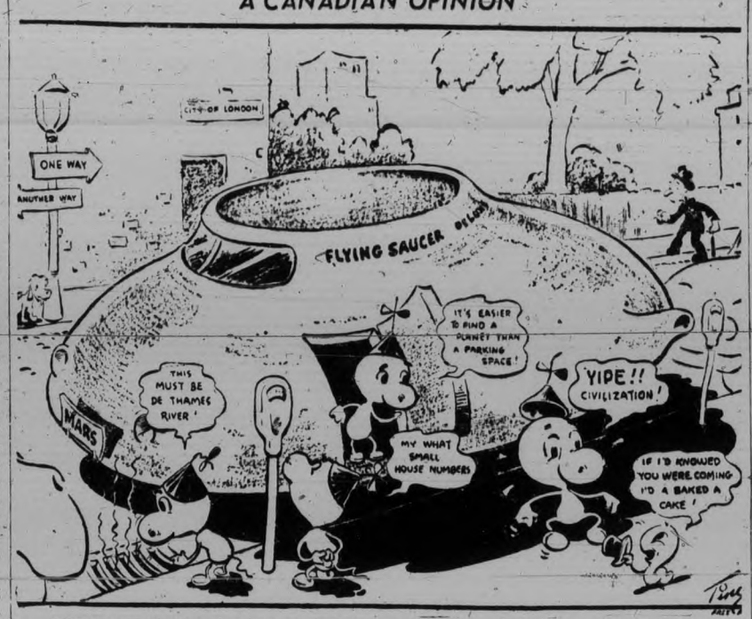
Having nothing but the worst expected of him as a youngster and only the worst believed, he becomes, surprisingly, an honour student at Oxford University and develops into a writer, but whilst working earnestly towards success he loses Gentle who becomes fascinated by a brash Irish doctor, Max Drury. After her marriage Theodore loses touch with her and tries to cover his hurt by pretending lack of interest in her existence, especially after he makes a very profitable marriage himself and has a son. Later Gentle invades his life again when his sister tells him she has disappeared after attempting to kill Max and begs Theodore to find her again. This he does and Gentle tells him of her terrible life with Max, his drunken orgies, his flaunting of other women in his own home until one night she had upbraided him with his behaviour and he had struck her. In a fury she grabbed the nearest article and returned the blow and he fell down the stairs to their apartment. Naturally in the ensuing scandal Gentle is blamed entirely for the whole affair and in desperation she has run off to find work alone. Since the war of 1914-1918 was then in progress they took what time they had together and then Theodor goes away and they receive no news of each other for some time, until Max seeks him out and tells him that Gentle is dying and wants to see him. When he arrives at the hospital he finds that it is in giving birth to his child, a girl, that Gentle has come to death. He stays with her while Max politely walks in the corridor until she is dead and then they make a private arrangement about the baby, which Max does not want quite naturally, and Theodore cannot take without branding her forever. He becomes Roberta's godfather and Gentle's mother looks after her until she also dies; then Theodore's mother and sister take over the child and finally he takes her himself. It is for Roberta that the story is written, because he wishes her to know the truth, and feels it will hurt her less to know that she is the child of his love than to believe that she was the unwanted child of Max. He lives long enough to hear her say she agrees with him, which is a kindly ending to his tormented and frustrated life. Mr. Raymond is a very able writer and although the book is a very long one it makes agreeable reading. The character of Gentle Greaves never seemed quite real to me but this does not detract from the plot. S.S.T.

A GIFT

"I am afraid, doctor," said Mrs. Brown, "that my husband has some terrible mental affliction. Sometimes I talk to him for hours and then discover that he hasn't heard a word."

"That isn't an affliction, madam," was the weary reply. "That's a gift."

A CANADIAN OPINION



THE TOURIST SEASON, Drawn by M. R. Tingley of The London Free Press.

Indians And Phoney Feather Hats

(THE OWEN SOUND SUN-TIMES)

WHEN will it dawn on Eastern Canadian Indians—and, what's more important on picture editors and newsreel photographers—that those wondrous eagle-feather war bonnets worn at every public appearance of Eastern Indians are just as phony as a three-dollar bill?

Such head-dresses are the proper attributes of the Plains Indians alone, and of only certain tribes of them at that. And further, only a very few individuals in these tribes ever had the right to wear a full-scale head-dress. For any Indian whose tribal origin was east of the present Manitoba-Ontario boundary, to wear a flaring, eagle-feather war bonnet, with or without 'coup-tufts", is a gross error.

It would, in fact, be just as consistent to show a Florentine nobleman of the Middle Ages wearing a tartan kilt and a Glengarry. And yet almost every day we see pictures of Mohawks, Ojibways, Onandagas, Iroquois and so on, bedecked in beautiful head-dresses that should be worn only by Western Indians of the Sioux, Arapaho, Cheyenne, Blackfoot, Piegan, Sarcee, Stony, Blood, Gros Ventre, Nez Perce, Crow or Umatilla nations.

THIS is not to say that the Indians of Eastern North America are not entitled to wear feather head-dresses. They have every right in the world; but the authentic Eastern full head-dresses are as different from the Western ones they unabashedly wear nowadays as night is from day.

The Eastern one was a compact affair with the feathers set close together and mounted rigidly on a head-band. Often eagle feathers were used, but generally they were the dark tail feathers of the immature bald eagle or the all-white tail feathers of the adult. The most-prized feathers, however, for Eastern Indian headgear were the buff-banded square-ended tail feathers of the wild turkey. And, as any study of old paintings or photographs of Eastern Indians will prove conclusively, the feathers on an early Eastern bonnet were mounted so they pointed a little inward toward the top.

The Western war-bonnet, on the other hand, is (and was) almost invariably mounted on the crown of an old hat, usually a Stetson. Before the white men came a bowl-shaped helmet of buffalo or elk-hide was used. Each feather is mounted separately in a tubular socket laced to the hat and has considerable outward "play". Almost without exception the feathers used were the white, black-tipped tail feathers of the immature golden eagle, for the golden eagle is the common eagle in the West.

But a Plains Indian couldn't just kill an eagle and build himself a war-bonnet. He had to earn the feathers first by various achievements called "coups". The average Indian never collected very many "coups" in the course of a normal lifetime, any more than the average white man collects a lot of money. If he was lucky, he might kill an enemy or two, steal a few ponies, and maybe be top hunter on a couple of buffalo drives; but generally speaking he would be doing pretty well if altogether he gathered a dozen or so "coup" feathers.

There wouldn't be enough for a war-bonnet, so he would compromise by wearing a couple of feathers twisted into his hair braids on ceremonial occasions, and he would carry the rest on his lance. But under the old "coup" system, the sub-chiefs and chiefs collected "coup" feathers for the various feats their warriors and hunters performed.

THUS, the big, ornate war-bonnets with "coup-tufts" of various grades were worn only by the top men of the Western tribes, and these chiefs and sub-chiefs guarded the privilege jealously.

Despite all this, however, apparently the first action of any Eastern Indian who is picked as a delegate at a conference or as a member of a welcoming committee for some visiting dignitary is to dig up one of these Western war-bonnets for the occasion.

And not only the Eastern Indians are at fault. On the West Coast, where the Plains-type head-dress is just as foreign to the native Indians as it is to those of Eastern North America, they do exactly the same thing. Not long ago we saw a picture of a famous Kwakuitl totem-pole carver from the northern B.C. mainland wearing a typical Ogalala Sioux war-bonnet. As far as authenticity was concerned he might as well have worn a Coldstream Guard's busby.

ARDUOUS MATHEMATICS

Fishing upstream from the little mountain town, the local schoolmaster came to the Sutton farm—and found Clem Sutton, his eldest and least bright pupil, prying large, flat-surfaced rocks from the pasture turf with a crowbar. The schoolmaster said: "Clem, there are seventeen rocks in that pile. If you were to tote nine of them across the creek there, how many would you have left?"

As Clem began to scratch his head, the teacher said: "Figure it out, Clem. You can give me your answer when I come back here later."

Two hours later the schoolmaster returned and asked: "Well, Clem?"

"Eight rocks left." Clem said. "But now, doggonit, I've got to wade acrost the crick and fetch them nine back. Pa wants to use 'em in the foundation for the new chicken coop."

Bible Message

(From the Authorized Version)

Now the serpent was more subtil than any beast of the field which the Lord God had made. And he said unto the woman, Yea, hath God said, Ye shall not eat of every tree of the garden?

And the woman said unto the serpent, We may eat of the fruit of the trees of the garden: but of the fruit of the tree which is in the midst of the garden, God hath said, Ye shall not eat of it, neither shall ye touch it, lest ye die. And the serpent said unto the woman, Ye shall not surely die; For God doth know that in the day ye eat thereof, then your eyes shall be opened, and ye shall be as gods, knowing good and evil.

And when the woman saw that the tree was good for food, and that it was pleasant to the eyes, and a tree to be desired to make one wise, she took of the fruit thereof, and did eat, and gave also unto her husband with her; and he did eat. (Gen. 3: 1-6.)

Let no man say when he is tempted, I am tempted of God: for God cannot be tempted with evil, neither tempteth he any man: but every man is tempted, when he is drawn away of his own lust, and enticed. Then when sin, when it is finished, bringeth forth death. lust hath conceived, it bringeth forth sin: and (James 1: 13-15.)

Smoking In Court

(The Manchester Guardian)

In the Penzance County Court, a man was giving evidence when smoke was seen pouring from the top of his head.

"Are you smoking?" asked the Registrar.

"No, sir," replied the man.

"Well, then, your head is on fire," commented the Registrar.

He was right. Possibly it was owing to the gas bracket above the box; witness's hair was alight. But they are a hardy breed in Cornwall. "He quickly put the fire out," the report concludes, "and continued his evidence uninjured." Presumably he resumed with the words: "As I was saying before my hair caught fire...." He has everyone's sympathy. It is the Registrar's opening line which is so telling. "Are you smoking?" he asked. Lawyers, like doctors, know the danger of jumping to conclusions. The great majority of men who give evidence in Penzance have no smoke pouring from the tops of their heads. This particular one had, and it was the duty of the court to find out why before issuing a rebuke or sending for the fire brigade. Note that the witness, presumably on oath, replied "No, sir." Strictly, he should have answered "Yes, sir, but intransitively." But strictly the gas bracket above the box should not set people's hair on fire. Like "Dr. Livingstone, I presume?" the question "Are you smoking?" was a question expecting a certain answer. It deserves a nook in the annals of the law.

President Truman Asks Senate To Speed Niagara Power Plant

WASHINGTON, May 3—(CP)—President Truman Tuesday asked the Senate to give prompt consideration to a treaty between the United States and Canada designed to step up power production on the Niagara River.

The treaty, signed in Washington in February, awaits ratification by the Canadian Parliament and by the United States Senate.

In a message to Congress, Truman asked that the agreement be ratified so that more hydro-electric power, "badly needed in the United States and Canada, can be made available at the earliest possible time."

Fair and Wise

Recommending its approval as "as a fair and wise treaty," the president said it should be considered in relation to other power sources in the northeastern United States, particularly the proposed St. Lawrence Seaway-power project. Hearings on this undertaking now are under way before a Congressional committee here.

"Considered from the power point of view alone . . . both the Niagara and St. Lawrence sources are badly needed," the Truman message said.

The President once again made it clear that he favors public construction of the additional facilities which could be developed by ratification of the Niagara treaty.

Not Determined

"This is a question, however, which is not determined by the treaty itself," he said. "It is a question which we in the United States must settle under our own procedures and laws.

"It would not be appropriate either for this country or for Canada to require that an international agreement between them contain the solution of what is entirely a domestic problem.

"All this treaty does is to make additional water legally available for power purposes in each of the two countries."

The treaty would authorize permanent allocations of Niagara river power for domestic, scenic, navigation and power purposes.

Canadiens Overwhelm Pats 5-1 In 3rd Straight Win

TORONTO, May 3 — (CP) — The annual east-west tussle for the coveted Memorial Cup appeared all over but the cheering today for a Quebec Province crew attempting to bring Montreal its second junior hockey championship in two years.

Montreal Canadiens, the east's smooth-clicking, scrappy pucksters, literally wrapped up the mug Tuesday night by overpowering Regina Pats 5-1 for their third straight victory without a loss in the best-of-seven final.

Their coach, little Sammy Pollock, predicted his lads would wind up the series in Montreal Thursday night. If his prediction doesn't pan out, additional games also will be played there.

With the majority of 8,429 Toronto fans cheering on here Tuesday night, the Pats must have figured they were back home. It encouraged them to stage a gallant fight but they wilted under pressure in the third period.

Hold Edge

For two periods the Westerners, one of the youngest squads to reach the Dominion junior final, held an edge in play with plenty of scoring chances. But time after time, they were either outlucked or muffed opportunities around the nets.

Herb Marshall, who potted two goals for the victors, broke the scoreless deadlock at 14.58 of the middle session. The Pats then were still battling for all they were worth, but the sting was taken out of their drive as the Canadiens opened up in the finale.

The faster Montrealers sailed in for four goals within seven minutes after the third period opened. Three markers came within the space of a minute and 46 seconds, driven home by Art Rose, Marshall and Don English. Kev. Rochford got the other.

From then on, the Montrealers tried to save a shutout for their goalie Roger Morrissette.

Paul Masnick won this angle of the battle for the Pats by slapping the puck past Morrissette with less than two minutes remaining.

The Pats outshot Canadiens 23-21 over the route.

Murray Armstrong, Regina coach, and team captain Morley MacNeill took the loss philosophically.

"You'll hear no beef from me," said Armstrong. "The Canadiens are a good club, and our backs are really to the wall now." Both he and MacNeill figured they might have won the tilt with better luck around the Canadiens' goal early in the game.

Canadiens were jubilant. Their chant as they hit their dressing room was "one-more-to-go" to duplicate the feat of Montreal Royals who won the cup last year.

Record Year In Toronto Ball

TORONTO, May 3 — (CP) — A record year for baseball in Toronto was forecast today as the Toronto Maple Leafs opened the International Baseball League season.

The crowd at this afternoon's game between the Leafs and Syracuse Chiefs is expected to break the record of 22,296 established last year at Maple Leaf Stadium. The fact that Sunday baseball has been legalized drew cheers at Tuesday night's annual banquet, when speakers included Ford Frick, president of the National League; Frank Shaughnessy, president of the International League, and Mayor Hiram McCallum.

The National League president in an earlier interview had said that a third major league is "as inevitable as tomorrow" and that Montreal is a major league city right now, while Toronto with Sunday ball "is also getting there."

Cautious Approach

On the major league angle, Mayor McCallum told the dinner meeting: "This may be the proper thing to bring Toronto into the sports limelight. We could support a National or American League team in this town. But let's be cautious of our approach. Treat it in a temperate way and next year, or the year after, we'll take our proper place in the sports sphere of the North American continent."

Shaughnessy, who had made a strong plea for Sunday baseball at the same dinner a year ago, said he believes "a great service has been done to Canada by Toronto favoring Sunday sport. We are going to go along to the good of everybody."

Don Ross, president of the Toronto ball club, said that Controller Allan Lamport and Fred Hamilton, Toronto sportsman, had more to do with the success of the Sunday sport campaign than any others. He noted that Lamport sacrificed newspaper support in the civic election to plug for Sunday sports.

Charles Watson, another Toronto sports leader, called the vote for Sunday sports "a victory for the tolerant people over the prejudiced people."

Via Port Hope comes further info on the Lakeshore Baseball League. Eight teams in, with Peterborough going intermediate "A" this season instead of junior "A", while Cobourg, Bowmanville, Whitby, Lindsay and Port Hope are intermediate "B", Colborne intermediate "C" and Oshawa as a junior "A" entry. That should put everyone in some sort of a playoff or other. Locals are now slated to open in Port Hope on May 20 as Oshawa is at home to Whitby, and Lindsay at home to Cobourg. Roy Dodge of Cobourg is president again, Sid Little of Port Hope vice-prexy, and Jim Cromble of Bowmanville the secretary. Twilight tilts will be seven frames unless both clubs agree to go nine. Jack Billingsley and Pat Calladine are the two Peterborough umps named in the list of arbiters.

Eddie Murphy and Johnny Russelle spent last week-end looking over some ball clubs in New York State with an eye to bolstering the Petes in the Viaduct League. Indications point to the addition of an outfielder who performed for Ogdensburg and a college infielder, but they're still after another good twirler. The better players of last year's local team—runners-up for the COBL title and provincial senior "B" champs—will be available again, including Danny Brown and Joe Lowery, imports a year ago. Pat Wilson is doubtful at the moment, dickering with Batawa as a playing coach. But the team will be considerably stronger than a year ago.

Baseball Opens May 20

Big thing, of course, will be floodlights in Riverside, though the team will play the first part of its schedule in the day time till lights are installed during June. Schedule opens here May 20, and there'll be a game in Peterborough on the May 24 holiday. Drills on nightly now at six with a practice at 1.30 p.m. Saturday in the park. Six starters in the circuit, three in Toronto, one from New Toronto, Oshawa and Peterborough. Each has 20 home games, followed by play-offs, and no doubt the odd exhibition will be staged here, too. After all, floodlights do cost money.

Al Watkins reminds us that the annual meeting of the City Baseball League for re-organization purposes will be held tomorrow eve at 7.30 in the YMCA. Everyone interested is invited, especially officers of the past, last year's managers and coaches, and all prospective ones, as well as team representatives. They'll present reports, elect officers and make plans for the season. This is a large organization for boys, one affiliated with the OBA, and it should have its best year in this campaign now that floodlights are assured at Riverside. Lots on the agenda Thursday evening.

Softball Begins May 19

Les Calladine has been appointed umpire-in-chief for the season in the men's City Softball League, other umps being Bill Leggitt, Holly Mowry, Al Lemoire and Fred Smith. Both Harold Dormer and Cy Whatley will act as spares, if needed. New umps are on probation for three games. Opening date of the schedule will be May 18, but the schedule cannot be drawn up yet as there are but three sure entries: Johnny Russelle's Mutual Benefit, an East City team handled by George (Red) Sullivan, and Jim Carver's UEW crew. Cobourg may yet be taken into the loop if another local entry isn't forthcoming right shortly.

Senior "A" lacrossers are drilling nightly at seven in Miller Bowl under direction of Coach Red Creighton. An item from Owen Sound indicates the Crescents, who finished second last year, will be strong again. They've added Jack Foote—no stranger in Peterborough—and will have J. J. Hill, also. Lloyd Wootton and Harry Kazarian, who were tempted to come here, apparently decided to throw in their lot again with the Crescents and playing coach Doug Gillespie. Owen Sound have most of their regulars of 1949 but lost Don Ashbee to the Petes. Latter also have two British Columbia players and Jerry Fitzgerald of St. Kitts, among others, and most of last season's better homebrew players.

Here and There In Sport

By The Canadian Press

With a crowd of more than 20,000 in prospect for the International Baseball League opener at Toronto today, officials of the Toronto club Tuesday night professed gloom over the fact they couldn't handle the demand for tickets.

Manager Joe Ziegler had a desk stacked with currency and requests for seats, but all seats have been sold except for 3,000 in the left-field bleachers and about 3,000 in temporary stands, all of which went on public sale today. The stadium has seats for 17,765.

At Louisville, Ky., Black George, a three-year-old son of Reaping Reward, got out in front and stayed there against a stretch challenge by Middleground to win Tuesday's one-mile derby trial by two lengths.

Running on a sloppy track and in a cold rain which never ceased all afternoon, the black colt jumped into the lead as the field of 11 left the chute and never looked back. He rewarded his backers with a whopping $33.20 for each $2 wagered.

King Ranch's Middleground, the short-priced favorite, came up to look at Black George as the field turned into the stretch, but quickly fell back and finished two lengths behind the leader.

Middleweight champion Jake La Motta Tuesday at New York agreed to defend his title in Yankee Stadium June 14 against an opponent who will be named in two weeks.

Jim Norris, president of the International Boxing Club, made the announcement after conferring with the titleholder at the IBC offices in Madison Square Garden.

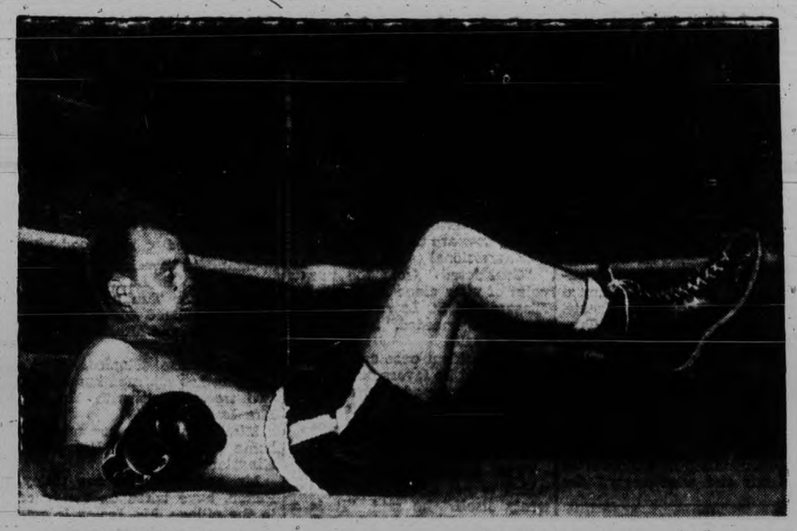
The man who posed as Tuzo (Kid) Portugez, Central American middleweight champion, must face trial in district court for fraud.

Jose Rafael Aviles, 23-year-old Puerto Rican, is charged with "cheating and defrauding" sponsors of an April 5 pro fight card at Wichita, Kan.

He was bound over for trial on the fraud charge, then he went back to jail, unable to post a $3,000 bond.

The future of Pacific Coast League hockey in San Diego rests in the hands of a San Diego group.

Art Chapman, general manager of the Buffalo American Hockey League club which controls the Skyhawks, San Diego entry in the Coast loop, said his organization does not plan to ice a team next season, but is willing to sell its interest.



STEVE BELLOISE is shown after being floored in the second round of his recent fight in the Montreal Forum ring by Laurent Dauthuille, French middleweight title contender, which was stopped in the seventh round by referee Tommy Sullivan and awarded to Dauthuille via a technical knockout.

Wm. Mayfield Named To Head OBAD

William Mayfield of Peterborough was elected president of the Ontario Bowling Association of the Deaf at the annual bowling tournament held in Toronto. R. Hawthorne of St. Catharines is vice-president, the secretary-treasurer being Frank Mair of London, and directors: Howard Lloyd of Brantford and Don Simonds of Toronto. Past president George Forfar was praised for his fine work during the last five years.

Miss Core of Sudbury was crowned beauty queen with Patsy Richardson of Toronto second, and Miss Hay of Fletcher third. The contest attracted some 300 deaf people. Entertainment and dancing followed the bowling tournament.

The Winners

With 26 men's and 10 ladies' teams competing, captains of the winning ladies' teams were: R. Butnari with 2681 pins, P. Malyk 2526, S. Rayner 2191, R. Stein 2166, all of Toronto. Men's play was in three classes. In "A", H. Lloyd of Brantford had 3018 with D. Butnari of Toronto 2872, and F. Meyette of Peterborough 2850. In "B", B. Hawthorne of St. Catharines hit 2732, C. Hart of Toronto 2727 and F. Dixon of Ottawa 2723. In "C", J. Crough of Windsor rolled 2288, A. Hazlitt of Toronto 2271 and J. Driscoll of Oshawa 2250.

Patsy Richardson of Toronto took ladies' high three with 592 as Mrs. B. Johnston of Toronto had high single of 294 to break the record held by Mrs. Malinsky of Toronto (286) since 1942. Men's high three went to N. Wedge of Kitchener with 749, as H. Hemphill of Ottawa led in singles with 315.

Jolson Told He's Dead

PALM SPRINGS, Calif., May 3 —(AP)—Singer Al Jolson, 63, routed out of bed today by a report that he was dead, said: "I must be getting up in the world. This sort of thing is supposed to happen only to Bing Crosby." It's a standing joke in Hollywood that Crosby feels he's slipping if he fails to hear at least one report of his death a month.

St. Louis "Cop" To Test Aussie Champ

No holds are barred when two powerful, experienced and rough wrestlers like Fred Atkins and Warren Bockwinkle clash in a main bout. A. they will be doing tomorrow night in the three-bout card at the Brock Arena. Big Bockwinkle has been known for years in the grapple ring as a "policeman"—a punishing stumbling block for husky wrestlers on their way foward a titular try. He plays it rough at all times, having the size and experience to back it up, and referees hate to work his bouts. Fred Atkins, Australian champion, can be just as rough against such an opponent and he is one of the strongest men in the game today.

This top bout is an outstanding one and should pack in the customers, who will see a red-hot struggle. And the match is ably supported by two fine prelims. Popular Johnny Barend meets the hated and huge Hi Lee in the semi-final. Some fans think Johnny is being tossed to the wolves, but his speed and skill may overcome Lee's brute force and illegitimate stuff. Roy McClarity faces a hard and mean opponent in Al (Krusher) Korman in the prelim.

It is a star-studded show for grapple followers here Thursday night.

Red Sox Swamp Indians 6-1 As McDermott Hits Stride

By JOE REICHLER,
Associated Press Sports Writer.

Credit New York Yankees with an assist should Maurice McDermott fulfill his promise of developing into a winning hurler with Boston Red Sox.

During the recent spring drills when McDermott came up with indifferent performances, a Red Sox official confided:

"That McDermott could become a great pitcher if only he gets serious about his job. The trouble with him is that he's too cocky. What he needs is a good pummelling. If some club could pin his ears back—but good — he might get some sense into his head and realize he must produce first and strut later."

McDermott got his pummelling alright. The Yankees took care of that last Wednesday. A dozen men faced McDermott in less than two innings and eight reached base.

It seems that was the lesson McDermott needed. In his next start, Maury pitched one of the best games of his big league career. That came Tuesday when he hurled the Red Sox to a 6-1 triumph over Cleveland Indians.

Only Four Hits

The gangling 21-year-old lefthander allowed only four hits and missed a shutout when Joe Gordon slammed a ninth-inning home run.

Maury had a no-hitter for six innings. An infield single by Larry Doby in the seventh ended his dream in that direction.

Ted Williams helped Boston ring up it fifth straight triumph with his fourth home run.

Brooklyn Dodgers gained revenge for Monday night's loss to St. Louis, trouncing the Cardinals 10-3. Preacher Roe returned to form with a well-scattered 10-hit effort. Four hits, an error and a couple of walks helped the Dodgers to a big six-run inning against Howie Pollet.

Pittsburgh shelled Warren Spahn from the mound in the first inning with a four-run outburst and went on to defeat Boston Braves 6-1. The Braves' lefthander had won his first three starts.

The Cubs outlasted Philadelphia Phillies in Chicago 10-8. The Cubs teed off on lefty Ken Heintzelman for seven runs in the first two innings and staggered through despite four errors.

Once again, rain played havoc with the schedule, washing out four games.

Surprise Deal Has Success

By The Associated Press

Branch Rickey, president of Brooklyn Dodgers, pulled a surprise switch at the end of last season when he swapped managers of his two Triple-A clubs, St. Paul of the American Association and Montreal of the International League.

The move sent Clay Hopper to St. Paul and brought Walter Alston to Montreal.

Thus far, the 'deal" is working out 50 per cent.

Hopper's St. Paul Saints are last in the American Association. Alston has Montreal flying atop the International League, with six victories in seven starts. St. Paul is 1-6.

Pitching has been the keynote of Alton's success. Four of his eight starting hurlers have gone the full distance, Turk Lown turning the trick twice. Clyde King and Tommy Lasorda were the other route-goers.

After spending the first two weeks on the road, the league's "northern" clubs—Montreal, Toronto, Buffalo and Rochester—open their home season today. There were no games scheduled Tuesday.

US Navy Will Abandon Midway, Strategic Base

WASHINGTON, May 3.—The withdrawal of U. S. navy personnel from Midway—that aptly named atoll in the heart of the vast Pacific—will close a chapter of American military history which has dramatic elements of national loss and pride.

Midway atoll, situated at the northwest end of the Hawaiian Islands, 1,300 miles from Honolulu, is a coral circle encircling two islets, Sand and Eastern, notes the National Geographic Society.

In U. S. hands when the Japanese struck at Pearl Harbor, this fortified position was an early enemy objective. American victory over the major Japanese attack in the June, 1942, Battle of Midway ended Japan's hopes for capturing the "sentinel for Hawaii."

Though at heavy cost in men and equipment, the battle also taught valuable lessons on sea-air co-ordination and opened the way for American counter attack in the South Pacific.

Midway's central location, has made it not only strategic in war but useful for peacetime communications. Roughly halfway between the Asia and North America coasts, the islands are 2,545 miles from Tokyo; 3,205 miles from San Francisco. The Soviet port of Petropavlovsk, in Kamchatka, is 2,105 miles northwest Kodiak, Alaska is 2,375 miles northeast.

Abandon Base

Today, following the navy's decision to abandon the islands, reportedly because of budget problems, Pan-American Airways has announced that it too will no longer maintain a base there. The radio navigational facilities of the Civil Aeronautics Administration at Midway also are scheduled for discontinuance.

Thus, except for the remaining cable personnel, the islands once more will become the lonely haunt of the birds for which the atoll long has been famous.

Best known of Midway's winged inhabitants, which include canaries, gannets, frigate and moaning birds; terns, bosuns, and boobies, are the friendly gooney birds, whose amusing antics helped ease the monotony and keep up morale of the marine wartime garrison.

British Feeling Changes Toward Reds

By STANLEY RICH

HONG KONG, May 3—(AP)—British feeling in this Crown colony is hardening against the Communists.

The tide of opinion has turned from three months ago, when Britain offered to recognize the Chinese Communist People's Republic at Peiping. At that time Britons in Hong Kong hailed the move as practical politics.

Today, the colony is openly questioning the wisdom of London's decision.

Britons here resent it because their representative in Peiping has been snubbed and, from their point of view, insulted by the Chinese Communists.

Hong Kong's British press, which usually reflects the feelings of trade quarters, is steadily becoming more caustic about relations with Peiping.

Time To Pull Out

The Telegraph broke the ice several weeks ago. It said unless the Chinese Reds made an "immediate and genuine" change of policy British business men should begin a "wholesale liquidation" of their interests in China.

A change of feeling also has been noted among the Chinese colony in Hong Kong. A colonial officer was commenting on how Britain broke a Communist-inspired strike of Chinese railway workers last January.

"A year ago," he observed, "the Chinese here were all for the Communists, now they're against them. Why? Because from here you can see Communism working. The border's open and Canton's less than a day away.

"They know what's happening in Canton and they don't want any."

Pay Warm Tribute To Senator G. B. Jones

OTTAWA, May 3 (CP)—Deep, warm tribute to the memory of Senator G. B. Jones was paid on Tuesday in the Senate.

The life of the Progressive Conservative member for New Brunswick was held by Senator John T. Haig as a "great illustration of what a young man in Canada can do."

Senator Haig, Progressive Conservative leader in the chamber, recalled that Senator Jones, who died last week at the age of 84, had started out with nothing, to "carve a great place in Canadian politics, business and education."

The remarkable thing about him, said Senator Haig, was that besides his other attributes, he never had been beaten in 58 years as chairman of the Apohaqui, N. B., superior schools.

Labor Has Weekend Party To Decide Election Policy

By ALAN HARVEY.

LONDON, May 3 — (CP). — Labor holds a week-end "house party" this month to decide its course at the next general election.

In pastoral suroundings at Dorking, Surrey, remote from the nightmare sound of parliamentary division bells, party leaders assemble May 20-21 for their first major policy meeting in more than a year.

It is probably broadly true to say that the conference's main problem will be to determine whether the next election will be fought on the basis of more Socialism, or less Socialism. Nobody knows when the vote will be, but the consensus currently favors November.

The last Labor policy gathering was held early in 1949 at Shanklin, Isle of Wight. This was the assembly whoch produced the program for last February's election. It included proposals, now in abeyance, for nationalizing several new industries, including insurance.

Backtracked

This caused bruised feelings in Britain's big co-operative movement, which traditionally supports labor and has its own big insurance business. Labor leaders tacitly admitted a lapse, and backtracked a little.

This time the national executive is taking no chances. The Dorking conference has been broadened to include co-ops and trade unions, which contribute the bulk of the party's financial support.

Few concessions to Labor's left wing are likely to emerge. The party's minute majority in Parliament, plus union preference for practical rather than ideological policies, may swing opinion to the right.

For such a policy, Herbert Morrison, Deputy Prime Minister seems sure to be a leading apostle. A clue to what he may have in mind emerged in a speech last Friday when he said that nationalization is not the only way of socializing industries.

Among the others was the method used in agriculture where "we find the government and producers going into a new type of partnership . . . that as far as I know, has not yet got a name."

It was decided to sponsor a repeat performance of Teen Town Revue on May 19, and the members were asked to provide candy for sale that night. The following committee was named to take charge of the candy: Mesdames H. W. Roche, B. Jewell, R. Jones.

Plans were made for the district annual meeting to be held in Havelock Town Hall on June 15. Nominations were made for the election of the district officers which will be forwarded for consideration.

It was decided to have printed programs for 1950-51, the following program conveners being appointed: May, Mrs. W. Rice; June, Mrs. F. McKenzie; September, Mrs. H. W. Roche and Mrs. G. W. Chiles; October, Mrs. G. Rigby, Sr., and Mrs. B. Jewell; November, Mrs. H. Hoard and Mrs. W. M. Platt; December, Mrs. H. Pollock and R. Melville; January, Mrs. J. Hoffman and Mrs. J. Wilde; February, Mrs. W. Johnston and Mrs. Chatterton; March, Mrs. R. Anderson and Mrs. R. Brown; April, election of officers.

A letter of thanks was read from Mrs. L. Colquhoun for flowers received during her recent illness. Mrs. W. Rice exhibited crochet work and a piano solo was played by Miss Jean Kennedy.

The treasurer, Mrs. H. Pollock, reported a balance of $39.25 and that the repairs to the piano cost $12.

TV Spat Causes Rift

PASADENA, Calif., May 3 —(AP)—Mrs. Ardith Engelhardt said Tuesday life wth her television wrestling fan husband was just too exhausting.

She testified in her divorce suit that while she and her husband, Richard, 33, were watching the video grunt-and-groaners last Dec. 23, an argument ensued.

"He pulled me off the couch and grabbed my toe in what he called a step-over toe hold," she testified.

"Then he grabbed my arm. He called that his short arm-bar."

She got the divorce.

Asks Presbytery Re-affirm Infant Baptism

TORONTO, May 3 —(CP) — West Presbytery of the Presbyterian church was asked Tuesday to reaffirm its belief in infant baptism. But it adourned without taking action.

The request was made by Rev. R. C. Creelman of suburban Weston. He referred to the case of Rev. Wilbur Crandall, United Church of Canada minister at Bethany in the Peterborough district, who refuses to baptize infants on the ground there is no warrant for it in the Bible.

"All the sects and screwballs along Bloor Street will be taking this up," Mr. Creelman said. "They are dunkers."

Must Let Electorate Understand All Issues

TORONTO, May 3 (CP)—Dr. W. A. Mackintosh, vice-principal of Queen's University at Kingston, said Tuesday that Canadians must decide what government welfare expenditures will produce most effective results, "because we cannot have all we want."

Addressing a combined annual meeting of the Bureau of Municipal Research and the Citizens Institute of Canada, Dr. Mackintosh said:

". . . Ultimately the electorate will make the choice. But, people must understand the issues and the issues must be reduced to understandable terms."

Labor Loses Control

GLASGOW, May 3 (AP)—The Labor party has lost control of Glasgow—Britain's second biggest city—for the first time since 1933. In a municipal council election Tuesday the Progressives (Conservatives) captured two seats from Labor to get a three-vote majority on the city council. The line-up now is 57 Progressives to 54 Labor members.

Stassen Calls Truman Worst President

NEW YORK, May 3. (AP) — Harold A. Stassen Tuesday night called President Truman the cleverest politician and "the worst President ever to occupy the White House."

He said Truman is embarking on a political tour of the Western States "to try and get a puppet Congress."

Stassen, president of the University of Pennsylvania and former governor of Minnesota, called on Republicans to "meet the 1950 situation brought about by . . . his (Truman's) use and misuse of the great power of his office" by:

1. "Fighting back vigorously and hitting hard in the exposure of the conditions of his administration.

2. "Bringing forward definite, sound, constructive measures to meet the problems of our country at home and abroad.

3. "Organizing and working and voting with a thoroughness and a drive such as we have never shown before."

Personal Role

Stassen, unsuccessful aspirant for the Republican Party's presidential nomination two years ago, addressed the women's auxiliary of the New York Republican County Committee.

Stassen called Truman's forthcoming western trip an indication that the President "will take an all-out personal part in the congressional elections."

"This," he said, "should not be taken lightly."

Stassen said the President "will travel across the nation in a special train, with his trip paid for out of the taxes of the nation.

"He will go out to the Grand Coulee Dam—the plans for which were prepared under President Hoover; the construction of which was carried on by President Roosevelt; the payment for which was voted overwhelmingly by both Republicans and Democrats; and standing at the edge of that dam he will strike a pose and act as if he built it with his own little Missouri hands."

Trucking Industry Opposed To Further Highway Regulation

OTTAWA, May 3 (CP)—The trucking industry is opposed to further regulation of highway transport, the Canadian Automotive Transportation Tuesday told the Royal commission on transportation.

Opening argument as the commission inquiry entered its last phase, the truckers' legal counsel expressed opposition to any type of "artificial restriction" for the benefit of the railways.

Fred R. Hume of Toronto, the association's counsel, was replying to claims of some railroad spokesmen before the commission that regulation of trucking should be extended with a view to discouraging "uneconomic competition" against the rail carriers.

Mr. Hume said the railway unions wanted the trucks "off the road" while the Railway Association of Canada wanted their operating radius restricted to certain mileages.

Declaring he was replying from the point of view of the public, he said that "we are forced to the inevitable conclusion that nothing should be done about it because to artificially restrict one branch of an industry for the benefit of another is not in the public interest.

The trucking industry, he said, is "absolutely opposed" to Federal regulation similar to that imposed on the railroads "because the reason for those regulations do not exist in the trucking industry and the imposition of such regulations would merely be artificial restrictions imposed upon the trucking industry for the benefit of railway economy.

Too Many Rulings

The truckers' counsel suggested it was possible to have a national transportation policy without the necessity of all forms of transportation being under Federal regulation. The Federal government could formulate policy on agencies under their control, while the provinces could do the same.

"The national transportation policy must be one that promotes the inherent advantages of all transportation agencies in Canada without restricting one for the benefit of the other," Mr. Hume said.

Both the railways and trucks had inherent advantages, he said, and the user of transportation should be allowed to determine which form had the best advantages for his needs.

Mr. Hume attacked claims of railway spokesmen that the trucking industry now provides "unregulated competition." He said they apparently considered "regulation" only as applied by the Board of Transport Commissioners, the body which has jurisdiction over the railways.

Provincial regulations covered the trucking industry, he said, and it was "absurd" to say it was unregulated.

US Pension Plan Said Not So Good

OTTAWA, May 23, (CP)—Dr. George Davidson, deputy minister of welfare, said Tuesday that many Canadians now receiving old-age pensions would not qualify for pensions in the United States.

Testifying before the parliamentary committee on old-age security, Dr. Davidson said the United States residence and citizenship provisions in old-age pension legislation were no more generous than those in the Canadian legislation.

In fact, he said, some United States regulations were less generous. This had the effect of narrowing the number of pensioners.

He outlined for the committee the two pension systems in effect in the United States and listed some of the amounts paid by various states. They ranged from a low of $18 a month to a high of about $80 a month. The payments start at 65 years. Canada's top pension amounts to about $50 a month and is payable to needy persons 70 years and over.

Owen Lattimore Denounces Bundez Talk

WASHINGTON, May 3 (AP)—Owen Lattimore denounced as "hogwash" today Louis Budenz's testimony connecting him with the Communist party and called it the product of a twisted and malignant personality."

He said no "nonest man" could believe Budenz.

Under oath before a Senate committee, Lattimore swore again that he is not a Communist or a Soviet spy, and said such accusations against him "are not supported by a shred of evidence, perjured or otherwise."

Lattimore asked that the Senate group "render its verdict" in terms that would tell Senator Joseph McCarthy (Rep. Wis.) he "has been caught out in his fraud and deceit" for making the charges against Lattimore.

Infested By Reds

The Senate foreign relations sub-committee is investigating McCarthy's charges that the state department is infested by Communists. Making these charges in a Senate speech, McCarthy named Lattimore, a Johns Hopkins University professor and occasional consultant to the state department, as a Communist.

Lattimore denied that in testimony to the committee April 6.

Then McCarthy produced Budenz as a witness. Budenz is a man who was high in Communist circles for years and once edited the party's newspaper, The Daily Worker. He renounced Communism in 1945, returned to the Roman Catholic church and now is a professor at Fordham University.

Budenz swore that while he was a Communist high party leaders told him to regard Lattimore as a Communist.

Three hundred local residents, armed with buckets, aided Cobden fire department in preventing the flames from spreading.

Says Sunday Sports Challenge To Church

HAMILTON, May 3 (CP)—The Sunday sports plebiscites in Toronto and Windsor created a challenge to church people everywhere, Rt. Rev. Walter Bagnall, Anglican Bishop of Niagara, on Tuesday told the 57th annual Niagara Synod. He said other communities would probably follow the lead given in the first two votes.

In civic votes Toronto and Windsor both approved Sunday sports and subsequent provincial legislation provided for Sunday sports in communities which have approved it by local votes.

Bishop Bagnall said that Sunday sports might mean a change in the church policy regarding afternoon church schools, and in some places might even affect the regular evening services. The matter must be faced realistically, he said.

Students Submit Their Grievances

TORONTO, May 3 (CP)—Some 500 students of Harbord Collegiate Tuesday gathered in the school auditorium after hours to hear answers from principal Walter Graham to grievances he had invited them to submit.

They also heard an apology by one of the ringleaders of the minor revolt two weeks ago when the principal interrupted a student election meeting because he thought some of the material used in the campaign skits were objectionable.

Mr. Graham, answering a charge that he made it difficult for Jewish students—accounting for nearly 80 per cent of the enrolment—to observe Jewish holidays, made it clear that no student will suffer because of his religious beliefs.

Would Take 8 Men 10 Years To Trim Every City Tree

"I think that I shall never see poem lovely as a tree."

City Council is as well aware as the poets of the beauty of trees and it is for this reason that several thousands of dollars are spent every year in the care of trees in the city.

A few weeks ago trees were being trimmed on streets in many parts of the city in readiness for the summer. The work has stopped temporarily while the sap is rising, but apart from a few weeks in the year, the care of trees which make many of the streets particularly attractive in the summer and fall, is an all-the-year-round job.

"It would take eight men ten years to trim every tree in the city," says Armar Butcher, parks superintendent. Six or eight men working all through the winter manage to keep the trees in good condition and at the same time, carry out a tree planting program on new housing estates.

300 to 500 A Year

Whenever a dead tree is removed, it is replaced by a new one. Between three and five hundred trees are planted in the city every year, Mr. Butcher says.

Norway, Schweidler and native sugar maples are being used principally on the new estates.

Much of the timber which tree trimming produces is used for heating rink houses at the city's outdoor rinks.

First Job of Children's Aid To Strengthen Family Links

The part the Children's Aid Society plays in strengthening weak family links and thus preventing the rupture of many parental ties was stressed Tuesday at the annual meeting of the Peterborough Society by Miss Rachael Young, superintendent.

Miss Young quoted Joseph Chamberlain's remarks to the National Society as long ago as 1893, when he said "There is evidently no desire or intention to bring about a rupture of the parental ties where that can possibly be avoided." That principal still held good in 1950, Miss Young declared.

During the past year there had been an increase of 19 per cent. in the family services given by the Peterborough Society; 35 per cent of the people who came for help made personal application and only 13 children were admitted to care for neglect by their parents and of that 13, nine were returned to their parents when satisfactory homes were established.

Speaking of non-support, desertion, drinking and quarrelling, Miss Young said it was the social worker's responsibility to help people to understand why they felt and acted as they did and to see things in their proper perspective.

Miss Young explained recent legislation which gives the Official Guardian more responsibility than in the past concerning the children of divorced persons.

The Peterborough society made 14 investigations at the request of Official Guardian into complaints of misuse of allowances. In two instances it was felt the allowances were not being used to the advantage of the children and these were now being administered by the society.

The society was represented by a member of the staff in the capacity of probation officer at all 33 hearings in Family Court throughout the year.

Help Appreciated

One girl who was placed on probation for a year was asked if she understood what that meant. Her reply—"that means I can come and tell my troubles to her (the probation officer) for a year—" was an indication of the attitude which the society had been able to create.

There was a decrease of five per cent in the work of the society with unmarried parents. The importance of girls appoaching the society many months before confinement was stressed by Miss Young. Every attempt was made when requested by the girl, to get maintenance from the father for the child.

"Increasingly it is apparent that these young people usually come from home situations where there is lack of harmony and lack of understanding" Miss Young's report claimed.

Of the 15 children made wards 10 were born out of wedlock. Two were now in adoption homes and the other children were admitted for reasons of illness of parent, resertion, inadequate supervision and housing.

Lack Supervision

Eight children were taken into care when found without proper supervision but when the parents promised satisfactory care, they were returned in a few days. One child was being boarded for his mother who was maintaining him and six wards of other societies who moved into this county during the year, were being supervised by the society.

The society had not been able to find enough foster homes and Roman Catholic and Protestant home were greatly needed in both urban and rural centres.

The Shelter had an average of seven children daily and a decrease of 666 days' care during the year. Its function had been chiefly for short time admissions.

Every effort was made to have a wholesome program—the children participated in church and school groups, in Y.W. and Y.M. who gave them free memberships in hockey teams etc. Occasions such as birthdays and Christmas were reasons for special celebrations; each child had his own allowance, his physical health was carefully watched and when ready for placement foster homes suited to the particular needs of the child were sought.

Thanks Community

In thanking the many members of the community who remembered the children of the Shelter, Miss Young made particular mention of Mrs. K. Lech, Mrs. L. Yeates, and the Children's Aid Committee of the Junior Welfare League under the leadership of Miss Claire Mason, who sends monthly treats.

The physical needs of the Shelter had been capably met by the Shelter House Committee under the convenership of Mrs. D. Diplock and the Property Committee convened by Fred Ash.

The need among children for a sense of security in their foster homes was illustrated by an explanation of how one child's attitude changed from uncooperation after she was allowed to be adopted by her foster parents. Once she felt a sense of belonging to the family instead of living in insecurity and a dread of being moved to another home, her entire attitude changed.

Nine babies were placed for adoption by the society, seven were placed by others, nine requests were received for adoption for children in the homes of relatives and four for children over 18 years of age.

Thirty-five Adopted

Thirty-five adoptions were completed during the year, the highest number in the record of the society.

Miss Young made a repeated warning against adoptions being made privately without consultation with the society.

The cost of clothing an average of 63 children had been of concern but merchants had given every consideration when special bargains were available, sewing and knitting groups had been of great help and all layettes needed were donated by groups in the community.

The sewing committee had been convened by Mrs. Clare Collins. Every Thursday women's groups throughout the community met at the Shelter—138 women in all—who mended or made 1247 articles. In addition, there were 148 donations of clothing. Mrs. L. Yeates, a member of the board, had been responsible for collecting the donations.

Boys and girls had been sent to Y camps by the society, which had been able to do this because of donations made to the society. The Kiwanis Club, which had given $300 a year for some time for this work, was especially thanked.

The need for some co-ordinating body such as a community welfare council and also a need for mental health services were mentioned by Miss Young.

Total income during the year was reported to be $47,093.27 and expenditure amounted to $44,294.94 leaving an excess of revenue over expenditure of $2,798.

Reports to a meeting of the board prior to the annual dinner were presented as follows: Matron's report of the Shelter, Mrs. E. B. MacMillan; sewing convener, Mrs. Clare Collins; Shelter Home Committee, Mrs. D. T. Diplock; Property Committee, Fred G. Ash.

Asks $50,000 In Man's Death

KITCHENER, May 3 (CP) — A $50,000 damage action claiming a factory worker's death was indirectly caused by his occupation, is being heard in Supreme Court here.

Mrs. Dorothy Mackie is suing the Canada Skate Manufacturing Co. for the death of her husband, Harvey, in 1948 as the result of bronchial irritation she claims was caused by fumes and smoke from welding processes. Mr. Mackie was a welder and left the firm in 1946.

Witnesses Tuesday testified that after complaints were made, special exhaust ventilation equipment was installed by the company to carry away smoke and fumes from the floor on which welding, grinding and hardening operations took place.

George Lochead, defence counsel, argued for non-suit saying the plaintiff presented no evidence to prove the disease of which her husband died was the result of his occupation.

Hewitt To Build Radio Station

TORONTO, May 3 (CP)—Foster Hewitt, Canada's best known hockey announcer, plans to build his own 250-watt radio station in Toronto, he said Tuesday. But he will continue the Saturday night broadcasts which have made his voice probably Canada's most listened-to.

His application will be considered by the CBC Board of Governors at Ottawa May 22 and 23.

Mr. Hewitt, 46, is one of the originals in Canadian radio. He started with the first commercial radio station, CFCA, opened in 1922. He said his proposed new station would emphasize community sport and activities. The station's low power would restrict its coverage to the city and suburbs.

He emphasized it would not interfere with his Saturday night coast-to-coast hockey programs. He started these in 1931 and has never missed a broadcast since.

Mr. Hewitt said he will be sole owner of the station. His son, Bill 21, now at CKBB, Barrie, will assist him.

Graziani Convicted Of Treason To Italy

ROME, May 3 (CP)—An Italian military tribunal Tuesday night convicted former Marshal Rudolfo Graziani, fascism's "Lion of Africa," of treason charges. He was sentenced to 19 years in prison, but amnesties and credit for time already served in custody will cut the actual sentence to only one year and two months.

Graziani, 67 and failing, took the verdict without a show of emotion. His lawyers said the decision will be appealed to the supreme military tribunal, the court of last resort.

Chooses Five Great Lovers Of Film History

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD, May 3 —(AP)—Director Clarence Brown, celebrating his 35th anniversary in films, today picked the five greatest lovers of movie history.

One of the industry's most distinguished creators, he came up with these selections:

John Barrymore— "He had a great theatrical flair for love. His name would add class to any list."

Charles Boyer— "The suave lover. His love scenes with Garbo in 'Conquest' were terrific."

Clark Gable— "The man any girl would love to get beaten up by. The tough lover."

John Gilbert— "The dashing lover."

Rudolph Valentino— "The latin lover."

Brown, who has directed all five, wouldn't say which was the greatest.

"But I can tell you which one will live the longest in history; That's Valentino," he said. "He has been dead 25 years and his name is still magic."

Horizontal Love

Brown is not at all abashed to recall that it was he who put on the screen what he terms "horizontal love." Yet he laments censorship in one breath and in the next he boasts that "I was the guy who gave the censors the most trouble. They built their code around me."

In "Flesh and the Devil," the picture that made Garbo a star, Brown had her and Gilbert play love scenes while reclining. The result seared the world's screens—and gave the movie censoring minds something to think about.

The director is celebrating his anniversary with a return to romance. He is making "To Please the Lady" with Clark Gable and Barbara Stanwyck.

"For 10 years I've been working with deer, horses, little boys and problems," said the man who filmed "National Velvet," The Yearling" and "Intruder in the Dust."

3 By-Elections Called For June 19

OTTAWA, May 3 —(CP)—The government Tuesday called three by-elections and named two new senators to the Upper Chamber.

It shuffled representation in the 262-member Commons and 102-member Senate by voluntarily surrendering one Commons' seat and named the occupant and another Liberal adherent to the Senate. That reduced Liberal supporters in the Commons to 186 and boosted them to 77 in this Upper Chamber.

Simultaneously, three by-elections were called for June 19, a little less than a year after the June 27 general election of 1949. They will be held in Halifax, Annapolis-Kings in Nova Scotia and Montreal Cartier. In addition two of the five Commons vacancies will be filled May 15 through by-elections in Hamilton West and Toronto Broadview.

Liberals won four of the five seats in 1949 but one member's election was declared void.

The second round of by-elections was announced by Prime Minister St. Laurent immediately after the Speaker informed the Commons that Gordon Isnor (L—Halifax) has been appointed to the Senate. The Hamilton and Toronto by-elections were announced some time ago.

Second Senator

The second Senate appointment was that of Charles G. Hawkins of Milford Station, N.S., a prominent lumberman and president of Nova Scotia's Liberal Association.

The two filled the last Nova Scotia vacancy in the Senate and raised Liberal membership to 77 compared to 13 Progressive Conservatives and 12 vacanies. The vacancies include three each in New Brunswick and Newfoundland, two each in Ontario and Quebec and one each in British Columbia and Prince Edward Island.

Commons membership was altered to read: Liberals 186; Progressive Conservatives 40; CCF 13; Social Crediters 10; Independents 5 and Independent-Liberals 3.

The Commons vacancies arose from the deaths of T. L. Church, Progressive Conservative member for Toronto Broadview, and Maurice Hartt, Liberal, Montreal-Cartier, Mr. Isnor's appointment, election irregularities in Nova Scotia's Annapolis-Kings and appointment of former Mines Minister Gibson to the Ontario Supreme Court.

Funeral Service Held For Mrs. John Kemp

Rev. James Semple of George St. United Church conducted the funeral service of the late Mrs. Margaret Kemp on Monday from the funeral home of A. Comstock and Sons.

Following a short illness, Mrs. Kemp passed away at her residence, 587 King St. on Saturday. She was born in Ayr, the daughter of the late George Hunter and Margaret Easton but had lived in Peterborough for many years. Mrs. Kemp was an active member of George St. United Church being particularly interested in the work of the Women's Association.

Pallbearers were Frank Lynch, Walter Head, William Kemp, Jack Baird, Edgar Roberts and John McCarney.

Interment was in Little Lake Cemetery.

Has 12 Fingers

ASBESTOS, Que., May 3 (CP)—A baby boy born two weeks ago with 12 fingers and 12 toes is otherwise normal and progressing well, the attending physician said Tuesday. The infant is Rejean Martel, born to Mr. and Mrs. Leo Martel of this town in Quebec's eastern townships district. The father is an asbestos mine worker. The physician, Dr. Georges N. Letendre of nearby Danville, said he amputated one of the extra fingers soon after the child was born.

Strips On Bus

SALEM, Ore., May 3 (AP)—An attractive 27-year-old woman Tuesday startled 30 passengers by stripping off her clothes on a bus. The embarrassed driver, Richard Burdick, called police, and implored them to get some clothes on the woman or get her out of the sight of the other pink-faced passengers. Police, who later described her in a report as "cute and pretty," threw a blanket around her. At first chance, though, she shucked off the blanket. Her father was advised to come and get her.

Permanently Barred

WASHINGTON, May 3 (AP)—The State Department said Tuesday that Dr. Hewlett Johnson, the "Red" Dean of Canterbury, is permanently barred from the United States under a recent ruling by the justice department. Press officer Michael McDermott made the statement in explaining why the department had refused a transit visa which would have permitted the dean to stop either at Hawaii or California en route from Australia to Canada and Britain.

L. A. WINTER, OBE, National treasurer, Canadian Red Cross Society, received the highest honor the society can bestow when he was made an Honorary Councillor at its annual meeting in Toronto.

U.S. Consumers Shudder At Cost Boosts

By STUART UNDERHILL

NEW York, May 3 (AP)—Cheerful talk by United States business men about the good times ahead is evoking as many shudders as smiles among the consumers. They're apprehensive about a threatened rise in the cost of living.

Price indexes which rocketed during and after the war have flattened out in the last few months, and have even declined in some categories, notably food. Now it looks as though the climb may be resumed.

Motorists have been the first to feel the pressure: East coast gasoline prices have just been increased and may go higher. Tire prices have climbed in recent months, and manufacturers predict a further advance if natural rubber, now being stockpiled by many countries, remains in short supply.

Bad Weather Too

Bad growing weather in the southwest United States has boosted the price of wheat, and corn and soybeans also have been rising. The soybean boom is credited to a number of things: Margarine makers are buying more, and so are paint makers who are stepping up supplies for the huge house-building program.

Building, and stepped-up production in the automobile and appliances industries, have been responsible for an upswing in metal prices. Demand for copper and zinc continues to grow and steel is at a premium.

In the stockyards the price of hogs has moved steadily upwards, with a corresponding rise in the price of pork at the butcher's.

More Optimistic

The optimism of manufacturers is in part responsible for some of the shortages and rising prices. Many who were buying on a 30-to-60 day basis are switching over to 70-to-90 day buying.

This is in direct contrast to a year ago when business men were busy cutting back stocks of goods and raw materials on hand because they anticipated a recession.

The buying has not yet reached a "runaway" stage but is said to be about 14 per cent higher than it was at this time last year.

Cowboy Too Good

OTTAWA, May 3 (CP)—Nine-year-old Garry Pritchard tried to lassoo a moving bus on O'Connor Street Monday night—and it landed him in hospital. Playing cowboys on the street, Garry grew so expert at roping his friends he decided to go after larger quarry. He swung his lariat at a passing bus and it fastened onto the rear bumper. He was jerked off his feet and dragged 75 yards behind the bus.

Londoners Taken To Task For Thank-You Manners

By WILLIAM BOSS

LONDON, May 3—(CP)—As though coping with the day-to-day troubles of this age were not enough, Londoners are being taken to task for their manners. They don't—say writers of letters to the Times as well as editorial writers—know how to say "Thank You."

The "Thank You" concerned is one addressed to the Commonwealth and the United States.

It is for $248,000,000 worth of gift food in bulk and in parcels, to the United Kingdom's since the beginning of the war and is still pouring in.

Which brings up the "how."

Recently the Lord Mayor of London invited Britons everywhere in the United Kingdom to send contributions to a £2,000,000 ($6,200,000) national thanksgiving fund. The money will go to provide an educational memorial by helping generations of overseas students.

Most of the fund would be spent on buildings in London's Mechlenburgh Square, prized locally before the war for its Georgian architecture. The area was partially damaged during the blitz but the best remaining portions would be restored and incorporated in the scheme.

Plan Under Way

London House, a residence for post-graduate male students attending the University of London, is to be completed under the plan, while a similar modern-style structure, on the opposite side of the square, is to be put up for women students.

A £150,00 portion of the fund is to be spent on extending a residential hall for overseas students in Scotland, "The Burn" at Edzell, Angus.

And that's where part of the rub came in.

Burden of the criticism has been that London was "hogging" it. Why should the University of London get all the money

But other objections have developed. The Georgian Society protested that Mecklenburgh Square was about to lose its character, even if the east side of the square, one of London's minor architectural gems, was to be preserved. The fine stucco facade of these buildings are the work of John Kay, who so pleased his employees when he completed it in 1807-08 that they paid him eight times his fee.

Need Homes

Cities facing serious housing shortages protested this was no time to build university accommodation when many of the county's workers were homeless.

Educationists said visiting students would not get a fair impression of the country if they were concentrated in London instead of being divided among the provinces, whose own accommodation should be developed.

"London is no more Britain than New York is the United States or Paris is France," they said.

In short, the whole country wants to say "thank you," and have it shown locally that it did so.

MORE ABOUT—

Drew Suggests

"tyranny" in five years. There was a fifth column being organized in Canada "right now." It had exactly the same purpose as the others, a plan to carry out revolution.

Communism was a religion without God. It was the doctrine of the "anti-Christ and if ever the spirit of evil incarnate was centred in a single human being, it is centred in Joseph Stalin in Moscow today."

He charged the justice department with inactivity against Communism and with negligence in failure to prosecute foreign-language Communist newspapers which he said were printing criminal libels. He was concerned whether Canadians would "wake up in time" and said Canada's tolerance of Communism within her borders was "not tolerance but sheer insanity."

Great Brutality

Communism, he said, was "the most terrifying and brutal reality that the world has ever known." Only strong action would impress the Kremlin and he noted that legislation or other action against Communism had been taken by Australia, India, South Africa, Malaya and Panama. Canada should follow that lead and take immediate steps to amend the Criminal Code to "deal effectively with those seeking to undermine our democratic way of life."

He charged that various recommendations made by the Royal commission on espionage had not been dealt with by the government. One had called for revision of the regulations governing issuance of Canadian passports. Yet Tim Buck, Labor-Progressive leader and a known Communist, had been given a passport to go to a meeting of the cominform in Hungary.

"The only kind of passport Tim Buck should have got was a one-way passport to Moscow," said Mr. Drew amid opposition cheers.

Sees It Diminishing

Prime Minister St. Laurent's reply lasted a half hour. He said there was no doubt that an ideological war was going on but he believed Communism had diminished in Canada in the last two years.

The laws now on the statute books, he felt, were sufficient to deal with subversive activities and these were the responsibility of the provinces. For its part, the Federal government did have measures against Communism but in the interests of security he did not think they should be disclosed.

Replying to Mr. Drew's charges of failure to prosecute Communist newspapers, Mr. St. Laurent said it was the responsibility of the provinces. He did not say provincial authorities were not doing their best, but those same papers were published in Toronto when Mr. Drew was Premier of Ontario.

One Attorney-General in Canada was attempting to administer a "padlock law" and his attempts had created "much resentment."

Mr. St. Laurent said the recommendations of the Royal commission on espionage had been given close and careful attention. He assured the Commons that "nothing that we felt could be done under those recommendations has been left undone."

Interesting Experiments

As for the actions, legislative and otherwise, that had been taken against Communism in Australia, South Africa, Malaya, Panama, and India, these were "interesting experiments." The government would be interested to see the results.

In the United States there had been a sort of Communist "witch-hunt" going on. Mr. St. Laurent said this did not create a very favorable impression and he believed the best method of combatting Communism "is to make democracy work as a system benefitting no classes or groups, but benefitting all members of the population."

Mr. Pearson warned against Canada being led into hasty action either at home or abroad. Confusion and fear was what the Communists sought to breed. They would like to create the fear in the democracies that some of the men in high places might not be loyal.

NARROW ESCAPE—The four occupants of this house escaped severe injury when the five-room bungalow on Calgary's North Hill was demolished in a plane crash. Jack Harper, 22-year-old pilot of the twin-engine Cessna, was instantly killed. Police said they were told by witnesses that Harper, a salesman for an aviation company, had been drinking before he took one of his company's planes on the night-time rooftop-hopping flight. Shown in the background (centre) is the last remaining wall of the house of Marshall McDougall, a police station switchboard operator. The debris in the foreground includes both the plane and the house.

Pilot Buzzes Calgary Not Drunk Inquest Told

CALGARY, May 3. (CP)—A coroner's inquest was told Tuesday that a Calgary pilot was "under the influence of liquor but not drunk" two hours before his plane crashed into a house Sunday.

The pilot, John Harper, 23, was killed in the early-morning crash after the plane "buzzed" the city, narrowly missing several large buildings.

Find Child's Body

WALLACEBURG, May 3 (CP)—The body of two-year-old Michael Douglas whose sudden disappearance last Dec. 28 started one of the largest searches in the history of Lambton county, was found Tuesday in the Sydenham river 10 miles from the spot where he disappeared. For weeks, the father refused to believe his son was dead and he offered rewards up to $5,000 for his safe return.

Says Conference Flop

TIMMINS, May 3 (CP)—Mayor Philip Fay Tuesday described the annual convention of the Ontario Reeves and Mayors Association held at Toronto last week as a "flop" and said it was the last convention of the association he would attend. Mr. Fay said that few if any of the resolutions passed had dealt with Northern Ontario. He also criticized the Ontario government on the trans-Canada highway route.

Report Davis May Become German Envoy

OTTAWA, May 3 (CP)—Diplomatic appointments by the External Affairs Department will be announced shortly, but will not bare Canada's stand on the Chinese Communists' bid for recognition, informed quarters said Tuesday.

One of three or four appointments involved will be a new post for T. C. Davis, judge-turned-diplomat, who appears slated to go down in history as Canada's last ambassador to Nationalist China.

Since Mr. Davis came home from Nanking some months ago a complex web of circumstances has delayed a decision here on Canada's recognition of the Reds, but recognition is accepted here as merely a matter of time.

German Job?

There have been reports that Mr. Davis will go to Bonn as Canada's envoy in the West German republic's capital. External Affairs Minister Pearson told a Commons committee Lt.-Gen Maurice Pope, head of the Canadian military mission in Berlin, will be leaving Germany shortly.

Another appointment reported in the wind is that of R. G. (Gerry) Riddell, a ntive of Edmonton and Mr. Pearson's special assistant, as head of Canada's United Nations delegation. He would succeed Gen. A. G. L. McNaughton.

Mr. Pearson indicated that Canada is planning to establish missions in two more countries this year.

Discrimination Story Annoys Toronto Body

TORONTO, May 3 (CP)—City Council's property committee, which rides hard on municipal licences, listened Tuesday to the story of Victor Makins, a barber who refused recently to cut the hair of a six-year-old Negro boy.

The committee took no action against Makins, who pleaded through his lawyer that he "grew up in the trade with the understanding that barbers had an unwritten code that colored people got their hair cut some place else."

But Alderman William Allen urged that a clause be inserted in city licencing regulations barring discrimination on account of race, creed or color.

May Become Port

PORT COLBORNE, May 3 (CP)—Port Colborne may become a regular customs port soon. Officials said Tuesday that steps have been taken to change the classification from an outport of Welland to a regular port, grade 2. Figures for the last three years showed steady increases in inbound coal tonnage. Some 249,631 tons were handled in 1948 and 200,000 tons in 1949.

Provincial and Municipal Housing Said Fundamental Solution to Family Problems

Housing projects by the provinces and cities with the help of the Federal government, was claimed one of the fundamental ways to get at the child welfare problem, by R. E. G. Davis, executive director of the Canadian Welfare Council Tuesday. Mr. Davies was addressing the annual dinner meeting of Peterborough Children's Aid Society at the YMCA. While the main purpose of child and family welfare agencies is to look after individual children one by one, the pressing need is for the community to advocate support for measures designed to support the stability of the family, Mr. Davis said.

"Housing is still our first social problem" the speaker declared and yet "only two cities in the country have begun to move in the matter of public housing."

Six months ago the Federal government offered to share the cost of public housing projects with the provinces and municipalities and yet little had been done by either provinces or municipalities.

"We must have adequate social security measures" Mr. Davis said. In Canada fully five per cent of the national income was being devoted to welfare work.

"We need better health services — health insurance; we must broaden the scope of our schools. They should regard themselves as essential child welfare agencies and assume responsibilities for the full development of the child, not just in the academic field."

Educate Parents

A more vigorous effort along the lines of parent education was needed. Knowledge about children was not available to thousands of parents in the community. The Roman Catholic church was a leader in this field in Canada and while the Protestant churches and other institutions were doing something to help, more could be done if the community realised the need for bringing the scientific knowledge about children which is available today, to more people.

It was not enough just to help Billy, Timothy and Mary. It was a statesmanlike job to get the types of families Canada needed today.

"A job is done when we support the immediate needs of the Children's Aid Society, but we must also work with the church, the schools and other agencies" Mr. Davis declared.

Free To Chose

Did the people want more cosmetics and better cars or did they want these services to the community?

"We are free to chose—it is not a question of asking the government to do it," Mr. Davis said. "We want them if we do not have to give up any of the things which maintain our standard of living to get them. Perhaps we are not Christian enough to want it."

If the people in the community realised the possibilities and deficiencies of the present program, because of lack of resources, in degrees, the increased funds would become available.

In 1948 the total bill for tobacco and alcohol was $941,000,000 While he was not preaching abstinence — he was smoking a cigarette after dinner—he felt people had to decide what it was they wanted.

Payments Niggardly

The present policy for paying foster parents was niggardly. Some said that to pay more would commercialize foster homes but Mr. Davis could see no reason why those people should be asked to take on the responsibility and work without being adequately paid.

Guests who also spoke at the meeting were Mayor Max Swanston, Warden Norman Wilson, W. B. Heise, Deputy Minister of Welfare and Bert Beaumont, Director of Child Welfare. Mr. Davis was introduced by Bishop Gerald Berry, a governor of the Canadian Welfare Council.

Miss Helen Hajnik entertained with two songs and was thanked by Mrs. F. J. Lynch, who also proposed the vote of thanks to Mr. Davis. T. T. Rodger, president of the society, was in the chair.

32 Have Mumps, Mostly Adults; No 1947 Scare

Almost non-existent in Peterborough since 1947, mumps increased slightly during April, Dr. R. A. Kelly, MOH, reported today. During the month 32 residents were reported affected by the malady but Dr. Kelly explains that this is not considered alarming.

Peterborough's last serious outbreak of mumps was in 1947 when 1,245 cases occurred. Mr. Kelly said the present situation is not expected to reach epidemic proportions.

Even though mumps is usually considered as a disease of childhood, said Dr. Kelly, of the 32 cases in April, 17 or more than 50 per cent, were adults.

Spring Disease

Dr. Kelly said that mumps is a specific infectious condition which may occur in epidemics. The disease is particularly seen in the spring and autumn and is believed to be caused by a specific virus. This organism attacks the salivary glands which are situated in the cheek and lower jaw.

The disease sets in with a slight temperature and a feeling of tiredness, said Dr. Kelly. This is followed by pain, stiffness and swelling in one or all of the glands. The swelling increases for a day or two. It subsides and recovery occurs in eight or 10 days.

Complications may occur, said Dr. Kelly, particularly involvement of the reproductive glands which may be both painful and serious. If mumps are suspected, the following procedure is suggested: (1) Isolate the patient in bed as this is a communicable disease; (2) consult family doctor for the confirmation of the diagnosis and for prescribing treatment; (3) report condition to the Department of Health, phone 20406.

Half Load Ban Removed South Of No. 7

Truckers operating south of Highway 7 are no longer restricted to carrying half loads, the Department of Highways has announced.

This means that Highway 7, east and west of Peterborough, as well as highways to the south, are open for full loads. Previously the restrictions applied to No. 7 from seven miles east of Peterborough to Madoc. And on 7A from Port Perry to Highway 28.

North of No. 7 the reduced loads will remain in force until May 31. However, should roads improve greatly during the month the Department may ease the restrictions sooner.

No. 28, from Lakefield to Burleigh, must wait until May 31, but the Peterborough-Lakefield stretch remains open.

"There is no doubt about it; the roads this year are the worst in 10 years," commented Sergt. Price Morris of the No. 8 Provincial Police HQ, Peterborough. "It has been a rough spring for drivers."

Rural School Pupils Throng For Choral Competitions

Children from the rural areas round Peterborough packed Murray St. Baptist church today when morning and afternoon sessions were devoted almost entirely to choral singing by rural school children. The rural rhythm band competition was held in the afternoon. At noon today the church steps and fronting street were as lively and crowded as a midway on children's day at the Ex., as the pupils debouched from the church to get their lunches.

Lily Lake School won the highest marks awarded in the entire festival to date when the choir led 28 entries from one-room rural schools, with 87 points. SS No. 17, Otonabee came second with 86 points and SS No. 12, Otonabee, third with 85. The song in this class was "Flow Gently Sweet Afton."

Another song sung by the one-room rural schools was "The World Is Full of Beauty." SS No. 4 Anstruther, won with 85 points; SS 15A, Hamilton was second with 83 and SS No. 8 Smith came third with 81 points.

2 Cars Smashed Driver Hurt

Two cars were badly smashed and one driver was hurt in a collision at Dalhousie and Stewart Sts. at 6:55 this morning.

Kenneth Hart, 522 Edison Ave., a taxi driver, complained of a pain in his side and was taken to St. Joseph's Hospital. He had no serious external injuries, but the extent of any internal injuries has not yet been determined.

Hart was driving his taxi north on Stewart St. Crossing Dalhousie St. his taxi met in collision with a car driven by Edward Collins, 744 Chamberlain St.

The Hart car was struck first on the left rear door and then careened 34 feet across the intersection, jumped the northeast curb and struck a tree head on. The whole front of the taxi was demolished.

The Collins car came to rest on the east sidewalk of Stewart St., 44 feet from the point of impact. The right front corner of Collins' car was smashed and the right rear fender was also damaged.

Mrs. H. J. Davis, 261 Townsend St., a passenger in the taxi, was unhurt. Traffic Officer Gordon Trennum investigated.

T. J. Calvert Buried

Funeral service for the late Thomas John Calvert, 81, of Concession 3, Emily Township, was held on Tuesday at the Belleghem Funeral Home. The Rev. V. E. R. Zufelt of Omemee United Church officiated and pallbearers were Lawrence McConnell, Elmer Henry, Stanley McCall, Robert McAdams, Elwood Fawlkner and Harry Deyell. Burial was at Little Lake Cemetery.

Women Observe Sitting Council

Mayor M. J. Swanston welcomed to Monday night's meeting of the council a group of members of the Women's Study Group on Civic Affairs.

Their appointed representatives, Mrs. C. Hurst and Mrs. D. R. McGregor, were accompanied by five other members. They were complimented on their interest in the municipal affairs of the city. Their presence seemed to create a little self-consciousness around the aldermanic half-circle, extending even to the mayor's dias, and possibly to the clerical desk.

At any rate the women heard the routine of affairs from requests for sidewalks to matters pertaining to town planning, and a discussion on a west end building restriction.

Ald. Hugh Waddell presented the salary list for 1950, which was adopted with Ald. J. A. Dewart seconding it. Previously studied by the executive committee, and recommended by the finance committee, the details of this list were not read again.

If the study group continue their attendance, the gallery seats are not going to be vacant as usual for many of the meetings, and Mr. Lorne Beebe, representing the Allied Labor Council, will not be the solitary auditor he has been at the meetings which he frequently attends.

Lock Co. Offers 1949 Contract, Won't Pay More

The Conciliation Board report is still the basis for any agreement between Local 527 and the Peterborough Lock Co., Robert Maybee, managing director, told the Examiner today.

"If they aren't satisfied with that they're quite at liberty to go out on the street," he added.

His reference was to the threat of the union to strike Thursday unless the company commenced "genuine collective bargaining."

However, in a letter to employees circulated early today the company offered to renew the 1949 contract minus the "wage opener" clause. (A "wage-opener" clause provides room for dickering about wages.)

The letter read in part: "In a final effort to arrive at a settlement we are willing to sign the 1949 contract without the wage opener clause. We cannot afford to pay higher wages—already our wages are too high."

It was signed by E. H. Howson, president; Mr. Maybee, and J. R. Jobe, sales manager.

Meet With Fraser

Early today G. K. Fraser, M. P., met with a union committee to hear their side of the case Later he left to have a chat with Mr. Maybee. There were no immediate indications that his mediation will prove successful.

The union has watered down its original demands for a 40-hour week with no decrease in take-home pay and a general wage increase, to a 42½-hour with maintenance pay.

Unless a settlement is reached later today there will be a picket line outside Peterborough Lock before the first shift begins at 7 a.m. Thursday, a union official said.

Theft Charge Withdrawn

A charge of stealing $390 in a swindle against Fred Terry, Toronto, was withdrawn by Crown Attorney John A. Bradshaw in police court today.

Charged with the same offence Steve Popelink, Toronto, was remanded two weeks to May 17.

The charges were laid in connection with a sucker game reported by Herbert Lindsay, a farmer near Ida, to police here. He said he had been cheated of $390 in a poker game he had been drawn into Jan. 6.

Terry and Popelink were charged recently in Toronto with cheating an elderly Toronto man of $3,500, but the man died before the case was ever brought to court.

April's Building Down On 1949

Peterborough's building permits to the end of April totalled $405,713, as compared with $1,177,777 for the first four months last year.

The values represented in the one month's permits were about half the corresponding amount a year ago.

The details were for the last month: 18 garages $4,920; 28 dwellings $214,550; 75 miscellaneous $53,619; total of 121 permits $273,089.

And for April last year: 10 garages $2,965; 44 dwellings $303,500; 102 miscellaneous $140,576; total of 156 permits for $447,041.

This year's activities lack so far any major construction such as those of last year's all time building record.

Municipal Board Surprised At Individual Objections To Improvement Charge

"I have been rather surprised at so many individual objections which have been presented us in Peterborough," was the comment of Mr. R. C. Rowland of the Ontario Municipal Board at the hearing Tuesday afternoon of opposition to local works bylaws of the city council. Decision was reserved by him and his associate member, Mr. George A. Lister, on street paving, storm drain and Park St. drain projects which had been submitted by the council for the Board's approval.

Mr. Rowland's remark was interjected into the reference by James F. Dunn to the effect of a storm, drain and pavement on Monaghan Road on the plan of financing perpetual care of the graves in St. Peter's Cemetery.

"We've had a little more than our share of increased municipal costs in the last few years," Mr. Dunn replied.

City Inclined to Boast

"But, Peterborough has been growing a great deal in those years," Mr. Rowland said. "In fact, your city is inclined to boast a bit about its position. You can hardly expect to grow and profit from conditions without paying for it."

Mr. Dunn remarked that various municipal works were being carried out at the peak of capital cost.

"Who is there to say when that peak will be passed?" Mr. Rowland asked.

Mr. Dunn said there was opinion that costs might recede from their present levels.

Doubts Recession In Costs

Mr. Rowland ended that digression from the main course of the hearing with an expression of doubt of any substantial recession from today's costs.

Previously, Mr. Dunn had explained that permanent care of a lot in St. Peter's Cemetery could be financed for $100, by investment of that sum at five per cent. Graves were to be maintained by that arrangement. The cemetery also looked after the graves of any Catholic persons who died in indigence. For the continuance of this plan it was imperative that the cost of care should be kept within the revenue. Paving of Monaghan Road as a local improvement would be an extra burden of cost, and the financing would not be commensurate.

Mr. Rowland suggested there would have to be an increase in the charge for perpetual care, that institutions and others should not stand in the way of necessary progress of the municipality, and its improvements.

An earlier witness had mentioned a petition against the paving of Rogers St. south from Hunter St. which, he said, included the names of the Mother Superior of St. Joseph's Hospital, the parish priest of the Immaculate Conception Church, and the rector of St. Luke's Church.

Pastures Drying Wheat Green

Wheat is green, permanent pastures appear to have wintered well, the land is drying slowly, some of the younger stock are already out of the barns, and general farm prospects are taking on a more favorable aspects, W. W. Dawson, president of Peterborough Federation of Agriculture, said today.

"The probs say rain, but we would rather have more of today's sunshine to make grass and dry the top moisture out of the land so we can get on it."

Mr. Dawson said he began sowing oats this morning, and although the season was already late "there is still a fair time yet to get things done."

Hay Scarce

Scarcity of hay in many barns and the higher cost of feed are vexations to a lot of farmers. They will have to wait for at least another two weeks until the cattle can be turned out to pasture, that is, the valuable dairy stock.

Mr. Dawson said farmers were gradually getting into stride on the 1950 season of food production. They have to be optimists in spite of the urban opinion that they are inveterate pessimists. They can't make the conditions they would like to shape for ideal circumstances. The farmer has no choice but to go ahead, taking a chance on tomorrow.

Senate Reform Not Likely To Change Much

OTTAWA, May 3 — (CP). — Doubts have been raised in the Senate that any great changes are in store for that 102-member body.

Senator J. H. King (L-British Columbia) suggested Tuesday that Senate reform likely will be considered at the forthcoming Dominion-Provincial conference in September, but he doubted that any widespread changes will ensue.

The former Government Leader and Speaker in the Upper Chamber indicated his present Leader, Senator Wishart Robertson, may be "flying a kite" about Senate reform.

Senator Robertson had said last week that if proposals to reform the Senate do not develop from normal channels during the life of this Parliament, then he would make suggestions of his own for consideration of the Senate and the public generally.

Should Be Official

Senator King said he hoped Senator Robertson would not proceed with advocating "personal views." Proposals of such "magniture" as Senate reform should come from a government official who could speak for the government and not just give his personal views.

At the opening of the Senate sitting, Senator Robertson initiated a drive for early prorogation of Parliament. He said he hoped Parliament would end in the latter part of June or at the end of May, not in July as some newspapers had reported.

Senator King spoke in debate on Senator Robertson's resolution that a special committee be organizd to investigate the work of the standing committees and in general speed up the work of the Chamber.

Approves Committee

Senator King said in general he agreed with the establishment of such a committee, but he criticized some of the suggestions which Senator Robertson proposed this committee should consider.

On the suggestion that Senator King did not believe the ministers should appear and did not believe the Senate should consider the estimates until they had been passed by the Commons.

Two of his colleagues disagreed with him. Senator T. A. Crerar (L-Manitoba) said the Senate had as much right as the Commons to study the estimates and, if it did not do so until the Commons had completed study, then there would not be much time left for Senate consideration.

Senator A. K. Hugessen (L-Quebec) agreed. He said the Senate did not want to entrench on the rights of the Commons, but it did appear that the Senate had equal right with the Commons to undertake the investigation of Government spending.

Asked by Senator W. Rupert Davies (L-Ontario) what would happen once the ministers appeared and the estimates studied, Senator Hugessen said technically the Senate could curtail the spending—if necessary.

French-Canadian Group Aids Travellers In France

By JEAN E. STENTON

PARIS, April—One of the best friends Canada and Canadians have in France is the comparatively unknown Acceuil Franco-Canadien, which was organized in Paris in 1948.

Although a small association, it was organized by a group of distinguished patrons who had become enthusiastic supporters of Canada after visiting our country. They have two aims — to help Canadians in France and to publicize Canadian families or anything else which may be of assistance.

Many French people are anxious to meet Canadians and entertain them in their homes. Miss Colard investigates and frequently arranges it. The day I chatted with her, another Canadian arrived for help in finding a room. She was Miss Doris McCubbin of Toronto. She plans to remain in France till October and is writing some short stories.

There is an amazing demand for books on Canada, and documentary films from provinces all over France. Schools and students are very anxious to obtain accurate information and the Acceuil hasn't nearly enough material to meet the requests. Miss [illegible] Canadian old graduate of the University of Caen, is an enthusiastic supporter of French-Canadian relations. As Deleguee-Guenerale, she handles all interviews and inquiries and answers all letters.

Her first interest in Canadians began during the war when Canadian troops entered Caen in Normandy. Since she spoke English, she worked among army personnel there. In 1945, still interested in Canadians, she went to Paris to work in Canada Corners. In the middle of 1946, Canada Corners closed and it was only in 1948 that the new organization was formed and she was asked to take the position of Deleguee-Generale. She paid her first visit to Canada in 1949, spending some time in Quebec, Montreal, Ottawa and Toronto.

Very Helpful

For Canadians coming to France, the association will gladly help find accommodation, get tickets for interesting events, arrange for homes with French [illegible]

Among patrons of the group is Etienne Gilson of the Academic Francaise, who has been going to Toronto University every year for 20 years to conduct a special course. He is the president of the organization. Others are: M le Batonnier Poignard, Mme. de Vigier (from Winnipeg and wife of General de Vigier); Professor Julliot de la Morandiere, Doyen de la Faculte de Droit, University of Paris; Rev. Father Couturier, Professor Justin Besancon; Professor Andre Siegfried of the Academie Francaise; Professor Robert Courrier, Secretaire Perpetuel de l' Academie des Sciences; and General de Benouville.

Its greatest value perhaps is not so much to tourists as visiting university students. By placing them in French homes, the organization gives both the families and the Canadians a chance to understand each other and it eases the financial burden on the visitors.

Frogs Legs Back On Menu But British Prices Soaring

LONDON, May 3. (CP)—Frogs' legs, caviar and fresh pineappie made an official return to London restaurant menus Tuesday, and up went the bills.

Formerly held to a five-shilling maximum with a limit of three courses, meals today embraced as many plates as the customer wanted to order—and his purse could afford.

Food Minister Maurice Webb removed wartime controls from British catering Monday. They would stay revoked at least for the duration of the tourist season in the hope that Britain's dollar earnings thereby would be increased.

The principal effect is to do away with permitted house and cover charges, and to remove restrictions on the number of persons who can be served at social gatherings, and on what they may eat and pay.

Irked Tourists

Sometimes the house charges were used to cover the cost of delicacies which could not be served under the five-shilling limit. But frequently their appearance on the bill has irked tourists who thought the five-shilling price tag meant what it said.

One luxury restaurant Tuesday jumped its inclusive luncheon charge to 52 shillings, exclusive of wines. The average bill in the fashionable west end of London was said to be between nine and 10 shillings.

A great many lower-priced restaurants, however, carried on at the old five-shilling rate or lower. Some said their customers were prepared to pay no more, and so could look forward to a continued diet of sausages and mysterious rissoles made from meat leftovers.

A sample of prices at the luxury restaurants showed pate de foie gras back on the menu at 10s. a serving, pineapple at 4s. a helping and crepes suzettes at 3s. 6d.

Have Both Kinds

One firm of popular caterers said its restaurants will be as ready to serve a modest meal as they will to provide a six-course dinner.

Generally, the removal of the restriction was greeted with cheers by the catering and hotel industries.

Sir Frances Towle, chairman of the executive committee of the British Hotels and Restaurant Association, said: "I am certain it will do an enormous amount of good, especially where the American tourist is concerned."

Whether British cooks will rise to the challenge and provide meals which appeal to tourists remains to be seen. There has been no notable change from conditions which last year prompted Philip Noel-Baker, former Commonwealth relations secretary, to suggest that France and England exchange 10,000 cooks apiece.

He thought that British chefs would benefit from the stay in France while the French would educate Britons to new standards of cooking. Wits then quipped that such an invasion of France would be the worst possible way of promoting Anglo-French relations.

Distinctive Summer Styles Shown to 1500 Spectators

A fashion cavalcade of 20 presentations arranged by the Hadassah Chapter, displayed Monday evening about 1500 spectators the most distinctive and out of the ordinary summer outfits in many a year. Each was selected with a particular event of Peterborough's 1950 season in mind—opening of the new Civic Hospital and reception for the Prime Minister, ladies' day at the golf club, canasta parties, holidays and wedding trips, the Summer Theatre.

Mrs. Maurice Holt, commentator, called attention to slightly shorter skirts, softer lines, dainty sheers and durable fabrics, versatility of brief coiffures in modified versions, and the effect of sloe-eyed exotic make-up. She particularly mentioned the rhinestone jewelry, made by a Peterborough craftsman especially for several gowns. Its brilliance and tasteful design was exceedingly effective with a breath taking formal of sheer white marquisette.

Sheers are being widely accepted as high fashion this summer, and when they are crease-resistant, washable, and weigh just an ounce and a half, the holiday traveller would do well to stock up. The model in oyster shade with the bodice covered with diagonal tucking and finished with a Peter Pan collar and rhinestone buttons, was worn with smart multi-colored handbag and shoes.

Sweet and romantic choice for the bride having a less formal wedding—sheer grey organza, the skirt embroidered and then appliqued with palest pink roses, and worn over a strapless grey taffeta slip, boned to stay exactly in place. A halo bonnet of pink tulle with clusters of seed pearls, pink gloves and flowers completed this lovely picture.

Smartest suggestion for summer travel, but suitable for about-town and office wear, combined a sheer top with a paper taffeta skirt, both in same blue and white check pattern. With a red flower tucked into the the waistline for color short white gloves and a chic white pill-box hat with veil, it became a trim, sophisticated outfit.

Bare tops are still popular for dressy wear. Selected for the summer theatre, was a royal blue and white crepe, the boned bodice edged with black velvet—new and unusual as trimming on summer wear. The matching cover-up jacket had sloping short sleeves and a stand-up collar.

Unbeatable leader for town and country wear is shantung. Shown in black and navy, the former was a pocketed shirt-waist style with shiny black buttons and patent belt, worn with a huge cartwheel hat of natural straw and similar over-shoulder bag. The navy dress was a sun-style, worn with a white pique cut-away bolero, red gloves and flowers for intriging dash of color.

Sports Clothes were highlighted with an outfit that might make up the entire summer resort wardrobe—so many pieces in it that only a few were shown. Called "denim pair-offs", and the color "regatta-faded blue" it includes new-length pants, halter top, bolero, flared skirt, shorts, bobby jacket, jigger blouse, jumper and peaked cap.

The popular full skirt of drapery chintz was shown with a strapless top of pique, and a summer suit was in cool powder blue. Very trim and natty is the revival outfit of a navy woollen blazer and white skirt suggested for the spectator at the game.

Three child models, Vivian Wilson, Beverly Garside and Carol Howe, were as adorable as the dainty, but practical, clothes they wore, and caused a stir in brief bathing suits. Vivian and her mother, Mrs. Dave Wilson, were a charming duo in white summer dresses, designed alike to show off tanned shoulder or cover them in the ordinary way.

The bridal gown shown was of beautiful spider-web lace, over heavy satin, with a very long and very full train of lace, and four-yard veil of silk illusion caught to a pearl-trimmed "knight-cap." Organdy frocks in ultra violet and daffodil yellow for bridesmaids had hoops on the side to make the skirts fall in more graceful fold and swirl.

Other models were Misses Mary Scollard, Mary Helen Matthews, Joan Welsh, Shirley Florence, Mary Stewart and Joan Lynch.

Background piano music was by Morris Duke and Mrs. Myer Levine directed the showing. The stage of Brock Ballroom was attractively decorated with flowers, potted plants and ferns.

Each model received flowers and a pair of hose as a gift from the sponsoring organization.

Home and School Association News

RIFLE RANGE SCHOOL

The recently formed Home and School Association of the "Rifle Range" School held a regular meeting Monday evening. Contrary to usual, the fathers were in the majority at this meeting.

Mrs. E. Davis, president, was in the chair, and the minutes and treasurer's reports were read by Mrs. J. Stuart, Jr., Sec.-Treas. Mrs. S. Wood led in prayer.

A report on her visit to the Ontario Federation Convention in Toronto, was read by Mrs. E. Davis, the delegate.

Guest speaker for the evening, Mr. K. O. Birkin, was introduced by Mrs. Davis. The speaker gave a most interesting and informative talk on "Better School", a subject uppermost in the minds of most of the Home and School members in this particular district. He traced the growth of education in Canada from early days, when the three R's, augmented by a "sprinkling" of geography and history, was considered quite adequate in the way of education. Vastly different is the course of education today when, most grade 8 pupils have no fewer than fifteen subjects on their curriculum.

The speaker impressed the fact that at the present time a sound education is imperative, and without proper facilities, it is almost impossible to give the thorough and careful training which constitutes a good education.

The meeting was thrown open and a lively discussion period followed. Numerous question as to how educational facilities could be improved were answered by Mr. Birkin, and in spite of the fact that no immediate solution to the problem was forthcoming, the meeting closed with a note of optimism, and an earnest desire on the part of all present to do a share to bring about improvement in this much overcrowded school.

CENTRAL SCHOOL

Miss Cora Bailey, teacher of the junior oppportunity class at Prince of Wales school, was guest speaker at the annual meeting of Central Home and School Association Monday evening.

Showing she is keenly interested in her duties, Miss Bailey outlined the activities and work covered in her class to help students to make satisfactory and happy future adjustments.

Miss P. Bennett introducted the speaker and she was thanked by Mrs. E. Vance.

Vice presidents Mrs. L. Horning and Mrs. W. R. Philp, secretary Mrs. C. D. Munro; treasurer, Mrs. W. Davidson; executive, Mrs. E. Vance, Mrs. W. Langan, Mrs. S. J. Rowe, Mrs. G. Minty and Mrs. H. Shimer.

Installation was conducted by Mrs. A. W. Nelson, retiring Council president, and now district organizer.

Malcolm Ray and Michael Philp delighted with piano duets as did Joan Rowe and Margaret Pritchard.

Mrs. Malsch presided as OEA convention reports were heard from Mrs. S. Redout and Mrs. F. Earl, and also gave her own report.

Annual reports were read by: nominations, Mrs. S. Hayman; secretary, Mrs. C. D. Munro; treasurer, Mrs. W. Davidson; program, Mrs. S. Rowe; membership, Mrs. S. Hayman; home education, Mrs. L. Raper; publications, Mrs W. G. Gunn; radio, Mrs. G. Minty; social, Mrs. F. Earl; sunshine, Mrs. L. Horning; telephone, Mrs. L. Browne; health, Mrs. W. J. Armstrong.

Refreshments were served by Mrs. F. Earl and her committee.

Rev. F. Marrocco Speaks On CA Movement

Annual Communion Breakfast of St. Peter's Senior Sodality held Sunday at the Empress hotel, with 85 members present.

The occasion was marked by the visit of the Rev. F. Marrocco of Ottawa as guest speaker, and the presence of spiritual director Rt. Rev. Monsignor P. P. Butler.

Other guests were Miss Rita Larsen and Miss Barbara Hood, both of Ottawa, who acquainted sodalists with the C. A. Movement and illustrated how it could be applied to their own organization.

Miss Helen Strano, prefect, extended a welcome to honoured guests and members from Junior and Senior Sodalities. Miss Mamie Sullivan, vice prefect, introduced the speaker.

In his inspiring address Father Marrocco summarized Catholic Action. He pointed out that this CA movement is not a new thing but is the practical application of our Lord's request that we all become apostles. These apostles are divided into two classes, the clergy and the laiety, he said.

"While the same demands will never be placed on the laiety as are on the clergy they must play their particular part. Because the clergy is unable to reach everyone, it is up to the lay apostalates to make contact for them and provide these people with the necessary help for their specific problems. C. A. accomplishes this by means of capable and thoroughly trained leaders."

Miss Ella Foley, publicity convener, thanked Father Marrocco on behalf of the sodality.

In reference to the work of C.A. Monsignor Butler stressed importance of sharing appreciation of the religion with others. "Self improvement must not be one sole intention of a member of C. A. but rather he must strive to share his knowledge with others so as to enable them to lead better lives," he said.

Prayer for the Pope was read by Miss Loretta Lorenz, Eucharistic convener. This was followed by prayer for the King and a toast given by Miss Pat Eggleton secretary.

JACOBY ON CANASTA

"Canasta must be a very mysterious game," writes A. M., of Cleveland. "You get credit only for the melds you put on the table. If you get caught with meldable cards in your hand, they count against you. It seems to me that you ought to put melds on the table as fast as you can. But no. You experts come along and make it look hard. You say that we mustn't put melds down so fast or the goblins will get us.

"Is there any logic to this, or are you just trying to complicate a very simple game?"

Canasta is not as simple as you think, my friend. There really is a good logical reason for not putting melds down as quickly as possible.

We must begin with the fact that the discard pile is of the highest importance. If you can pick up that pile fairly often, you will get a lot of cards to meld. If you cant' get the pile, you won't meld very much.

Next point. Suppose you make it your practice to put all (or even nearly all) your meldable cards on the table as son as you can. What happens if an opponent then freeze the pack?

He can then discard safely to you. He simply throws cards that match you melds. You won't have a matching pair in your hand because you've already melded all you could. Therefore you won't get the discard pile.

What is worse, you can't expect to make safe discards forever. Sooner or later you are your partner will have to make a fatal discard. Then the opponents will pick up the discard pile, freeze the pack again, and start the process over.

In short, the chief reason for keeping meldable cards in your hand is to discourage the opponents from freezing the pack. A simple reason, but very powerful. If you make it a practice to meld what you can, your opponents will mop up the floor with you practically every single time.

Q—This may sound terribly elementary, but I have trouble shuffling the deck. I usually split the deck in two and shuffle each half separately. This doesn't mix one half with the other. Is this all right?

A—It isn't bad. Don't worry about it. The best way to shuffle the deck is to riffle one-half against the other half, and then to use the old-fashioned overhand shuffle once or twice to mix up the halves. If your hand isn't big enough to do that, your own method is good enough.

Q—My partner asked "Partner, I think we are over 5000. Do you want me to go out?" We were not actually over 5000. What is the rule?

A—Your partner is obliged to go out, according to the rule. He is allowed to ask just the simple question. He is not allowed to give you information at the same time. If he does, he must go out regardless of what your wishes happen to be and regardless of the accuracy of the information that he gave you.

Pettersone made the presentation, and was then herself honored with a gift from the members in recognition of 13 years' service as president. Each extended thanks for help and inspiration extended them during the years. A life membership and pin is also to be given Mrs. Wm. Nicholls who was unable to be present at the meeting.

Mrs. C. Payne, president, was in the chair. Opening prayer was given by the Rev. D. P. Morris.

Program convener Mrs. K. Hardill presented a program on the general theme "Faith and Obedience." Scripture reading was given by Mrs. C. Staples and a lesson thought on the theme given by Mrs. K. Lewis. Mrs. R. Jopling further expressed the theme with a poem entitled "Reflection." A beautiful song selection "Like Jesus" was contributed by Mrs. C. Telford, playing her own accompaniment. Short readings were given by Mrs. Hardill and Mrs. J. Smith.

Announcement was made by the president of a home cooking sale at the market on Saturday morning, May 13. Mrs. E. Blewett reported on purchase of new tablecloths and six visits were reported by the committee. Mr. Morris asked the women to make a special endeavor to do more community visiting. It was arranged to hold the June meeting at the home of Mrs. R. Jopling.

Lunch was served by Mrs. Smith and her committee.

Of Interest to Women

DOROTHY DIX

Teen-age Passion Seldom Becomes Enduring Love

DEAR MISS DIX: Does a person ever quite get over his first love even if he knows that it is hopeless? Does a man ever fall in love so completely again as he did the first time? If he marries a second love, will he be as happy as he would have been if he had married his first love? What do you think of first love?

MISS S.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: I think that first love is of the stuff of which dreams are made and that it is just as beautiful and unsubstantial as dreams are.

Sometimes It Works

Of course, sometimes first love endures and there are cases where men and women marry their first sweethearts, but this does not often happen. Most men and women have thought themselves in love a dozen times before they ever experienced a real case. The truth is that boys and girls in their adolescent state are in love with love and so overflowing with sentiment that they fancy themselves in love with any one of the opposite sex who happens to be near enough for them to hang their affections upon temporarily.

As for a man getting over his first love, there is nothing from which he recovers so completely. Of course, in the back of his mind a certain glamour may hang around the memory of his first sweetheart, but let him but meet her again after a lapse of years and he is filled with wonder at what he could possibly have seen in her that caught his immature fancy.

Real love is an experence that belongs to maturity, not to our salad days. It is only after we are grown-up men and women and know the needs of our own natures that we are capable of the love that can break our hearts if it is unreturned and that endures for a lifetime.

Whether a man will be happier if he marries his second love than he would if he married his first depends entirely upon the woman and which one would be the most congenial to him. Possibly the first love might have been his predestined mate, but it is more likely to have been the second, bcause generally a boy's first love is his teacher or some woman old enough to be his mother.

First love is a beautiful theme for the poet, but in real life it is a snare and a delusion from which most of us are mercifully saved by a beneficent Providence

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR DOROTHY DIX: I am married to the swellest man on earth. No man could be kinder, more devoted or more generous to a wife than he is to me. Never scolds, never reprimands me, no matter how extravagant I am or how inefficient. But I don't love him. I am mean, nagging and despicable. I neglect my housework shamefully. If I tell him I don't love him and leave him, he will be so desperate that he will ruin himself. If I leave him, for me it will mean having to take a housemaid's job for some other women instead of having my own beautiful house and car. What shall I do? I am the most unhappy person alive.

MRS. A. J.

ANSWER: You have thought and thought about not being in love with your husband, and about his not being the romantic hero of your girlish dreams until you have worked yourself up into a state of hysteria where you are suffering all sorts of psychopathic pains and having a perfectly gorgeous time being miserable about nothing.

My advice to you is this :Quit thinking about yourself so much and think a little about the splendid man to whom you are married. Don't be wicked enough to ruin his life by letting him find out how you feel about him, or by leaving him. Have enough courage to carry on and keep up the reception and make him happy. Suppose you are not ardently in love with him. You like him and respect him and admire him. That is the real basis on which all friendship is founded, and friendship is a mighty good substitute for love.

And don't forget this: The best way in the world to cultivate love is by doing something for someone. Get busy doing things for that good husband of yours. Think of him instead of yourself and you will find that you are drawn to him in a way that you have believed impossible, and you will find happines yourself.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: A business man in his early fifties and busines woman of forty are very much in love with each other and are considering marriage. Is the difference in their age an obstacle?

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: Certainly not. They are practically in the same age class, since women age more quickly than men do. Their tastes are settled. They know what they want in a husband or wife and the matter of a few additional years one way or the other is negligible.

Sterile Marriage Frequently Fault of Male Partner

By HOWARD W. BLAKESLEE

NEW YORK — (CP) — Husbands are at fault two-thirds of the time in sterile marriages, says a new book, "Human Fertility and Problems of the Male."

And, the book adds, only about 40 per cent of American men are fully fertile.

The author is Edmond J. Harris, PH.D., Executive Director, Wistar Institute of Anatomy and Biology, Philadelphia. It is published by the Author's Press, Inc., White Plains, N. Y.

It is a fallacy, the book says, to believe that most men are fertile and also a fallacy to say that women usually are responsible for fertility.

The number of sterile American couples is more than 5,000,000. To this both husbands and wives contribute. The degree of infertility may vary in either man or woman. If one partner has very high fertility, that may overbalance low fertility in the mate.

The number of men or women who are absolutely and incurably sterile is small. The degrees of fertility not only vary from person to person, but may rise or fall in the same individual from time to time.

Matter For Doctor

Medical treatment can do much to overcome infertility regardless of which partner is at fault. But there is no such thing as buying the means of fertility in a store. The couple has to go to an experienced doctor, and the treatment may take months, or longer. There is no one cause of sterility and no single treatment. Each case is different.

Frequent intercourse is not a sign of fertility in a man, and the books says it can even render a man sub-fertile.

Normal women are not fertile, as commonly believed, for several days each month, but only from six to twelve hours in seven out of every eight months.

Emotion is not a factor in sterility among men.

Potential fertility is not greatest in young persons. Instead, fertility is relatively constant throughout the fertile period of life.

There is no remote relationship, the book says, between fertility and physical appearance.

Does potential fertility decrease with increasing education?

"A small, pilot sample," says the book, "suggests the opposite may be true."

AID FOR EYES

What's Right

You telephone a doctor at his home and his wife says he is not in but tries to find out what you want with him.

WRONG: Don't give her any information, but say you will call back later.

RIGHT: Give her the necessary information so that when the doctor telephones home he can have some idea of what calls he will have to make and what they will involve.

Municipal Board

The bylaws, which had been given two readings by the council, and were then sent on to the Municipal Board, provided for: street pavement on Lock St. from Lansdowne St. to King George St.; on Monaghan Road from Sherbrooke St. to Wolfe St. and from Frank St. to Lansdowne St.; on Park St. North, from McDonnel St. to Park Hill Road; and on Rogers St., south from Hunter to James St., and Townsend and Perry Streets between Aylmer and Park Streets.

Another bylaw provided for storm drains on Lock St. from Lansdowne to King George St.; and on Monaghan Road from Romaine St. to Lansdowne St. A third bylaw embodied the terms for the proposed drain on the west side of Park St. from Brioux Ave. to the river, thereby filling the present open ditch.

Most of the objections of property owners were to the local improvement frontage charge for pavements and drains.

Paving Of Lock Street

The first project considered was the paving of Lock St. and also its storm drain.

City Engineer A. E. Chalmers said that early this year the council had instructed him to recommend a program of street paving for this season.

The usual apportionment of paving costs was 40 per cent against the city as a whole and 60 per cent against the abutting properties. In this program the council decided that the city should absorb 55 per cent and the owners 45 per cent.

In addition, the city also paid for street intersections and flankages, thereby increasing the corporation's part of the cost to about 69 per cent.

Subsidy Paid

"I consider that Lock St. is one of the main thoroughfares in the in the south end of the city," Mr. Chalmers said, in examination by City Solicitor W. F. Huycke. "It is classified by the Department of Highways as a thoroughfare on which they will pay a subsidy. The present road surface is asphaltic mulch that was put down in the 1930's. It has been there 12 to 15 years."

Mr. Chalmers said there was no storm drain on Lansdowne St. That part of the city was annexed from North Monaghan, and the council was now getting around to laying the necessary drain.

"The life time of the existing road has reached its reasonable limit," Mr. Chalmers told the two members of the Board. "Traffic has increased in volume and is also much heavier."

Mr. W. B. Gordon appeared on behalf of Lansdowne St. property owners. To him, Mr. Chalmers said the estimated cost of the Lansdowne St. pavement and drain was $55,134.45. The frontage charge to the property owner was 64.5 cents a foot for ten years. "About the same cost as last year," Mr. Chalmers said.

Mr. Gordon: "Right now the cost of paving is the highest it has ever been?"

Mr. Chalmers affirmed that suggestion. He said there had been no paving done in Peterborough since before the war.

Program Considered

Ald. Hurrell Dodds, chairman of the board of works, said the paving program for the year had been thoroughly considered by the council.

"Due to the war there was a back-log for six years of work that was required, but had to be neglected. The city has been growing rapidly, and traffic has been wearing out roads, resulting in high cost of maintenance, which was charged against the board of works.

"In view of the high tax rate, it would be less burdensome to the ratepayer to let the paving stand over for three or four years?" Mr. Gordon asked.

Ald. Dodds: "I can accept that on behalf of the tax payer, but as chairman of the board of works, knowing what the city needs, I can not."

Ald. Dodds replied to Mr. Gordon that the tax rate this year was 49½ mills.

"That rate does not alarm either Mr. Lister or myself," said Mr. Rowland. "The tax rate in Mr. Lister's municipality was fixed last night at 85.2 mills, and my rate is 66.7 mills. Of course there may be a factor of difference in assessment."

Mr. Rowland is a former reeve of Forest Hills, near Toronto.

Hugh Stewart, president of the Peterborough Exhibition, said he represented the directors as objecting to the Lansdonwe St. paving and drain if it imposed a cost on the revenues of the Exhibition.

"We don't object to the improvement. Before the war the Exhibition was always in debt, and we want to avoid a deficit."

To Mr. Huycke, he said he was not sure whether the Agricultural Society would be charged for the paving.

Mr. E. H. B. Rye, with a house and 70-foot frontage on Lock St., said the road surface was "in pretty good shape". He drives over it four times a day.

Pavement Not Required

Fraser Watson submitted a petition objection to the Rogers St. paving. He told the Board that in the opinion of ratepayers the type of paving was much heavier than was required for the traffic on that street. He also said the city directed traffic south by way of Mark St.

The type of pavement and the cost were major items in that protest. Mr. Watson said asphalt patching should be all that was required for the present.

C. G. Gertley, 1198 Monaghan Road, objected to the paving on that road "because with high taxes it will put a burden on a lot of us". He said the street was in good condition. He also commented that there was no pavement planned for the strip from Wolfe St. to Frank St.

H. Ferguson, 1208 Monaghan Road, enquired whether it was a coincidence that the proposed paving except on Perry and Townsend Streets was on sections of the bus routes.

Hy Wood, vice-president of Outboard Marine and Manufacturing Co., said the company was in accord wsth the paving project. As to the reference to the strip south from Wolfe St. he said he had been informed by Ian McRea, works manager of C.G.E. Co., that they never asked that this strip be omitted.

Mr. Huycke: "The C.G.E. have never been asked."

(The council recently gave its own reply to that question, as reported in the Examiner. There is no sewer in that block of Monaghan Road. Obviously it would be folly to pave a street before a sewer is laid).

Wm. Mantell said he was in favor of the pavement.

Steven Cadigan presented a petition from objecting property owners.

Mrs. S. R. Adamson, at McCannah and Monaghan Road, said paving involved a heavy cost. She asked why the council could not lay a cheaper type of surface.

Park St. Drain

As to the Park St. drain, Frank Jobbitt, hardware store proprietor, said that project would be a definite advantage to him. As chairman of the Board of Education, he said the open ditch was a great worry to the teachers of Confederation school, especially for the safety of children in the lower grades. There were many children in that part of the city, some of them of pre-school age.

"If any of them is missing around home, the first place mothers look is in that ditch," Mr. Jobbitt said.

Supporting a petition of opponents to the council's project, Herbert Reynolds said their contention was that the ditch should be filled in at the cost of the city as a whole, instead of any proportional charge to fronting property. It was laid, he said, many years ago to drain the west end of the town, and was never considered as an advantage to the township.

City Clerk Outram explained to the members of the Board that the council had been gradually changing the principle of financing public works. People asking for services should be prepared to pay for them. That was the attitude the council had taken in recent years.

"And quite right," said Mr. Rowland. "Your council has been a long time getting around to doing it. People who get the most benefit from municipal services should pay proportionally for it."

To one of the Park St. drain objectors, he said: "You are not being asked to pay very much toward it."

The council's allocation of cost was: 75 p.c. against the corporation; 25 p.c against the property owners on Park St. And of the 25 p.c., two-thirds was to be levied against the west side owners and one-third against those on the east side of the street.

"We would like to drive around the city and see those streets we have been hearing about," Mr. Rowland said. "We would like to have Mr. Chalmers take us. I think he would be of most help to us. We have to reserve decision onthese bylaws."

Sex Criminals Not Jailed, Go To Hospital

DETROIT, May 3.— (AP).— The first official answer whether doctors can curb sex crimes better than prisons was given to the American Psychiatric Association today.

The answer comes from Washington, D.C., where a new law is sending sex offenders to a mental hospital to remain until the superintendent says they are safe to release. This experiment holds that sex offenders are sick persons rather than criminals.

The Washington report indicates that the chances are fairly good, but that cures probably will be slow and expensive. The American Psychiatric Association is interested because similar experiments recently have been enacted into law in Canada, New York and California.

The District of Columbia legislation says the persons to be confined are "not insane." They are men whose repeated sex misconduct convinces a judge they are likely to repeat. Rapists are not included. The hospital has 24 of these men. None has been released, although some have been there for more than a year. Twenty-five per cent are improved.

Five Kinds

The first important medical finding is that the 24 suffer from five different kinds of mental troubles, all ordinary.

The five are mental troubles due to diseases, defective minds, compulsive neurosis — feelings there is something you just have to do matter what the cost—and split personalities and hysteria.

The principal treatments are to keep these men fully occupied all day. They work in shops, at art, drama, athletics games, editing a newspaper, playing in a band, seeing movies and television.

B.C. Town Against Doukhobor Children

SANNICH, B.C., May 3—(CP)—This community is "not happy" over the prospective sheltering of 300 homeless Doukhobor children at a former R.C.A.F. hospital at nearby Patricia Bay.

"We are not very happy about the situation," Reeve Joseph Casey, whose municipality is undesirable."

The former R.C.A.F. hospital was turned over to British Columbia Department of Health authorities Tuesday to house children left home less by the destruction of houses by fanatical Sons of Freedom Doukhobors.

Shelter also is needed for children whose parents have been arrested for arson and participating in nude parades.

Donald Gordon Makes Personal CNR Contact

TORONTO, May 3 — The importance of the individuals contribution to a great industry was stressed by Donald Gordon, C. M. G., chairmanand president of the Canadian National Railways, during his first official visit to the Central Region headquarters and district offices.

Mr. Gordon spent little more than a dozen hours in Toronto, arriving this morning from Detroit, where he attended the annual meeting of the Grand Trunk Western Railroad, and leaving tonight on "The Continental Limited" for Winnipeg on a inspection trip that will take him to the Pacific coast. During the day he met more than 1,000 Canadian National employees and gave talks to three different groups, one numbering 500 men and women.

"I have found from experience," Mr. Gordon said, "that the responsibility of its people is the most important asset of any industry. As one fresh from an intensive study of the railway, I realize that until I have a better knowledge of its personalities, I cannot know the railway thoroughly. But I can say to you, I have seen something of the United States lines and I believe that our C. N. R. system is one of the finest on the continent. We have the best kind of skill and teamwork which tops anything I know. It is very important that we be conscious of this."

Pension Plans Require No Means Test

Abolition of the means test in pension schemes is progressing steadily in most countries, H. W MacDonnell, manager of the legal department of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association, said Tuesday.

He was speaking to 200 C.M.A. members at the 31st annual dinner of the Ontario division of the association.

Mr. MacDonnell intimated that the basic points of his speech would also form the groundwork for a brief the CMA present to the Canadian Senate and Commons some time this year. The brief will be prepared at the annual meeting of the CMA to be held in Toronto May 24.

Contributory Pension

He told his audience that most countries which began with a pension scheme "for the deserving poor", have discarded that plan in favor of contributory pension or "all-in" schemes.

Mr. MacDonnell also stressed the need for continued employment of workers of retirement age who are still capable of producing. He said the continued employment of these workers was "very desirable" for the success of any retirement plan.

The problems to face in organizing such a scheme, were the increase in taxation, and the decrease in the rate of interest.

"It is very much more difficult for old people to save money," he said, "and young people are very much less able to aid their elders. The family as an economic unit is disappearing."

More Older People

Urbanization has greatly decreased the productively of older people, and, there are more older people than formerly. In the years since the turn of the century, while the number of people under 15 has doubled, the number over 45 has trebled.

If a state plans to pension all over a certain age, Mr. MacDonnell said, the insurance, or contributory system must be introduced. Benefits from the scheme would be received in ratio to contributions.

Briefly, Mr. MacDonnel traced the history of pension plans, which, he said, were about a century old in Europe, and 75 years old on this continent.

As an example, he used Great Britain, where in 1908 there was a pension plan with a means test for only the deserving poor. In 1919, a royal commission investigated pensions, and recommended a change to the contributory system. In subsequent years, bills proposing such a plan were introduced into parliament, but always defeated because the means test beneficiaries voted against them.

Eventually, the contributory system was brought into the United Kingdom, but only after a healthy battle with those who had benefitted under the "deserving poor", pension plan.

All-In, All-Pay Plan

The United States, Mr. MacDonnell said, was turning more and more to the contributory method, and at present has a bill before the Senate based on the "all-in, all-pay" system.

"People ask why industry shouldn't shoulder most of the burden," he said. For one thing, industry couldn't raise enough money, and the problem of investing it if it could be raised would be insoluble.

"Old age security benefits can only come out of production," he said. "And if the community isn't earning the income, it certainly can't pay the benefits. If labor pushes up wages faster than output rises, they are undermining the security of all retired persons."

Thinks Canada Should Call Meeting Of UN

OTTAWA, May 3. (CP)—Gordon Graydon (PC-Peel) said on Tuesday night Canada should take the initiative in calling immediately a special emergency meeting of the United Nations "in a courageous and determined effort to preserve the peace."

Mr. Graydon, vice-chairman of the Commons Committee on External Affairs, said the meeting should be called and the 59 members of United Nations should be represented by the heads of their governments.

Speaking on free time provided by the CBC for political broadcasts, Mr. Graydon said:

"Let these world leaders, rather than their deputies, put their feet under a common table for the first time since the last war and clearly delineate the frontiers of the free world and make effective provision for respecting them.

"The Soviets should be told in plain and unmistakable terms that there will be no modern Munich in this generation so far as the western democracies are concerned, but that the free world is nevertheless prepared and anxious to enter into concrete and enforceable plans whereby the peace will be made to stick once and for all."

Stalin Death Will Break Russian Sway

WASHINGTON, May 3 (CP) — Paul G. Hoffman, Marshall plan administrator, Tuesday predicted that Russia's satellite states will break away from the Kremlin upon the death of Prime Minister Stalin.

In that event, "We will see the crack-up of the most evil dictatorship ever to dream of enslaving the world," he said in an address before the United States Chamber of Commerce.

"The power of a dictator has never yet been passed on to a successor without a period of great turbulence," the recovery chief said.

"I predict that such a period of turbulence will come to Russia and that when it does, the satellite states will break away from the Kremlin just as Yugoslavia has already done."

Hoffman spoke after the president of the Standard Oil Company told the gathering of business leaders that, to win a stable peace, the United States must import greater volumes of foreign goods.

Eugene Holman predicted that widening the gates for imports will help, rather than injure, the prosperity of the US.

The closing of Europe's "dollar gap"—the deficit between dollars spent and dollars earned in world trade—could be achieved if the US devoted only 5 per cent of its national income to the purchase of overseas goods, instead of the present 3 per cent, Holman said. Five per cent was the ratio which prevailed in 1925-1929 and now would mean an import total of $11,000,000,000.

Congress Youths Hit Brockville

BROCKVILLE, May 2 (CP) — Led by a white-sweatered torch-bearer, a group of youths jogged through Brockville today en route to Toronto and the second annual meeting of the Canadian Peace Congress, a leftist organization.

The youths identified themselves as members of the Youth Assembly for Peace, a peace congress affiliate. Most are Montrealers.

The young men and women spread out along Brockville's main street, distributing pamphlets advertising the congress meeting, to be held in Toronto this Saturday and Sunday.

The unidentified torch-bearer jumped from an automobile at the eastern limits of the citys' business section and re-entered the car at the west end after his midtown trot.

A majority of townspeople approached by the youths refused to accept the pamphlets. Others, after quick glances, dropped the printed material to the sidewalks.

99-Day Chrysler Strike Ends At Detroit; Workers Back By Monday

Second Longest And Costliest In History
Strike Cost Billion;
Expect Full Production Within Two Weeks

By GLENN EAGLE

DETROIT, May 4—(AP)—The 99-day Chrysler strike, second longest and costliest in the history of the automotive industry, was settled today. The strike cost $1,427,920,880 in lost wages and sales—barely short of the record $1,457,000,000 General Motors strike of 1945-46 that lasted 113 days. Chrysler and the United Automobile Workers (C.I.O.) announced agreement on new contracts this morning. The 89,000 strikers in 25 Chrysler plants across the United States will return to work by Monday. Fifty thousand made idle in supplier plants will stream back behind them. The Company hopes to reach capacity production within two weeks.

The union claims it received the "10-cent-an-hour package" in pensions and hospital and medical benefits for which it called the strike Jan. 25.

$100 Pension

Settlement carried a $100 monthly pension, including federal social security benefits, for workers 65 with 25 years service. Hospital and medical benefits also were increased.

The new contract, which would run for three years, must have the formal approval of local unions unions before the UAW will send the strikers back. That was believed to be a formality however.

Voting by the local unions is scheduled for Saturday.

Back Monday

Although the first of the striking workers will be back on their jobs by Monday it is doubted that full production in the various Chrysler, DeSoto, Dodge and Plymouth assembly plants will be resumed before the middle of next week.

UAW President Walter Reuther viewed the settlement as a "victory over the blind selfishness of the Chrysler Corporation."

Herman L. Weckler, Chrysler vice-president and general manager, issues a statement stating: "The new contract is a good contract."

OFFICIAL OPENING OF THE NEW WING of St. Joseph's Hospital was climaxed when the Premier of Ontario, the Hon. Leslie M. Frost, K.C., cut the ribbon at the front door, LEFT, at the Wednesday afternoon ceremonies. Following several short addresses by His Excellency Bishop Gerald Berry, His Worship Max J. Swanston, Department of Lands and Forests Minister, the Hon. Harold R. Scott and Gordon K. Fraser, MP, the large audience, partly shown at RIGHT, witnessed the graduation ceremonies of 17 nurses in the auditorium of the Nurses Training School on the hospital grounds. —Examiner Staff Photos

Lauds Vision Of Sisters On 60th Birthday Of St. Joseph's Hospital

75-Bed Addition Brings Total To 175;
Far Cry From 1890
When Tiny Hospital Held Mere 25 Beds

Sixty years ago, the Sisters of St. Joseph first established a hospital in Ashburnham. Then, there were but 25 beds to care for the seriously sick in the city. Premier Leslie M. Frost on Wednesday, opened a 75-bed wing to the hospital, to make it 175 beds, and paid tribute to the vision of the Sisters. "I acknowledge with gratitude and admiration the remarkable contribution the Sisters of St. Joseph have made to this city," the Premier said.

Speaking to a crowd of nearly 300 standing coatless in the warm May sun, the Premier briefly outlined the history of the hospital as it grew with the city.

Brings Greetings

"The Sisters," said Mr. Frost, "have been faithful to a vision calculated to bring great good to the community. I bring them greetings, not only from my own county of Victoria, but also from the four-and-a-half million citizens of this province."

"Now, this hospital is a very finely balanced institution, making great contributions to the community and the province. And despite what others may have said of the financial aid from the province and the federal government this new wing is largely the result of the efforts of the Sisters themselves.

"The province has given the hospital every bit of assistance we could, but figures are cold, and it is perhaps better to talk in terms of human betterment," he said.

Made Great Progress

"In these days of difficulty and trouble, we may not always realize that we in Canada, and in this fine province of ours, have made great progress. Indeed, looking over the past 50 years, we have made great strides in health.

"Today, an infant's chance of living beyond one year is three-and-one-half times better than it was at the turn of the century. At that time the mortality rate from typhoid fever was 211 times greater than it is now, and from tuberculosis, four-and-one-half times.

"We have indeed made great achievements, and while there is on every hand much to do, we can still look back with satisfaction to the fact that our hospitals, our medical services and our

Britain, Canada May Become Empire Partners

By ALAN HARVEY

LONDON, May 4—(CP)—A hint that Canada join Britain as a partner in the development of her Colonial Empire came today from Julian Amery, 30-year-old Conservative member for Preston North.

Amery did not elaborate on this suggestion, acknowledging that it would be a bold step for a young country bulging with opportunities for domestic investment. But, he said in a letter to The Times, it probably would be a good idea for Canada to accept part payment in Sterling for Canadian exports to Britain, using the proceeds for investment in such territories as the British West Indies.

He listed these three essential conditions: 1. Canadians must be able to make a reasonable profit, in dollars, from their investments; 2. British subjects in the United Kingdom should be allowed to invest in approved Canadian companies; 3. Canadians should be left with no doubt that Colonial development is the real aim of the British government.

Amery's letter paid tribute to the "interesting and constructive" speech in Monday's debate by Michael Foot, left-wing Labor member for Devonport.

Foot suggested that Canada accept payment in sterling for a "substantial and reasonable" part of Canadian imports from the sterling area and invest sterling thus earned in areas such as the West Indies.

Quarter-Million Fire Razes Cobalt Smelter

COBALT, May 4 — (CP). — A $250,000 fire today turned the giant smelter building of the Cobalt Chemical and Refinery Company into a heap of twisted steel.

The blaze ripped through the building before noon and defied the efforts of firefighters for nearly two hours.

In one of Cobalt's most spectacular fires, masses of flame burst from the building and a huge pall of chemically-produced smoke poured hundreds of feet into the air.

Company officials said the fire began about 10 a.m. when a group of workmen were building up the heat in No. 3 smelter.. The oil began feeding into the smelter too quickly and the flaming overflow dropped into a barrel beneath.

Fire extinguishers were turned on the barrel but within 15 minutes the entire building was a sheet of flame.

The volunteer fire department was credited with preventing the spread of flames to the cobalt plant, a larger building just a few feet away.

Company officials praised the fast action of the fire department. "Before we had all our fire extinguishers in action we could hear the fire truck coming down the highway," one said.

Inside the structure, nearly 100 feet long and 50 feet wide, were three giant roasters, a smelter, and two furnaces.

Convict Ellis Robbing Seymour Farmer

COBOURG, May 4 (ENS) — Charles Ellis of Campbellford was today convicted of robbery with violence by Magistrate R. B. Baxter. Ellis was remanded for sentence to Monday.

His brother Joseph Ellis of Welland is coming up for trial on a similar charge.

Both are charged with the brutal beating and robbery of George Stollery, 81-year-old Seymour township farmer March 14. Stollery was accosted at the rear door of his isolated farmhouse by two men and dragged into his backyard where he was beaten unconscious and robbed.

He managed to stagger a quarter of a mile to the home of his nephew, Edgar Stollery. After preliminary medical attention he was taken to Belleville General Hospital where he has been since.

The preliminary hearing was held there April 27 due to Stollery's inability to attend the court session in Cobourg.

Lock Workers Out On Strike

Peterborough Lock Co. workers are on strike. The 48-hour ultimatum to the company delivered by Local 527, United Electrical Workers, expired at 7 a.m. today. Mass picketing began outside the plant gates on Simcoe St. long before the starting whistle blew and the first shift of regular pickets began shortly after 7 a.m. About 120 men and women, some with placards bearing union slogans, took part in the demonstration. At noon the mass picketing and demonstration was repeated and it is scheduled again for tonight. All taking part wore "on strike" armbands.

The union bargaining unit for some 180 production workers, is demanding a 42½-hour week with no loss of pay; men's minimum rates raised from 93 cents an hour to $1, women's from 82c cents to 87 cents an hour; a revision in the time schedule and seniority protection.

At present there is a 45-hour week at Peterborough Lock.

Police On Hand

Three policemen were on hand to keep an eye on the mass picketing but there was no sign of disorder. The workers in double column marched up and down in front of the plant exchanging quips among themselves and with passersby.

Leading the demonstrators were Local 527 president, Romeo Leonard and UE representative, John Rowley.

There was no attempt to go through the picket line at start-

Spent Life Curing Sick Patients Refuse Appeal

ATLANTA, Ga., May 4—(AP)—An elderly country doctor, seriously ill in hospital after an operation, has asked his patients to pay him the fees they still owe him so that he can pay his own doctor bill promptly. But the patients still aren't settling their accounts with Dr. R. H. Bramlett, Sr. The 63-year-old physician published his appeal in the Forsyth County News before he came here for the operation Wednesday.

"I am up against a serious problem," Dr. Bramlett's appeal said. "Have been in the hospital for three weeks and must undergo a serious operation which I may not survive. I am now asking your aid like you asked mine thousands of times.

"Do you remember how good you felt when maybe snow covered the ground or in all other kinds of bad weather, when you heard my voice say, "I will come"?

"Now, my friends, I am asking you to come and pay me the small fees charged you for my services."

The appeal thus far has accomplished little, said the doctor's son, Dr. R. H. Bramlett, Jr., who also practices in rural Forsyth County where about 15,000 persons live.

Young Dr. Bramlett said patients still owe his father about $25,000.

"Why, he's delivered more than 4,000 babies," the son said.

The elder doctor was reported doing as well "as could be expected after a major operation," the son said.

TORONTO, May 4—(CP)—A Toronto newspaper said today that the English Electric Company Ltd., of Great Britain has purchased control of the John Inglis Company Ltd., for £750,000 ($2,325,000).

Horses Throw Farmer To Death

COBOURG, May 4 — (ENS) — Critically injured Wednesday morning when his horses bolted on his farm at Vernonville, Fred A. Black, 85, died in the afternoon in Cobourg General Hospital.

Mr. Black was riding on a roller at the back of the barn when it jolted over a stump and frightened the horses.

The team ran out on the road and in turning, Mr. Black was thrown off the roller, receiving a fractured skull and a fractured thigh.

His son, Theodore, standing near the lane, saw his father thrown. The accident was investigated by Provincial Constable Don Nicol, of Cobourg. No inquest will be held.

Aussie Labor Party Wants Reds Banned

SYDNEY, Australia, May 4. — (Reuters).—The Australian Labor party today decided to endorse the principles of the Coalition Government's bill to outlaw Communism.

Meanwhile, at pit-top meetings miners in 50 of the 115 mines in New South Wales voted against their Communist-led union's order to strike for one day in protest against the bill. Today's production loss was estimated at 29,000 tons, about half of New South Wales' normal daily output.

In Canberra, Joseph Chifley, Labor chief and leader of the parliamentary opposition, said the Labor party would approve sections of the Government's bill, but would seek alterations to clauses dealing with the liberty of the individual.

Quads Born In Minnesota

SLEEPY EYE, Minn., May 4—(AP) — Quadruplets—three girls and a boy—were born Wednesday to Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Fiefert, who farm seven miles southeast of Sleepy Eye. The infants were delivered by Dr. Edward Keithahn in the Sleepy Eye Hospital.

Dr. Keithahn said the babies are doing well, although the smallest is rather feeble. He said Mrs. Feifert is in "fair" condition. She is the mother of six other children, including twins.

The infants varied from 2½ to 4½ pounds. Two girls were born first; then the boy, and then the third girl.

City Entertains Premier Frost

Premier Leslie M. Frost was the guest of the city at a reception and dinner Wednesday evening at the Empress Hotel. He was accompanied by Mrs. Frost, Gordon K. Fraser, M.P., and Mrs. Fraser, Hon. R. Scott and Mrs. Scott, Bishop Berry and other guests, including Reeves James Gifford and Melville H. Johnston of the county council.

Members of the city council and their wives, and representatives of both hospitals boards were present. Reeve Johnston, vice-president of the Board of Governors of Civic Hospital, represented Mr. John R. Marshall, president, who was prevented by illness from attending.

Ald. Adam Sands, chairman of the council's reception committee, presided, and presented Mrs Frost with a bouquet of roses.

Premier Frost spoke of the friendly relations that exist in the general community of the people of Ontario, and of Canada, exemplified by the neighborliness of his own town of Lindsay and Peterborough. He said that he wished to recognize the enterprise of Peterborough in setting up its Recreation Commission for the benefit of its people and especially its youth, and in proof of that appreciation as head of the government of the province, he handed to Mayor Swanston a cheque for $3,500, the government's grant toward the financing of recreational activities in Peterborough.

Barriers To Romance Face Robbery Suspect and Girl

MONTREAL, May 4 (CP) — Further roadblocks to romance face winsome Elaine Masters today.

The 19-year-old brunette wants to marry Nick Cooper, 22-year-old suspect in the $4,400 robbery of the Royal Bank's Rosemount Branch in northeastern Montreal last April 25. Cooper surrendered to police Tuesday night after telling a Montreal Herald editor he wanted to "face the music."

Cooper comes up for arraignment tomorrow.

Law's Delays

But the law's delays are creating problems to the marriage plans. Wednesday, Elaine and her mother visited a notary to apply for a licence because Miss Masters, as a minor, must have her parents' consent. They explained that Elaine's father has been "missing, somewhere in British Columbia" for two years. Notary Harry Kolber said a writ must be made to the courts so that the mother's signature alone can be valid—and the technicalities will mean a 10-day delay.

Hasn't Given Up

But Elaine hasn't given up hope.

"I will do everything possible to be married as soon as possible," she told reporters.

Meanwhile, her boy friend may run into further difficulties. Detective Lieut. Romeo Longpre, head of the city police holdup squad, said Cooper is now being questioned regarding three burglaries in addition to the robbery.

Judge Gustave Marin Wednesday postponed sentence to May 10 for Eric McConnell, 26, and Jean Brunet, 25, who have pleaded guilty to robbery.

See Russian Victory In Press Attitude

FRANKFURT, Germany, May 4—(AP)—The growing tendency by West Germany's press to soft-pedal cold war issues is being viewed by political observers here as a victory for the Russian propaganda machine

An analysis of the German press shows a trend toward adopting a neutral attitude on most American-Soviet disputes.

Political observers in West Germany believe these newspapers are accepting the line Russia has long trumpeted: that the East-West struggle is none of their affair.

Some solidly anti-communist and pro-west newspapers have gone so far in their striving for neutrality as to attack bitterly the possibility of Germany's joining the North Atlantic defence pact.

A REVIEW OF ST. JOSEPH'S HOSPITAL history was given on Wednesday by His Excellency Bishop Gerald Berry, Left, at the official opening ceremonies of the new wing. Guest speaker, Ontario's Premier, the Hon. Leslie M. Frost, KC, congratulated the Sisters of St. Joseph on their splendid effort in past and present achievements on the hospital's 60th anniversary. "The Province of Ontario's grant to the new wing is $75,000". Mr. Frost told the audience, "and in addition a special $9,000 grant was made recently." —Examiner Staff Photo

Fleet Youth Outruns Officer

BELLEVILLE, May 4—(CP)—Ability to outdistance a fleet police officer in a foot race, gained an additional 12 hours of freedom for 21-year-old James Kennedy, charged with vagrancy.

Just before noon Kennedy broke away from a constable as he was being taken to county jail, shortly after midnight Wednesday he was taken off a freight train at Brockville. Kennedy, now on parole from the reformatory, had been arrested for vagrancy. After getting away from the officer he was seen to board a freight.

Proposed Free Vote Baffles Berlin Reds

NEW YORK, May 4 (CP)—The New York Times, in a dispatch from Berlin, says today that the Western proposal for free city-wide elections in the German capital has "perplexed the Russians" and weakened German Communists."

The dispatch, written by Berlin correspondent Drew Middleton, says the election proposal also has "encouraged the people of the Soviet sector (of Berlin) where the (Communist) party's hold on the people is loosening."

In view of qualified British and United States observers, Middleton writes, the political situation in the city is improving slowly as a result of the initiative taken by the Western powers and Mayor Ernest Reuter's municipal government in West Berlin and the "growing discord" between the Soviet political strategists and leaders of the Socialist Unity (Communist) party.

Make No Move In Commons Bar Communism

OTTAWA, May 4 (CP)—Parliament's debate on Communism rolled through a second inconclusive day in the Commons on Wednesday with no indication of any move to banish the Russian credo from Canada.

Justice Minister Garson, in an hour-long address, said a motion by George Drew, Progressive Conservative leader, to outlaw Communism and "other similar activities" under the Criminal Code, was unnecessary.

It would drive the Communist underground, encourage conspiracy, arouse unjustified sympathy and shake faith in democratic institutions.

M. J. Coldwell, CCF leader generally agreed with the Justice Minister. He was afraid such an amendment might seriously curb civil liberties and said Canada, as a free nation, should "not adopt any of the methods of the iron curtain countries."

Don't Want Witch-Hunt

J. M. Macdonnell, (PC-Toronto-Greenwood) delivering the main opposition salvo of the short, three-hour sitting, said the Conservatives were not suggesting psychoanalysis of individuals. They merely asked a strengthening of the law, not a Communist witch-hunt."

A vote may be reached on the question later in the week.

Resuming the second day of debate on Communism, Mr. Macdonnell said the opposition did not propose "to make thought a crime." The amendment proposed would guard against overt acts and would "make it easier for labor to deal with its own situation."

EYE TOPICS

EYES AND GESTURES

We human beings talked mainly with gestures long before we ever developed this marvellous thing we call speech. Let's put it this way: Suppose you and I take a walk together through the park, and we come upon a tall flagpole, say thirty feet high. And suppose you take a dare and climb to the top of the flagpole, and you put a nickel on top of it. And now suppose you paste a postage stamp on top of the nickel.

Just think—the height of the flagpole represents the long, weary ages during which our ancestors communicated with each other principally by gestures and facial expressions. The thickness of the nickel stands for the time we have spoken with our tongues and vocal cords. And the tissue paper-like thinness of the stamp stands for the time we have known how to read and write—as long only as recorded history — about five thousand years. And that is why, when we speak to little children who haven't developed much of a vocabulary, we still revert to gestures—which baby interprets pretty much by instinct.

We are capable of making more than 700,000 distinct gestures with our fingers, wrists, hands, arms, shoulders, neck, facial muscles—tilt of the head, etc. You will recall that our largest dictionaries list no more than 600,000 words.

What I'm trying to say is that gesture is a natural language — understood everywhere. And a gesture language is very easy to learn for all those who can see. And why? Because we can see and interpret the "pictures" described by the gestures and relate them immediately to our experience. That brings us to a very important conclusion: We could never have developed communication between man unless we had two eyes apiece first. Linguistically then, the "eyes" have it.

Rats Quit Ship In Hundreds

BARRY, Wales, May 4—(CP)—Rats popped out from all sides when hatches were opened aboard the Finnish sailing ship Pamir.

The vessel arrived in the neighboring port of Penarth last September with a cargo of bagged barley from Australia.

As each sack of grain was moved, rats jumped out. Dockers refused to work th vessel.

Experts found the rats to be of a British variety, indicating the colony started in port while the vessel served as a floating warehouse for the Ministry of Food.

Living amid an abundance of barley, the rats reproduced themselves by the thousand.

Study New Sentences For Drunk Drivers

OTTAWA, May 4 — (CP) — Justice Minister Garson told the Commons Wednesday neither the government nor the criminal code revision commission is considering any proposal to compel persons accused of drunk driving to submit to a blood test.

He said the only criminal code revision with respect to driving that is under consideration was whether the minimum sentence of imprisonment on conviction of drunk driving should be retained and what compulsory period of suspension of driver's licences should be enforced in such cases.

Doctor Requests Research Group

OTTAWA, May 4 — (CP) — Establishment of a non-political national commission for medical research and development was urged Wednesday by Dr. Wilder Penfield, director of the Montreal Neurological Institute.

One of Canada's foremost surgeons, he said the function of the commission would be to provide endowments for scientific institutes or departments within different Canadian universities.

"Such national institutes would contribute to the health of the people in time of peace and would constitute bulwarks of defence in time of war."

Dr. Penfield said scientific development is a field that must be entered by the federal government. Any country that would compete with its neighbors in peace or in war must give continuing support to scientific research.

Lock Workers

ing time and the factory was deserted. Instructions were issued that foremen and office workers would be allowed through but none appeared by 7:15 a.m.

When the starting whistle blew it was greeted with derisive cheers: "Who's that for?" queried one girl while her workmates joined in the general laughter.

Office Staff At Hotel

Meanwhile the complete office staff of about 30 people is occupying a suite at the Empress Hotel. Bob Maybee, managing director, told the Examiner early today that the hotel suite would be the temporary headquarters.

While the union was ready to admit the foremen and office workers through the picket lines a union permit would be required, he explained. And this management felt would be "an indignity."

"There is only a maintenance man left in the plant," he said. "We left the gates open this morning so we couldn't be accused of having locked them out. Now they'll have to contact us if they want to get in again."

The company's stand is that the Conciliation Board report is the basis for negotiations. But they are also prepared to re-sign 1949 contract, minus the wage opener clause.

The board recommended that there be no decrease in hours and no increase in wages. In fact they claimed that the company had made out a case for a reduction in wages. The solution, in the Board's opinion, was the co-operation of workers and management to get increased production.

Not In Hurry

Union officials seem to be preparing for a long strike. Special committees have been organized to look after publicity, strike kitchen, finance, food collection, entertainment, sports, pickets, and welfare.

A canned food drive will begin Friday night and will be continued on Saturday.

Today there will be 16 pickets during the daytime on four-hour shifts and these will be reduced to four during the night. The strike kitchen to provide coffee and sandwiches is being organized.

The good-natured demonstrators early today carried some 20 banners with such slogans as: "a good contract is the key to Peterborough Lock," "no new contract —no work," "less hours—more jobs," and a general list of union demands.

Other placards indicated that the lockworkers had the support of their fellow unionists in Raybestos and Ontario Marble; also in the big-brother CGE union, Local 524 UE.

After regular pickets were posted early today the rest of the membership went to the union hall on George St. where they were briefed by their leaders.

Flood Rises At Winnipeg, Drops Elsewhere

WINNIPEG, May 4 (CP)—The Red River gained ground over a 30-mile stretch of southern Manitoba today, but elsewhere it lolled like a spent fighter—sinister, but no longer deadly.

The flood level continued to rise from Ste. Agathe, 42 miles north to Winnipeg. South of Ste. Agathe it receded sluggishly, slipping from the stricken lands as quietly as it had come.

The main fight south of Winnipeg was on the rail lines. Canadian National Railways' service was still suspended to Emerson, once the focal point of the flood on the international border. Officials cancelled all but work trains so that crews could weight down threatened tracks.

Rise Stopped

The rise at Morris, where most of the 1,100 inhabitants fled and where the river took over almost the entire town, had apparently stopped late Wednesday night.

Still to feel the crest were Winnipeg and the smaller centres near its widespread outskirts. The reading in the province's largest city was 24.4 feet above datum at 1 a.m. this morning.

The level was a foot above the crest in 1948, when property damage rose into hundreds of thousands of dollars. The peak was expected within 48 hours.

Three Men Arrested For Daring Holdup

TORONTO, May 4 (CP) — Three men were arrested at gunpoint today in connection with the daring daylight holdup of a Sanitary Towel Supply driver on Wednesday at midtown College and Spadina Streets.

The three are Murray Woodworth, 21, Jack Stockman, 26, and Carl Breman, 26. They were charged with vagrancy after a raid on a suburban Malton house.

The truck driver was held up at gunpoint by two persons as he took a bankroll to a bank for deposit. Police said $1,159 was taken.

Police said no money or weapons were recovered in a search of the house.

ArmyRushesSandbags For Hospital Dike

WINNIPEG, May 4 — (CP) — Army officials said today 3,000 sandbags were rushed to Morris, 41 miles south, to buttress a dike holding back flood waters from the town's hospital.

An army officer said a call was received early today that the dike had begun to show signs of weakening under the pressure of the water.

Soldiers have been at work for more than a week in Morris building and strengthening the dike.

There are about a dozen patients in the hospital.

Will Meet Board

CHICAGO, May 4 — (AP). — The Railroad Yardmasters of America (AFL) Wednesday authorized a three-day protest strike in seven rail centres in the Mid-west States starting today, then called it off less than two hours later. Francis A. O'Neill, Jr., chairman of the National (Railway) Mediation Board, said the union has arranged to take its demands for a five-day work week before a Presidential Fact-finding Board next week.

people have done a great job."

Small Beginning

"This hospital had its simple beginnings in 1890 with only 25 beds to take care of the acutely ill. Fourteen years later saw the addition of more rooms, with an all-important operating room," the Premier continued.

"And now, in 1950, the addition of 75 more beds has almost completed the modernization of this institution."

Speaking of grants to hospitals, Mr. Frost said that in 1947 the province initiated a system of construction and maintenance grants for the first time in the province's history. This, he said, has had a very marked effect on the hospitals of Ontario.

"In my own view," said Mr. Frost, "one of the basic advances was the institution of maintenance grants by which a contribution is made for every public ward bed for every day of the year."

Bigger Grants

In 1944, grants to St. Joseph's Hospital for maintenance were only $3,234; but by 1949 this had increased to $36,025. This year, he said, special grants outside normal allowances are being made to each public hospital in Ontario.

Hon. Harold Scott, Ontario Minister of Lands and Forests, said "It is so seldom in life that a dream comes true, that it is a pleasure to be here when the Sisters make their dream come true." He then presented them with a cheque for $500 from the Peterborough Kiwanis Club.

Recalls History

The Rev. Gerald Berry, Bishop of Peterborough, looked back at the history of the hospital, and told his listeners of the laying of the first cornerstone 60 years ago by Bishop Dowling.

He told how the episcopal corporation of Peterborough in 1890 bought a site, formerly owned by the Church of England, for the hospital.

The cost of the first hospital was only $32,188, he said, and, by devious means, parishioners were able to raise just more than $18,000.

The Bishop welcomed Premier Frost and his wife, saying their visit "bears the aroma of friendliness and neighborliness."

John R. Corkery, county registrar of deeds and titles, acted as chairman. Before the actual ceremony started, a choir of student nurses sang several numbers. Also present at the ceremony were Gordon K. Fraser, MP for Peterborough, and Mayor M. J. Swanston.

Urge Acheson Request Less East Europe Trade

WASHINGTON, May 4—(AP)—State Secretary Dean Acheson is being urged by the United States commerce department to bring strong pressure on western European leaders to tighten their controls on trade with eastern Europe. He will see these leaders at London next week.

Commerce officials are reported to be concerned at what they consider discriminations against American business, arising out of differences in the controls systems operated by the western European countries and the United States.

East-West trade policies are expected to be among the subjects discussed by Acheson with Foreign Secretary Bevin of Britain, Foreign Minister Schuman of France and other foreign ministers whom he will meet in London.

A memorandum from commerce to the state department, it was reported today, advocates that Acheson take a strong line with the other conferees.

Acheson is understood to disagree sharply with this recommendation on several grounds: (1) That drastic measures would harm the main objective of American policy which is Western European recovery; (2) that East-West trade is necessary to Western European recovery; (3) that the state department is constantly obtaining greater co-operation from the European governments of trade controls and heavy pressures are unnecessary.

For controls purposes, two chief types of goods are involved in trade between Soviet-bloc countries and the West. They are embargoed goods like guns and heavy machine tools; and controlled goods such as automobiles and tractors which might have military uses. The disagreement arises in connection with the second category.

Boy Scouts Plant Poplar And Willow Trees On Southern Approaches To Campbellford

CAMPBELLFORD, May 4. — (ENS)—Campbellford Boy Scouts have planted a number of trees on the west side of the canal at the southern entrance to the town by No. 30 highway.

The trees were donated by W. A. Hogle and are nursery-grown Carolina poplars. They have been twice transplanted at the nursery. A number of Niobe Weeping Willow trees are also included in the group. All these trees are 16 to 18 feet in height.

For some years, the Niobe Weeping Willow has been the most outstanding weeping willow on the grounds of the Central Experimental Farm at Ottawa. About 50 trees in all will be planted, and they should add much to the appearance of the approaches to the town.

Hector Winkworth Buys Rice Lake Farm

ROSENEATH, May 4 (ENS) — Hector Winkworth has purchased a 100-acre farm on the shore of Rice Lake, from German Winn, and is taking possession this week. The farm is situated on the seventh concession of Alnwick township.

Mr. and Mrs. Winkworth and sons, John and Paul, came to Alnwick township from Berkshire, England, two years ago.

Teddy Takes Joyride

When Everett Simpson, Alderville, came to Roseneath to do some shopping the other evening, he parked his car on Front St. and left the emergency brake on. He left his six-year-old son Teddy in the car.

Teddy wondered if he could release the brake, which he ably did and the car started moving across Constable Fred Norris's lawn. It stopped when it crashed into the corner of the Norris home, shaking the dishes inside the home.

TLC Asks Government For New Pension Plan

OTTAWA, May 4—(CP)—The parliamentary committee on old-age security was urged Wednesday by the Trades and Labor Congress of Canada to recommend adoption of a contributory pension plan that would provide $60 a month for all Canadians 65 and over.

The 500,000-member Congress said pensions on a contributory basis would offset the need for industrial pensions. The brief was filed with the committee, which continued a study of old age and survivors' insurance in the United States.

The committee decided to set May 8 as the deadline for receiving briefs from organizations which wish to appear before it. It will begin May 10 to hear representations from various national organizations.

Died In "Escapade"

CALGARY, May 4.—(CP) — A coroner's jury Wednesday said John Harper, 23, died in a "drunken escapade in which he stole a twin-engine Cessna, and after stunting over the city crashed into a residence." Harper's light plane crashed into a house early Sunday after "bpzzing" the city for the better part of an hour.

Scouting Does More Than Take Boys Off Street

COBOURG, May 4 — (ENS)— Boy Scout work was the subject of an address by John Ewart of Cobourg at a special meeting of Cobourg Rotary Club which was attended by the community troop. A Scoutmaster for a considerable number of years, Mr. Ewart is keenly interested in Scout work.

Scouting is more than an organization to take boys off the streets, he told the Rotary Club. It has been described as a revolution in education. It was not merely a suggestion thrown out as a venture for outdoor recreation, but may be taken as complementary to school training and fills in certain chinks unavoidable in the school curriculum.

Scouting was a school of citizenship, he said, through woodcraft. The subjects of instruction with which it fills in are character, health, handicraft in the individual, and citizenship through employment of this efficiency in service. There are three grades in the organization: Cubs 8 to 12 years, Scouts 12 to 17, and Rovers 17 and over. As the boys progress through these grades their development is obtained through camping and woodcraft, which are usually enjoyed as much by the instructor as the boys. The instructors may be aptly called leaders or elder brothers, since they join in the fun and the boys do the educating themselves. This perhaps is why scouting is called a revolution in education.

Danger in Rewards.

There was a certain danger, declared the speaker, in instilling in the boy the ambition to win prizes and holding up to him as success the securing of pay, position and power unless there is a corresponding instruction in service for others. The aim of Scout training is to replace the idea of self by service and to make the boys individually efficient, morally and physically, with the object of using this efficiency for the service of the community, Mr. Ewart said.

It is expected of each Boy Scout that he belong to some religious denomination and to attend its services. Boy Scout leaders feel that the study of God's Word is most important for Sunday instruction, and is an antidote to that Sunday loafing which at present ruins a large proportion of young people. The speaker then went on to describe in detail the set-up of the organization and its components.

Mr. Ewart was introduced by Joe Patterson and thanked by Russell Manning.

"MISS MORRIS FLOOD"—Baby Loraine Joyce Cornelson was born in Morris General Hospital in Manitoba, at the height of the Red River floods. SPORTSMANSHIP IN "CANADA UNLIMITED"

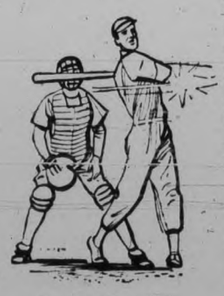
Five game final!

A NEW RECORD, A NEW TROPHY FOR THE LEAFS OF '26!



Opening Day for International League ball in Canada is May 3—when Montreal Royals meet Jersey City and Toronto is matched with Syracuse.

Louisville stadium baked under a glaring Kentucky sun. On the diamond Toronto Maple Leafs were meeting the Louisville Colonels. The stake was the Little World Series championship. The Leafs—International League winners—had edged the Colonels in four home games. This was the deciding day.

An injury to Leafs' star pitcher forced a last-minute substitution. A win seemed doubtful—but sparkling pitching pulled them through. Held to five hits, the Colonels were shut out, 5-0. The Leafs became the only team in baseball history to gain the title in five straight games—a record that stands today.

Team spirit and good sportsmanship have won world-wide respect for Canadians. And team spirit with sportsmanship help you too—in work and play. Together they keep your opportunities in Canada . . . unlimited.

The Australian Experiment

Mr. St. Laurent has made it plain that Canada is not going to outlaw Communism at present. Nevertheless Canada will watch Australia's experiment of outlawing Communists with keen interest. Australian Communism is not strong in numbers; it has been reckoned that there are only about 8,000 party members there; but it is strong in influence, for the Communists have gained positions of power in several labour unions, and have been up to their usual tricks of obstruction and disruption. Now that Communism is under fire, we shall see what happens.

• • •

Whenever it is suggested that Canada take similar action the reply is made that it is impossible to outlaw ideas and political creeds, and that any attempt to do so is an attack upon a basic liberty. This is perfectly true. There is nothing whatever in Canadian law to stop a man from being a devil-worshipper if he chooses, and he may even try to persuade other people to join him. But if the devil-worshippers engage in activities which are contrary to the public welfare, or which seek the overthrow of law and order, it is quite legitimate to put them in jail. Freedom of ideas is defensible, but when some ideas are put into action they become indefensible.

• • •

Communism does not stop at being an intellectual belief. Its adherents usually try to do something to further the Communist cause, and their methods are well known. Australia has decided to impose severe penalties upon anyone who tries to put Communist doctrine into action, and it will be interesting to see how the scheme works. Undoubtedly many Communists will go underground, but the police have ways of going underground, as well.

• • •

We shall be particularly anxious to see what Australia does about the fellow-travellers, the catspaws and the pinheads who do jobs for the Communists without any real understanding of what they do. Communism uses such silly people with the utmost cynicism, and turns their folly to good account.

• • •

Australia has taken a much-discussed step. If her efforts are successful, they will no doubt be copied elsewhere. But Australia's task will not be an easy one.

Pembroke Depended On Geography

Pembroke, the thriving town on the upper Ottawa, is indignant because the Trans-Canada highway will not come to it. According to the logic of geography, the route would naturally lie across northern Ontario, Algonquin Park and thence to Pembroke on its way south and east to Ottawa. But more than geography is to be considered. When Premier Frost's administration advised the Federal Government on the route through Ontario, it had to consider the highway's trade and commerce with a politic eye. Undoubtedly the northern route would have been scenically pleasant, but how much more use the road will be, passing through southern districts tenanted by more than bears, deer, rock and twelve thousand Pembrokians.

Pembroke expected to have the highway. It sat waiting for it. Peterborough had no such expectations. In fact, months ago we remarked in these columns that a small rumour that the Highway might pass through this fair city (population 36,000) must not be built up into anything concrete. Peterborough must not expect anything, we cautioned. So this district did not count on the road before it was laid. And lo! to the meekly unexpecting came a great reward: the Trans-Canada will pass through Peterborough. And to the high-hopeful Pembroke — disillusionment. There is a tidy moral, and perhaps political, lesson in this unfolding of the Highway, which we in Peterborough will not presume to teach to Pembroke.

Red Rampage

In common with other Canadians we have been somewhat shocked by the reports of the misbehaviour of the Red River in southern Manitoba. We have also been toying with the notion that it is ominous to name any body of water after a colour: the Red Sea did curious things long ago; the Yellow River in China is the affliction of its riparian people. But the thesis will not, so to speak, hold water. The Mississippi has been a notorious delinquent, but it is not called Black or Green—just muddy. And the Blue Danube seems to be a model of aquatic conduct.

Winnipeg's Red River's bad reputation goes back a long time. The first of its known historic floods occurred in 1826, 125 years ago when the first detachment of Scottish settlers had made their homes there. The Selkirk colony had already had a rough time of it before the Red overflowed so angrily in 1826. Its recession was regarded as the beginning of better times, and so it proved to be—better despite the periodic rampages of the sluggish, undependable Red River.

Who Is Reading?

A month or so ago the Gallup Poll asked this question among the adults of six democracies: "Are you now reading any books or novels?" In Britain the answer was yes in 55 per cent. of cases; in Australia the figure was 35 per cent.; then came Sweden with 33 per cent.; and last of all was the U.S.A. with the low score of 21 per cent.

There has been a certain amount of crowing among British publishers about this, particularly as it has been rubbed into them that only thirteen per cent. of their people are educated above elementary school, whereas the Americans claim a figure of 53 per cent. in this respect. Apparently the relation between school attendance and the desire to read is not so close as some people have thought.

Canada, we feel, has come out of this test well—whatever the test may be worth. If forty per cent. of our people are reading a book at any given time we are not doing too badly. Mere reading is not in itself of any special value, but there is always the chance that people who have the reading habit will read increasingly better books. We are amused, by the way, at the Gallup classification "books or novels"; is a good novel thought to be inferior to a book of non-fiction?

We are on dangerous ground when we attempt to draw any conclusions from such figures as those given above. Nevertheless, we suggest that the habit of reading is not necessarily tied to higher education; all a man needs to read a book is the elementary skill which enables him to read the printed word, and a dictionary to help him with words he does not know. Some of the most learned men of all time have been completely self-educated; they could read, and they had the desire to learn, and that was all.

There are times when we grow tired of people who whine that they have never had a chance at higher education. If they can read, and if they really want knowledge, and if they can find an hour a day to read in, they have everything that they require. Spoon-feeding in schools cannot produce a nation of educated or literate people.

Spring Day

The ice has gone from our lakes, wild geese are flying north, trees are tinged with murky yellow presaging their bursting into leaf one of these weeks, the lawns have come alive, and, let us say it happily, we have had one bright, slightly warm, real spring day—yesterday. That day did not come a whit too soon to save our hearts from despair. The winter has lasted too long. It is no comfort now to try to recall that January and February were exceptionally mild, and that we should not begrudge a few extra weeks tucked on after winter has officially ended. The fact is that a mild January week does not compensate for a cold, harsh May week. January is winter, whether or not the frost bites and the snow blows. May, in any civilized country, is high Spring, and no time for rawness. The depravity of this last winter has embittered even the hardiest Ontario souls. Let us have no more of it.

Germany's Mistakes

By A STUDENT OF EUROPE

THE present relationship between the Atlantic Big Three and the German Federal Republic is based on the Petersberg agreement of November 24, 1949, and Allied policy towards Germany, as it now stands, is formulated in the statement issued by the High Commissioners one day later.

◇ ◇ ◇

THE goal of this policy is "the incorporation of Germany as a peaceful member of the European community." This aim "can be achieved only by a policy of steady evolution, the pace of which will be set by conditions of practicability and by the statesmanship which Allies and Germans alike can bring to bear upon the task."

◇ ◇ ◇

MORE specifically, "we are clearly not expecting that this agreement should be regarded as a stepping stone for further demands. The Occupation Statute is due for revision in the autumn of next year (1950), and the programme now launched is to cover the period between now and then."

◇ ◇ ◇

THE hopes that the Petersberg agreement would inaugurate a ten-month standstill in German demands, a period of quiet co-operation on the existing basis, and a growth of mutual confidence, have unfortunately not been fulfilled. When the Atlantic Foreign Ministers review their German policy in the second week in May, they do so against a troubled background of angry German speeches and resignation threats. Confidence between Germany and the West has not increased, but diminished. The Petersberg policy, which started with such fair hopes, has not proved a success.

◇ ◇ ◇

WHAT is the reason for its failure and where is the remedy?

The Germans say they are disappointed with the Allied attitude towards them, and with the progress towards equal partnership allowed to them. They cite as particular grievances the French arrangements with the Saar and the withholding of High Commission approval for certain German laws.

In the Allied view, these cases do not give the Germans legitimate grounds for disappointment, as both the French relations with the Saar and the rights of the High Commission were all the time made perfectly clear to them. But the German "disappointment," though it seems unreasonable to us and is often vented in a rather vehement manner, should nevertheless be analyzed dispassionately; it provides a valuable clue to the root of the trouble.

◇ ◇ ◇

THIS is that the Petersberg agreement, and the Allied statement which interprets it, leave room for a fundamental misunderstanding about the final goal of the journey on which the Germans have embarked with us. "Germany" is to become "a peaceful member of the European community." This sentence can be differently interpreted at every point.

By "Germany" the Germans understand not the present Federal Republic but something like the Germany of 1937; they will feel aggrieved and disappointed if the Atlantic Powers do not back to the hilt all the revisionist demands that this interpretation implies.

By "member of the European community" the Germans tend to understand a fully sovereign State; they will argue that, since the European community consists of sovereign States, every member of it can claim full sovereignty, and full freedom to pursue its own interests as it sees them and by whatever means it chooses. The Bonn Government seems to feel even now that the Allies are somehow betraying their promise if they withhold full sovereignty from "Germany" any longer.

◇ ◇ ◇

FINALLY, into the term "European community" the Germans read at least a vague promise of some closer link between them and the other Continental Western Europeans than would exist between them and Britain or the United States.

◇ ◇ ◇

NONE of this is ever likely to be an aim of Allied policy. Though we desire the reunion of the present two German States, and have an open mind about Germany's Eastern frontiers, we cannot possibly commit ourselves to any territorial extension of the present Federal Republic. No Frenchman, Dutchman, or Belgian could reasonably be asked to go to war one day in order to reconquer Silesia and Pomerania for Germany, or even to restore German unity.

◇ ◇ ◇

AS for sovereignty, the whole development of the Atlantic Community is away from sovereignty. It would be incongruous to restore full sovereignty to Western Germany while we ourselves, British, Frenchmen, and Americans, are in the process of dismantling our sovereignties. What we can, and should, set as a final goal before Western Germany is equal status as a member State in a future Western Federation where no one will be sovereign.

This Federation may well be Atlantic rather than European; moreover, it is unlikely to be fully realized before, say, five years at the earliest — ten years may be a more realistic estimate. In the meantime all we can tell the Germans is to be sensible and rub along with us on an ad hoc basis. All we can promise for this transitional stage is to be as fair and tolerant with them as is consistent with the final aim.

◇ ◇ ◇

ALL this may sound shocking to German ears—as shocking as present German speeches and articles often sound to us. But it is better to speak out and to attain clarity than to wade further into a morass of mutual misunderstanding and recrimination.

◇ ◇ ◇

THE status, not only of Germany but of the whole Western world is at present transitional, and, by European pre-war standards, anomalous. This cannot be helped. Nor can Germany be integrated into a new international system as long as no such system exists. This is no reason for launching Germany on an independent career once more: to do so would simply be to create a new and infinitely more dangerous situation in the cold war. It is a reason for making haste with the building of an Atlantic Federation—military, economic, and political—into which the German Federal Republic can be fitted. It is also a reason for telling the Germans in a frank and friendly way what they can expect of us, and what they cannot.

"... BUT I GO ON FOREVER"?

'Big Business' and National Income

(OTTAWA JOURNAL)

A correspondent writes:

"Recently you have been complaining about high prices. Why don't you point out that prices are high because Big Business is taking too big a share of the national income?"

We haven't pointed out what our correspondent asks us to point out because, on the basis of facts, his suggestion isn't true.

Let's look at some figures.

In 1948 all the people of Canada earned $12,455 million. In 1949 they earned $12,977 million.

Of these earnings, $7,113 million in 1948 and $7,630 million in 1949 went in salaries and wages to employed workers. Of the same earnings, $1,252 in 1948 and $1,272 in 1949 went to small businessmen, storekeepers, professional workers. Of the same earnings, $1,600 million in 1948 and $1,587 in 1949 went to farmers. What was left for corporations, after deducting earnings from investments (which range far outside "Big Business") was $1,969 million in 1948 and $1,914 in 1949.

Now the first thing to be noted here is that while workers and small business and professional people did better in 1949 than in 1948, and farmers almost as well, the earnings of corporations dropped more than $50 millions.

And the corporations, of course, didn't keep what they earned. They paid Mr. Abbott $710 million in 1948 and $673 million in 1949, in direct corporation taxes, and after that their shareholders were called upon to pay a lot more in individual income tax. In the end, the owners of corporations got in net dividends (earnings) $278 million in 1948 and $283 million in 1949. This was some $5,000 million less than went to workers.

Taking the whole picture, it presents some difficulties in concluding that successful greed by corporations is the source of high prices.

Further: The idea that high prices necessarily help corporations is pretty much of a fallacy. Such an idea would be valid if corporations got high prices for what they sold, paid low prices for what they bought. It doesn't, however, work that way; corporations, like all the rest of us, have to pay more—more for their labour, for their raw materials, for overhead, for everything they use in what they make. Most of them would fare better with lower costs and lower prices.

Letter To The Editor

APPROVES OF MR. CRANDALL'S STAND

Sir: It has been with considerable interest that I have followed the accounts which recently appeared in the "Examiner" concerning the divided state of opinion among the people who comprise the congregations of the United Church at Bethany, Ebenezer and Yelverton.

The question of infant baptism, over which the difficulty has arisen, has apparently resulted in somewhat of a deadlock.

Where such an unhappy condition exists the logical move would seem to be in turning to the highest court of appeal which is the Bible, whose silences are as significant as its statements.

It is well to remember that however famous the preacher or how great his credentials, there is no man who is incapable of making a mistake, but the Word of God will be fulfilled in its entirety and will live and abide forever.

It will still occupy a place of honour when the traditions of men have passed away.

A questioning attitude directed toward any preacher is not unkind as exemplified in the case of the Bereans whom the Word of God terms "noble" because, when listening to the preaching of Paul and Silas, they searched the scripture daily whether these things were so. Acts 17: 11.

Jesus Christ gave but two ordinances to His disciples namely "baptism" and "the Lord's supper" and in no instance does He command that either be observed by anyone who has not first, by a simple act of faith, accepted Christ as his own personal Saviour.

Baptism does not wash sin away. (Only the precious blood of Christ can do that. I John 1: 7, Rev. 1: 5.)

Baptism is the answer of a good conscience toward God. I Peter 3: 21.

An infant could not therefore be a candidate for baptism because his conscience has not yet begun to function.

Baptism is an act of obedience which is ever preceded by believing in Christ as one's Saviour Acts 8: 37.

Only one who has reached years of accountability can exercise faith in God.

The significance of baptism is given in the sixth chapter of Romans.

Our greatest reason for rejecting the practice of infant baptism is the fact that the Bible contains no mention of it. The scriptural reasons given by Mr. Crandall in his stand on the subject indicate that he has studied the Word of God as an honest and exercised man and that he has courage to stand by his convictions. Would that there were more like him!

Yours very truly
W. CECIL G. PARRINGTON

Bible Message

(From the Authorized Version)

And the Lord God called unto Adam, and said unto him, Where art thou? And he said, I heard thy voice in the garden, and I was afraid, because I was naked; and I hid myself.

And he said, Who told thee that thou wast naked? Hast thou eaten of the tree, whereof I commanded thee that thou shouldest not eat? And the man said, The woman whom thou gavest to be with me, she gave me of the tree, and I did eat.

And the Lord God said unto the woman, What is this that thou hast done? And the woman said, The serpent beguiled me, and I did eat.

And the Lord God said unto the serpent, Because thou hast done this, thou art cursed above all cattle, and above every beast of the field; upon thy belly shalt thou go, and dust shalt thou eat all the days of thy life: and I will put enmity between thee and the woman, and between thy seed and her seed; it shall bruise thy head, and thou shalt bruise his heel. (Gen. 3: 9-15.)

No Cure Found For Sufferers For Arthritis

No one blames the arthritis sufferer for grasping at one straw after another in hope of finding relief, although as yet not a single medicine, pill, vitamin or diet has been discovered that will bring about a cure, Dr. Wallace Graham said in an interview.

One of Canada's most prominent doctors in the field of rheumatic diseases, Dr. Graham is chairman of the Medical Advisory Board of the Canadian Arthritis and Rheumatism Society whose appeal for $850,000 to sponsor research, out-patient and mobile clinics is now in progress.

New wonder drugs ACTH and cortisone have produced some amazing results and brought new hope to millions of sufferers, Dr. Graham stated, yet much has still to be learned regarding their use and possible dangerous effects. Like insulin in the treatment of diabetes, they must be used continuously and can by no means be considered as cures.

As yet supplies of these drugs are so limited and costly their use is confined to research only. In this research Canadian doctors are playing a prominent part with some of the funds raised in the appeal earmarked to press this research into their use even further.

Present facilities in Canada for the treatment of our 600,0000 arthritis and rheumatism sufferers are woefully inadequate and it is to more than triple these facilities as well as to finance research into cause of the disease that the Society's first nation-wide appeal has been launched.

Out-patient clinics for arthritis patients will be sponsored by the Society in 20 leading Canadian centres, including Victoria, Vancouver, Prince Albert, Saskatoon, Regina, Winnipeg, London, Hamilton, Toronto, Kingston, Ottawa, Montreal and Quebec. Mobile clinics to take skilled physiotherapists into the homes of patients will be operated in at least seven areas, including Vancouver, Saskatoon, Regina, Winnipeg, Ottawa, Kingston and Montreal.

At present only seven Canadian hospitals have out-patient clinics for the treatment of rheumatic diseases. Hospital beds are available for only a small fraction of those needing them. Private physicians have inadequate facilities for treatment. Yet one in every 25 Canadians suffers to some degree from arthritis and rheumatism.

With the establishment of the Society's program, the family doctor will be greatly assisted. He can, if he wishes, send his patient to the arthritis clinic for physiotherapy or other treatment. When this is not feasible, he can request that a skilled physiotherapist visit the patients' homes. The results of the clinic in his area will be available to him and he will be invited to attend short courses given by specialists in the rheumatic field.

Because four out of five arthritis sufferers if treated early either completely recover or are greatly helped, Dr. Graham urged that until new drugs are developed every patient begin at once treatment prescribed by his physician to maintain movement and so prevent crippling.

You can do your part to fight these crippling rheumatic diseases by contributing to the Society's appeal. Send your contribution to the national campaign headquarters, 34 Yongs St., Toronto.

DP Lies On Tracks, Saved As Tram Halts

TORONTO, May 4 (CP) Clutching his Bible, Moszek Akierajzen, 35, dashed in front of a street car early today and lay on the tracks in an apparent attempt to "end it all." The streetcar driver jammed on the brakes and Akierajzen was picked up on the safety cradle with only a few scratches.

"There's no freedom in Canada. I want to go home," the Polish DP told police as they took him to police station on a vagrancy charge. Later he told an interpreter he thought he would be put in jail for a long time or put to death for his remarks about Canada. He has been in Canada six weeks.

Calgary Nips Marlies 6-5 In Second Game

By ERWIN FRICK.

CALGARY, Alta., May 4 (CP)—Calgary Stampeders showed on Wednesday night they won't be easy picking for Toronto Marlboros in the best-of-seven series for the Canadian senior hockey championship.

The cowboys earned a 5-4 victory before 6,000 fans, bouncing back from a 6-5 loss Monday, to tie the contest for the Allan Cup at a game-apiece.

Harold Ballard, Marlie club president who coached the team in the absence of regular mentor Joe Primeau (in Toronto attending his father's funeral), put the finger on the Stamps victory:

"Stampeders certainly know how to capitalize on their chances and we didn't seem to be able to."

Three of Calgary's goals—including the winner—were scored when Toronto was shorthanded. The eastern champs scored only once with a Stampeder in the penalty box.

Clean Game

Although penalties apparently played an important role, the game was relatively clean and only nine minors were called — five to Toronto.

Goalie Russ Dertel, 29-year-old Stampeder veteran, shared the spotlight with a couple of buddies also getting along in hockey years. Doug. (Crafty) Cairns, 35, and Bunny Dame, 33, were the big reasons Toronto couldn't salt away the puck when Calgary was shorthanded.

In addition to his penalty killing stints Cairns slapped in a couple of goals. Johnny Milliard, Mitch Pechet and Stan Devicq got the other Calgary goals.

Marlies' best attacking line was George Armstrong, Bob Hassard and Danny Lewicki. Armstrong, 19-year-old right winger, scored Toronto's first goal when he tore in fast and shot a rebound from a long Hollett drive over a sprawled Dertell.

The lanky Armstrong also was credited by officials with getting the last Toronto goal at 17:06 of the third. The counter followed Devicq's effort giving Calgary a 5-3 lead and was a screened drive which Dertell never saw. Armstrong however told officials his shot was tipped in by centre Bob Hassard. Lewicki also was given an assist.

REACH FOR A RENNIE

Here And There In Sports . . .

By The Canadian Press

Ontario's 145-day racing season opened Wednesday at Toronto with 10,000 fans thronging the pint-sized Dufferin track in perfect weather. Keen action with some close finishes marking the first events of the 14-day meet at the half-mile oval.

The events were also the first held under Ontario's new racing deal. The recent appointment of a racing commission with Magistrate Tupper Bigelow as its head is expected to clear some of the cobwebs out of the racing setup in this province.

One of Wednesday's close finishes was the featured inaugural handicap, five-furlong dash for three-year-olds and up. The event, paying $1,800, was won by Blarney Maid with Bogging Bob second and Double Briar third. It took the camera to decide the winner. Blarney Maid gave bettors $6.10 for their $2.

One of the racing commission's acts Monday was to issue a jockey licence to Bobby Keane of Toronto, suspended after a row with officials last summer. Wednesday Keans marked up two winners, coming home with Fairy Story in the third and taking the secondary feature, the fifth, aboard Best Book.

At Cincinnati, O., both Lee Oma of Detroit, gunning for a crack at the heavyweight boxing championship, and Bill Weinberg of New York were disqualified for foul tactics Wednesday night in the seventh round of a scheduled 10-round bout.

Referee Earl Butler ordered both fighters out of the ring after almost seven full rounds of mauling, butting and heeling that drew constant boos from the estimated crowd of 3,500.

Oma, rated the No. 3 heavyweight in National Boxing Association rankings, weighed 194 and Weinberg 212½.

At London, jockey Gordon Richards Wednesday rode the 3,999th winner of his career. No man has ever ridden as many. The veteran of 29 years in the saddle will celebrate his 46th birthday Friday. Richards has ridden 33 winners since the English flat-racing season opened on March 18. He stands a good chance of reaching 4,000 today, since one of his mounts is a 1-to-10 favorite in a three-horse field. He had three mounts on Wednesday at Sandown Park and won with all of them.

N. Wedge of Kitchener rolled to a 749 count at Toronto Wednesday to capture the high three honors in the men's division of the Ontario Bowling Association's annual tournament. H. Hemphill, Ottawa, marked up 315 to win the high single.

Lacrosse Club Lining Up Strong Squad

A warning to all senior "A" lacrosse clubs in Canada: Peterborough's 1950 edition of the boxla Petes has its sights on the target, the Mann Cup, symbolic of Canadian lacrosse supremacy.

This year's Peterborough senior "A" entry has been working out for nearly a week and all indications point to a better year than last. Each night at Miller Bowl the old and new members are drilling to sharpen their play this year to enable them to win games lost last season by a one-goal margin.

While scouring the country for topnotch lacrossers for this year, Peterborough scouts kept one eye on the future. Gerry Fitzgerald, husky athlete for Johnny Metras' Western University football and basketball squads, has been signed by Peterborough to play for the senior squad as well as coach the strong minor lacrosse leagues. Besides winning laurels at the university Fitzgerald has been one of the stalwarts of the St. Catharines Athletics since he was 16 years old. He just turned 21.

From The Coast

From Western Canada, Peterborough offers have attracted two juniors. Jim Kinna and Russ Buchanan; both hail from Vancouver, were scouted during last year's Dominion junior playoffs. Kinna who touches the 6'2" mark is fast and will be used alternately on the offence and defence Buchanan although not as big as his western mate, has the zip required to make plays break fast.

Don Ashbee, latest to line up with the Petes, played last year with the Owen Sound Crescents. During the past winter he kept in shape playing hockey with Buffalo and Louisville.

Of the 1949 team, Ralph Speck will be back between the pipes with Bob Thorpe, Mick Magee, Arn Dugan, Ron Horton, Jack Breakspeare, Emmett Creighton and Dooteh Vitarelli patroling the grounds outside the half-moon. Doubtful starters this year are the two St. Kitts imports who joined the club last year, Jim McNulty and Leo Teatro. Pup Curtin who was with the club when it was the Ontario senior "B" championship team, has been turning out to practice and should be a tower of strength on the Petes' defence. Several of Lou Vitarelli's 1949 juveniles may be given the opportunity to step up into the senior "A" bracket.

All streets will lead to Miller Bowl May 19 when the club hopes to have the first home game. Once again, Friday night in Peterborough will be lacrosse night.

Yesterday's Stars

By The Associated Press.

Batting—Joe Garagiola, Cards, —tied Dodgers with ninth-inning single after two were out and won game in 13th with single driving home two runs for 6-5 edge.

Pitching—Johnny Sain, Braves: survived first-inning Pirate blast to pitch three-hitter for third victory 15-4 sparking Boston attack with four hits that drove in four runs.

SPORTS SHOW WINDOW

By CEC. PERDUE, Sports Editor

Looking over a report on the OASA convention, we note some of the amendments carried. An all-star team is allowed from a four-team loop in a district of less than 3,500 population. The intermediate "AA" series is open to boys over junior age who have not competed in a higher series the year previous. Residence rule was changed to March 15. Strictly industrial players are allowed to sign another certificate in an open league. Executive committee can grant special transfer permits. A three-foot line must be marked on the field halfway between home and first three feet outside the base line to a point 10 feet beyond first base. A baserunner is out for running outside the three-foot line. He must stay within confines of baseline and the three-foot line.

* * * * * *

A player replaced in a game cannot return as a coach or player. Shoes are not considered part of the uniform. A quick return pitch is not allowed, the umpire to call "time". Batter can't change from one box to another until "time" is called, but he can ask the umpire to call it. A baserunner standing on base is not out if hit by an infield fly. A runner who stands off base or hesitates between bases when a pitcher has the ball is called out. An out for leaving a base too soon on a caught fly is not a forceout and, when such an out is the third in an inning, any runs scored before the third out will count.

New Senior OLA Team

It was announced yesterday that Toronto has been accepted into the OLA senior "A" division. Making eight teams, along with Hamilton, Owen Sound, St. Catharines, Peterborough, Mimico, Brampton and Weston. The Torontos, managed by Don Holden, will play home games at Riverdale Terrace, Broadview and Danforth. Jack Campkin will coach the new entry and already he has signed two leading scorers from the Can.-Am. League of Sarnia, Chatham, Windsor, Detroit and Toledo. They're Wimpy Timpson and Chick Webster. Also up from that loop are Steve Kapasky, Frank Facto and Eric Barber. A meeting will be held Monday to check if the new club has claims on Toronto players with other senior clubs. Schedule will be drawn then.

* * * * * *

Secretary C. W. Rowan of the Ontario Lacrosse Association will represent that body on the Ontario Sports Federation delegation which plans to protest the hospital tax threatening so-called amateur sports. OLA decided not to act on its own, we note in the Tely, until it has received more info on this proposed tax. Scott Galbraith of Brampton is putting up a medal yearly for the best senior "A" goalie. None of the senior clubs voted against the new Toronto entry. In fact, it's a comparatively short hike for the Petes in their second season in senior "A" competition.

Golf Season Begins

Official opening of the Peterborough Golf and Country Club is this Saturday, featuring the usual President vs. Vice-President match. An interesting program has been lined up by the match and handicap committee, tee-off at one o'clock and dinner at six. New members will get acquainted with the older ones. Special ceremonies and the rest of it. Locker room capacity has been erected and a brand new weed-spraying machine added to the equipment. Course weathered the winter well and is in okay condition now, with the greens in excellent shape. Gord Harrison, club pro, is back on the job. President Bert Cutmore expects a large increase in membership and perhaps a record season for the Peterborough Club.

* * * * * *

An open workout at 6.30 tonight in the Ashburnham Bowl for the entry from over east in the men's softball league. George (Red) Sullivan expects to line up a sponsor shortly for this club and he figures on Ossie Anderson as coach, Red wanting to concentrate on playing. Jim Carver is calling open drills for the UEW softballers at 6.30 p.m. tonight in King Edward Park and at 1.30 p.m. Saturday in the Bowl, and his lineup should be known soon. Johnny Russelle has his Mutual Benefit bunch pretty well in order now. Ed Haynes of Cobourg thinks the local loop snubbed the Orphans of that centre, intimating that the latter wouldn't be strong enough to compete. But local officials weren't worrying on that score, but rather on expenses involved, trips entailed, possible late starts, and such.

Bethany Girls Enter New Softball League

BETHANY, May 4 (ENS) — The girls' softball club held the first practice of the season on Tuesday evening. The Bethany girls have entered the Midland League, which was organized recently with Walter Price as president and Miss Evelyn Mantle, secretary-treasurer.

Other teams which have entered the league are Millbrook and Bailieboro, with several other centres yet to be heard from.

A schedule of games is being drawn up and will be announced later.

Six Teams Entered In Industrial Loop

William Gunn has been returned as president of the local Industrial Fastball League, with George Giles vice-president, Horace Fisher again secretary, and Ken Crompton the treasurer. The executive committee consists of the club managers.

Six teams comprise the circuit this season, Woollens, Westclox, Quaker Oats, Nashua Paper, Peterborough Canoe Co. and Mount Pleasant. The next meeting will be held on Tuesday, May 9, at 7.30 p.m. in the Quaker clubhouse to draft rules and to draw up the schedule for the season.

Award Laprade Byng Trophy

MONTREAL, May 4—(CP)—Edgar LaPrade, 30-year-old centre with New York Rangers, has been awarded the National Hockey League's Lady Byng Trophy as the most gentlemanly player of the 1949-50 season, it was announced today.

La-Prade, who collects a $1,000 cheque from the NHL for winning the trophy, was almost a unanimous choice by the 18 sport writers and broadcasters of the NHL cities who did the voting. A native of Mine Centre, Ont., he polled 48 of a possible 54 points, to beat out Detroit's Red Kelly by a wide margin.

The trophy is awarded to "the player adjudged to have exhibited the best type of sportsmanship and gentlemanly conduct combined with a high standard of playing ability during the season."

LaPrade, winner of the Calder Memorial Trophy in 1945-46 as the NHL'S outstanding rookie, incurred only one minor penalty in the last NHL season.

Central Gets First

Central defeated Queen Alexandra yesterday on the former's grounds 36-10 to open their senior Public School Softball League schedule. It was a typical early season game, loose and wide open. Some good ball was seen at times but Central forged ahead with a big second inning. Both teams hit hard until Mongraw put the clamp on in the last two innings for Central, only seven Q. A. batters facing him for six outs. Gardner, Delahaye, Noble and Brooks went good for the winners; as Stewart, Nicholls, McKinney and Weir were best for the others. Teams:

Q. A.—Whitton, McClennan, W. Macklin, Stewart, W. R. Macklin, Lang, Nicholls, McKinney, Harrison, Johnson, Kingdon.

Central—Gardner, Noble, Patterson, Delahaye, Heffernan, Brooks, Matthews, Mongraw, McIntyre, Outwater, Bulmer, Murrie.

Syracuse Clips Toronto 4-0 In Opening Tilt

By The Associated Press

The International League finally got a break from the weatherman.

Opening day was staged in the ball parks of the circuit's four northern teams Wednesday and a total of 69,570 fans turned out compared to the meagre 28,660 fans who saw the four southern teams open their season some weeks ago.

The largest crowd of the day, 19,236 fans, turned up at Toronto but Syracuse Chiefs spoiled the occasion by blanking the Maple Leafs 4-0 behind the three-hit pitching of Art Hartley.

Hartley duelled on even terms with young Buzz Bowers until the seventh when the Chiefs snapped a scoreless tie with two runs. They added two more in the following frame against Lou Possehl to clinch the decision.

Down Orioles

The second largest crowd — 18,027—showed up at Rochester and the Wings rewarded the turnout by downing Baltimore Orioles 6-2.

Johnny Yuhas was credited with the victory, his third without a loss. Yuhas left the game in the seventh after he was struck on the leg with a ground ball and Jackie Collum finished up.

A crowd of 16,500 witnessed the Royals turn back Jersey City Giants 4-3 in Montreal. The Royals won the game in the ninth inning when Damon Phillips singled with the bases loaded. The triumph was Turk Lowns' third without a defeat and Montreal's sixth in seven starts.

The defending champion Buffalo Bisons pleased a home crowd of 15,807 by scoring four runs in the ninth inning to defeat the Springfield Cubs 7-5.

Jack Hussey, young first baseman, broke up the game with a three-run, 400-foot home run. The blow was his fourth of the season.

Boston Chalks Up 6th Win Tramples Cleveland 7-2

By JACK HAND
Associated Press Sports Writer.

Balk. Balk. Balk. Balk. How silly can you get? Pitcher Vic Raschi of New York Yankees, Umpire Bill Summers, and the American League hold a major league record that is better forgotten.

Raschi, guilty of only one previous balk in his big-league career, was nailed four times by Summers on Wednesday at Yankee Stadium. And this in the league where "the same old rule" was to be enforced. Each time Raschi was found guilty of a "non stop" violation.

In all the years of baseball no pitcher ever balked four times in a game before Raschi. Three was the old high.

Raschi's first three balks did not matter much, Chicago did not score. The fourth balk hurt, but not fatally. It permitted Gordon Goldsberry to stroll home from third breaking a 0-0 tie.

As it turned out, Raschi survived balks, walks and 10 hits for a 4-3 victory over Bob Kuzava of the White Sox.

Whip Cleveland

Those Boston Red Sox, breathing fire at their Fenway Park home, ripped off their sixth straight victory, a 7-2 romp over Cleveland. The Sox routed Bobby Feller. Ellis Kinder went all the way for the Sox. Walt Dropo clubbed a two-run homer and single.

Gil Coan hit a home run with the bases filled and two out in the seventh inning to give Washington a 4-3 comeback edge over St. Louis Browns. Ned Garver was coasting along with a three-hit 3-0 shutout when Coan hit his second homer of the year.

Too bad about those poor old St. Louis Cardinals. Those ageing Red Birds took a series from Brooklyn, just when the Dodgers threatened to run away with the National League.

The Cards did it the hard way Wednesday, winning in 13 innings, 6-5 with two runs in the last of the 13th. Jim Russell apparently won the game for Brooklyn with a homer in the first of the 13th. But Joe Garagiola's two-run single with the bases full made reliefer Willie Ramsdell knuckle down.

Sets Stage

Garagiola set the stage for the dramatic ending by driving home the tying run with two out in the last of the ninth. Carl Erskine was pitching at the time.

Al Brazle picked up the victory on a neat four-inning relief job. Ramsdell took the loss.

Leo Durocher got the thumb from Umpire Larry Goetz, but the New York Giants won anyhow 5-2 over Cincinnati. It was the Giants' second victory of the year. Montia Kennedy went the route, scattering nine hits to whip Ken Raffensberger.

Johnny Sain barely survived a three-run Pittsburgh first inning. Then he settled down to show the boys how it is done. While holding the Pirates to four hits, the Boston Braves' righthander drove in four of the Braves' first five runs with three hits. The Braves needed an 11-run ninth inning to win 15-4.

Willie (Puddin' Head) Jones, off to a sensational start, hit two homers for the Phillies in a 5-2 decision over the Chicago Cubs.

Spread Labor Influence More Evenly Across UK

By ALAN HARVEY

LONDON, May 4 —(CP)—Socialist strategy at the next election will be to spread the party's influence more evenly across the country. On the theory that the strong should help the weak, party groups in the impregnable industrial areas will be asked to divert some of their superfluous strength into marginal, middle-class seats.

Herbert Morrison, deputy prime minister and the man who oils the party machine, told a conference:

"The strong, safe constituencies should be willing to set some of their people aside to help the weaker ones—as long as they are the right people to do so."

Richard Crossman, once considered the leader of Labor's back-bench rebels, wrote that the obvious lesson of the Feb. 23 General Election is that the snug seats should aid what he called "politically-distressed" areas.

Clarion Call

"Elections are won not during but between campaigns," Crossman wrote in the New Statesman and Nation.

"If Labor is to win the next election—and regain the dynamic position which left-wingers rightly feel has been slipping in the last few years—what is needed over the summer months is an old-style 'Clarion' campaign."

The Clarion, edited by the late Robert Blatchford, was a popular Labor newspaper before the first World War. Young socialists called themselves "Clarion scouts" and obtained their propaganda points from the paper.

Election Inquests

Other popular themes of post-election comment are that the party polled the highest popular vote in Britain's history, but still fell far short of its aims. When Labor came joyously to power in July, 1945, some of the bolder spirits predicted that socialism would be in the saddle for at least two decades.

Now there is a general feeling that the Conservatives have regained the initiative. Nationalization of new industries has proved generally unpopular; consolidation is the rallying cry.

War Secretary John Strachey, in an article in the New Statesman, said that in the last five years Labor has made "at least an important beginning at doing the indispensable job of our times by democratic means." Everything hinged on whether the achievement could be "secured, consolidated and extended."

Strachey said two of the party's main accomplishments were redistribution of income and a planned economic system relatively free from the fluctuations of world markets.

Sarah Signs Contract

HOLLYWOOD, May 4 (AP)—Sarah Churchill, 36-year-old daughter of British statesman Winston Churchill, has signed a movie contract. Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer studio announced Wednesday that she will play the romantic lead opposite Fred Astaire in the film "Royal Wedding." The start of the picture has been set for next month.

In Serious Condition

ERINDALE, May 4 (CP)—Badly burned when an electric heater set fire to her crib, two-months-old Elizabeth Markle was taken to hospital in Toronto Wednesday night in serious condition. Following a neighbor's car taking the baby, the distraught father, John H. Markle, collided with another car. Both he and the driver of the other car escaped with a shaking up. The mother, Mrs. Anne Markle, 19, suffered burns to the face and hands when she tried to beat out the flames.

Say Operation Likely Succeed

EDMONTON, May 4—(CP)—An operation to separate Siamese twin girls Brenda and Beverley Townsend, scheduled May 14, is believed to have a "reasonable chance for success," Dr. Eardley S. Allin, Edmonton surgeon, declared Wednesday.

At a press conference in which complete details of the babies' condition were revealed for the first time, Dr. Allin said the operation is an "acceptable risk under the circumstances."

The children, born last Nov. 17 at Tofield, Alta., 42 miles southeast of Edmonton, are joined from the third rib to the navel by a common section three inches wide and seven inches deep.

X-rays have indicated they have a common liver—large enough for two children—but no other vital organs are shared.

In the operation, a team of six Edmonton doctors headed by Dr. Allin will seek to cut through skin, bone and tissue connecting the children and divide the liver in two.

Find US Lifejacket

STOCKHOLM, May 4 (AP)—A lifejacket marked "USN" was found in the Baltic Wednesday south of the island of Gotland, a Swedish airforce spokesman said. The jacket may be from the missing United States navy Privateer plane which disappeared over the Baltic April 8 with a crew of 10.

Hailed At Lifesaver

CINCINNATI, May 4 (AP) — William A. Lynn, 35, projectionist at the Royal Theatre, was credited Wednesday with saving 300 persons from deadly fumes when motion picture film caught fire in his booth. He braved fire and nitrous fumes to close booth shutters, slam a fire door and throw an exhaust switch before fleeing.

Britain's 1950 Budget Flop On Entertainment Value

By ALAN HARVEY

LONDON, May 4 —(CP)—Judged strictly on its entertainment value, Britain's 1950 budget was a flop. If the speeches get any duller, future chancellors of the exchequer may have to play to empty houses. Budget day used to be regarded as the most exciting event of the parliamentary year. It was always a sell-out spectacle. But the recent practice of prefacing the actual tax changes with a lengthy review of Britain' economic position is not to everyone's taste.

This time, there were all the time-worn trappings of a great occasion—the chancellor's dispatch box, which few writers can refrain from calling battered; the glass of orange juice to refresh a speaker celebrated for his austerity; the massed crimson benches, filled to overflowing, and the crowded, expectant galleries.

But it didn't come off. After Sir Stafford Cripps finished the first hour of his address, members stirred restlessly. An hour later, with the real news of the speech still to come, some parliamentarians began drifting out of the chamber.

Hard To Take

Observers of all political colors found the 2½-hour speech hard to take.

The Daily Telegraph, Conservative, noted that "heads were nodding" after the first hour. It said the Chancellor's exercise in economics had drained expectancy from the atmosphere.

The Daily Graphic, also Conservative, summed it up in a two-word headline: "Bleak House."

Several members detected what they called a "schoolmaster's chant" in the economic statement.

J. P. W. Mallalieu, Labor member for Huddersfield East, wrote in the left-wing Tribune:

"As his review of the country's external economic position proceeded, I seemed to hear the tic-toc of the school clock and to hear the drowsy humming of a lawn mower on the school field outside."

Budget boredom even afflicted the editorial writer of the Independent Times. He started a sentence with the words:

"Brooding over the bleak and barren budgetary scene . . ."

Will Stand Trial

EDMONTON, May 4 (CP) — Mrs. Marie Smith, 20-year-old bride of four months, Wednesday was committed for trial in the Supreme Court of Alberta on a charge of murdering Wei Hon (Jimmy) Pon. Chinese grocer stabbed to death in his store on April 19. Sobbing and hanging her head, the ex-waitress heard Police Magistrate S. G. Main rule that the Crown had presented sufficient evidence to warrant sending her to trial.

Suggest Press Code For Business Men

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., May 4—(AP)—An eight-point code for good press relations is suggested to business men in the May issue of the Harvard Business Review.

An article, "Business Men and the Press", written by William M. Pinkerton, director of the Harvard University news office, urged that every business organization regardless of size have a responsible spokesman available to handle inquiries at all times.

The code suggested:

1. Try to anticipate the newspapers' interest.
2. When you originate the news, tell everyone at once.
3. When one newspaper questions you about a story, exclusively, do not pass it on to the others.
4. Never promise an "exclusive" you cannot deliver.
5. Never mislead.
6. Be helpful about bad news.
7. Stay on the record.
8. Talk for quotation.

Suspend 8 Teachers

NEW YORK, May 4 — (AP).—Eight Public School teachers were suspended Wednesday as a result of an investigation into alleged Communist activities in New York City's school system. Dr. William Jansen, superintendent of schools, said all eight refused to say whether they are or have ever been, Communist Party members. Each of the eight was suspended on the grounds of "insubordination and conduct unbecoming a teacher."

LONDON, May 4 (Reuters). — The Archbishop of Canterbury, Most Rev. Geoffrey Fisher, on Wednesday disowned the views of mercy killing voiced Tuesday by Dr. Walter Robert Matthews, Dean of St. Paul's. Addressing the voluntary euthanasia legislation society here, Dr. Matthews said he believes love and compassion should lead intelligent Christians to support voluntary euthanasia, as advocated by the society.

Around the Home...

TOM GARD'S NOTE BOOK

Our new neighbours moved in yesterday and we had fun watching them start immediately to fix up the interior to suit themselves. With the house shortage being what it is, I didn't think it would take long to find a tenant. I have met the man of the house, "Red" Breast, but not his good wife—she was too busy! The two robins must have liked the shelter I put up for them in the early spring as they have decided to stay.

Most of our feathered songsters will be returning soon and looking for a nesting place. Help ease their housing problem by building one or two of the houses illustrated. Weathered wood without paint is a satisfactory building material. It's wise to stay fairly close to the dimensions as given in the booklet "Around the Home".

Doorways

Does your doorway extend a welcome? It's a most important feature of the home that can be made very attractive by an arrangement of flowering shrubs for summer, ornamental evergreens for winter effect, and climbers. Perennial plants are best for the man who owns his property, annuals for the one who rents.

Rock Gardens

I spent two enjoyable hours in The Royal Botanical Garden last week admiring its beauty, listing some of the plants that are in bloom even at this early date, and getting some ideas for rock gardens. When asked what can be done with a sloping bank my usual suggestion is to build a rock garden. When carefully planned and executed, it's a decided asset to your property. You'll find directions and a list of plants that can be used in the booklet "Around the Home".

For more about bird houses, rock gardens and many other ideas, write to Tom Gard, c/o MOLSON'S (Ontario) LIMITED, P.O. Box 490, Adelaide St. Station, Toronto, for the illustrated booklet "AROUND THE HOME".

ST. JOSEPH'S HOSPITAL NEW 50-BED WING was opened Wednesday by Premier of Ontario, the Hon. Leslie M. Frost. 75 Beds Added To St. Joseph's Hospital By The Construction of New Wing

Nineteen months after work began on the new west wing of St. Joseph's hospital it was formally opned Wednesday afternoon by Premier Leslie M. Frost of Ontario. The $500,000 addition consisting of 75 beds brings the total up to 175 for the whole hospital. Peterborough's rapid population increase has strained hospital accommodation to the utmost and the Sisters of St. Joseph have sparked the fund-raising drive to meet this community need.

As early as last January the first floor was occupied by patients and by Wednesday, when Premier Frost officially opened the new wing, all the beds were in use

Four years ago the Most Rev. Gerald Berry, Bishop of Peterborough, turned the first sod for the $250,000 nurses' residence and the $190,000 boiler plant and laundry.

All were planned as necessary capital outlays if the sick of Peterborough and district were to be properly looked after.

Second Addition

The west wing is the second addition to the main hospital. In 1922 the south wing was erected providing accommodation for a total of 60 patients—obstetrical, surgical and medical.

Although there are 75 beds in the new wing the overall gain to the hospital is 52. A new $18,000 nursery in the south wing is one of the renovation now going on in other parts of the building. The need for more space meant the sacrifice of 23 beds.

(The nursery is of the most advanced design as specified by government regulations. There is a special temperature control for the 32 babies accommodated in the nursery—each in a separate cubicle — and ultra-violet ray lighting to kill germs in the room.)

Pigott Construction Co. began excavation work on the new site on October 4, 1948. Apart from the basement, which will hold a cafeteria, the building is completed. Its general construction is reinforced concrete and steel with brick on the outside.

Finishing touches will be landscaping of grass and shrubs now being undertaken by the city Parks department.

The architect was Edward Turcotte of Montreal.

Management and administration of the hospital is in the hands of the Sisters of St. Joseph under the superintendent. Nursing is under a Sister supervisor and then there are the staff—graduate nurses, student nurses, ward aides and orderlies.

180 On Hospital Staff

The 75 - bed addition has brought the total—including hospital administrators and staff—up to about 180.

But the west wing has made some fundamental changes to the general plan as well. The new entrance for visitors is now from Rogers St. and so is the new ambulance entrance.

A large parking lot has been set aside on the unused land between the west wing and the House of Providence. It is expected to afford ample accommodation for cars. When the landscaping in completed it should be an attractive drive into the grounds.

The ground floor of the four-storey wing is practically given over to reception facilities and office space.

Bordering on the terrazzo-floored rotunda are the information desk and switchboard, a reception room with a sofa and green leather chair, and elevator to the three upper floors, entrance to the kitchen and the business office. Down the corridor are the doctors' sitting room, admitting room and miniature X-ray room, and the superintendent's office for the Mother Superior, Sister Superior.

At the west end of the ground floor is the semi-circular medical record room. It is almost entirely window space and allows in a maximum of sun.

The similar room on the second floor is for lounging patients. On the third floor it is for pediatric cases, mainly those children requiring surgical attention. (Altogether there are about 20 boys and girls in the pediatric section whose ages range up to 12 years.)

The top floor is the maternity ward and the westerly sun-catching room is for convalescing mothers.

Three floors are given over to patients. Each floor has a utility room, linen room, kitchenette and nurses' station. There are also alcoves for passengers to relax in comfort just off the main hallway.

Private, semi-private and public ward patients have clean and attractive rooms. All are painted in pastel shades with gaily-colored drapes to match. Lighting is from indirect tungsten-filament bulbs; fluorescent lights are used in offices.

A typical private room has a special gatch bed (adjustable for raising or lowering the patient in the angle desried), overbed table, locker, toilet, wash basin and chest of drawers with mirror.

One of the things the Mother Superior is most proud of is the new central kitchen on the ground floor of the west wing. From this spotless kitchen, well lighted and aired, some 900 meals are being prepared daily for the staff and patients.

Lake Assembly Line

At first impression it looks like a super-clean assembly line in a factory. A seemingly endless procession of trays are fed down a conveyor belt which runs lengthways on a 40-foot food table.

Spotless kitchen attendants place the various courses on the trays as the belt moves down the table. Cutlery, appetizers, main course, dessert, beverage, seasonings and a napkin are all tucked on the patients' trays.

They are loaded in racks on trucks and wheeled swiftly away to the large power-operated "dumb waiter" in one corner of the kitchen. The trucks are unloaded at the various floors and patients get their meals with the minimum of delay. A hot meal is still hot when they get it.

Sister St. Maurice, the dietitian keeps a careful eye of the food values contained in each meal She is an expert at her job having been trained in St. Louis and Montreal.

Her assistants are Sister Rosanna and Sister Kathleen. And there is a professional chef and well-trained staff.

Use 80 Lbs. Meat

In a day about 35 loaves of bread would be consumed at the hospital, about three bags of potatoes and as much as 80 pounds of meat.

One section of the kitchen is set aside for special diets. Here something will be prepared to tempt the most finicky patient.

Large electric refrigerators — a special one for meat—keep all food in excellent condition. And meals are cooked by electric range.

Dishes are sterilized in a steam cabinet after being scraped and brought along on trays. The sterilizing is done at 140 degrees fahrenheit (212 degrees is boiling) and rinsing at 180-200 degrees.

One thing that strikes the casual visitor to the hospital is the cheerfulness and courtesy shown by everyone at St. Joseph's — from the Mother Superior down to orderlies. All seem proud of the new wing and are eager to explain its design and the most modern hospital equipment that has been installed.

"We needed it badly," said the Mother Superior. "And now that we have it we realize it's a beautiful place. And on such a beautiful location overlooking the city."

Nine Teachers Resign Over Pay

GANANOQUE, May 4—(CP)—Nine of 11 teachers at Gananoque High School have submitted resignations in disagreement with proposed salary schedules, R. G. Kelly, chairman of the management committee said Wednesday.

The teachers have asked for $200 yearly increases until the maximum level was reached. They are backed by the Ontario Secondary Teachers' Federation, which advised them to look for other positions.

The entire 11-member staff previously had rejected a proposed schedule calling for $200 yearly increases until a salary of $2,700 was reached with $100 annual increases to the maximum after that.

The negotiations have not yet been considered by the local board. Gananoque is 15 miles east of Kingston.

Judgment Reserved

TORONTO, May 4 (CP) — Judgment has been reserved in a lawsuit brought by the McFarland Construction Co. against the town of Picton for non-payment of a bill for sewage installation. Both parties were given until May 9 to file further evidence.

Two-Day Walkout Ended By Employees

SARNIA, May 4 (CP)—Some 600 members of the Electric Auto-Lite Limited plant at nearby Point Edward Wednesday voted to return to work today.

Employees tied on the first ballot to end the two-day walkout. A second vote obtained a majority for the return to work.

Employee grievances will be negotiated. The walkout was in protest against an alleged management refusal to discuss grievances that extended back six months. Details were not given.

The walkout took place without consent of Local 456, United Automobile Workers (CIO). Officials of the local termed the walkout as a spontaneous protest.

Dailey Complains He's Overworked Wants A Rest

By BOB THOMAS.

HOLLYWOOD, May 4 (AP) — Most movie stars who complain of overwork can't evoke much sympathy, but Dan Dailey might have a point.

"I haven't had a day off in a year," said the lanky hoofer. With strenuous dance rehearsals, he works harder than most filmsters and he now is seeking some time off. Having just finished three pictures in a row, he was put into a guest appearance in "I'll Get By." Now he's supposed to start "Call Me Mr.," but he hinted he may elude the assignment.

Dan is happy over the success of "When Willie Comes Marching Home," which he said is the favorite of all his pictures. It may be significant that the film contains only one brief musical number.

Thursday Thoughts

Bette Davis strongly doubts a report that she might return to Warners for another picture. She's too happy on the outside. . .

Errol Flynn, may rate westerns but he is slated to start "Rocky Mountain" next month. . .

Some timing. Elizabeth Taylor's film, "Father of the Bride" was previewed last night. Saturday she goes through the real thing with Nick Hilton.

Cuff Notes

Joan Crawford says she'll do the projected musical at Warners if she is given enough time to prepare the dance numbers. . .

June Haver postponed her Holy Year pilgrimage to Rome until September because of another picture. . .

Allan Ladd continues to be Paramount's pet. The studio announced he received 14,000 fan letters in one day. He averages 25,000 a month, says the studio. . .

Also in the record department: the call sheet for "The Grave Bulls" on location in Mexico listed 5,045 extras.

Dutch Get Past Arms

ROTTERDAM, May 4 (AP)—Holland received its first shipments of Atlantic Pact arms today despite demonstrations by Leftists. Most of the objectors were women. A number of them were arrested and one demonstrator received a sabre cut. The arms, arriving aboard the United States freighters Empire State and Aimee Lykes were unloaded behind a heavy police cordon.

Niagara Power Bills Sent To U.S. Senate

WASHINGTON, May 4 (CP)—Bills to authorize development of the "prodigious" power potential of Niagara Falls were introduced Wednesday in the United States Congress by Senator Herbert Lehman and Representative Franklin D. Roosevelt, Jr., both Democratic-Liberals from New York.

The legislation would put into effect a treaty President Truman sent Tuesday to the Senate for ratification.

The treaty, signed Feb. 27 by the United States and Canada, calls for vastly-greater Niagara power production, without affecting the scenic grandeur of the Falls.

Under the Lehman-Roosevelt proposal, the United States government would construct the power works and then sell them to New York State for maintenance and operation.

Manual Training Teacher Wants Smaller Classes

LAKEFIELD, May 4 (ENS)—J. L. McColl, manual taining teacher at the public school, asked the board Monday to reduce the size of manual training classes in the school. He said he could not take responsibility for 24 or 26 pupils in one class.

There had been an unfortunate accident when a boy had cut his hand badly with a chisel when using it contrary to instruction.

Mr. McColl suggested the board might either discontinue manual training for the girls or divide the classes.

There should be an individual place for each child to work, he said. Sixteen pupils should be the maximum and 12 or 14 was a preferable size for a class.

Asked whether he thought the girls were as interested in the work as girls at other schools, Mr. McColl said he thought they were. E. G. Sloan, principal, said it all depended on whether the girls struck something they liked, but he thought they were not too enthusiastic.

Mr. McColl said another class would cost $170. The board's decision was deferred to a special meeting to be called later.

Frank Payne talked to the board about the purchase of two lots adjacent to the school property.

Mr. E. Sloan gave his report showing attendance as 273 pupils as follows: Miss Elsie Kidd's room 47, Miss Bertina Beavis; 47, Mrs. S. Black 47, Mr. M. Patterson 46, Mrs. M. Martin 45, Principal E. G. Sloan 41.

Trustee Roy Bullock was named to attend a convention representing the board.

Present at the meeting were chairman Roy Bullock, trustees Jessie Doubt, Charles Hunter, Albert Buchanan, Stanley Richardson and secretary Miss Grace Yonge.

13,000 Workers End Contract Bargaining

SUDBURY, May 4 (CP)—Bargaining for 1950 ended Wednesday for 13,000 workers at two plants of the International Nickel Company when they voted for a company-approved contract.

The contract was negotiated by Local 598, Sudbury, and Local 637, Port Colborne, of the International Union of Mine, Mill and Smelter Workers.

The contract was negotiated in six days, compared with the several months' bargaining required last year. Union spokesmen said terms in the new contract included a full check-off for Port Colborne in place of a voluntary one (Sudbury already has full check-off); a 10-cent-an-hour wage increase and a 44-hour week.

Indian Preacher Conducts Mission

Canadian missionaries are usually sent to foreign countries to convert heathens but this week in Peterborough a native Christian pastor from India is exhorting Canadian people to Christianity.

Pink-turbaned, pink-robed, swarthy Rev. N. G. John Vasu, a pastor of the Madras Pentecostal Assembly Churches in Madras Province, India, is preaching all this week at the Full Gospel Pentecostal Church on Water St.

Mr. Vasu, besides being a pastor, is the principal of two schools, head of an orphanage, editor and publisher of a magazine called "The Balm of Gilead" which is confined to mission work.

Leaving India in April 1949 Mr. Vasu attended the Pentecostal World Conference in Paris where 2,000 church members assembled. He was a committee member of the conference. From Paris the pastor has visited England, Norway, Sweden, Finland, Denmark and Germany. He arrived in Canada March 8 and since then has preached in Halifax and Montreal. Further destinations are Western Canada and the United States. Mr. Vasu plans to return to India by October through England, Switzerland, Italy and Palestine.

Converted 1924

Born a Hindu he was converted to Christianity in 1924 at the age of 16 while attending a Christian school. He entered the ministry after the discovery that Christianity was "strikingly different from Hinduism, in that Hinduism has no "living God."

India needs more trained missionary workers who will be called upon to train natives as evangelists, he said. Hindu and Buddhist religions are more powerful now than for many years.

TO ST. JOSEPH'S HOSPITAL FOR A PLAN WELL CONCEIVED AND EXECUTED

A growing city, such as PETERBOROUGH, needs expanded hospital facilities to help protect the health of the community.

The new and modern wing to ST. JOSEPH'S HOSPITAL, which was officially opened yesterday by Premier Frost, is a fine example of the new trend in hospital architecture which adds so much to the efficiency of operation and to the well-being of the patients.

The PIGOTT CONSTRUCTION COMPANY, contractors and builders for this new wing, compliments the foresight and initiative of the St. Joseph's Hospital Board, in building for the future.

Seeking Motive

MOOSE JAW, Sask., May 4—(CP)—Police said Wednesday that Frank Grant, 45-year-old bus driver arraigned Tuesday on a charge of murdering Wenzel (Vince) Hartel, 35, acted as a pallbearer at Hartel's funeral. Police still sought a motive for the brutal shooting of Hartel on a roadside near here April 24. The body was burned, apparently in an attempt to conceal his identity.

Sing Dirge-Like Hymns On Way To Prison

VANCOUVER, May 4—(CP)—Chanting a dirge-like hymn and with battered baggage slung over their shoulders, 61 Sons of Freedom Doukhobors arrived Wednesday on their way to Oakalla Prison in suburban Burnaby.

Twenty-three of the all-male contingent were convicted on nudism charges in recent trials at Nelson and Trail and will serve terms at the nearby British Columbia penitentiary at New Westminster.

The others, also involved in the outbreak of burning and stripping the last few weeks, face trial at the Nelson spring assizes of arson and conspiracy charges.

Their four guards said the 400-mile trip from the interior Kootenay country where they were arrested for nude parading was "a very quiet one."

French Waiters Astounded When Water Is Asked For At Meal

By JEAN E. STENTON

PARIS, April—France is justly famous for its good food and if I do not return an expert on the subject, it will not be because my friends (who are connoisseurs) haven't tried.

Jean Stenton

During my visit, I was taken to special places which served some particular dish and throughout our trips, we had the foods for which each province is famous.

There are three basic things for French meals whether in smart hotels or small homes — bread, wine and potatoes. French bread is bought in a loaf about two feet long. Each person cuts off a piece about an inch thick. Occasionally it is eaten with butter, but more often not. I really prefer it without butter. As you eat it, you just break off a small chunk with your fingers. The old time we summoned enough courage to ask for water along with wine, the waiters looked at us as if they had never heard the word. It is almost never used for drinking. Another peculiarity of French meals is that they serve the meat course first and your vegetables and potatoes follow later. The only thing I had which I didn't like was endives. At the end of every meal you have a choice of various kind of cheeses or fruit (apples, oranges and bananas.)

For those who are gourmets and may some time be in France, or a place where French cooking is used, I am going to describe some of the menus we had and the places where we went.

Normandy Different

Our first day in Caen, we had luncheon in the new prefabricated hotel, l'Hotel Moderne. It was modern and attractive and the food delicious. The meal consisted of hors d'oeuvre, merlan (a kind of fish), rizotto milanais (rice with fowl liver) gruyere cheese (mild) and cidre bouche (cider) Normandy is famous for its cider.

For dinner at the Dangeard home we had Coquilles St. Jacques (a kind of fish served in a shell), roast beef, peas and rice cooked in milk.

One day we had lunch at a small cafe one block off the Boulevard Raspail, in Paris. At the Restaurant de Luxembourg we had rilettes (a kind of pork pie), sole mouniere (fish), endives and bananas.

One of the bigger eating places and extremely good is the Auberge de Chanteclair. It has a dingy entrance off a little side street, rue du Elder, two blocks from l'Opera. But inside it is beautifully decorated with big beamed ceilings and the furniture is in keeping with that period scheme. It is the last word in service. We had six elegant waiters rushing around for us and they did everything but put the food in our mouths. The menu consisted of potage garlure (soup with cream-vegetable), entrecote pommes allumetts (beef and small chips and banane (bananas).

In contrast, for luncheon with Madame Dusquenal in Beny-sur-Mer, we enjoyed certain Norman dishes: omelette - sardines, colin sauce blanche (fish), pommes de terre en robe des champs (boiled), mousse au chocolat, cafe (coffee) and Liquer (banane or prunelle).

Special Fish

At Tours, we had most of our meals at the Hotel Univers.

The cooking was delicious and the service excellent. One luncheon we had was made up of Coquilles St. Jacques, poulet saute (roast chicken) fromage de chevre (goat cheese), glace a la vanille (vanilla ice cream), cafe (coffee) and wine-Vouvray 1934. For one dinner there, we tried some of the specialties of the Tours region. They included Loire salmon (if you feel like splurging with your pocket book), ananas au kirch (pineapple done in liquor) and tea. At another dinner, we enjoyed potage aux legumes (vegetable soup), omelette au jambon (ham omelette), glace (ice cream) and tea. Another specialty which is very delicious is quenelle de brochet de Loire which is pike specially prepared with a sauce. It was very palatable.

The day we had luncheon at Chinon of Joan of Arc fame, we had a simpler meal, There were hors d'oeuvre, pigeon petits Pois (pigeon with peas) and pomme reinette du Mans (a special apple grown in the region.)

Exciting Discovery

At Blois, we chanced upon a little place, well off the tourist route that we liked very much. It had none of the smart glamour of the big hotels, but the food was good and the people very kind.

The Hotel des Voyageurs is a small place with a regular clientele among the workers of the area. We created a distinct sensation on our arrival, but the customers shoved over and made room for us. They were all very pleasant and as they returned to their jobs, we soon had the dining room to ourselves. We enjoyed hors d'oeuvre, sole in black butter, salade and confiture (marmalade) and gateau (cake).

The owner had lost his home and all his belongings in the Italian bombings of 1940. He told us how these fliers, presumably fresh from their escapades in Spain, flew over the city machine gunning everything in sight. It was after the bombings when the townspeople began to rebuild that they uncovered many secret passages and tunnels which led to the famous Blois castle on the other side of the city.

Inspect Tunnels

There are two in his cellar and he invited us to crawl down and look around. The inn is built on the ruins of an old chateau connected with the castle and it is supported by a giant stone pillar with Grecian design, dating from the time of Francis the 1st, in 1515. They have not uncovered the underground tunnels very far. The innkeeper said that they were all afraid of the traps which would likely be uncovered throughout the passages They were set there by the cruel and brilliant Catherine de Medicis.

Then there are the sidewalk cafes in Paris and nearly all small towns and villages. It is the equivalent of the Canadian tea or coffee every afternoon. Here you can have fruit juice and cake, drinks or ice cream. It is extremely pleasant on a sunshiney afternoon to sit and watch the world pass by. We have tried small ones and large ones, the most exclusive being Le Madrigal on the Champs-Elysees.

One other restaurant, often passed over by the tourist is a four-minute walk from the Gare du Nord (station) at 118 Bvd. Denaim. Here, for moderate prices, you get excellent meals and service at the Chez Becassine. You walk straight down from the station for two blocks, turn right and go past two or three stores. There are ground floor and basement dining rooms, according to your choice. Most of the staff have remained with this firm for years which speaks well for their service.

Eating in France is a big adventure and should be counted among the most interesting parts of the visit.

200 Strikers In Agreement

OWEN SOUND, May 4 (CP Some 200 striking employees o. the RCA Victor Company will return to work today after reaching an agreement on wages, group benefits, holiday privileges and other questions at issue. The strike began April 24.

A joint statement Wednesday by the company and the International Woodworkers of America (CIO) said:

"The strike at the RCA-Victor Company plant has been settled by an amicable agreement between the company and the IWA

"Some of the highlights of the settlement included a new base rate, improvements in the merit and bonus-incentive systems and an approach to an annual guarantee of work.

"The contract contains union shop and automatic check-off, two weeks' vacation after four years, seven statutory holidays, and a group insurance plan covering sickness and accident, hospital and sick pay."

Pope Excommunicates Priest In Romania

VATICAN CITY, May 3 (Reuters) The Vatican Wednesday announced the excommunication of a Romanian Roman Catholic priest, Andrea Agotha, for "trying to entice Catholics away from the Pope."

The decree warned other unnamed Roman Catholic priests in Romania that they too would be excommunicated if they did not desist from "spreading propaganda to induce clergy and faithful to refuse obedience to the Roman Pontiff and to their legitimate pastors."

Toronto Police Get 5-Day, 40-Hour Week

TORONTO, May 4 (CP)—Toronto police have been awarded a five-day 40-hour week and a weekly wage increase of $5 by an arbitration board, it was learned Wednesday.

The $5 increase constitutes incorporation into the salary of a cost-of-living bonus which police have been receiving since 1948. Request for an additional $3 bonus was turned down, it was reported.

Previously the 1,116 members of the force worked a 44-hour 5½ day week.

Charge Synod Been Weakened

TORONTO, May 4 — (CP) — The Synod of the Presbyterian Church in Canada has been weakened and given an increasingly subordinate place as a church court, a church committee reported Wednesday.

The report, from the committee on Administrative needs, was presented to the 76th annual meeting of the Synod of Toronto and Kingston by Rev. S. B. Coles, of North Bay.

Few functions are now performed by the Synod because it has been subordinated by the General Assembly, the report said. Duties taken over include petitions, references, complaints, appeals, matters of doctrine, worship, discipline and government.

The Synod passed a resolution requiring all presbyteries to report to their Synod each year on all matters committed to them for consideration.

Dr. A. T. Barr, of Penetanguishene, said if a second decision on any subject was necessary, the General Assembly could be a court of appeal from the Synod's decisions.

Daughter's Birthday Celebrated By Party

ROSENEATH, May 4 (ENS)—Reeve O. J. Robins and Mrs. Robins entertained a number of the young people Monday evening in honor of the 18th birthday of their eldest daughter Miss Doris Robins. Progressive crokinole and euchre were played the early part of the evening and later dancing was enjoyed. The dining table was centred with a large birthday cake complete with candles. Lunch was served at midnight.

Lovely personal gifts were received from the young women present and a purse of money from the men. Included among those present were: Misses Pauline Down, Marjory Sandercock, Helen Braithwaite, Eleanor Brown, Barbara Skuce, Shirley Rosebush, June Linton, Frances Crego, Nora Duff, Leona Pringle, Barbara Adams, Donna Pringle, Myrna Adams and Helen Arnold; Messrs. Ralph Sherwin, Ralph Rosebush, Martin Muller, Ken Sherwin, Trevor Brown, Ken Adams, Howard Richardson, Lloyd Beatty, Ken Oliver, Beverley Robins, Jim Morrow, Neil O'Connell, and Blair Thackeray.

Telephone Operator Turned In Alarm

ROSENEATH, May 4 (ENS)—Much credit is due Miss Lavigne Parker, telephone operator at Roseneath, who, during the fire at Ross McCracken's on Tuesday forenoon, rang the general ring, giving the alarm on all the telephone lines in the township. Almost every farmer in the township responded and only through their untiring efforts the barn was saved.

POINTS YOU SHOULD KNOW TO COMPARE

1. 85 H.P.-L Head Champion Engine capable of speeds up to 93 m.p.h.
2. Guaranteed minimum gas mileage on standard equipment of 26 miles per gallon at 50 m.p.h. Maximum reported by local customers up to 34 miles per gallon.
3. Centre point steering gives finger-tip control at any speeds on straightway or corners.
4. The longest coil springs of any car in its price field, and raked rearward at 15% angle to roll into the punch rather than pound straight up and down over rough roads—a riding and handling enjoyment you have to experience to appreciate. Sea leg rear shock mountings eliminate tail-whip and side-sway on rough and twisty roads.
5. Twist resisting frame with a new very low centre of gravity and tilting point, mounted on wide base safety rims and low pressure super cushion tires give a combination built for punishment. Road clearance is second to none at 8¼ inches.
6. No other manufacturer can give you all this in sure stop safety brakes — sealed against weather (foot regulated) requiring very soft pedal pressure (self-adjusting) never need setting up, (self-centring) never pull to right or left and a hand brake separate from the foot hydraulics to assure brakes at all times, in any emergency.
7. Studebaker's broad, soft, form-fitting cushions; wide, easy entrance doors and spacious carry-all trunks provide a superb combination of roominess and ease.
8. Studebaker's air-conditioning provides a comfort you won't believe until you experience a trip at sub-zero temperature. Heating unit is built under the seat to assure no cold passengers or feet in the rear seat. The air passing through the heating unit is fresh from outside at all times. All windows are kept clear of frost to give mid-summer vision for all passengers. You can truly travel in your shirtsleeves under any weather conditions.

This list would go on indefinitely, such as bonderized rust-resisting bodies, insulated bodies, rust-resisting chrome refrigerator type handles, black light instrument dials, automatic door lights, all dual equipment on horns, visors, etc.

All in all it adds up to the best buy for 1950. Thousands of Studebaker buyers across Canada can't be wrong when they enthusiastically say "Talk about economy, can that baby get out and go, it rides like a cloud and sticks to the road as if it were built to it," or "I have the most modern designed car available today, people stop and look at it, they always comment 'There goes a Studebaker.' With this car every one in my neighborhood knows I have a 1950 model. My friends and business associates are so interested in Studebaker, I spend more time discussing my car and demonstrating it than I do looking after my business."

In other words, "Ask someone who owns one." The designers, the stylers, the engineers, have put every modern touch available into the building of the new 1950 model. The well-known top quality materials, workmanship and craftsmanship always associated with Studebakers are still there and always will be as long as they remain the largest dependent manufacturers of automobiles in the world today. Their engineering department, research department and proving grounds at South Bend, Indiana, are second to none in the industry in size and developments of accepted firsts in the automobile trade.

STUDEBAKER SALES SERVICE AND PARTS DEPOT

WITH THE BOY SCOUTS

By DON GRANT

Members of the Ontario Rover Round Table visited Peterborough Sunday to make plans for the Ontario Rover moot which will be held here this year. The proposed campsite, Kosh lake, was the main item of business. Three hundred Rovers are expected to attend the Labor Day weekend camp.

First entertained by Assistant Commissioner Peter Dominik the men proceeded to the proposed area of the moot. The first site investigated was just behind the Nepheline mine. A second site on the other side of the lake was visited and this latter met with unanimous approval of all.

Those visiting the area were: Scotty Fleming, field commissioner for the lakeside district; Gordon Williams, executive commissioner of Hamilton; Commissioner and Mrs. Gerald Purkis of the Toronto district; Rover leader Wilf Hilton and daughter from Toronto; field commissioner Art Jackson and family from Trenton; Mr. Dominik; Skipper Art Rose and the All Saints' Rover Crew of Peterborough.

Peterborough's commissioners have high hopes of the formation of two or three Rover crews in the city to bolster the contingent to the moot. District Commissioner George Groombridge said there is every possibility that senior Scouts from this district who are interested in Rovering will be invited to attend the moot.

Tree Planting

Time is passing quickly and the tree planting expedition to the Ganaraska valley is only a week and a half away. Commissioner Groombridge wishes all groups to report the number of boys expected to turn out for this annual Scout good deed.

Present plans have the workers leaving Peterborough at 8 a.m. Saturday, May 13, and returning to the city about 5 p.m. The Department of Lands and Forests will provide all the necessary equipment. All the Scouts, fathers, committeemen and officials are reminded to take a lunch while the Peterborough Association will provide a hot beverage for the noonday meal.

Leaders Welcome

Cub and Scout leaders are needed to carry on the activities of the Scouting Association in Peterborough. Commissioner Groombridge suggests that if any one hasn't a hobby, why not try Scouting.

Camping

Have you planned your summer camp for the Pack or Troop? Plans for these camps should be now under way advises Mr. Groombridge. Many of the Peterborough Scouters who are not able to take a week for camping are planning to hold two or more weekend camps with their troops.

All Saints Cubs

Cub activities were few this week because many of the boys attended the demonstration cub meeting in Lakefield. Miss Peggy Houghton conducted the demonstration before the parents of the Lakefield Sea Scouts.

Garnet Frost was invested into the pack and received his neckerchief. Gar White passed tests for the guide and toymakers badges while cub-mates Peter Johnston passed the artist, Ron Johnson, the toymaker, Ralph Daniels, the artists and collectors badges. Jim Parker received his second year service star and T. Downer, D. Doughty, P. Emery and G. Stewart their first year service stars. B. Reid received his third year star.

Thursday evening the All Saints Cubs, Scouts and Rovers held their annual Father and Son banquet. The dinner was cooked and served by the Ladies Auxiliary. Guests were B. I. Burgess, Commissioner Groombridge and Assistant Commissioners Peter Dominik and Fred Ford. The Rev. Ivan C. Morgan of Murray St. Baptist Church was the guest speaker.

Scouting Around

Hamilton—Canada's largest annual youth parade and a Scouting event of national prominence will see more than 6000 Cubs, Scouts, Brownies and Girl Guides marching in Hamilton Saturday, May 13. This will be the 12th annual parade.

The thriving development of Scouting and Guiding movements in Hamilton and district is given an annual impetus by this parade of strength. Recognition of its value in the interests of youth welfare was made by Mayor Lloyd Jackson when he insisted this year that the parade should be routed along James Street north, from which it had previously been banned. The salute this year will be taken by Mayor Jackson at the City Hall. The noted Boy Scout band of Preston will be in the parade.

3 teaspoons Calumet Baking Powder
1/2 teaspoon salt
2/3 cup butter or other shortening
1 5/4 cups sugar
1 cup milk
1 teaspoon vanilla
5 egg whites

Sift flour once, measure, add baking powder and salt; sift together three times. Cream butter, add sugar gradually; cream together until fluffy. Add flour, alternately with milk, a small amount at a time, beating after each addition until smooth. Add vanilla. Beat egg whites until they will hold up in moist peaks. Stir quickly but thoroughly into batter. Bake in three greased 9-inch layer pans in moderate oven (375° F.) about 20 minutes. Spread lemon icing between layers and over cake.

"Look At It Outside! Look at it inside! You can't match a Frigidaire!" That slogan forcibly caught my eye at a Frigidaire dealer's the other day. And when I took another look outside and inside the new FRIGIDAIRE DE LUXE COLD-WALL REFRIGERATOR I realized how meaningful that slogan is! Outside—the gold and white Raymond Loewy cabinet design is sheer beauty. Inside—there's the full-width Super-Freezer Chest that holds up to 49 pounds of frozen foods—the rust-proof aluminum sliding shelves—the twin "stack-up" fruit and vegetable Hydrators—all lustrously ice-blue trimmed! "You certainly can't match a Frigidaire," I said to myself. "No wonder the Frigidaire people keep reminding everybody that there is only one Frigidaire— that it is made only by General Motors. That Frigidaire name is something really important to look for!"

No Police Since Fenelon Chief Fired

FENELON FALLS, May 4 (CP) —With the firing of Chief Constable David Gordon, this community of 1,100 persons has no police force.

It also has no weed inspector, collector of municipal monies, road superintendent, parks superintendent, sanitary inspector or relief officer.

Chief Gordon, who contends his dismissal by Fenelon Falls council was illegal, did all those jobs.

The 59-year-old native of Scotland, a policeman for 35 years, said today:

Dismissed Illegally

"I have been dismissed illegally and without cause and have not been given an opportunity to reply. I wasn't even given seven days' notice, which a laborer usually receives. They laid no charges against me."

Chief Gordon came to this community, 16 miles north of Lindsay, 19 years ago.

His dismissal followed an attempt to get a salary boost from $1,560 to $2,000 a year.

Reeve J. W. McKay, a veterinary surgeon, said the bylaw which ended Chief Gordon's services did not have unanimous support from the councillors. It was given three readings in one evening.

Chief Seeks Advice

Chief Gordon said today he is seeking legal advice and that the Ontario Police Association has intervened in the matter.

"If a council can treat an officer in this manner and get away with it, no municipal police position is safe in the province of Ontario," he said.

In Toronto, Ontario Provincial Police said it has always been their job to police the town of Fenelon Falls. The fact that the town had hired its own chief had never relieved the provincials of responsibility. They would continue to handle the policing job.

Left to right are Irene Crowe, machine operator in the lock room; Elva Heinonen, punch press operator, and Ruth Richards, assembler in the lock room. A column of the demonstrating unionists is shown below.

Mr. White came up from the ranks of the postal department, and is thoroughly experienced in all its details. He was three years junior to Mr. Lacheur, and has been associated with the present seniors of the Peterborough staff for a long time.

It is understood that the position of postmaster was filled by the Commission by the established practice of application.

Robinson said he had bought the second-hand car Friday. The pole was broken off about two feet above the ground. Constable W. A. Scott investigated.

Admits Guilt To 25 Charges Of Forgery, False Pretences Swindled Firm of $50,000

Aubrey Smith Hancock, 36, was sentenced to three years in the Kingston penitentiary when he pleaded guilty today to 25 charges involving forgery and false pretences in police court before Magistrate W. R. Philp, KC. Detective Sergeant W. A. Clarke said that in all, Hancock cheated the Colonial Finance Co. of about $50,000 less payments he had made to the finance company to keep the fraud from being discovered.

On all the charges Hancock was sentenced to a total of 63 years in penitentiary. Thirteen of the charges were of forgery. On each of these Hancock was sentenced to three years, or a total of 39 years, but all were to run concurrently. The other 12 charges were of fraud involving false pretences and on each of these he was sentenced to two years in the penitentiary or a total of 24 years, but these, too, were to run concurrently.

Evidence was that Hancock worked his swindle by getting car serial numbers from actual cars and licence plate numbers from other cars, then inventing a fictitious car and making out conditional sale agreements between Hancock Motor Sales and fictitious people.

Phoney Sale Agreements

He then turned in the phoney sale agreements to the Colonial Finance Co. and received the money which the company thought it was loaning to the other person mentioned on the contract. The company also expected to get payments from these "borrowers," and to satisfy them, and keep the fraud under cover, Hancock made monthly payments as they came due.

In connection with some of these contracts, he made as many as six or seven payments.

Some Repetition

Hancock's lawyer, E. J. Murphy KC, Toronto, told the court that Hancock skipped Peterborough last October with $12,000 in his pocket. Of this Hancock turned over to the Colonial Finance about $6,000 in cash and value for a house he had bought in Vancouver.

Colonial Finance Co. also received a judgment for $30,000 against Hancock from a British Columbia court shortly after Hancock was arrested March 3. The company, however, is not at all hopeful of ever collecting any of that $30,000 from Hancock.

The finance company also received from Hancock a promissory note for $20,000 signed by Hancock's partner. Police are still seeking Paul Imming, Peterborough, who is suspected of being Hancock's partner in the deals which, say Colonial, cost them over $100,000.

Mr. Murphy said the whole affair started when Hancock got about $5,000 in debt operating as a used car dealer. Once started, said Mr. Murphy, Hancock was just robbing Peter to pay Paul by floating more loans to make payments on the phoney loans already made.

However, Detective Sergeant Clarke said that in a typical case, Hancock would have borrowed $1,500 from the finance company then probably in five monthly payments of $100 each paid back some of the loan, but was still ahead $1,000. on the deal.

Crown Attorney Bradshaw said there were some 40 other charges which could have been laid against Hancock of a similar nature. Some of these involved Hancock's hired help whom he endangered by his deals.

Guilty As Accessory

Jack Douglas, Toronto, pleaded guilty today of being an accessory after the fact in one of Hancock's phoney contracts and was placed on two years' suspended sentence on $500 bond.

Richard O'Brien, also charged with being an accessory in another of Hancock's phoney contracts was remanded to May 17. James King, charged with being in an accessory in one of Imming's "contracts" was remanded for two months.

Marion Lankin, held under the name Marion Hancock as a material witness on $250 cash bail was released. She was living with Hancock as his common-law wife in Peterborough and Vancouver.

Youth 15, Thrown 22 Ft. Off Bike Hits Parked Truck

Thrown 22 feet when his motorcycle hit a parked truck, Terry Heard, 15, suffered a broken right leg, a broken right arm, shock and multiple cuts and scrapes Wednesday afternoon.

The boy, son of Mr. and Mrs. Clare Heard, 146 Park St. N., had a "poor night" at St. Joseph's Hospital where he was taken by Nisbett's ambulance.

The truck which young Heard hit was driven by James R. Record, 892 George St. His truck was stopped across the sidewalk facing toward Charlotte St. in front of the Conger Coal yard just west of Bethune St.

Sitting At Wheel

Record said he was sitting at the wheel of his truck talking to Harold Davis proprietor of the adjoining service station, when he suddenly felt the bump of the motorcycle.

The motorcycle driver was travelling west on Charlotte St. apparently along the curb and hit the right front corner of the truck.

Vincent Courneyea, 506 Bolivar St., was also a witness to the accident.

Constables Allen Edmison and Douglas Stark investigated.

Lindsay Firm Fined $500, Had Cut Wages

LINDSAY, May 4 (CP)—Knitters Limited, Lindsay textile firm yesterday was convicted of violating Ontario Labor Regulations and fined $500 and $29 costs.

The Textile Workers' Union claimed that the company cut hourly wages of employees from five to 11 cents an hour before termination of an agreement. Leave to prosecute was granted Jan. 26 by Labor Minister Daley.

William Dunn, a conciliation officer, said that Plant Manager J. G. Sabourin did not deny that wages were cut, cost-of-living bonuses and incentive plan pay elliminated and workers laid off. The company claimed the layoff was due to a recession in trade.

PCVS Concert Band Praised By Adjudicator At Festival

"The PCVS band is the best school band I have ever heard" Dr. C. S. Lang, examiner to the Royal Schools of Music, England, told a reporter after hearing its performance Wednesday evening at the Kiwanis music festival in Murray St. Baptist church. The band played under the direction of Albert Croasdale.

Awarding 89 points, Dr. Lang told the players any school in the world should be proud to possess such a band. He said he had been director of music at the famous Blue Coat School in London, England, and that the school concert band was considered of the highest calibre. PCVS band was even better.

PCVS band had fine rhythm and many shades of variety in its tone. It was a joy to hear such neat and crisp playing.

Clarinet Soloist Hailed

Another performance which was greatly applauded by Dr. Lang was the clarinet solo by James Roberts of Peterborough. This performance was awarded 90 points, the highest in the festival.

"A very nice tone—excellent, pleasing and a really good legato. He has a wide range of tonal variety and his tone in the chalameau register is of a warm and velvety quality" the adjudicator said.

"The absence of another entry in this open class may have been accounted for because others knew what an exceptionally fine player they were up against," Dr. Lang said.

Roberts was a member of the PCVS band last year, under Mr. Croasdale.

Peterborough Citizens' Band and Port Hope Citizens' Band, playing in different classes, were both awarded 87 points. In the cornet class Alf. Bone, Port Hope, won 85 points and Glen Workman, Port Hope, 80.

There was only one entry in the ladies' trio class. Jean Jackman, Iris Whalon and Margaret Hughes, all of Peterborough, were awarded 86 points. The adjudicator described the group as "a very nice trio" and regretted there was no competition.

Fine Solo Work

Singing the love duet from Madam Butterfly, Jean Dunn and William Perry, Lindsay, won 86 points. The adjudicator said it was a difficult work and it was an accomplishment for this to be

Arena Trustees Pay 2nd $5,000

The trustees of Peterborough Community Arena have paid to the city council $10,000 in the last six months.

Receipt of $5,000 this week was the second cheque in that amount since the Arena was completed and put into community use. The money came from Mr. A. D. Cameron of the Bank of Montreal staff who is the treasurer of the arena board of management.

"Last December we had a balance of $3,400.18 from our first winter, 1948-49," Mr. Cameron said, enlarging the information which the council received. "It was a mild winter and rather lean at the Arena. Then the council decided to install an ice-making plant, and it was ready last fall.

"From the receipts after the opening of the rink for this 1949-50 season, and what we had carried over, our board was able to make that $5,000 payment last December. So, the present one for the same amount is the second in six months."

The board of management assumed a liability to the council of $27,000 toward the cost of the ice-making equipment, and has now reduced that obligation to $17,000. It is altogether likely that they may clip another $5,000 off the debt before the end of the year.

The financial statement of the Arena board has not been received yet from the auditor.

Quebec Man Still Shoes Horses But Hard Way To Make Living

By BERNARD DUFRESNE

QUEBEC, May 4—(CP)—After 46 years in the trade, Quebec city's senior blacksmith says if he was young again he'd try something else for a living.

At 61, grey-haired Theodore Savard can still shoe a horse in jig time but he thinks it's too hard a way to earn a living.

Savard says the horse-shoeing trade, once profitable in Quebec is almost extinct because of the automobile.

When he was a 15-year-old apprentice, Quebec had a population of 75,000 and the city's 30-odd blacksmith shops were jammed with business. Now with the population almost tripled, there are only eight shops going, and shoeing horses is just a sideline for them.

Savard keeps relatively busy with welding and wrought-iron jobs for neighbors in downtown St. Sauveur district where he has operated his shop in Boisseau Street for 40 years.

Shod 65 Horses

To show how good business was in his younger days, Savard recalls that one day he and another smith shod 65 horses.

"I felt beaten the next day," says Savard, "but, what do you think happened? We had 35 horses, and 20 more the third day. My muscles ached for two weeks after that."

But his trade, dying out or not, has left Savard with some good memories. Twenty-five years ago it was sporting to own a pacer and race it against other fast horses over Quebec's winter roads.

One winter Sunday afternoon Savard matched a pacer he owned against a rival's for $100 in a best-of-five series of heats on a one-mile course.

Savard won the first heat, but lost the second when his horse broke a shoe. The blacksmith did a quick shoeing job on his racer between heats and won the next two.

The following Sunday, Savard again ran his pacer against the same horse for $200 and won the money.

FAMOUS FRAT

The oldest American college Greek letter fraternity is Phi Beta Kappa, organized at William and Mary College, Williamsburg, Va., in 1776.

YOU CAN'T SHOE THAT—Theodore Savard, Quebec city's senior blacksmith, says he'd pick another trade if he had to start life over again. After 46 years as a smithy, he finds there's scarcely any horse-shoeing to do. Reason for scarcity of business is obvious, says Savard. "You can't shoe an automobile."

2 Gunmen Rob Truck Driver

TORONTO, May 4 — (CP) — Two gunmen who robbed a laundry-truck driver Wednesday of $1,159 escaped after firing three shots at a man who chased them.

L. Lasowsky, the driver, said the men took a briefcase containing the Towel Supply Co. payroll and his day's collections. Irwin Kates, who operates a drug store near the scene of the holdup in West-Central College and Spadina) Toronto, said the pair approached Lasowski as he was stepping into his truck.

Lasowski shouted "robbers" and Hymie Boot ran out of a repair shop and chased them. The man carrying the briefcase fired three shots at Boot as he rounded a corner. Boot dropped to the ground for protection. No one was injured.

NRC Too Big, Not Efficient

OTTAWA, May 3 (CP)—Canada's huge National Research Council may be getting too big and the time may have come to round it off, Dr. C. J. Mackenzie said today.

The president of NRC told the Senate committee on trade that the council has expanded tremendously during the last 11 years and he and his directors have questioned the advisability of letting it grow "so big that it no longer works so efficiently."

In the last 11 years, said Dr. Mackenzie the federal research centre has grown from a staff of 300 and an annual budget of $80,000 to a staff of 3,000 and an annual budget of $17,000,000.

Dr. Mackenzie said he believed that the eventual powering of submarines with atomic energy was "inevitable," but he doubted the advisability of undertaking such a project at this stage. He noted that the United States had undertaken such a project and he wondered whether it was economical.

All employees of NRC have been screened and there was no doubt about their loyalty, he said.

CRIME DOESN'T PAY

Two South-end boys expected a thrill when they pulled a fire alarm box early Tuesday night at McGill and Barrett Streets. Something happened all right. The firemen arrived, collared the kids, and took them home for a stern lecture by Assistant Fire Chief Virgil Carr and further discipline by their parents. From now on they will give the eye-catching alarm boxes a wide berth. If not, it will probably be a stiffer dose of the hairbrush.

RED ROSE TEA

Winnipeg, Man.
Frankly I've been buying Red Rose Tea only since Tom's Mother came to visit us; it has always been her favourite tea. There is nothing like a cup of good tea—and after tasting Red Rose Tea I know why Mom prefers it. Red Rose Tea is Good Tea! It makes more cups per pound! It is everything the Red Rose Tea people say it is. Tom's Mother visited us six months ago and I've been a Red Rose Tea fan ever since. I see now that the price has not been increased and I'm telling all my friends.

Three Rivers, Que.
I've been buying Red Rose Tea for several years and I wouldn't think of any other tea now. Not only does it have a bright, satisfying flavour, but it actually costs less per cup because there are more cups per pound. A good cup of tea is hard to beat—and Red Rose Tea is Good Tea. To top it all, the price of Red Rose Tea has not been increased. This makes it doubly our favourite tea!

Hamilton, Ont.
I would never have believed that there could be such a difference in tea until I tried Red Rose Tea! Red Rose Tea makes the best cup of tea we've ever had at our house and we have voted it the family favourite. It is good and satisfying. Another thing about Red Rose Tea is that it costs less per cup! Red Rose Tea makes more cups per pound. And now that I see that the increase in price does not apply to Red Rose Tea, I am more convinced than ever that it is the tea for us.

Woodstock, N.B.
Because of our large family, tea is an important item in our budget. When I decided to try Red Rose Tea I was amazed at its full flavour. It was not long before I noticed that I always got more cups per pound with Red Rose Tea. Red Rose Tea has been our favourite tea for years. Now that I'm told that there is no increase in price on Red Rose Tea I am more convinced than ever before that Red Rose Tea is Good Tea!

Calgary, Alta.
About two months ago I though I'd try Red Rose Tea for a change—we have never had it before. Honestly I was surprised at the bright, flavourful cup it made! I have been buying Red Rose Tea ever since, especially when I discovered that it makes more cups per pound! This is an important consideration when your family drinks as much tea as ours does. And now there is an additional saving, the price of Red Rose Tea has not been increased. So it pays to buy good tea and Red Rose Tea is Good Tea.

Regional Groups Study Ways To Provide Jobs

OTTAWA, May 4 (CP)—Regional and local employment committees have been asked to begin a study of ways of alleviating local unemployment resulting each year from climatic conditions or other seasonal factors it was disclosed Wednesday.

The Labor department said the request to the regional and local committees was made by the national employment committee during a two-day meeting here last week.

The national committee, headed by Mr. Justice W. J. Lindal of Winnipeg, was told that a great deal had been done during the recent winter through community co-operation with the National Employment Service. Part-time work was provided for those unemployed due to the weather.

A "do it now" campaign, which encouraged industry and householders to arrange for their inside construction, and repair jobs during the winter months had provided a great many jobs.

Mr. Justice Lindal said it was obvious that industrial foresight and planning could do much to level out employment throughout the year.

Besides Mr. Justice Lindal members of the national committee at the meeting included T. D. Anderson of Ottawa, general secretary of the Canadian Legion; J. B. White of Montreal, director of personnel for the Aluminum Company of Canada; R. A. Stewart of Almonte, Ont., representing the Canadian Federation of Agriculture; George F. Hougham of Toronto, representing Canadian Retail Federation; Mrs. G. N. Finlayson of Ottawa, corresponding secretary for the National Council of Women; A. R. Mosher of Ottawa, president of the Canadian Congress of Labor; Carl Berg of Edmonton, vice-president of the Canadian Trades and Labor Congress; and R. E. G. Davis of Ottawa, representing the Canadian Welfare Council.

Four-Cent Price Rise In Cheese Reported

TORONTO, May 4 (CP)—The price of new Ontario cheese rose about four cents a pound in carload lots today, a dealer reported.

Recent Federal government measures requisitioning cheese supplies for the British cheese contract caused the price boost, he said. Demand is so strong, dealers said that prices have risen to 32½ and 33 cents a pound by the carload.

Falls Claim Victim

NIAGARA FALLS, NY, May 4 —(AP).— An unidentified young woman Wednesday night was swept over the American Falls to certain death after calmly wading into the Niagara River near the Goat Island Bridge, witnesses said. The victim was still clutching a blue handbag as she went over the brink. A horrified witness was Mrs. Jean Baughman of Tampa, Fla., who said she had been sitting beside the young woman on a park bench.

Land Sick Eskimo

HALIFAX, May 4 (CP)—An RCAF Lancaster landed at nearby Dartmouth airport today, bringing to hospital a two-year-old Eskimo child from Frobisher Bay. The child, believed to be suffering from meningitis, was placed in the navy hospital here.

Teacher Named Director Y's Men's Camp

Earl Druery, teacher at King George Public School, has been appointed camp director of the Y's Men's Club's Boys' Camp on Clear Lake. Last year Mr. Druery was the camp's program director and during the winter was craft instructor at the YMCA. He succeeds Donald Duncan, Boys' Work Secretary, who has been camp director for the past two years.

Cookson Munro, manual training teacher at Central School, will be this year's consultant director. Other positions have yet to be filled. Most of the 1949 counsellors are expected back this year.

Local Boys Preferred

Jack Stuart, Y's Men's Club's camp committee chairman, said the trend this year will be to have the majority of boys at camp from Peterborough and district. They will be given preference over out-of-town boys.

Applications for camp enrolment have already been received by the YMCA. This year's camp will be from July 1 to August 12. The boys may register for any number of weeks at the same rates as last year.

Besides the four cabins built for the camp last season an additional cabin will be set up this year. Each cabin accommodates eight boys and a counsellor. A new three-compartment sink has been placed in the kitchen.

Mr. Duncan said that the land program will consist of volleyball, basketball, archery, softball, and soccer while the water program will be swimming, canoeing, water safety and water hikes.

U.S. Art Club Unhappy Can't Hang Its Nude

WYANDOTTE, Mich., May 4— (CP)—There are some unhappy artists in Wyandotte's Acanthus Art Club.

The club won't be permitted to hang any paintings of nudes in its coming exhibit in the Presbyterian church house here.

Mrs. Maude Eberts, 67, is one of the disappointed artists. All her work has been done in the life class and she says "there were some lively nudes."

"I'm not quarreling with a minister not wanting nudes in a church," she said. "But I think we should go to a place where an artist is untrammeled in displaying her work. I don't like to be stymied or frustrated."

Request Swiss People Stock Up On Supplies

BERN, Switzerland, May 4 — (AP)—The Swiss government called Wednesday on housewives and industrialists to stock up on supplies. The same appeal was made 11 years ago, just four months before the outbreak of the Second World War.

Economic experts estimated that food and industrial raw materials for an extra six months were on hand in Switzerland as a result of the first appeal when the Germans invaded Poland.

Building up of a backlog is again the aim.

Gets Further Remand

TORONTO, May 4 (CP) — George Hamilton Babcock, Ayr, Ont., mining operator, Wednesday was further remanded to May 4 on $15,000 bail on charges of unlicensed sale of shares in two exploration and development corporations. The remand followed a three-hour questioning of the testimony of A. B. Swain of the Ontario Securities Commission by defence counsel Mitchell Dent of Ottawa.

Girl Dies Of Cancer

McKEESPORT, Pa., May 4 (AP)—Little Sandra Lee Minyon, four-year-old cancer victim, Wednesday ran out of borrowed time. She died in hospital 14 months after she was given six months to live. Death came to the child as a result of cancer, complicated by pneumonia.

TOO SMALL?—When George Hartley of Toronto was told he was too small to work for the C.N.R. as a freight handler 30 years ago, he just wouldn't take no for an answer. His insistence that he could handle as much as any man won him the job. Tuesday the 4-foot 8-inch Hartley met 6-foot 3½-inch Donald Gordon, CNR president. They are shown above as Mr. Hartley tells how he got his job in 1919.

Say People Of World Must Co-operate

GENEVA, May 4 (Reuters) — The peoples of the world must co-operate or perish, Dr. Brock Chisholm of Ottawa, director-general of the world health organization, declared in his annual report published Wednesday.

Failure to achieve the close human relationships imposed by the social structure of the modern world may mean nothing less than the extinction of whole nations—perhaps even of the human race itself—said the report, due to be submitted to the third World Health Assembly which opens here next Monday.

Indian R. Couple Anniversary Fete

INDIAN RIVER, May 4.—(ENS).—A party was held Friday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Colby to celebrate the 25th anniversary of their wedding.

The couple received many gifts of silverware, including two pieces from neighbors.

On April 30, 1925, Mr. and Mrs. Colby were married in the Norwood Baptist church by the Rev. J. P. McLennan, pastor of the church at that ttime.

Mrs. Colby is the daughter of Mrs. Mary Ferguson and the late John Ferguson, of Norwood, and Mr. Colby is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Orbin Colby, also of Norwood.

The dining room was decorated with pink and white streamers and white bells, pink candles, pink and red roses, and a wedding cake centered the table, where about twenty-five guests sat down to dinner, served by Miss Isobel McMillan of Norwood, Mrs. Trevor Colby of Peterborough, and Miss Yvonne Colby, Indian River.

More guests arrived later in the evening, when there was dancing to music by O. Ferguson, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Taylor and Emmett Courneya.

Lunch was served at midnight.

Dom. Woollens Report Subnormal Profit

Operations of Dominion Woollens and Worsteds Limited in 1949 were affected by fluctuations in wool prices and devaluation. This the directors of the firm, whose three mills are at Peterborough, Hespeler and Orillia, told the shareholders, meeting in Toronto today to hear the 21st annual report.

Income account for the year shows $169,268, or $1.15 a share, transferred to earned surplus. This balance of $169,268 is after transferring $540,000 from the $1,110,000 tax paid inventory reserve to offset trading and inventory losses arising from devaluation, and crediting recovery of $155,879 in respect of 1948 income taxes. Sales of $8,393,375 for 1949 compare with $9,710,350 in 1948 when net earnings of $312,822 equalled $2.12 a share.

Current volume of business is reasonably satisfactory, reported John W. Hobbs, Chairman. "The margin of profit is subnormal and every possible economy is being effected that does not prejudice the Company's capacity to produce in volume." Regarding the withdraw from intentory reserve, Mr. Hobbs pointed out that a substantial amount still remains which should be adequate to cover future conditions, as a repetition of the combination of the very abnormal conditions experienced in 1949 is unlikely.

Reduced Prices, New Markets

"The course of business in 1949 was dominated by wool prices," the chairman voted. With customers reducing inventories of the usual conservative merchandise and confining new purchases to style merchandise in smaller volume, new lines had to be styled and markets found. This added considerably to the cost of operation. "Substantial price reductions had to be made in keeping with fluctuations in the raw wool market and to meet competition of imported cloths' the landed cost of which was substantially reduced by devaluation."

Balance sheet at December 31, 1949, presented to the shareholders showed working capital of $1,738,240, comparing with $2,371,506 a year ago. Capital expenditures totalled $180,000 and net fixed assets are carried at $2,243,529. Funded debt was reduced by $72,900 to $1,501,200. Earned surplus, after adjustments and dividend payments of $147,168 or $1 a share, stood at $1,043,647.

Winter Euchre Ends

NORWOOD, May 4 (ENS) — The winter series of progressive euchre for the neighbours of Belmont Road ended Saturday evening when lunch was served at every home. Those attending were: Mr. and Mrs. Frank Bedore, Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Oitment, Sr., Mr. and Mrs. Clif Davey, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Goloher, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Goden, Mr. and Mrs. Bud Bedore and Mrs. Earl Spencer.

THIS WRECKED LANDING GEAR, which was picked up in the Baltic, belonged to a Privateer aircraft of the United States Navy, according to a US Embassy spokesman in London. The plane disappeared last month and claims have been made that it was shot down by the Russians. Photo shows a crew member of a Swedish trawler which found the nose wheel. Arrow indicates the perforation in the wheel disc, which resembles a bullet hole. The wreckage was sent to Copenhagen for examination by US officials.

Canadian Women Respond Generously to Red Cross

TORONTO, May 4 —Once the need is pointed out, women of Canada respond whole-heartedly in helping others, Miss Orian Warwick, chairman of the National Women's Work committee, Canadian Red Cross Society, told the annual meeting of the Society's Central Council here today.

"Their response extends for beyond the immediate needs of their communities, their own country or even this continent," she said. "It is evident in every phase of the Society's operation, wherever volunteers are needed to make possible the services of the Red Cross."

At the same time, Miss Warwick urged delegates to encourage more women workers in every province. "We have only to look around us to see the work which could and should be accomplished for suffering peoples everywhere. In the Women's Work division of the Society, I doubt if we could ever have too many volunteers to accomplish the work which could be done in this field," she said.

In reporting on the past year's activities, Miss Warwick said that the Women's Work Committee, which diregts women who sew for Red Cross, had as its biggest committment for Canada last year, the making of supplies for the Blood Transfusion Service. In addition to the 3,300 linen pieces given each blood depot when it opens, dressings are provided at the rate of nearly 7,000 a week to each depot.

Aid Output Hospitals

Outpost hospitals use many articles made in Red Cross workrooms and supplies not available through the usual sources are made on request for DVA and military hospitals.

"Figures cannot begin to show the work involved or the hours put in", she said, "but it is worth noting that 332,016 articles went from Canadian workrooms for civilan relief overseas." In Canada, the women made 60,367 articles, including clothing and hospital supplies and 952,197 surgical dressings.

Miss Warwick's faith in women volunteers was borne out by Mrs. Frank O. Evans who presented the Canadian Red Cross Committee report. "Seventeen detachments in eight provincial divisions with a membership of 1,000 fully qualified active members have completed more than 130,000 hours of voluntary service and from four divisions alone the mileage totalled well over 200,000 miles," she said.

Visiting shut-ins and providing transportation and entertainment for them has become a project dear to the heart of the Corps according to Mrs. Evans. In Ontario the girls have gone one step further and become interested in the visiting of country homes.

Wide Variety

Division work varies to some extent, the report indicates, but among other activities are long shifts, assisting in Well Baby clinics, doing library duty and services for the blind.

Volunteer effort was reported again in the national nursing committee report given by E. K. Russell. A summary shows 4,600 people took the classes last year and 250 instructors gave voluntary service in the teaching.

Loan cupboards are a rapidly expanding Red Cross activity, Miss Russell reported. Last year 115 were started in addition to 14 now operating in Newfoundland and the total is now 466. About 15,000 people use the cupboard during the year.

School Success

"The Metropolitan School of Nursing at Windsor is housed in its new building and is progressing more favorably than even its most optimistic supporters have considered possible at the outset," she said.

Other hospital activities were noted in the report of the National Commissioner, Dr. W. S. Stanbury, who said that 12 outpost units of the smaller type were opened last year bringing the total of outpost hospitals and nursing stations operated by Red Cross to 84. There were 82,054 individuals served by them, of which only 17,138 were in-patients. The rest were either out-patients or those who attended clinics and were visited in the home or examined in the schools.

Cruikshanks—Gibbs

A double-ring wedding ceremony of interest took place in Minden United Church when the Rev. Kenneth Jull officiated at the marriage of Reta Eileen Gibbs, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jos. Gibbs, of Peterborough formerly of Maple Lake and La Verne, to Harold Cruickshanks, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ray Cruickshanks, Eagle Lake. Miss Isabelle Gibbs was at the organ. The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of brocaded satin and fingertip veil of tulle with border of lace caught to headdress studded with rhinestones, and she carried a bouquet of red roses. She was attended by her sister Miss Alice Gibbs who wore pale blue lace and net over blue satin with matching headdress and carried a pink roses. Royce Cruickshanks, brother of the groom was best man. A reception followed at Ellencliffe Lodge where 66 guests had dinner. The bride and groom will make their home in Goose Bay, Labrador where the groom is stationed with the R. C. A. F.

Barrister Outlines History Behind Nursing Profession

"A new wing to the hospital and a new wing to the nursing profession," the latter part of this remark by Mr. Norman Crook, Peterborough barrister, referring to 17 young women who were graduated from St. Joseph's Hospital on Wednesday afternoon. On behalf of all citizens he extended congratulations on the achievment.

Mr. Crook's address was an outline of the history of nursing —"An art as old as mankind itself, but, new as a profession," he remarked.

Pre-Christian laws provided that an injured person be cared for at the expense of the person causing the injury and while in hospital they were protected by law from undesirable visits, he said.

200 in First Hospital

With the coming of Christianity, converted matrons threw open their homes to care for the sick, with the help of laywomen. It was not until the tenth century that the first hospital was founded in Jerusalem and by the 12th century this institution was accommodating 2,000 patients.

The Association of which St. John Ambulance Brigade is an outgrowth was organized in the 13th century Mr. Crook stated During the 1600's the Sisters of Charity and a Protestant contemporary were founded and it was from these two groups that Florence Nightingale, born in 1820 of rich parents, learned nursing. Victoria Order of Nurses began their work in 1897 and it was in 1907 that the Canadian Association of Trained Nurses organized.

In conclusion Mr. Crook said "The past belongs to those who made it—the future to the new nurses before us today."

Stress Good Example

Bishop Gerald Berry also addressed the graduates, commenting "Theory is one thing and practice is another. You might have gained the knowledge you now have from books but you could not have attained the proficiency without doing the work yourself, steered by a hand that knew how."

"Duty becomes more valuable when you see it followed by those who receive neither payment, praise or public recognition" said the Bishop and urged the graduates to show in their lives something of the great example of the Sisters.

The Hon. Leslie Frost, prime minister of Ontario, said to the nurses "Nothing is finer than the kindness of the Christian point of view with which the Sisters, and your teachers, care for the sick. You are following a profession of service above all else and you must keep these traits, with which you have been associated, polished and bright as part of your equipment."

Mayor M. J. Swanston, extending congratulations from the city, also spoke of the evidence of fine training in St. Joseph's School of Nursing. He further stated "I appreciate the efforts of the Sisters in keeping pace with the growth of this community."

Chairman for the program was Mr. P. D. Scollard, member of the Advisory Board to the School of Nursing.

Graduates are: Sister Mary Agnes, Misses Teresa Garvey, Clotilde Heffernan, Ann Hajnik, all of Peterborough; Jean Andrews, Gravenhurst; Marguerite Connolly, Shirley Hutton, Madeleine Keenan, Marie O'Connor, Lindsay; Geraldine Crough, Omemee; Frances Doherty, Kinmount; Irene Howard, Englehart; Theresa Mahoney, Campbellford; Rosemary Meraw, Tweed; Helen McDonald, Kirkfield; Wilhelmine Richman, Coboconk; Eleanor Sharp, Fonthill.

Auxiliary Serves Afternoon Tea Graduates' Friends

Mrs. J. J. Crowley, convener of nurses-in-training for the Ladies' Auxiliary of St. Joseph's Hospital, arranged a lovely tea in connection with the reception of graduation guests at the nurses' residence Wednesday afternoon. The president, Mrs. J. V. Gallivan, was receiving and making all welcome.

In the tastefully appointed tea room a handsome walnut table with hand-made lace cover was used for serving. A bouquet in the centre carried out the hospital colors in blue-tinted carnations and pussywillows, white snapdragon and lilies, and it was surrounded with filmy white tulle and white tapers in silver holders.

Tea pourers were Mrs. M. J. Roche, Mrs. H. W. Young, Mrs. W. S. Fitzpatrick and Mrs. W. G. Ovens.

Committee assistants to Mrs. Crowley, Mrs. Vincent Sullivan, Mrs. M. E. Finn, Mrs. P. J. Anglesey, Mrs. Grace Poole, assisted to serve as well as Mrs. W. J. A. Fair, Mrs. J. R. Epping, Mrs. J. F. O'Brien, Mrs. A. C. Wolff, Misses Betty Meacher, Margery McNulty, Barbara Hickey, Jean Rutherford, Helen Strano, Louise Letellier, Louise Flynn, Madeline Flynne, Mrs. R. McCabe, Mrs. J. Cairns, Mrs. J. McGrath, Mrs. F. J. Hickey and Mrs. A. E. Cauley replenished the plates.

Ushering to the tea room were Mrs. F. P. McNulty and Miss L. Hurley.

Record Crowd At Fashion Showing By Church Year

St. Luke's Church Year meeting Wednesday evening, presented in the form of a fashion show, brought out a record crowd of more than 200 and taxed capacity of the parish hall.

The stage, decorated in pastel colors and with spring flowers and ferns, was setting for a parade of sport and sun clothes, casual and afternoon dresses, the ensembles completed with hats and handbags all loaned by local stores. But a variety in this showing was interspersing appearances of "burlesking" males, in costumes that were not of the conservative and feminine 1950 type.

With her background of experience in London and Paris fashion houses, Mrs. W. J. Gilling commented most capably on the new clothes. She stressed the shorter sleeves of almost all dresses, slightly shorter skirts, all-round pleated skirts with creases that stay in, smart suits for wear anywhere, and handbags to match the hats. A feature dress was of seersucker-type beige nylon that can atually be washed, dried in a matter of some minutes, and worn again.

The models were Mrs. A. Dalton, Mrs. H. Morrison, Miss O. McCauley, Miss A. Mason, Miss D. Carpenter, Mrs. B. Morin, Mrs. J. Rogers and Mrs. A. Duggan.

Girls' Auxiliary members Eleanor Watson, Eleanor Biddle and Marilyn Vint made a big hit as "old time gals" in tight-waisted, voluminous costumes of early 1900's.

The clowners on the program were Messrs. Jack Davies, Claud Hewitt, Bill King, John Watson and John Biddle.

Mr. Morley Coons played soft piano music during the fashion showing.

Other entertainment was provided by Miss Pamela Humphrey, soloist, and the Misses Pamela and Patricia Humphrey and Adele Duggan as a costumed trio, singing with actions "Dearie" and "Cruising Down the River."

After the program there was a pleasant social time and refreshments were served by Mrs. F. Mason and the assistants chosen for May.

Organists Meet Association Head

Mr. and Mrs. Fred G. Mann, 199 London St., entertained on Wednesday night the men organists of the city. The organists met John J. Weatherseed, Toronto and Dr. S. S. Lang, London, England, at present adjudicating at the Kiwanis Music Festival. Mr. Weatherseed who is president of the Association of Canadian Organists outlined the work done by the association and suggested the establishing of a branch in Peterborough. Mrs. C. V. Elliott assisted Mrs. Mann in the serving of refreshments.

Medical Staff Confers $500 Scholarship

Conferring of awards on graduates and students of St. Joseph's School of Nursing was an important part of the commencement exercises held Wednesday afternoon in the nurses' residence auditorium.

Sister Mary Agnes was congratulated on having won the $500, Medical staff scholarship and the honor of presenting it came to Dr. W. S. Fitzpatrick. It was mentioned that Misses Geraldine Crough and Teresa Garvey had been considered for this award.

Dr. R. J. Young's medal for bedside nursing was presented by him to the winner, Miss Geraldine Crough.

Through the generosity of Mr. and Mrs. L. S. Ryan of Ottawa, a medal and prizes amounting to $200 were offered the students. In their absence at the ceremony, Dr. C. F. Cahill made the following presentations to graduates: medal for surgical nursing, Miss Jean Andrews; $25 for highest standing in theory, Miss Teresa Garvey; $25 for proficiency in medical nursing, Miss Madeline Keenan; $25 for proficiency in obstetrical nursing, Miss Irene Howard.

For general proficiency in the first year $50 is offered by the Ryans and it was won by Miss B. Schiarrizza. They further offer a $50 first prize for bedside nursing, won by Miss Mary Costello, and a second prize of $25 won by Miss Margaret Tunney. These were presented by Dr. Donald Whyte.

Benefaciendo medals, given to three students in each year who stand well in examinations and show interest and kindness to their patients, were presented, as on all former occassions of this kind, by the donor, Monsignor F. J. O'Sullivan. If a student is winner of a medal each year, it becomes her property on graduation and is engraved with her name.

Graduates receiving medals were Misses Teresa Garvey, Geraldine Crough and Helen McDonald; second year students, Misses Mary Weir, Rita Leveque, Patricia LaForce; first year students, Misses Marguerite Lamey, Bertille Fanning, Patricia Jackson.

Most Rev. Gerald Berry, Bishop of Peterborough, made the presentation of diplomas and medals to the graduates.

Junior Miss Diane Wawrykow assisted the persons making the presentations.

DOROTHY DIX

Mother Can Instill Mistrust Of Men In Her Daughter

DEAR MISS DIX: My mother has dinned into my ears ever since I was a child that "men are no good and not to be trusted" and "to get what you can out of men," and that "no marriage is happy," so that now when I am faced with the marriage proposition I am frightened and bewildered and do not know what to do. How are girls to know what is right when their mothers, to whom they turn for guidance, instill selfish, cynical thoughts into their minds? Why can't mothers realize what they are doing?

A GIRL

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: I don't know. But it is certainly one of the most terrible and pathetic things in the world that most of the unhappy marriages are the direct result of the teachings of mothers and the ideals they set in their children's minds.

Cruel To Daughter

No doubt these mothers whose own marriages have not brought them the happiness they desire think that they are protecting their daughters by disillusioning them before marriage, but in reality they could do no crueler thing.

For their teachings are not true. All marriages do not end disastrously. Not even the greater number of them. Not all husbands are philanderers. And money isn't the most important thing in marriage. What a pity that instead of unfitting girls for marriage mothers should not fit their daughters for marriage by impressing upon them from the cradle that love is the thing that sanctifies marriage, and that they must never marry until they find men of sterling character in whom they can have an implicit faith?

Every married woman has learned by experience the secret of how to manage a husband. Why should a mother not reveal this dearly bought wisdom to her daughter? Why should not every mother see to it that her daughter is a first-class cook and manager before marriage? Why should not every mother teach her daughter to be a good sport, to pull her weight in the boat without whining and to take the ups and downs of matrimony with philosophy and good nature? Above all, why shouldn't mothers teach their daughters loyalty to their husbands and that they must stand by a man in hard times and buck him up, instead of running back to mother and leaving him to fight it out alone?

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR DOROTHY DIX: My problem is what to do with a stingy husband. I am married to a man who is rich for the community in which we live, but I do all my own housework and pinch every penny. My husband refuses to make me an allowance and buys for me himself only the plainest necessities in the way of clothes. In all the years that I have been married I have never had a dollar that I could do with as I pleased. I have never had a pretty dress or hat or any of the little luxuries that women crave.

I do not try to have any women friends or to go anywhere because I am so humiliated by not having the proper clothes and not being able to pay my part of the expenses. What can you do with that kind of a man?

MRS. S.

ANSWER: Not much, I am afraid, because a man who loves money better than he does his wife always sacrifices her to his cupidity.

Any woman who does the cooking and cleaning and baby tending and sick-nursing and the million other odd jobs that are required to run a home comfortably earns the wages of at least three or four servants in addition to her board.

If her husband refuses to recognize the value of her services and to give her a penny of her own to do with as she pleases, she is foolish not to walk out and refuse to do another lick of work until she can get a satisfactory adjustment of the money question. It wouldn't take long to bring a man to terms if he had to wrestle with the problem of cooking dinner for a lot of howling, hungry children when he got home from his work.

But the only sure way to deal with a tight-fisted husband is to avoid getting him, and I urge every girl who is thinking about marriage to have a definite financial agreement before she marries as to what percentage of the family income is to be hers.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: My wife died when I was 23 years old, leaving me with two small children. She exacted a promise from me that I would never marry again. I have kept this promise. Now both girls are married and have left me. Do you think I should keep this promise to my wife?

LONELY

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: No one has a right to try to reach back a hand from the grave and control a living person, and a deathbed promise not to marry is better broken than kept. Certainly it cannot make a saint in heaven happier to know that the one left behind is living a lonely, starved life because of a promise exacted by earthly jealousy. If you marry a woman of suitable age and who has the same interests and background that you have and whom you know to be of a kindly disposition, there is no reason why you should not be happy.

What's Right

A friend says: "Come by and see us this evening."

WRONG: Say: "We may do that, if everything works out all right."

RIGHT: Give a definite answer, so that your friend won't be forced to sit around all evening wondering whether you are coming or not.

$12,260 Damages Awarded Local Butcher After Crash

TORONTO, May 4—(CP)—An Assize court jury Wednesday night awarded David Sterling, Sr., a Peterborough butcher, $12,260 for loss of sense of smell and other injuries suffered in an automobile collision near Newtonville, Ont., Oct. 23. Mr. Sterling had at that time only recently been transferred from Toronto, to become manager of the meat department of the Dominion Store, George Street.

After deliberating five hours the jury awarded Sterling's son, David, Jr., who works at the meat counter of the same store, $286 for minor injuries. Defendants in the action were Stanley L. Davis and John Walker, both of Toronto, and Cecil White of Port Hope.

The jury found Davis 68 per cent responsible in the three-car collision, and White 32 per cent Walker was owner of one of the cars.

Sterling said he could smell "absolutely nothing" since the accident. His sense of taste was "pretty well lost" and his left eye injured. He had to wear glasses for the first time in his life.

He was riding with his wife in the back seat of his car, driven by his son, toward Peterborough where he had been transferred by his firm.

At the crest of Roseberry Hill there was a collision with a car driven by Davis. The White car also became involved in the crash.

Will Power Cure For Alcoholics

DETROIT, May 4.—(AP).—Will power is still the only cure for alcoholism. Antabuse, the newest drug, is useful, but no home remedy.

This was reported to the American Psychiatric Association today by 12 Canadian and American doctors. They said Antabuse by itself is safe. But take a drink with Antabuse in your system, and your face turns red, breath shortens, heart pounds and terrible worry sweeps over you.

The obstacle to the wife's putting Antabuse secretly in the coffee, the doctors said, is that there are some men whom it might kill if they took even a bottle of beer afterward.

People with bad hearts, high blood pressure, certain blood circulation troubles and bad livers are not allowed to take it.

Red German Paper Misquoted J. Stalin

BERLIN, May 4—(AP)—The East-German Communist party newspaper, Neues Deutschland, today publicly confesses to an "unforgivable mistake"—misquoting Prime Minister Stalin.

And what a misquote it was.

Wednesday, the paper printed Stalin's "12 pre-conditions for the development of a (Communist) party of the new type.

One of these points, as it came out in print, stated:

"It is necessary for the party to understand that its leaders must be selected from the best elements of progressive fighters so that it will have genuine representatives of the struggle of the reactionary proletariat."

Today red-faced Neues Deutschland carries a correction:

"Naturally," it said, "we meant revolutionary and not reactionary proletariat."

It adds: "The editorial board will take the necessary measures."

Camera On Jet Takes Picture At 500 MPH

PHILADELPHIA, May 4 (AP)—A United States air force officer says a new camera in a jet airplane flying at 500 miles an hour at 50 feet took a picture of a man playing cards on the ground so clear "you could read the ace of spades."

Col. George W. Goddard, director of photography and research development at the air force centre, Wright Field, O., told the Philadelphia Chapter of the armed forces communication association Tuesday night the new camera was capable of taking clear pictures from a low-flying plane travelling 3,000 miles an hour—if such a speed were attainable.

He said the camera uses moving film, doing away with the conventional type of shutter.

N.Z. Doll Mascot For Swim Club

A Koala bear doll will be presented by two members of Canada's swimming and diving team in the British Empire Games at the opening of the Lions Club Pool in June to the Peterborough Ornamental Swimming Club. The doll, to be the mascot of the local club, was bought in New Zealand by Miss Evelyn Buchanan and Miss Pepper Ware during their recent trip there.

Miss Buchanan, besides being a member of the B.E.G. team, is a Canadian diving champion and honorary member of the Ornamental Club. Miss Ware will be remembered for her comedy performance at the last Peterborough club's show.

Arrangements were completed Wednesday with Miss Buchanan to be guest artist with the Peterborough club during its performance at the opening of the $50,000 pool.

Coach Mrs. Pansy Forbes, as a representative of the Ornamental Club, attended the annual aquatic show presented by Toronto Central YWCA Wednesday night. Mrs. Olive Bettle-Ross, swimming instructor, conducted the swimming performance.

Base Metals Drop; Rest Of Market Up

TORONTO, May 4—(CP)—Base metals dipped slowly on the Toronto stock exchange today under profit-taking pressure. The remainder of the market tended higher.

Steep Rock Iron Mines, United Keno Hill and East Sullivan showed losses ranging up to 20 cents. Noranda Mines gained ½ at 70⅜.

Industrials continued upwards for a fourth successive session. Fractional gains in a handful of paper stocks pulled the list to new peak price levels.

Leading junior gold producers chalked up gains ranging to 10 cents. Newlund Mines bounded ahead 13 cents at $1.33, and Akattcho Yellowknife rose 17 cents at $1.52.

Western oils firmed quietly from opening easiness.

The Rev. W. H. Tonge administered communion, assisted by members of his church and visiting clergy. The Rev. Dr. D. B. Gordon, president of Peterborough Presbytery, brought greetings.

Various discussion groups were conducted by the convenors, namely: presidents led by Mrs. E. Wand; life members by Mrs. H. Lowes; treasurers by Mrs. F. Horton; parsonage by Mrs. A. Her theme was "Advance," and she gave enlightening and interesting insight into the workings of other Presbyteries. She threw a challenge to look for the bright side during these trying times and to make this year, the 25th anniversary of church union, memorable and significant.

Resolutions committee brought in a slate of resolutions, these dealing chiefly with curtailing Sunday sports, prohibiting further licenses for beverage rooms and cocktail bars, and increasing membership.

Invitation was received from Trinity United Church, Peterborough, to hold 1951 convention there, and from Grace United Church for the semi-annual meeting.

Trinity BB Mothers Auxiliary Brings the Circus to Town

For out of the ordinary tea room decoration, look to the Mothers' Auxiliary of Trinity Church Baby Band. This organization of 129 young women takes advantage of every festival of the year to make a gala setting for regular meetings, so, for public events they are unexcelled.

Their Maytime Tea of 1950 on Wednesday afternoon, might have been dubbed a "five ring circus," and the crowd of nearly 600, including a good many small children, bore out the attribution.

Red and white awning stripe trimmed booths, labelled "Country Fair," "Sewing Basket," "Bake Shop" and "Candy" and the tea room was a galaxy of bright colors, animals, circus scenes and clusters of balloons. Quartette tables for guests were topped with gay luncheon cloths and featured a stuffed animal or gay toy for intrigue. Mrs. O. Jamieson, at the piano, played gay and popular numbers in keeping, throughout the afternoon.

The central tea table was highlighted with red candles around a red and white bouquet and the tea cloth was oyster linen with beautiful cutwork design.

Mothers of young misses and misters found a gold mine at the sewing booth in a wonderful supply and variety of dresses, sun togs and suits. All were expertly made of good material by the Auxiliary members, working throughout the year in groups of ten or so. By the time these guests reached the bake-shop, supplies were getting low. However, they had a good chance to get home-made candy from two young ladies, Marilyn Clarke and Linda McIntyre, circulating in the tea room, but easy to find in the circus-like candy striped dresses and trays.

Stuffed toys, and handy home-made novelties were selling well at the country fair booth, which was operated by mothers of children over six years who have graduated from Baby Band. Mrs. Stanley Johnston was convener, assisted by Mrs. J. G. Allan, Mrs. R. Welch, Mrs. D. White and Mrs. M. Heard.

Honorary president Mrs. D. B. Gordon assisted president Mrs. Eric Edmondson to receive and Mrs. Ewart Malcolm was taking tickets.

Past presidents of the Auxiliary pouring tea were Mrs. Norman Elliott, Mrs. Vernon Skitch, Mrs. W. R. Philp and Mrs. W. Corner.

The tea room was convened by Mrs. Jack Skitch, assisted by Mrs. A. Thompson and Mrs. Donald R. Clark, and the servers were: Mrs. G. Harrison, Mrs. R. L. Crerar, Mrs. I. C. Morrison, Mrs. F. Stenson, Mrs. W. Maynard, Mrs. J. Wishart, Mrs. G. R. Wallace, Mrs. R. A. Kelly, Mrs. B. G. Till, Mrs. W. C. Cuppy, Mrs. T. Stanley, Mrs. C. Northey, Mrs. John T. Stewart, Mrs. Donald Lillico, Mrs. J. S. Munro, Mrs. J. E. Gregg, Mrs. C. K. Hurst, Mrs. F. Cole, Mrs. H. R. Weidner, Mrs. R. Wright, Mrs. R. McElroy.

Refreshments were in charge of Mrs. K. F. Barltrop, assisted by Mrs. R. Ralston, Mrs. M. Elliott, Mrs. E. McWilliams, Mrs. J. C. Pierce, Mrs. J. Johnston, Mrs. R. Kearns, Mrs. E. Richey, Mrs. G. T. Cheatle.

Sewing convener, Mrs. K. McVeety was assisted by Mrs. G. N. Porter, Mrs. R. Springham, Mrs. K. Harrison, Mrs. J. Hamer, Mrs. A. Parker.

Card convener was Mrs. Errol Wilson.

Candy booth conveners, Mrs. J. A. LaBrash, and Mrs. Robert Gibbons, were assisted by Mrs. G. Vallery, Mrs. C. W. Kerneghen, Mrs. D. Lawless.

Mrs. R. D. Huffman convened the bake shop and had as saleslades: Mrs. W. G. Thompson, Mrs. W. B. Gordon, Mrs. J. Marshall, Mrs. G. White, Mrs. E. Horton, Mrs. J. H. Moebus, Mrs. E. Wellman, Mrs. D. Montgomery, Mrs. R. Seabrooke.

General conveners Mrs. William Taylor and Mrs. John Davern are responsible for the grand success of this year's tea. Some of the proceeds will be used for the layette material they make up to supply the Children's Shelter and hospitals in England, but a large sum, which is expected to be about $250 will go toward a new Sunday school hall, in which they hope to hold bigger and better teas, if possible. The circus motif for decorating was the work of Mrs. Morton Knox.

Reeve Cuts Ribbon To Open Lions-Renovated Town Hall

MILLBROOK, May 4 (ENS)—Millbrook town hall auditorium was officially opened Monday evening after its recent renovation. Reeve Dr. J. W. Wright cut the ribbon to admit the public to its first glimpse of the transformation. The old balcony, entry hall and kitchen have been torn out leaving a large bright hall. The ceiling has been done with aluminum paint, the walls turquoise blue and the woodwork a deeper shade of the same color.

The stage has been completely remodelled, and a shining new hardwood floor replaces the dark old softwood one. New movable cupboards, the right height to be used as a sandwich bar, have been made for holding dishes. A large basket of flowers had been placed on the stage. Before the public was admitted pictures were taken of the hall, and later, officials of the Lions Club on the platform were also photographed.

1,127 Man-Hours

After the singing of the National Anthem, G. A. Spicer, Lions Club president, gave an address of welcome. He stated that the $500 contributed by the Lions Club covered the cost of material only, that in addition it was estimated 1,127 man-hours of labor had been donated.

The Lions Club wished to thank the whole community, the people of Millbrook, Cavan, South Monaghan and Bailieboro for the way they had turned in and helped with this project. He mentioned Laurence Winslow, manager of the work committee, who had worked day and night; Tom Campbell, who had guided the carpentery, the laying of the floor and the making of the cupboards and had given advice about materials; and Percy Hamilton who had been in charge of the paint job. Mr. Spicer stated that the price of renting the hall would not be increased.

Reeve Dr. J. W. Wright expressed thanks to the Lions Club and called attention to the fact that the work of renovating the town hall had been done at no cost to the municipalities of Millbrook or Cavan. He stated that the Lions were not to have any preference, and that the had accomplished a tremendous task.

He had not been able to find the exact year the town hall had been built, but that it was in the 1870's. The village was incorporated in 1881 and the hall had been built some years before that.

Delbert Olan, deputy reeve of Cavan, expressed the thanks of the township.

Laurence Winslow thanked all who helped. He mentioned the crew that worked all night sanding the floor, and Charlie Sanderson and Lavern Gibson for the spray paint job in the ceiling.

J. O. Medd played piano selections before Challice's orchestra, composed of Cliff Challice, Mrs. Walter Fallis, Bob Clarke and Bob Carr, took over for dancing.

The Arena Boosters Girls' Club, under the direction of Mrs. Guy MacKaye, sold home-made candy. The Lady Lions served refreshments under the direction of Mrs. J. W. Wright, their president.

The sinking is believed caused by erosion from an underground stream. Advised to vacate their home, Mr. and Mrs. Guglyk say they have no place to go.

Will Not Be Changing Beverage Room Rules

TORONTO, May 4 (CP) —The Ontario Liquor Control Board has no intention of changing present regulations which require beverage rooms to close between the hours of 6 p.m. and 8 p.m.

Liquor Commissioner Arthur Welsh said today that the Commission had found that the early evening closing "had worked out satisfactorily."

"We have no intention of changing the regulation," he said in reply to a resolution passed by the Ontario Provincial Council of Bartenders and Hotel Service Employees.

The hotel service organization had urged that the closing be dispensed with in order to facilitate a straight eight hour day rather than the present "split shift" now worked by waiters in beverage rooms.

Trend To Right Seen In Voting

LONDON, May 4 (CP) — A definite trend to the right was reported today in returns from Scotland's municipal elections.

Following abnormally low polls in Tuesday's voting, Progressives and Moderates now hold office in Glasgow, Edinburgh, Dundee, Dumbarton, Dunfermline, and Kilwinning. In five of these cities a Labor administration formerly was in control. There was no change in Edinburgh.

Political observers here declined comment on the Scottish results. As a national pointer, Scotland is autonomous as far as local government is concerned, and a tendency for other parties to unite against the Socialists is more widespread than in England and Wales.

There has been little change in Scotland's political complexion nationally since 1945. In that election, Conservatives won 24 seats compared with 26 last February. Labor won 37 seats each time.

Was Rundown; Suffered Stomach Gas, Indigestion

Had Bloated Feeling and Sour Acidity After Meals, Backache, Very Nervous, Tells How Syntona Helped Her.

MRS. DOROTHY GARLICK

When the stomach is out of order and food fails to digest properly, but ferments, causing gas, sour stomach and a full, bloated feeling; when poor kidney action brings on night-rising, backache and rheumatic pain; when bowels are constipated and you suffer from poor appetite, dizzy spells, headaches and your nerves are on edge, try a short treatment of Syntona Herbal Compound and you, too, may find this medicine just what you need to make you feel like yourself again.

Here is the experience of Mrs. Dorothy Garlick, of 3 Mulberry Street, Hamilton, Ont., as told in a recent report:

"I was suffering with indigestion, stomach gas and constipation. After my meals, I would be troubled with sour stomach and a sick nauseated feeling. Often I got dizzy spells and sick headaches. My nerves were so on edge, I couldn't get my proper sleep at night and I felt tired and worn out from the time I got up in the mornings.

"After reading about other people being helped by Syntona, I got some and I am surprised how quickly it has helped my stomach. I had hardly finished my first bottle when I noticed that my food was digesting better. As I kept on taking it, the gas, sourness, bloated feeling cleared up entirely. Constipation is now relieved and I am not troubled with headaches and dizzy spells. As a result, my nerves are calmed down so that I sleep soundly at night and my whole system feels built up and improved."

Syntona is sold and recommended in Peterborough at Elliott's Drug Store.—(Advt.)

States Flays Reds Over Baltic Plane

'Erroneous Account' Offered By Reds Flout Obligations

WASHINGTON, May 5 — (AP) — The United States today charged Russia with flouting its international obligations in dealing with the Baltic plane incident. In a new note to Moscow, the State Department said Russia had put forward an "erroneous account" of the shooting down of the American plane April 8.

The note said:

"The government of the United States must warn the government of the Soviet Socialist Republics of the seriousness with which it regards the attitude of the government of the Union Soviet Socialist Republics in matters of such grave consequence."

Second Rejection

Rejecting for the second time the Soviet claim that the missing American plane violated Soviet-occupied Latvia, the U.S. declared that it is forced to conclude that Russia "has not only failed to meet but has no intention of meeting the obligations which international and practice impose on members of the family nations."

"It is clear that this disregard for law, custom and the opinion of mankind constitutes a further obstacle to the establisment of harmonious relations among nations and cannot be reconciled with the Soviet government's continued protestations of its devotion to the cause of peace."

Ambassador Delivers

The note was delivered in Moscow by Ambassador Allan G. Kirk and was made public here by the state department.

The note made it plain that the charges and counter-charges over the loss of the unarmed navy Privateer plane in the Baltic area with 10 men aboard have reached an impasse.

That is a stalemate from which further progress cannot be made.

The Russians were told that "it is clearly impossible to resolve that issue so long as the Soviet government refuses to base its position upon the facts of the case."

Dismiss Charge Of Manslaughter

TORONTO, May 5 — (CP) — The charge of manslaughter against Frank Wells, 20, one of two youths charged in the death of two young girls in a truck accident March 31, was dismissed today.

The other youth, James Tackaberry, 19, was remanded to May 19. Bail of $5,000 was continued.

Tackaberry and Wells had been charged jointly following the death of Lorraine Watson, 13, and her niece, Barbara Jones, 5, on North Bathurst St.

The two were arrested April 18 in their homes after a wide search.

The charge against Wells was withdrawn on grounds of insufficient evidence.

At the time of the arrest police said they believed Tackaberry was the driver of the truck. Wells, they said, was riding as helper.

Charge Dance Hall Barred Negro Student

TORONTO, May 5 — (CP) — Three University of Toronto students said today they were refused admission to a Lakeshore dance hall Thursday night because one of them was a Negro.

E. A. Keane, 25, a native of Jamaica, Phillip Mihorean, 23, of nearby Richmond Hill, and Jack Ward, 22, of Sudbury, said they were told by George Ellis, assistant manager of the hall, that only couples could be admitted. The three said, however, that while they stood outside the hall several men and women were admitted without partners.

Mihorean said he had attended the establishment on several occasions without a girl and was never refused admission.

Suspect Firebug

TORONTO, May 5—(CP)—The possibility that a firebug started two restaurant fires within the last week is under investigation. Both blazes were in the west-central Bloor-Bathurst street area and caused little damage. District Chief Harry Yates said that, in one case, paper towels stuffed into a hole in the restaurant basement wall were set on fire.

PCs 'Concerned' Want To Examine Gov't Spending

OTTAWA, Mar 5—(CP)— Delay in obtaining information on government spending on traveling expenses was described Thursday by John Diefenbaker (PC—Lake Centre) as "worthy of concern".

He said he would not go so far as to say it was "suspicious" but told the Commons public accounts committee it was significant that his request for such information was difficult to obtain.

The discussion was on the government's system of preparing estimates of public expenditures—the annual presentation of votes requested by the finance minister of money for carrying on the administration of government.

R. B. Bryce, assistant deputy minister of finance and secretary of the treasury board, was the witness.

He was questioned closely by George Drew, Progressive Conservative leader, and Mr. Diefenbaker on the possibility of putting the estimates before parliamentarians with more definite and precise information on where the money was going.

Mr. Drew said it should be possible for a member of parliament to look at the estimates pamphlet and see at once how much the entire government proposed spending on any particular activity—such as advertising.

Mr. Bryce said it would be possible to put that sort of an estimate in the pamphlet but it would mean a lot of extra work and expense.

He said it would be possible to take the items under that head for each department and add them up, but even then it would be an incomplete picture.

There were too many different kinds of advertising, publicity and public relations to get any compete agreement on what could be called advertising.

Police Promise Query Into Beating Charges

TORONTO, May 5 (CP) — A full inquiry today was promised by the police commission into claims by a Streetsville merchant he was beaten by six Toronto policemen Tuesday night.

Police Chief John Chisholm and senior police commissioner Robert Browne said the charges made by Harvey Andrew, former provincial police officer, will be investigated thoroughly.

Chief Chisholm said: "there are two sides to every story and if we are to be fair, we must not prejudice this situation until all the facts are ascertained."

Government Scandal In Building

PC Senator Charges Gov't Covering Up Hospital Building

OTTAWA, May 5—(CP)—Senator John T. Haig tried hard today, but without success, to get the facts behind what he called a "scandal" in the business of erecting government buildings. The 73-year-old Scot, who heads the Progressive-Conservatives in the Senate, kept up a running battle of words with the public works department's veteran Irish deputy minister, E. P. Murphy. Mr. Murphy denied that he had any information concerning the so-called "scandal."

Senator Haig told the chamber's finance committee that the government was trying to cover up the facts concerning the erection of a veterans' hospital at Sturgeon Creek, about three miles west of Winnipeg.

Torn Down

He said the hospital had been built at a cost of $325,000 of taxpayers' money and just as it was nearing completion was turned over to a private concern for $28,000. The building was subsequently torn down.

Senator Haig charged that Mr. Murphy and the Public Works Department was responsible for that state of affairs. Mr. Murphy denied the charge and said the whole matter was the concern of the Veterans' Affairs Department.

"I can't get the information," said Senator Haig, and pointing at Mr. Murphy, he added, "but this man could."

Veterans Affairs

Senator T. A. Crerar (L-Manitoba), the committee chairman, said the matter could be brought before the health committee which was responsible for investigating veterans affairs estimates.

Senator Haig said he would be "hammered" between the two committees trying to get the information, "and he would get no place."

Mr. Murphy interjected that he was not trying to be "evasive." The hospital had been started at a time when the public works department's facilities were heavily taxed.

The work had been handed over to the Defence Department to carry out the job for the veterans affairs people, and either of these two bodies would have all the information that was available.

Sees House Fire On TV Yells 'That's My Home'

LOS ANGELES, May 5 (AP)—J. E. McKinley was visiting a television factory Thursday when he saw a video coverage of a fire in a home in the Hollywood Hills.

"My gosh, that's my house," shouted McKinley.

He raced home to find the three-storey dwelling destroyed, but his wife and daughter were safe at a neighbor's home.

Citizens Flee Deserted Morris

WINNIPEG, May 5—(CP)—The Red River chalked up more victories today in its flood battle against Manitoba. Two special C.N.R. trains reached here this morning to complete the virtual evacuation of the town of Morris, 41 miles south. Mayor Harry Shewman of Morris said he had decided on evacuation "to spare my people further misery."

In Winnipeg, waiting nervously for the lash of the Red's flood crest, City Engineer W. D. Hurst appealed to householders to use as little water as possible to relieve overloading of sewers. Central steam heating service to part of Winnipeg has been cut because of the floods.

Only 150 men and 10 women remain in Morris, normally a town of 1,100 population.

Dr. J. S. Hollowin of the Morris hospital staff, gaunt and haggard-looking from days of toil, directed the unloading of the patients who were taken to the general hospital here in provincial government ambulances.

Safe Now

"They've been wonderful," he said. "They've been forced out by the flood twice—first out of the old hospital, then the new one—and there hasn't been a peep out of anyone. Well they're safe now."

Decision to evacuate Morris came after two-foot waves whipped by a strong wind breached the last line of defence—dikes around the besieged Morris hospital—early Thursday night.

CNR officials said frankly there was little chance of the track between Morris and Winnipeg holding out for more than a few hours.

Meanwhile, the Red threatened Winnipeg with further blows.

Since its start at Emerson, Man., 60 miles south near the international border, its three-week rampage has continued almost unchecked. Town after town reported modern records toppling.

Communist Police Cut Back West Berlin-Bound Trucks

BERLIN, May 5—(AP)—East-German Communist police turned back 28 Berlin-bound trucks at the Soviet-zone frontier today and enforced a drastic slowdown on highway traffic. At 10 a.m., a backlog of 120 west German trucks was waiting for clearance at the Helmstedt Autobahn check point. On the other side of the Soviet frontier barrier, 170 trucks from Berlin were queued up.

West-German customs officials said 28 trucks had been refused entry into the Russian zone since mianight on "mere technicalities" such as typing errors in their shipping documents.

The Communist police detail at the border was reported purged this week of officers accused of taking bribes from alleged West German and Berlin smugglers. West-German officials said the traffic snarl probably was a direct result of the Communist police purge and might be straightened out as soon as the new staff became more experienced.

In Berlin, the Soviet-controlled East-German railway sent freight cars into the Allied sectors today for loading, abandoning its demand that all freight first be delivered to the Russian sector for inspection.

Woman 78, Lost 11 Hours In Bush

CARTIER, Ont., May 5 (CP)—Mrs. W. H. Wymonds, 78, of Winnipeg, wandered all night in dense bush near here after leaving a train during a brief stop at the Canadian Pacific Railway station here. She had been on her way from Winnipeg to visit a daughter, Mrs. A. Balmforth of (381 Louisa St.) Oshawa.

Searchers found her half a mile from the station. She was taken to hospital in Sudbury, 60 miles southeast of here, in an Ontario Provincial Police cruiser and placed under observation. She was suffering from a bruised left eye, a cut on the bridge of the nose, shock and exposure.

She was in the bush 11 hours.

The train was delayed five minutes while a preliminary search was made in the area of the station. When this search failed, an 18-man party of provincial policemen, railway employees and townsfolk was organized to look for the woman.

At daybreak, searchers found a shopping bag and a handkerchief which led them to the belief that they were on the trail of the elderly widow. They followed her tracks through dense bush and discovered her leaning against a tree.

UK Gov't Wins New Labor Seat

BRIGHOUSE, Yorkshire, Eng., May 5 (AP)—Labor's working majority in the House of Commons increased to six Thursday with the narrow victory of a Labor candidate in a by-election here.

It was the third by-election victory for Prime Minister Attlee's Labor party since the general election which returned it to power Feb. 23.

The by-election, in the Brighouse and Spenborough division, gave Labor candidate, L. J. Edwards a majority of 437 over his National Liberal opponent, William E. Woolley, who allied himself with the Conservatives.

The returns were issued today after Woolley had demanded a recount. Edwards got 24,004 votes to Woolley's 23,567.

This by-election brings the Commons up to its full strength of 625 members, although some of those elected have not yet been officially sworn in.

Labor now has 315 seats. The combined opposition, led by Winston Churchill's Conservative party, has 309. The additional member is the speaker.

Klu Klux Klan Vigilantes Burn Crosses At Home Where Morals Questionable

80 Unmasked Men Chant Vengeance Threats Warn Woman To Change Her Ways, Two Crosses Burned Nearby Last Fall

NEWINGTON, May 5—(CP)—Terror gripped this tiny eastern Ontario village today as residents feared new outbreaks of cross-burning by a band of vigilantes calling themselves members of the Klu Klux Klan. Residents, who asked that their identity be kept secret for fear of retribution, said three fiery crosses have been burned during the last month in Newington, a village of 308 in Stormont County, 12 miles northwest of Cornwall. Latest episode was Wednesday night when a blazing 25-foot cross flamed against a black sky, accompanied by overtones of chanted threats of vengeance.

Members of the Klan, said to number 80, claim to be the moral protectors of this sleepy little farming village. They said the crosses have been burned in front of homes where occupants have been of questionable morals.

The cross-burning of the last month is a sequel to similar weird rituals in the nearby village of Avonmore last fall.

In each case a band of men, unmasked, have issued threats of what might befall the occupants of the house unless they change their ways.

Police are investigating the cross-burning which has taken place in front of the same house each time.

A man who witnessed the burning but refused to be identified said the men, who came from all over Stormont county in cars, were dressed in ordinary clothes. It was impossible to tell who was leading the band.

"I was just getting ready for bed when I heard sounds of loud voices," said the witness. "I thought it was a group of young fellows returning from a dance, so I went upstairs."

"I started to close my bedroom window when I saw the flames flickering in the sky. I looked out and saw the cross burning. Men were marching around it and chanting warnings about justice being done.

"At intervals one or more of the men broke ranks to hurl some kind of fluid at the burning cross. The lady who lives in the house where the cross was being burned came out and screamed things at the men.

London Man Sneezes Cracks Adam's Apple

LONDON, May 5 (Reuters) — The current issue of the British Medical Journal reports what it claims is the first case on record of a man who cracked his Adam's apple when he sneezed.

The man, aged 44, had a violent sneezing attack. Something clicked in his neck. He felt pain. Two days later his voice became hoarse and he visited his doctor. An X-ray showed a fracture through the thyroid cartilage (Adam's apple.)

Windsor Asks Prov. Police Send Inspector

WINDSOR, May 5—(CP)—The Windsor police commission will ask assistance from the provincial police in helping to improve law enforcement here.

The decision to ask Ontario Attorney-General Porter for loan of a senior inspector from the provincial force "to act in an advisory and supervisory capacity" was announced Thursday in the police commission's report of the public inquiry here into allegations of corruption among Windsor police.

The commission reported it had found no evidence of "maladministration" in the local force.

In four sittings in March and April, the Windsor commission heard 43 witnesses testify about the activities of Windsor police and the extent of crime in the city. No evidence was given to support charges of corruption among police, and, the report noted, "the commission was not dealing so much with the existence of crime as it was with rumors and allegations that our peace officers were lax and neglecting in their duties."

The commission report said it would ask for a provincial inspector on loan for an indefinite period, to make recommendation for improvement in efficiency of all departments of the police force.

The report noted that the Windsor police commission, in conducting its inquiry, lacked facilities for gathering evidence. "Additional witnesses, if they existed, did not appear to substantiate the sensational intimations contained in the many reports of the press."

(At Toronto Thursday night Premier Frost of Ontario declined to comment on the request for loan of a provincial police officer pending receipt of the official report.)

Iron Miners Strike Over Safety Rules

BELL ISLAND, Nfld., May 5—(CP)—A mass meeting of iron-ore miners here Thursday night upheld a decision to strike as a result of what union spokesmen termed "inadequate safety regulations."

The strike was called Thursday when the men walked off the job after a rock fall killed driller Samuel Peach and injured his helper, Hubert Gosse.

The miners are members of United Steel Workers of America (CIO-CCL). About 1,500 are employed in the ore pits, owned by Dominion Steel and Coal Corporation.

Company manager W. L. Stuewe, who called the walkout a violation of contract, said "the mines are as safe as any that I know of in operation."

'Renting Women' Too Dangerous—Cadi

TORONTO, May 5 — (CP) — The Police Commission Thursday turned thumb down on a date bureau for lonely men.

"A little while ago it was rent a car, now it's rent a woman," said Magistrate R. J. Browne. "This is too dangerous."

Samuel Stirling and Leon Kimel made the unsuccessful application. They said girls from modelling schools would be engaged at $10 a night.

Germans Demand Accounting

1,500,000 Missing In Soviet

FRANKFURT, Germany, May 5 (AP)—Chancellor Konrad Adenauer charged today that 1,500,000 Germans are still missing in the Soviet Union. He demanded, in the name of humanity, that the Kremlin account of their fate.

Adenauer made a special appearance before the West German parliament at Bonn after he learned of Thursday night's Soviet announcement that repatriation of German war prisoners had been completed.

Dashed Hopes

The Soviet statement dashed the hopes of families of hundreds of thousands of missing soldiers. It came as a great shock to the west German capital. Many politicians viewed it as a severe blow to the Communist party in the west. When a Communist deputy got up to answer Adenauer virtually the entire body of lawmakers with the exception of three Communist deputies present and three others walked out.

Tass, the official Soviet News Agency, said the last group of war prisoners—17,538 of them—had been returned to Germany.

Quotes Reds Figures

Adenauer used Soviet figures to support his claim that 1,500,000 Germans are still left in Russia. He said that in 1945 Tass reported 3,500,000 Germans held in Russia. Thursday night's announcement said 1,939,063 war prisoners had been repatriated. The Chancellor said that still leaves more than 1,500,000 unaccounted for.

Two months ago, when the Russians said virtually all captured German soldiers except war criminals had been freed, West German authorities claimed the Russians still held about 400,000. The United States and France April 25 accused the Russians of trying to hide the fate of hundreds of thousands of German prisoners still not accounted for.

Repatriate 1,939,163

The west Berlin city council charged last Dec. 22 that Russia still held more than 1,000,000 German prisoners of war.

The Tass statement Thursday night said that since Germany's surrender in 1945 the Soviet Union had repatriated 1,939,163 prisoners.

Still left in the Soviet Union, Tass said, are 9,717 men condemned for war crimes, 3,815 still under investigation for alleged war crimes and 14 held temporarily until treatment for illnesses is completed.

Acheson To Consult U.K., France

To Decontrol West Germany

WASHINGTON, May 5 (AP)—State Secretary Dean Acheson will seek British and French agreement in London next week for gradually reducing and eventually ending Allied occupation controls over Western Germany.

The end of the occupation—but not actual withdrawal of British, French and American troops—in about 18 months is reported to be the United States objective.

Won't Pull Troops

Well-informed officials said today that while troops would not be pulled out under the American proposal they would be kept in Germany on a new basis; as Western defence forces holding a front line in the cold war rather than as occupation armies.

Acheson said his top policy advisers have explored the German problem intensively for several weeks in preparation for his meeting with Foreign Secretary Bevin of Britain and Foreign Minister Schuman of France and for a session of the 12 countries of the North Atlantic Council in London.

McCloy's Advice

In their policy considerations here, Acheson and his advisers are reported to have been deeply influenced by an estimate attributed to the U.S. High Commissioner in Germany, John J. McCloy. McCloy is said to have advised the State Department that the Western Powers have only about 18 months to two years to settle the future of Germany as far as they control it.

His views are described as being based partly on the idea that Russia is constantly growing stronger and therefore more able to make serious trouble for the West in the struggle for control of all Germany. Partly, too, he is said to feel that any occupation continued for too long loses its effectiveness and begins to create strong resentment in the subject population.

Boost Rural Hydro Rates Average Increase $1.14, Will Be Effective May 1

Necessary To Prop Up Rural Finances Will Affect 257,000 Customers, Labor, Material Responsible—Saunders

TORONTO, May 5—(CP)—An upward revision of rural hydro rates averaging about $1.14 per month increase for the majority of consumers was announced Thursday night by Robert Saunders, chairman of the Ontario Hydro Commission. The increase is expected to bring almost $3,000,000 additional revenue. Mr. Saunders said the increase, effective on May 1 and subsequent bills, is necessary for the proper safeguarding of the rural financial structure. He said that tremendous increases in cost of labor and materials, along with the necessity of maintaining efficient service, caused the decision to increase rates.

The Ontario Hydro Commission last December increased the wholesale rates for power supplies to municipalities and a large percentage of municipalities subsequently were granted permission to increase rates to consumers. The commission now has increased the rates to rural customers.

There are 257,000 rural customers, including 100,000 farmers The over-all increase is about 25 per cent, Mr. Saunders estimated.

He said one sample of the increase is where a rural Hydro consumer uses 100 kilowatt hours per month. He now pays $3.13 instead of $2.47, an increase of 66 cents. About 80 per cent of rural consumers are in the 244 kilowatt hours class, and will pay $5.10 instead of $3.96, an increase of $1.14.

Hang Murderer Who Beat, Killed Crippled Woman

MONTREAL, May 5.—(CP)—Roger Trudel, a former theatre usher, was hanged in Montreal's Bordeaux jail early today for the murder of Mrs. Angelina Bessette, 48-year-old cripple, more than two years ago.

The 33-year-old convicted slayer showed no emotion as he mounted the scaffold about 12:15 a.m. EDT. Jail officials said he had attended mass and received communion before the execution He was pronounced dead at 12.43 a.m.

Trudel, 33, was convicted last Jan. 22 of murder in connection with the fatal beating of Mrs. Bessette on Jacques Cartier bridge in the city's east-end district. The woman, brutally beaten and robbed of $650, died in hospital less than 24 hours later.

Police arrested Trudel three days later on a city bus and accused him of slaying the woman who became acquainted with Trudel while he was a theatre usher here.

A Court of King's Bench jury rendered the guilty verdict after a six-day trial, but added a recommendation for clemency.

Trudel failed in an appeal to the Justice Department for a commutation of sentence to life imprisonment.

Prices Push Higher In Brisk Trading

TORONTO, May 5 — (CP) — Prices pushed slowly higher in brisk trading on the Toronto Stock Exchange today. A handful of market leaders brightened quietly. Firmness spread over the big board.

Volume for the first three hours was 1,074,000 shares.

Base metals were strongest in early dealings but slipped slightly as the session progressed. A late burst of selling Thursday pushed the list down from peak price levels. The group has moved narrowly despite price increases in silver, lead and zinc Thursday and increases in copper, lead and zinc last week.

Fractional advances were scattered among a handful of leading industrials. Papers moved narrowly on profit-taking on recent strong advances.

Golds brightened in mid-session from opening weakness. Junior Producers chalked up gains ranging up to 10 cents. Newlund Mines featured on a 10-cent gain at $1.40 in heavy trading.

Western Oils also recovered early losses. Home oil, Anglo-Canadian and Decalta pushed into plus territory.

ATTEND CONFERENCE

Miss Genevieve Sullivan, chairman of the reference section of the Ontario Libraries Association and on the staff of the Public Library, Rev. E. C. Moore and A. E. Borland of the Library Board will attend the Ontario Libraries conference in Windsor May 22-23.

Ice Jams Freeze 16 Freighters Fast

DULUTH, Minn., May 5 (AP) —Northwest winds are continuing to pile up ice in the western end of Lake Superior, and 16 freighters, two of them locked fast, are awaiting a change in conditions to enter Duluth harbor.

The icebreaker Mackinaw returned to Duluth Thursday for fuel and supplies after a night of shepherding the freighters lying at the edge of the ice pack. The Ontadoc and J. J. H. Brown became trapped in the ice off Stony Point, five miles from open water.

The ice is so severe that freighters trying to follow the lane broken by the Mackinaw stall quickly. Six hours of efforts by the Mackinaw to tow the Brown and the Ontadoc Wednesday moved the vessels only two miles

Pupils Must Be Ready For Secondary School

TORONTO, May 5—(CP)—Dr. J. G. Althouse, chief director of education for Ontario, said Thursday night that entrance grade elementary school pupils will move on to high school "when they are considered ready, the same as in any other grade."

He commented on a report that, in Toronto, 15-year-old elementary school pupils will be promoted to high school this year no matter what their standing, if they have spent one year in grade 8.

Dr. Althouse said the revised curriculum, which gives local school boards the right to abolish entrance examinations, sets no age limitations.

Verse Speaking At Festival Better This Year

Verse speaking at the Kiwanis Festival in the Public Library and Murray St. Baptist Church Thursday was an improvement on last year's performances Miss Mary Lockhart, adjudicator from Ottawa, says.

"I am very happy to see so many more entries" she said and she felt Peterborough was progressing in this field.

Miss Lockhart hopes the choral speaking choir classes will develop as satisfactorily as the verse speaking. There was only one entry Thursday, when Queen Alexandra choral speaking choir was awarded 84 points. Miss Lockhart said the choral speaking was good and because it was of such great value, she hoped more choirs would enter next year.

Roy Fisher of Port Hope, who headed the grade six verse speaking competition with 89 points, was outstanding Miss Lockhart said. He gave his recitation more feeling than the other children and made it live.

Good Piano Playing

After both music adjudicators had said earlier in the week that they were disappointed with the general standard of piano playing, Dr. Lang spoke highly this morning of the performances in the piano solo under 17 class, for which the set piece was any work by Clementi or Kuhlau.

There were 13 entries and the competition was won by Myrna Schwartz, Peterborough, with 88 points. Terry W. Northrop, Peterborough, was awarded 87 and Bob Turner, Peterborough, 85.

John J. Weatherseed was also impressed with the piano solo under 12 class Thursday morning, which, he said, was the best he had heard at that stage of the festival. Murray J. Mann, Peterborough, led with 84 points; Phyllis Bebee, Bailieboro, was awarded 83 and Margo Huffman, Peterborough, 82.

Enjoys Piano Duets

The piano duet class under 11 —Sailor's Dance by Markham Lee —also won some complimentary comments from Dr. Lang this morning. He awarded Carol Watters and Shirley Symons, Port Hope, 86 points; David and Margaret Munro, Peterborough, 85, and Karen Mutton and Margaret Goheen, Bowmanville, 84.

The results of other classes adjudicated Thursday were as follows:

Piano duet under 14—Gail and Sandra Wood, Peterborough, 84; Christina Lamb and Margaret Goheen, Bowmanville, 83; Sandra Duke and Lois Moore, Peterborough, 81.

Piano duo under 17—Faye and Myrna Schwartz, Peterborough, 84; Gloria Robson and Lorna Fletcher, Bowmanville, 83; Margaret Martyn and Doreen Stevens Peterborough, 80.

Violin solo under 15, one one entry—Gerald Young, Campbellford, 80.

Verse speaking, grade five — Helen Ingham, Millbrook, 85; Peter Norris, Peterborough, 84; Marlene Mann, Port Hope, 83.

Verse speaking, grade six—Roy Fisher, Port Hope, 89; Yvonne Smith, Port Hope, 88; Bill Doherty, Peterborough, 87.

Piano solo under 14—Beverly Allison, Bowmanville, 87; Lorna Fletcher, Bowmanville, 86; Sandra Duke, Peterborough, 85.

Boys' solo under 11—Bruce Retallick, Port Hope, 83; Burney Skitch, Port Hope, 81; Daniel O'Connor, Port Hope, 80.

Choral speaking choirs, grades five and six—Queen Alexandra school, 84.

Verse speaking, grade seven — Patsey Smith, Port Hope, 86; Barbara Malsch, Peterborough, 85; Diana Brown, Port Hope, 82.

Verse speaking, grade eight — Mary Waterman, Peterborough, 85; Elizabeth Ross, Port Hope, 83; Gayle Simpson and Patricia Berry, both of Peterborough, tied third with 82 points.

An intense storm over Kansas will move northeast into Northern Ontario tonight causing rain and scattered thunderstorms over much of the province. Storm warnings have been hoisted at Great Lakes ports due to the high winds associated with this storm. On Saturday strong westerly winds will bring sunny and warmer weather to most of Southern Ontario but snow and continued cool weather to Northern Ontario.

Seven-Mile Pipeline Carry Waste Oxygen

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont., May 5 —(CP)—The North American Cyanamid Company announces work will start in a few weeks on construction of a 12-inch pipe line 7½ miles long from its liquid air plant here to its Welland works division in Stamford township. Cost is estimated at $100,000.

The Company plans to pipe oxygen—now being wasted—to the Welland works for use in manufacture of a fertilizer product.

The Canadian Press reported erroneously in a story from Hamilton Wednesday that the pipe line would carry "water gas" for use in combusting coke and it would cost $300,000.

The pipe line will follow the hydro canal to Montrose and the hydro right-of-way to the Welland Works.

89,000 Strikers Return To Work For Chrysler

DETROIT, May 5 (AP)—The 89,000 Chrysler strikers who went without pay cheques for 100 days will start the march back to the job by Monday.

Many of the 50,000 supplier plant workers, out of work almost as long, already have started back to their plants.

Automobile industry experts believe the strike settlement, reached Thursday by Chrysler and the United Automobile Workers Union (CIO) might well bring on a period of unprecedented production.

With Chrysler back in action, monthly production might reach 700,000 cars. This would be about 50,000 more than record figures.

But the pall cast by the walkout still will need a lot of lifting. Also, some sore feelings remained.

For the countless families the strike meant hardship. The wage loss was put at nearly $85,000,000.

The UAW's Chrysler conference of more than 100 delegates voted Thursday night—with six dissents—to recommend acceptance of the offer.

Locals Vote

Voting in the union locals will take place tomorrow. After that a back-to-work schedule will be announced.

The strikers, who walked out Jan. 25, finished their long holdout with a three-year contract that U.A.W. president Walter Reuther called "the best in the industry."

The pact gives the union a package of economic benefits it estimates are worth a little more than 10 cents an hour. It provided for:

Pensions of $100 a month, including social security, for workers who retire at the age of 65 after 25 years of service. The union estimates this cost at seven cents an hour. Chrysler doesn't say.

Life Insurance

Hospital, surgical and life insurance coverage. The union had asked that Chrysler put six cents an hour into such a plan. Under the agreement each will pay half the cost.

Elimination of some wage differentials and hourly pay boosts for certain job classifications.

A dues checkoff, by which the company deducts dues from each union member's pay and delivers it to the U.A.W.

The contract may be re-opened twice on wages and insurance—once after July 1, 1951, and again after July 1, 1952.

WelcomeMatOut ToNewfoundland

By The Canadian Press

Premier Joseph Smallwood, of Newfoundland, and his Health Minister, J. R. Chalker, hit the road next week in a Canada-wide tour to deliver personal invitations to the new province's coming-out party.

Mr. Smallwood and the Health Minister have spiit the job of inviting provincial premiers from the rest of Canada to the Cabot Day celebrations at St. John's, June 24, to mark Newfoundland's entry into confederation. The Premier will visit cities west of Ottawa and the Health Minister will tour the east.

The Newfoundland Premier will meet again the provincial leaders with who he shared a conference table last January at the Dominion-Provincial constitutional parleys in Ottawa. Most premiers plan to invite the Newfoundlanders to luncheons and dinners and show them around town.

FRull Treatment

Indications are that the Premier of the newest province will be given teh full treatment accorded VIPs who visit Western Canada.

He will return to Newfoundland an honorary Indian chief with a headdress to prove it. Indians in the Lethbridge, Alta., district now are trying to translate Newfoundland into Indian language so they will have an appropriate title for him.

None of the premiers has said he will be able to accept the invitation of the touring Newfoundlanders. It is likely, however, that at least two—Premier Duplessis of Quebec and Premier Douglas of Saskatchewan—will be unable to go. June 24 is Jean Baptiste Day and Mr. Duplessis will likely be busy. Saskatchewan government officials said Mr. Douglas anticipates a heavy log of business around that time.

Pupil's Record To Determine Entrance Into High School

Entrance of grade 8 pupils into high school will be determined this year by the pupil's record over his final year in public school, K. S. Wightman, superintendent of schools, said today.

Entrance examinations have been abolished by the provincial department of education.

Public school principals will make their recommendations on the basis of the year's work, and forward their lists to the inspector of schools for approval.

"In previous years," said Mr. Wightman, "the number writing entrance examinations has been heavy. For the past five or six years, we have accepted those recommended by the principals, most of whom teach grade 8 themselves. Now, there will be only the one chance for promotion—the recommendation of the principal."

There will be term tests, but nothing in the nature of a final examination, he added.

Klu Klux Klan

"They continued their orderly march around the cross and a little while later they dispersed."

The witness said the men did not wear masks. He understood the reason for the cross-burning was to discourage the lady from seeing a married man from another town.

Villagers here were divided on the seriousness of the demonstrations.

A. W. Loverin, town councilman and general storekeeper, said: "It was just a prank. It's all over now, and I believe the pair concerned learned a lesson. All that was being done was to scare the couple. All we want to do is forget about it. After all it was only a small cross."

Another man said he thought it was a prank the first time it happened. But when the demonstrations continued he became concerned.

He said that the two crosses burned in Avonmore, 10 miles north of Newington, last fall had had apparently succeeded in frightening the occupant from continuing with what the Klansmen described as "questionable moral actions."

Would Drop Tax On Margarine

OTTAWA, May 5 — (CP) — The Canadian consumer should be the "measuring rod" by which to judge whether the eight-per-cent sales tax on margarine should be abolished, Senator Norman Lambert (L, Ontario) said Thursday

He seconded the resolution of Senator W. D. Euler (L, Ontario) that the Senate go on record favoring the elimination of the tax and said that margarine is a "wholesome, nutritious food," which helped substantially to reduce the cost-of-living.

He noted that Senator S. S. McKeen (L, British Columbia) had brought up the question of loss of revenue if the tax was abolished.

But why, he asked, should margarine be taxed and not other foods?

However, Senator Lambert did not believe the government was worried about revenue. It was a question of protecting the dairy industry that had "entrenched" itself as "special interests in this country."

Senator Lambert said he did not believe the sale of margarine injured the dairy industry. Butter, which was margarine's competitor, did not alone represent the dairy industry. It was only one of many dairy products

Joseph Ellis To Stand Trial In Robbery Case

COBOURG, May 5 (ENS) — Joseph Ellis of Campbellford was committed for trial by Magistrate R. B. Baxter in police court Thursday on a charge of robbery with violence. His brother, Charles, appeared on the same charge and pleading guilty, was remanded until Monday for sentence.

The complainant, George Stollery, 82, of Seymour township, was robbed of a sum said to be around $1,000 on March 14. He has been in Belleville General Hospital since the robbery, having been taken there with a fractured jaw.

Key witness for the Crown Thursday in the charge against Joseph Ellis was Mrs. Ruby Ellis, wife of Charles, who told of washing blood from the clothing of Joe Ellis the night of the robbery.

Fletcher Casselman of R. R. No. 2, Campbellford, testified that on the Sunday before the robbery, Joe Ellis came to his house on a visit from Welland and on March 14, in the evening, left the house saying that he was going over to see his brother, Charlie. He left the next day in his car. Casselman testified that he and Joe Ellis had discussed going into a snack bar business as the house was on a busy county road.

Mrs. Marjorie Greene, sister of Joe Ellis, and housekeeper for Casselman, said that her brother had come to the house on a Friday and left the following Wednesday, the day after the robbery.

Inspector Arthur Taylor of Toronto told of paying a visit to Beckett's Bridge, near Welland, where Joe Ellis stayed some time after the robbery and of searching the premises. He said that Ellis turned over to him a wallet containing $68 and that a search in the bedroom revealed a $100 bill and two $50 bills. He then placed Ellis under arrest.

Phone Pulled Out

Provincial Constable Don Nicol of Cobourg said that at the Stollery home the phone wire had been pulled out and there were blood stains on the snow outside the house.

Mrs. Ruby Ellis related that at 7.30 p.m. on March 14, Joe Ellis called to see Charlie and that at 8.30 they both left the house in Joe's car. She said she went to bed and was awakened at 10.30 by the car driving in the yard. She went to the window and noticed Joe Ellis get out of the car. He seemed to be looking at his clothing. He took off his trench coat and got back in the car. Charlie Ellis came into the house and he was followed a little later by Joe, who was not wearing his coat.

Covered With Blood

"Joe said could I take out blood stains and I said I could with cold water. He went back to the car and returned with the trench coat and it was covered with blood. There was also blood on his jacket, shirt and pants.

"He told me that he was in a fight and had met somebody on a side street in Campbellford who thought he was a better man than he. He took out a wallet from his trousers' pocket and I noticed a cheque for $700, made out to George Stollery. I said 'you don't intend to cash that and he said he guessed he hadn't better. I am sure he burned the cheques in the stove," testified Mrs. Ruby Ellis.

"Charlie told me that there wasn't a fight but that old Stollery had been robbed. Joe said 'it's done now, let's forget about it'. Joe's hand was pretty badly swollen and I said 'what would they say when they saw that, and Joe Ellis replied that he had been loading some pigs that morning and would say that was how it happened. Joe was in and out of the house a few times and I heard him say to Charlie 'I'll give you some of that.' " testified Mrs. Ellis.

Tells The Truth

Defence counsel J. C. M. German asked Mrs. Ellis why it was that she had told him, when he was acting for Charlie Ellis, that she didn't get up when they came in that night. Mrs. Ellis replied that she was protecting Charlie but that after he had confessed to the police, she decided to tell the truth.

After the committal, bail was fixed at $5,000.

The evidence was brief in connection with the charge against Charles Ellis. Provincial Constable Don Nicol said that Stollery lived alone and received a fractured skull in the robbery. Stollery had more than $1,000 in cash and a number of cheques. Charles Ellis told police that he had been given $100 by Joe.

When police were told by Charles Ellis where the money was, he informed them it was in the attic. $30 of it had been spent.

The accused had no police record, was a married man with three children and would soon have a fourth. A reformatory term would be ample punishment suggested Crown Attorney Harry Deyman.

Try To Remove Parking Meters

CAMPBELLFORD, May 5 — (ENS) — Businessmen meeting Thursday in the Hollywood Theatre decided to endeavour to raise the $500 which would have to be paid to the Mi-Co Meter Company if the parking meters were removed from the streets before the one year contract period expires in August.

Mayor J. E. Ayrhart is in Montreal discussing the matter with the company. In a telephone conversation he said $500 would meet the loss the company claims it would sustain in removing the meters before the end of one year.

The parking meter question has long been a topic of discussion in Campbellford. The businessmen claim the meters drive trade away from their stores. People from outlying districts can drive to other smaller centres and purchase their supplies without fear of having their car "tagged" for not putting sufficient money in a parking meter, they say.

What Would Divorce Reform Mean?

During the first week of April the member of Parliament for Spadina-Toronto, Mr. David Croll, suggested in the Commons that the grounds for divorce in Canada be widened. His suggestion was dismissed without much consideration, for Parliament's first instinct in matters relating to divorce is to shelve them. It is also a fact that divorce is, at least in part, a matter of provincial jurisdiction. Still, the strong feeling among many Canadians that our divorce laws need liberalizing will eventually force some action on both dominion and provincial levels. The question which we believe to be of wide general interest is this: what would the liberalizing of our divorce laws mean?

* * *

At present the principal reason for which a Canadian court will grant a divorce is adultery. In Nova Scotia cruelty is recognized as a valid reason, and in Alberta certain sexual crimes are similarly recognized. As we pointed out in an earlier editorial, this emphasis on adultery forces many people who want divorces to commit adultery, or pretend to do so, in order to manufacture evidence which will satisfy a court. What other grounds for divorce are there which deserve attention?

* * *

The divorce laws in England, which were liberalized in 1938 (chiefly owing to the tireless activity of Sir Alan Herbert) recognize in addition to adultery, cruelty, desertion for three years or more, and incurable insanity of at least five years duration. There are virtually no other grounds which the courts will recognize. There are several reasons for which a court may grant a decree of nullity, as in cases of bigamy or fraud or otherwise where the union has been invalid from the beginning. And it is recognized that if a man and his wife simply cannot get along together they can separate by mutual consent. But "incompatibility of temperament" is not a ground for divorce. It must be noted, however, that a separation makes it impossible for either party to sue for a divorce on grounds of desertion at a later date.

* * *

Cruelty means just what it says; calculated action injurious to health. Mental cruelty, if it is injurious to health, comes under the same heading, and judges have wide discretion to decide what is mental cruelty and what is simply quarreling.

* * *

Desertion may mean leaving husband or wife in the lurch, or it may mean bringing another partner into the house and reducing the married partner to a position of indignity. This is called "constructive desertion". If this happens the offended party may leave the house, and take divorce action after three years. The regulations regarding incurable insanity require no explanation.

* * *

It is especially noteworthy that in England no action for divorce can be taken until at least three years have passed after marriage. A decree of nullity or a judicial separation may be sought earlier, but not a divorce.

* * *

If Canada's divorce laws were to be liberalized, they would probably take a form very much like those which have been in force in England since 1938. These laws are humane, and they provide relief for many people who find themselves in intolerable situations. At present, in Canada, such people must either grin and bear it, or they must commit adultery in order to get grounds for divorce. The English laws do not appear to us to leave any loopholes for foolish or irresponsible people who like to change partners frequently. They certainly have not turned the English courts into divorce mills, which seems to be the fear of some Canadians, whenever liberalizing of our own laws is mentioned. Nor do they threaten the sanctity of the home, about which so much concern is expressed. The precise degree of sanctity of a home which has been made miserable by cruelty, or desertion, or insanity, has never been completely clarified, and may be taken to exist chiefly in the minds of people who believe that divorce is an unthinkable evil. Certainly irresponsible divorce is an evil, but divorce on proper and adequate grounds is a necessity in a modern state. To deny it is to force many people into unmerited unhappiness, and many others into adultery as a means of securing legal redress for their wrongs.

73 Lawyers, 1 Organist

Members of Parliament are known by their parties. So at the last election, 189 Liberals were elected, 41 Progressive Conservatives, 13 C.C.F., 10 Social Credit, five Independent Liberals, and one "Liberal Labour". But party affiliation is a blurring description of the Honourable Members. They do live, move, have families and other jobs, all 262 of them. The Canadian Parliamentary Guide, issued annually as a private publishing enterprise by G. Pierre Normandin of Ottawa, is a biographical clue to these persons of Parliament.

The Guide reveals that lawyers still hold the Ottawa citadel: 73 M.P.'s are lawyers. There are many reasons why lawyers continue to dominate parliament and its debates, and the chief one is that the law is still regarded as a political stepping stone to parliament; therefore would-be parliamentarians tend to choose law as their profession. Only 17 M.P.'s have listed themselves as merchants, but 35 call themselves farmers. Some of them have even been known to don overalls for special news pictures; and actually some of them are real farmers. There is a butcher from Quebec, a professional hockey player from Ontario ('Bucko' McDonald), a New Brunswick fisherman, a baker, a dentist, and even an organist. One member old-fashionedly labels himself merely "gentleman". The biggest man in the House of Commons is J. R. Garland of Nipissing; he weighs 500 pounds.

The Parliamentary Guide is not only a reference book on Ottawa. Each provincial parliament is analysed and biographical sketches given of the members. It is a vade mecum for civil servants, editors, and even, we suspect, for the parliamentarians themselves.

Invest In The West Indies?

The surest way to build up continuous trade with a country is to invest in it (unless it be a country like China, which has turned out to be a bad investment). The investment earns the money of that country which in turn can be used to buy the products of the home country. Britain invested heavily in Canada before the war of 1914 (and her investment money here is still large). This gave her Canadian dollars to buy our wheat and timber without financial limits, and also good profits. Since 1900 the American investment in Canada has been colossal; and the United States earns as many Canadian dollars as it needs for any Canadian imports. Canada is still not heavily endowed with her own venture capital—for instance, Canadians did not seem to have the money to float the great Labrador iron enterprise, or even the Alberta oil development. U.S. capital has done it. But Canada should have capital reserves for less costly projects outside our borders. Canadian investment in the West Indies (where already Canadian banks are well represented) might prove not only sound but economically advantageous.

That is the suggestion made by Michael Foot, a leading Labour member of the British House of Commons. A Conservative in that House, Alan Lennox-Boyd, recently criticized the Labour Government for its trade policies which were hampering Canada.

"We are told it is not possible for Jamaica to buy her malt in Canada because of dollars (the sterling area's dollar shortage). She has to get it in Denmark.

"Trinidad cannot get her meat products from Canada but has to get them from Australia. In Bermuda, hams are not allowed to come from Canada but have to be got from Australia.

"Canada, with an import trade four times what it was before the war, now has, in effect, a standstill in trade with many colonies and a decline in trade with some others."

If Britain revised her colonial trade policy so that the West Indian door were opened wider to Canada, and Canada increased her investment capital in the B.W.I., trade between Canada and the West Indies, naturally complementary, would flourish.

NOTE AND COMMENT

An English clergyman complains of the use of the word 'oecumenical', which he says many people do not understand. There is nothing to prevent such people from looking it up in a dictionary. It is a mistake to shrink a language to fit the needs of the lazy.

Notes And Queries

By ALPHA

Questions are solicited for this column particularly those relating to local lore and tradition.

SIR: Which is the largest of these four counties: Peterborough, Durham, Victoria, Northumberland?

ANSWER: Victoria — and it has 100,000 more acres than Peterborough county (though less water). The comparative areas are: Victoria, 488,739 acres; Northumberland, 426,544 acres; Peterborough, 384,530 acres; Durham, 352,616 acres. By the way, more than half (or 200,000 acres) of Peterborough county is unarable or unimproved land. It has the least "improved" acreage and the second largest number of "unimproved" acres.

◇ ◇ ◇

DEAR ALPHA: I am planning a trip abroad this summer. The way you skip around in your column from place to place, I judge that you have seen quite a bit of the world. What I want to know is this: would you advise me to take an organized tour—you know the kind—one fee covers everything, right down to tips—or risk making my own hotel, train, etc. reservations? What are hotel conditions like over there now—accommodation hard to find?

ANSWER: Advice to would-be travellers is as dangerous and of as low price as advice to the love-lorn. Ask a travel agency. Anyway, if you have not made your Atlantic crossing arrangements yet, the chances are that you will stay on the North American continent this summer, unless you fly. Ship space is still hard to get, despite the fact that fares are very high. Now it seems almost impossible to get a return Atlantic fare less than $450.

When I first crossed I had return passage from Montreal for $125. But that was a dozen years ago, and I travelled third class. There is no third class now: accommodation has been re-labelled. Pre-ward 3rd class is now "Tourist" (same berths, same ships). Pre-war Tourist is now "Cabin". And the Cabin class of pre-war (then available in the smaller ships as their top rating) is now called First Class. Pre-war First Class has not changed, except that every passenger ship now has a First Class, even if it did not rate this category before the war. Also, First Class fares are now really sky-high. Another point not generally realized: Shipping companies have a habit of raising the category of their accommodation during the busy summer season. Cabins on C or D deck which may be rated Tourist in winter are sold as Cabin Class in summer. The companies are having an easy time of it now: so many North Americans want to go overseas that they have only to keep their ordinary fares slightly under the top air travel rates to fill their ships.

◇ ◇ ◇

I TAKE your travel questions as an excuse for rambling notes. Do you want the name of a good dentist in Nagasaki (Japan)? Try Dr. Makoto Matsuzoe, telephone number Nagasaki 901. What does one do with a dirty shirt in Cebu in the Philippines? Send it to the Southern Sanitary Steam Laundry, 312 Martires, phone Cebu 614-J. These and a hundred other handy items of information are contained in an astonishing travellers' book, "The Seamen's Handbook for Shore Leave". The latest edition of this book, first published in 1919, tells sailors about hostels, banks, consulates, excursions; how to avoid sunstroke, sharks and sharkers; getting along with the natives; that Chefoo, China, is a bad place to jump ship because the jails are lousy and other ships may not appear for months. The handbook is an American compilation and a good example of American enterprise.

The first guide for American seamen was prepared in 1910 by Rear Admiral William Sims of the U.S. navy, a native Canadian of Port Hope. He prepared a brief on the port of Gravesend before the American fleet visited that city. The sailors who used Admiral Sims bar-and-hotel guide had a good time; the one sailor who didn't was robbed of all his money, clothes, and boatswain's whistle. After this success, our Port Hope American Admiral suggested to Mrs. Alice S. Howard, wife of an American yachtsman, that there should be a similar guide for all ports. That was the beginning of "The Seaman's Handbook for Shore Leave".

I have wandered far from the original questions. My advice—which you won't take—is to consult a travel agency. Even if you do not go on a full tour organized by Cook's, the American Express, or some reputable tourist office in Canada, a firm like Cook's will book your hotels and trains when you want them and where you want them, and look after you while you are there.

◇ ◇ ◇

SIR: Is "guess", in the meaning of think or believe, good English?

ANSWER: Not terribly. It is a North Americanism, but like many other American terms believed to be gross it is, in this usage, a survival of earlier good English, brought over by the English colonists to America in the seventeenth century. Its use in this sense dropped out of polite society in England long ago, but survived (not too politely) on this side of the Atlantic. I noticed on Easter Saturday on the Examiner's feature page a quotation of the Easter Biblical story in Wickliffe's translation which read: "She (Mary), guessing that he (Jesus) was the gardener", etc.

Chaucer says:

"Her yellow hair was braidèd in a tress
Behind her back, a yarde long, I guess."

In Spencer one finds: "Amylia will be lov'd as I mote gheese". But now-a-days in polite Canadian society, "guess" means "guess" and not think or believe.

◇ ◇ ◇

FOR THE RECORD: An interesting official calculation came my way the other day. The Ontario Bureau of Statistics estimates that Peterborough county has 1.35 per cent. of the purchasing power of the Province; and that the metropolitan district of Toronto enjoys a third of the purchasing power of the entire province. Frontenac county (of which Kingston is the county town) has the same purchasing power as Peterborough. Middlesex county (London) has more than twice the purchasing power of Peterborough.

THE NEW ENGLISH SINGERS have succeeded the original group founded by the late Cuthbert Kelly in 1922, for the performance of unaccompanied music of the 16th and 17th centuries, as well as modern works. For nearly 30 years the group has sustained its reputation as an ensemble of rare artistry and polish. Seen above are Margaret Ritchie, Nellie Carson, Joyce Sutton, Harry Barnes, Roland Robson and Victor Harding. (See article below).

The New English Singers

By C. B. REES

ALMOST thirty years ago, perhaps with trepidation in their hearts, a nameless group of six singers gave their first concert in London. Now that group has become internationally famous; since that day in the February of 1920 it has with hard work and determination achieved a world-wide reputation for its highly accomplished ensemble singing. It has travelled throughout Europe and throughout the United States and Canada; its members have changed from time to time and some of the most distinguished names in music have been associated with it. Sir Steuart Wilson, Head of the British Broadcasting Corporation's Music Department, once sang with it. So did two of England's leading tenors—Peter Pears and Eric Greene; indeed, all its members have had distinguished careers in their own right.

This group of six singers, now known internationally as the New English Singers, was founded in 1922 by the late Cuthbert Kelly, who died in 1948 in London at the age of seventy-one. Its special province has always been the principles of ensemble in the English Madrigals. A civil servant by profession, Cuthbert Kelly was an amateur musician of the highest standing who first won praise in the musical world by his work at Oxford House in Bethnal Green, one of the poorer quarters of London, where under great difficulties he created an active musical life centred chiefly round the choral society, which appeared annually at Queen's Hall in London. Soon after the First World War Kelly was giving concerts of Tudor music with a quartet of singers; this grew into the famous sextet, then called the "English Singers", who sang seated round a table, one voice to each part, as the Elizabethans used to do—singing their after-supper madrigals while still in their places at the supper table.

Only two years after the group was formed, it was invited to sing in Prague by the Czechoslovak Ministry of Education, at a series of concerts conducted by Sir Adrian Boult, so in January, 1924, the English Singers embarked on what proved to be the first of many European tours. Three months later they travelled to Berlin, Prague and Vienna, and the following year gave a more extended tour in Czechoslovakia and Berlin, with a visit to Holland in the autumn of that year.

The original members of the English Singers were Flora Mann, Winifred Wheler, Lilian Berger, Steuart Wilson, Clive Carey, and Cuthbert Kelly. In October, 1924, the group was reconstituted; Nellie Carson (Mrs. Cuthbert Kelly) joined it, and this group made the first American tour, in 1925, at the invitation of Mrs. Coolidge. In addition to their special study of the English madrigals, the English Singers were instrumental in introducing to the world the unaccompanied music of Vaughan Williams, and in particular his folk-song settings.

IN 1932 the English singers were again reformed, and re-named the "New English Singers", but Cuthbert Kelly was still director, and remained so until his death. Annual tours were made in America and more occasional ones in Europe, and wherever they went they were received with acclamation from the musical world. In 1936 they visited Vienna, Budapest, Prague, Cracow, and Warsaw (a tour undertaken for the British Council); countries they visited included Spain, Switzerland, Italy, France, Austria and Czechoslovakia. War came again and their activities were hampered, but as soon as possible after the Second World War had ended the group set off on its travels again to take English madrigal singing to Italy and Austria. They have, in fact, just returned from a most successful tour of Austria, where they visited Vienna, Linz, Klagenfurt, Graz, Innsbruck and Salzburg; their repertoire included sixteenth and seventeenth century motets, madgrials and ballets by Byrd and Thomas Morley, folk-songs with arrangements by Vaughan Williams, and duets, trios and rotas by Purcell. This is a typical example of the sort of English ensemble singing they have presented abroad for so many years with such success.

Apart from their energetic travels on the Continent and America, the New English Singers have an unique reputation in their own country for their particular specialized type of singing. For an example of their achievements in the United Kingdom one need go no farther back than 1947 when for the Arts Council of Great Britain they gave the first London performance of Orazio Vecchi's "Amfiparnasso", an opera in madrigal form written in 1597. The opera itself was performed by the Lanchester Marionettes, and is a story of the old comedy type containing the usual characters—Pantaloon, the lovers, Zany, the boasting soldier, and so on. The opera was translated for this occasion by Professor Edward J. Dent, and the New English Singers not only sang at the concert performance but recorded the music for use by the Lanchester Puppets. The occasion was one of London's main musical events at that time, and the elite of the musical coterie was drawn to the Wigmore Hall to see and hear a performance whose interest was not only antiquarian but one of liveliness, freshness and charm. The combination of the skilfully manipulated puppets and the polished singing of the New English Singers drew high praise from the audience.

THE present members of the New English Singers are Margaret Ritchie, Nellie Carson, Joyce Sutton, Harry Barnes, Roland Robson, and Victor Harding. Nelly Carson (Mrs. Cuthbert Kelly) has valiantly shouldered her late husband's responsibilities, acts as Director of the group, and continues to organize tours both in Britain's provinces and abroad, and one cannot but admire her courage and determination in carrying on her husband's work.

When you consider the difficulties of present-day travelling, the continual living in suitcases, the discomforts and even dangers that must be endured, you can fully appreciate the devotion to a cause shown by this outstanding and unique group of singers. Music has always been an ambassador a peacemaker. At the end of the First World War countries were drawn together again at international Festivals by the common bond of music-making. The New English Singers are certainly ambassadors of British music, of music which goes back to the earliest days of music-making in Britain. The most natural musical instrument is the human voice, and wherever several singers are gathered together the charming pattern of ensemble singing can bring pleasure to so many.

Old-Timers' Evening In London

(New York Herald Tribune)

Britain's Queen Mary, mother of King George, went to the Lindsey theatre Tuesday evening to see "The Orange Orchard," a play by Eden Phillpotts, who is 87 years old. Afterward she talked with the leading actress, Nancy Price, who is 70. Then with Charles Wreford, who taught the cast its Devon dialect. He told the Queen Mother he was 78. She replied: "I am 83."

Bible Message

(From the Authorized Version)

And one of the Pharisees desired him that he would eat with him. And he went into the Pharisee's house, and sat down to meat. And, behold, a woman in the city, which was a sinner, when she knew that Jesus sat at meat in the Pharisee's house, brought an alabaster box of ointment, and stood at his feet behind him weeping, and began to wash his feet with tears, and did wipe them with the hairs of her head, and kissed his feet, and anointed them with the ointment.

Now when the Pharisee which had hidden him saw it, he spake within himself, saying, This man, if he were a prophet, would have known who and what manner of woman this is that toucheth him: for she is a sinner.

And Jesus answering said unto him, Simon, I have somewhat to say unto thee. And he saith, Master, say on. There was a certain creditor which had two debtors: the one owed five hundred pence, and the other fifty. And when they had nothing to pay, he frankly forgave them both. Tell me therefore, which of them will love him most? Simon answered and said, I suppose that he, to whom he forgave most. And he said unto him, Thou hast rightly judged.

And he turned to the woman, and said unto Simon, Seest thou this woman? I entered into thine house, thou gavest me no water for my feet: but she hath washed my feet with tears, and wiped them with the hairs of her head. Thou gavest me no kiss: but this woman since the time I came in hath not ceased to kiss my feet. My head with oil thou didst not anoint: but this woman hath anointed my feet with ointment. Wherefore I say unto thee, Her sins, which are many, are forgiven: for she loved much: but to whom little is forgiven, the same loveth little.

And he said to the woman, Thy faith hath saved thee; go in peace. (Luke 7: 36-47, 50.)

HOW MUCH?

A man took his wife to the doctor. He was a simple fellow and had lived in the country all his life.

The doctor placed a thermometer in the wife's mouth. Just before he removed it, the man, who had watched spellbound, being unused to such silence on the part of his better half, blurted out: "Doctor, what will you take for that thing you put in her mouth?"

SURPRISE

A man took his daughter on a trip to London. They went to one of those plays that made father blush a bit.

"I'm sorry, Dorothy, that I brought you here," he said. "This is hardly a play for a girl of your age."

"Oh, that's all right, Dad. It'll probably liven up a bit before the end."

HAVELOCK, May 5 (ENS) — The Rev. P. A. Rickard of St. John's Anglican Church conducted the installation of officers of Havelock Home and School Association Monday. Mrs. H. McNeely was re-elected president, and other officers elected were:

First vice-president, Mrs. L. H. Harrison; second vice-president, Mrs. Grenville Rutherford; secretary, Mrs. Donald Kirk; treasurer, Mrs. Harry Anderson; executive, Mesdames George Hubbel, James Wilde, Derwood Scott, Harry Pollock, Burness Johnson; Principals R. D. Buchanan of the public school and J. Caskey of the high school are also members of the executive committee by virtue of their positions and will appoint a member of their respective staffs to the committee.

The nominating committee's report was presented by the convener, Mrs. L. H. Cooke.

After the installation ceremony the following conveners were named: program, Mrs. F. McKay; health, Mrs. L. H. Cooke; social, Mrs. G. Whitney; literature, Mrs. W. Corneil.

Mr. Rickard complimented the society on the splendid work it was doing.

Net proceeds of the amateur night sponsored by the society last week were reported to be $88.25. The membership fee was raised to 50 cents.

Present Program

Mrs. McKay presided during the program. Mrs. G. Wright sang with Mrs. D. Kirk as accompanist. Miss Barbara Pollock played a piano solo.

The Rev. P. A. Rickard was guest speaker and took as his subject "A study of the child in our midst."

Mrs. L. H. Cooke gave a talk on immunization against communicable diseases.

Report Convention

Mrs. James Wilde read the report of the H. and S. convention held recently in Toronto, which was prepared by the delegate, Mrs. Harry Anderson, who was unable to attend the meeting.

A scrapbook containing reports and programs of all the meetings of the local Home and School Association was on display.

The attendance shield, with a prize of $1 was won by Miss Hunter's room.

CUPID HAD AN ASSIST in the surrender of the fourth man involved in last week's $4,400 holdup at a branch of the Royal Bank of Canada, in Montreal. Nick Cooper, 22, turned himself over to The Montreal Herald recently with more than $2,000 in cash, which he described as the proceeds of the bank robbery, highlighted by a gun battle with two police officers. Two others, Eric McConnell, 26, and Jean Brunet, 25, are scheduled to be sentenced this week for the theft; George Wallace, 20, who was shot in the stomach, is still in hospital. Shown above is Nick Cooper, 22, of Verdun, Que., with 19-year-old Elaine Masters, the girl he surrendered for.

Envoys Bored, Nothing To Do

OTTAWA, May 5. — (CP).— Senator A. C. Hardy (L-Ontario) said Thursday that Dr. E. H. Coleman, Canada's Minister to Cuba, is "bored to death because he has nothing to do." And, he said, he's not the only Canadian envoy in the same position.

Disrupting the calm of Senate External Affairs committee, te Brockville barrister and business man said he didn't blame Dr. Coleman—former Undersecretary of State—for that situation.

The trouble arose, Senator Hardy snapped, from the fact that Canada's whole diplomatic service has "grown too rapidly and too large."

His statement emerged as Leon Mayrand, Assistant Undersecretary of the External Affairs Department, was being asked whether Canada couldn't do with consuls-generals in some capitals where she maintains full diplomatic missions.

Mr. Mayrand told Senator Hardy he was sure Canada's business interests in Cuba were of a size to keep Dr. Coleman busy. Diplomats tended to operate at a higher level than consul sand had access to places consuls don't attain. They therefore had greater advantages.

"There's too much keeping up with the Joneses," said Senator Hardy.

Chrysler Strikers Lost $1,000 In Pay

DETROIT, May 5 (AP)—Each worker lost an average of $1,000 in pay during the Chrysler strike, a United Automobile Workers (CIO) source said Thursday.

In return, he gained benefits amounting to about 10 cents an hour.

If the average union member works a 40-hour week for 50 weeks a year, he would thus gain about $200 a year—which would take him five years to make up the lost $1,000.

Blue Cross REPORTS..
TO EVERY THIRD ONTARIAN!

Ontario Hospital Association
Toronto 5, Ont.

TO 1,350,000 BLUE CROSS PARTICIPANTS IN ONTARIO:

One in every three Ontarians—every third person who reads this letter—has voluntarily selected the same non-profit Blue Cross hospital-care protection you enjoy.

In 1949, 91 cents of every subscription dollar was put into immediate action to provide payment for hospitalization on behalf of Plan participants. Of this amount, 82 cents was paid to hospitals, 6 cents for wages and 3 cents covered office space, stationery and all other expenses. Hospital bills alone amounted to $10,273,251.86 for the year - - - almost one million dollars per month.

The 9 cents, over and above the 91 cents used to provide hospitalization, was held in a "rainy day" fund as directed by the Ontario Department of Health to protect your Blue Cross investment.

Blue Cross is an extension of hospital service. It is strictly non-profit and has only one purpose . . . to provide a means whereby the people of this province can budget against the cost of unexpected hospital expense.

Yours sincerely,

W. Douglas Piercey, M.D.
President.

P.S.—The members of the Executive Committee who guide Blue Cross affairs serve without remuneration of any kind.

9th YEAR
OF PROGRESS IN ONTARIO

Over 10 million dollars — 82% of subscription income paid in hospital benefits.

Low operating costs — only 9% of each subscription dollar.

Blue Cross is sound. Reserve position strong in case of unexpected increases in cost.

Total of hospital bills paid since 1941 exceeded 28 million dollars at end of 1949.

Atkins Downs Bockwinkle In Top Bout of Mat Card

Fred Atkins, Australian heavyweight wrestling champion, defeated Warren Bockwinkle, 248—two pounds lighter—in the deciding fall of the main bout at the Brock Arena last night. He did it with his "Kangaroo Klamp" (like a reverse double leglock) after catching Warren coming off the ropes with a hard blow to the midriff. It softened the speedy, big [illegible], after the latter had been holding his own in a hard, rough third round, each throwing punches. The fall came in slightly more than eight minutes.

Bockwinkle, a favorite with the crowd—although Atkins had his supporters, too—won the second fall in eight minutes to even up the scrap. He took it with flying tackles off the ropes and a spread, coming off too fast for Fred to time his blows. Warren had Atkins groggy before that with a series of headlocks and smashing slams to the floor, being the aggressor this time and keeping right on top of the champ. The latter tried some punches and other rough stuff, but found Bock ready to mix, also. Though he lost this fall, scrappy Fred had more pulling for him than in the first round for his game showing after taking quite a pounding around.

Roughs it up

The short-tempered Aussie won the first fall in 16 minutes with a rolling choke-hold that referee Ernie Powers appeared powerless to stop. When Bockwinkle played it clean and aggressive, Atkins began to rough it up to draw jeers. Warren was big and strong as well as being a speedy and experienced matman, and he gave the Australian a tough time of it. But the scowling Atkins began hitting him on breaks and using the knee, having the referee in the middle once. Finally catching him around the neck and rolling too fast to be halted till he had Bock's shoulders pinned.

The semi-final was a sizzler, with Johnny Barend, at 225, winning in 18 minutes over 290-pound Hi Lee when the referee disqualified the big, rought Texan. Lee was pulling Johnny's hair and kneeing him in the face, despite repeated warnings, and then he twice knocked the referee to the floor, and Powers angrily disqualified him for more illegal tactics. It was a hot session as the popular Johnny had more speed and drive to give Lee a busy time, but Hi had the size, strength and rough stuff to generally hold an edge. Powers warned each in turn, as Barend fought back fiercely after taking a pummelling along the ropes. It was a popular decision with the fans.

Goes to Draw

Roy McClarity, 230 pounds, and the 228-pound Al (Krusher) Korman put on a warmish prelim which went to a time limit draw. McClarity of Winnipeg was popular and generally hustled Al too much for the latter to get in his usual villainous display. Though he did dish up some of his nastier tricks at times. A punishing armlock bothered Korman plenty and he was lifted right off the floor with it. Later Al began hair-pulling and bothering Roy, who kept boring in to provide heaps of action. There was fast stuff off the ropes and coner to corner cuffing, with Korman getting Roy's head hard in the chest at times. They dished it up right to the final gong to get a draw as the fans cheered.

Marlies, Calgary Great Friends Series Even 1-1

By ERWIN FRICKE

CALGARY, May 5 (CP)—Toronto Marlboros and Calgary Stampeders appear to be going all out to retain the friendly sporting bond that has developed between the two cities in the last two years.

There is none of the bickering in this year's Allan Cup final that went on last year when Regina Caps went east to meet Ottawa Senators in the Dominion senior hockey playoff.

Club officials recall the Toronto-Calgary camaraderie that has sprung up since Calgary's footballing Stampeders and their supporters took the Ontario capital by storm.

Here are some typical after-the-heat-of-battle comments:

Toronto defenceman Flash Hollett: "Those Stampeders are the cleanest-playing team we've played this year."

Harold Ballard, Marlboros' president: "Calgary has the fastest-skating team we've come across this season."

Lloyd Turner, Stampeder manager: "Toronto has a fine, fast-skating club that is going to make us work hard to win."

Byron (Butch) McDonald, Calgary coach: "They are a good clean club. It will be the team that gets the breaks that will win the series."

Things are palsy-walsy now. And the best-of-seven series is tied at a game apiece. Maybe relations will become a little more strained when the final nears the finish. Third game will be played here Saturday.

Meanwhile however the Marlies are the toast of the town.

Final proof that the Dukes are "in" is their headgear: they now all sport big cowboy hats.

Oscar Judd Back To Pitch In Inter-County

By JIM BASTABLE.
Canadian Press Staff Writer.

Oscar Judd comes back home Saturday.

When the husky six-foot southpaw, still the nonchalant control hurler but with not quite the zip he had in the majors, curves the ball over the plate at Guelph Saturday against Galt Terriers he'll be back where he started 20 years ago—back in the Inter-county Senior Baseball League, starting the 1950 season.

It also will be a preview of things to expect for the other six clubs—Brantford Red Sox, Kitchener Legionnaires, St. Thomas Legion, London Majors, Waterloo Tigers and Stratford Nationals. It will be opening day for all clubs and they're all boasting revamped squads for the 26-game schedule.

But it will mean a little more to Judd. The 40-year-old Ingersoll, Ont., star has a king-sized job of helping to keep the Leafs out of the league cellar, where they've been for the last two seasons.

Top Batter

Judd should more than make up in batting whatever he has lost in his pitching arm. He made a name for himself as a pinch-hitter last season with Toronto Maple Leafs of the International League. In his last season with Guelph two decades ago he won the league batting championship.

When Judd left the Intercounty League he did a brief stint in the Pacific Coast League and eventually moved up to Boston Red Sox of the American League for the '41, '42 and '43 seasons. Then he put in several years with Philadelphia Phillies of the National League before moving to Toronto.

Hockey Players

While the former big-leaguer makes his first bid for victory in the new Intercounty season, several National Hockey League stars will be making their first appearance of the baseball season.

Howie Meeker, rugged winger with Toronto Maple Leafs, has taken over as playing-coach with Kitchener and will play as a shortstop. Pat Boehmer, netminder for the Allan-Cup-hunting Toronto Marlboros, also will be with Kitchener and will relieve on the mound. Boehmer now is in Calgary playing hockey against the Stampeders.

Another is right-fielder Clare Martin of Detroit Red Wings who signed with Waterloo. He played with the Tigers two years ago but sat out the 1949 campaign to rest an injured knee.

Brantford Strong

The big question today is where former NHL star Don Gallinger will play. Playing-manager with Waterloo for the last two seasons, he has signed up with Kitchener. However, officials said he hasn't yet received a release from the Tigers—and can't play elsewhere until he gets one.

The defending champion Brantford Red Sox appear to be the strongest team. They have several new stars plus most of last year's squad.

Backbone of the team will be its three top hurlers of last season—Southpaw Alf Gavey and righthanders Nig Parker and Billy Gibbs. Their late-season drive last year gave the Red Sox the title.

Bagotville Wins Inter. Crown

ROUYN, Que., May 5 (CP) — Bagotville Allies made a clean sweep of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association eastern Canada intermediate A final series Thursday night by defeating Rouyn Flashes 6-2 in the third game of a best-of-five series. Bagotville won the other games 6-3 and 6-4.

Bagotville, with a strong backchecking team of fast skaters, went in front at 4:35 of the opening period, when Vic Kyryluk fired the first counter past Harper from a scramble in front of the Rouyn net. From that point on, there was never any doubt in the minds of the 4,100 spectators concerning the eventual outcome.

At a late hour Thursday night, the Bagotville players still were undecided as to whether they would play an unofficial series against Port Colborne for the eastern Canada title. Port Colborne previously withdrew from further competition.

SPORTS SHOW WINDOW

By CEC. PERDUE, Sports Editor

Fastball will again feature Industrial League diamonds this summer, following re-organization of this lively circuit the other day. Six teams in: Quakers, Westclox, Woollens, Nashua, Canoe Co. and Mount Pleasant. Bill Gunn is president, George Giles vice-prexy, Horace Fisher secretary, and Ken Crompton the treasurer. Team managers are on the executive, too. They'll hold a meeting next Tuesday eve. at 7.30 in the Quaker clubhouse to draft rules for the season and draw up the schedule. This loop takes care of a lot of shop employees each summer and they play a good brand of ball, somewhat similar to softball.

Chap was telling us the other day of an odd case that came up a year ago in a big league ball game. A runner was on first with none out when the batter hit a pop fly just back of short. Runner on first went halfway to second and stopped to await developments, the batter meantime racing down to first and making a short break toward second. Fielders converged on the ball and let it drop. Shortstop picked it up excitedly and threw wild to first. Question then arose as to how far the runners could advance on the error. Each was heading toward second and, according to rules, was entitled to that base and one extra on the over-throw. That would have put both on third. It wasn't covered in the rules, but the ump ruled that common sense called for the first runner to go to third and the other one to second.

Hank Has His Troubles

In Bill Westwick's column in the Ottawa Journal, we note this item: "Hank Blade came home yesterday, but under unusual circumstances. The Chicago Black Hawks and Kansas City Plamors star was taken ill while in Windsor, and underwent an emergency operation on Monday. He was flown home yesterday, and will remain here for a couple of weeks before going back to his summer position with Wallace Brothers shows." Hank, who was born in Peterborough, son of Mr. and Mrs. Art Blade, is playing coach of Kansas City in the winter months.

Also in Ottawa, an Indian pro grappler by the name of Sunny War Cloud is matched with Jim (Goon) Henry, no stranger to mat fans here. The interesting part of it is that this Sunny War Cloud—when is a cloud sunny, by the way?—is managed by Jim Thorpe. Older sports followers will recall that Thorpe was all-American in football at Carlisle at one time, then played pro ball for the Giants, and was the world's outstanding athlete in the 1912 Olympics. But he had to return his amateur trophies when it was learned he had played semi-pro ball. We saw him many years later playing professional football in Detroit, still a potent plunger and blocker.

Fred Picks Up Marbles

Along the Rue Brock last gloaming, some mat fans didn't know which grappler to support in the main bout. Fred Atkins always dishes up a hard driving scrape and has his followers here. But Warren Bockwinkle last e'en played it cleaner and gave Atkins a stiff go of it all the way to draw more cheers. However, cheers don't always help, and Atkins won the deciding fall. He's an extremely short-tempered guy in or out of the ring—we've seen him around the dressing rooms—and he puts a lot into every bout. A fan would indeed be rash to touch him as he leaves the ring. Johnny Barend got the semi-pro final when shaggy-haired and roaring Hi Lee was disqualified for illegal stuff, plus cuffing the ref, though Ernie was powerless at times. McClarity and Korman dished up a pleasing prelim draw.

Peterborough Minor Baseball Association — the name now for the City League—re-organized at the "Y" last night, with these officers chosen: President, Dit Clapper; vice-prexy, Cy Whatley; secretary, Al Watkins; treasurer, Ray Pammett; executive committee, Wilf Langan, Percy Killingbeck, Pat Calladine and Alex Kay. Four conveners will be appointed later for the loop divisions, the league using the zone system again. The PMHA has some $38 balance now but paid off more than $200 last year of an old debt, and should do well this season. Recreation Commission will try to find more ball parks for the kids and make a financial grant. Other info in elsewhere and we'll have more from time to time.

Toronto To Play 1st Sunday Game

By JACK SULLIVAN

TORONTO, May 5 (CP)—Toronto will be caught with its celebrated scruples down on Sunday, much to the delight of the 88,108 citizens who exercised their franchise last New Year's Day and voted for organized Sunday sport in the city. It should be fun.

The official barriers-down ceremony will be held at the lakefront Maple Leaf Stadium. Two one-syllable words—"play ball"—will usher in this departure from tradition as Toronto's Maple Leafs and Jersey City Giants of the International Baseball League meet in a regular league doubleheader.

More than 20,000 fans will be on hand to root for the home team and also to become charter members of the "I-saw-the-first-organized-Sunday-ball-game" club in the city. The event has the full blessing of city fathers and Ontario authorities but the head men of both won't be around.

Frost Away

Premier Frost "will be away for the week-end and won't be at the game," his office told The Canadian Press today. It was the same at Mayor Hiram (Buck) McCallum's office—"the mayor has an out-of-town appointment," an official said.

Applications for tickets came in from nearly every Ontario city, setting an unprecedented demand for Leaf games. They not only ordered first-Sunday-game tickets but for all 11 dates.

Stadium officials are putting 6,000 tickets aside this Sunday. "We'll take care of any out-of-town fans who want something to do on Sunday," General Manager Joe Zeigler said Thursday.

Torontonians will celebrate another "first." Sunday's game will be broadcast by a Toronto station (CKEY) from the park—the first "live" broadcast of any Sunday sport in Ontario, although stations throughout the province have carried baseball and hockey games originating from outside its borders.

Propose Swimming Instruction At Omemee

OMEMEE, May 5—(ENS)—A suggestion to engage a swimming instructor for the children was made at the annual meeting of the Home and School Association.

No action was taken but the matter will be conducted at the June meeting.

Minor Baseball Organized For The Season

The Peterborough Minor Baseball Association cleared the decks for action last night in the "Y" at the annual reorganization meeting. The following officers were elected: President, Dit Clapper; vice-president, Cy Whatley; secretary, Al Watkins; treasurer, Ray Pammett; executive committee, Percy Killingbeck, Alex Kay, Wilf Langan and Pat Calladine. The executive will appoint conveners for peewee, bantam, midget and juvenile sections, and it is expected that there will be at least 16 zone teams playing.

With more than $200 paid off the past year on its old debt, the association has $38 on hand. A grant will be sought from the Recreation Commission and other means used to raise money to carry on. One is a raffle for a boat, tickets being sold by the young players with a bicycle offered the team selling most. This bike will be drawn for then and one player of the winning team will get it. A "peanut day" or something similar may be arranged, also, and the league gets some financial aid through senior ball games.

An Advisory Club

Recreation Director Alec Sinclair explained that the committee recently picked from the senior club, the PMBA and the commission, was strictly an advisory committee, but every assistance possible would be given the minors. They will apply to the commission for four parks, besides Riverside, for use for baseball, as each team will want two games a week and Riverside will not often be available until the lights are installed. Dit Clapper said Tip Tops of Toronto will stage an exhibition game here in June to raise money for the loop which will be affiliated with the OBA again.

It was explained that the duty of the conveners in each section would be to see that the games were started, with umpires on hand with proper equipment and the necessary baseballs ready for the game. The executive committee will check on four good men for those jobs and recommend them to the full executive. There was considerable discussion, also, on umpires and several other matters.

A few important rules were passed. One is that all birth certificates must be turned in to the secretary by July 1 or players will not participate in further games. Another one is that the winning team each game must turn the score cards or book into the section convener within 24 hours or forfeit the game. Another executive meeting will be held shortly.

Japanese Gate Crush Kills 3, Hurts 35

TOKYO, May 5 (AP)—Three Japanese gate crashers were trampled to death and 25 others were injured today in a rush on a baseball park at Sendai, Northern Japan, the newspaper Asahi reported.

The newspaper said 70,000 fans were waiting for the gates to open. About 50 decided to follow several small boys who had climbed the fence. The fence collapsed.

Thousands of fans then surged through the break, trampling those who fell.

Soccer Set To Go

The local soccer season opens Saturday afternoon with an Eastern Ontario League game between the Peterborough UE and Kingston Army eleven at King Edward Park. Kick-off at three o'clock. James Buchan will be the official referee.

The home team will be chosen from the following players: Thomas Foster Jr., Stan McGann, Eldon Downer, George Foster, Edgar Duffus, James Craig, Jack Chamberlain, Howard Steel, Robert Strong, Stanley J. Murduff, Alf L. Featherstone, George Downer, Joe Whitnell, Alfred F. Attard, and James Hutchinson. The Eastern League is composed of Belleville Navy, Belleville United, Kingston United, Ottawa Army, Kingston Army, Brockville and the local entry.

Your Host Picked To Take Kentucky Derby

LOUISVILLE, Ky., May 5 (AP)—Churchill Downs today prepared to close the entry box on a field of around 14 top three-year-olds for the 76th running of the Kentucky Derby.

Opinions were a dime a dozen on who will win the tough 1¼-mile $100,000 turf classic as a star-studded field headed by California's Your Host prepared for the battle charge at 5:30 p.m. EDT tomorrow. Most everyone qualifies his guesswork on the condition of the track, and whether more rain falls before post time.

The entry box—prematurely opened Thursday long enough for the names of six challengers to slip through—will close at 11 a.m. EDT this morning.

Your Host, who has been figured the speedball to step out the pace and try to roll all the way for the big pot and garland of roses, already has been entered.

He was the second name through the box Thursday, as some confusion attended the usually colorful entry ceremonies. The chestnut Alhibai colt owned by movieman William Goetz was the second one in the box. Trainer Ray Barnett submitted the name of Black George, winner of Tuesday's derby trial, as the No. 1 entry in the derby. Harry Daniels, Your Host's trainer, was next in line.

Hill Prince

Several other of the big names babies got in on Thursday's entry affair. The biggest name aside from Your Host is the Virginia dandy—Hill Prince.

Chris Chenery's strapping bay charger is figured the one to beat Your Host, if anything can do the job. He's a slow starter, but when Eddie Arcaro steps on the throttle, Hill Prince can mow 'em down. Johnny Longden is slated to ride Your Host.

Others already named were Hal Price Headley's Lotowhite, surprise winner over Hill Prince in the second experimental handicap; the tough little Flamingo winner, Tom Gray's Oil Capitol; and the long shot Stranded, owned by R. H. Abercrombie and W. H. Smith, Houston oilmen.

The latest count of horse noses at the Down's rambling barns showed that barring a broken leg or some other vital mishap, Middleground, On the Mark, Mr. Trouble, Sunglow, Greek Ship, Hallieboy, and Hawley were sure to come in at the $1,000 starting fee.

Regina Pats Grab 1st Win Over Montreal

MONTREAL, May 5 — (CP) — Regina Pats today have a new lease on life—at least until tomorrow night when they have another go at keeping their heads above water in the 1949-50 Memorial Cup series.

However, Thursday night's victory over Montreal Canadiens, their first in four starts, may prove to be the needed shot in the arm to keep them going on the never-to-be-taken-for-granted cup trial. The Caps downed the Montrealers 7-4.

The over-confident Canadiens, playing before a hometown crowd of 8,100 fans, sported a 4-1 lead midway through the second period. Everything was set to retain the cup won last year by Montreal's Junior Royals but then it happened.

Sink Six

The Pats conected for six straight markers with defenceman Lorne Davis the big gun, scoring three goals and assisting on two others.

Captain Morley McNeill, Doug Little, Gordie Cowan and Merv Bregg accounted for the other tallies.

For the losers, it was Art Rose, with two, and Jacques Nadon and Don Marshall with one apiece.

The opposing goalies—Roger Morrissette for Montreal and Bob Tyler for Regina—stopped 27 shots each but the Pats held a wide margin of play in the second half of the game.

First Blood

Canadiens jumped into an early one-goal lead with Rose scoring but Davis tied it up four minutes later. In the middle frame, Nadon, Rose and Marshall tallied in order to give the Montrealers a sizeable lead and, apparently the series.

The Cans then went to town, Davis, McNeill and Bregg rammed home counters in that order to deadlock the score at 4-4.

Cowan scored what proved to be the winning goal after six minutes of play in the finale and Little followed up six minutes later to bring the count to 6-4.

Morrissette was taken from the Montreal nets in the dying moments of the game but Davis scooped up a loose puck to round out the scoring.

CALLED HURDLING IN 1864

Running and jumping were not combined into the one hurdling event until the first Oxford and Cambridge meet in 1864.

White Sox Cain Was Able Yankees Whalloped 15-0

By JACK HAND,
Associated Press Sports Writer.

So Chicago White Sox raised Cain with New York Yankees.

Bob Cain, a skinny lefthander making his first big league start Thursday made the world champs look like prize chumps in a 15-0 rout.

Nobody ever treated the Yankees like that. And right at home too. Good thing for the front office, only 8,764 were on hand. Last time anybody blanked the Yanks at home was April 23, 1948.

Jack Onslow, Sox manager, gave Cain his first start because he wanted to throw a steady diet of southpaws at the Yanks.

Allowed Five Hits

While Cain muzzled New York with five hits, three of them by Phil Rizzuto, the Sox dug into Eddie Lopat and Don Johnson for a jackpot total of 23. The Yanks contributed four juicy errors.

Gus Zernial hoisted a tremendous 400-foot triple for the Sox, a double and two singles. Little Jim Busby, also had four hits. Hank Majeski had three, including a two-run homer.

While the slaughter in the Bronx continued, Cleveland broke Boston's six-game Fenway Park win streak 5-4.

Detroit Triumphs

Detroit rolled out of the heavy power to riddle Connie Mack's battered pitching staff. The Tigers collected 15 hits to trim Philadelphia 8-5 on Art Houtteman's five-hitter.

Vic Wertz and Hoot Evers drove in seven runs, enough to ruin the A's by themselves. Dick Kryhoski hit a homer off southpaw Lou Brissie in the second.

Mike Guerra kept the A's in the game with a three-run homer and double, driving in all five runs.

Joe Ostrowski of St. Louis Browns, pitched a five-hitter against Washington to cop his second straight 5-1. Rookie Ken Wood led the Browns with two singles and a double.

Revenge was sweet for Dick Sisler, a former St. Louis Card, who came home to haunt his old mates with five hits, driving in five runs in the Phillies' 9-6 night game victory. One of Sisler's blows was his third homer off loser Gerry Staley in the second.

Arm Trouble

Brooklyn came up with another sore arm case—Dan Bankhead—while smothering Chicago Cubs 10-2. Bankhead, riding easy on a 10-1 lead, complained about a pain in his right shoulder and left the game in the sixth. Erv Palica finished. Later it was reported Dan Tore a muscle in his shoulder and would be out indefinitely.

A few minutes before Bankhead's trouble, the Dodgers announced Don Newcombe was being sent home to rest up his sore arm.

Soon they'll be calling the Boston Braves the new "Murders' Row." They cut loose for 11 runs in the ninth inning Wednesday. Thursday they hit four homers in 12-6 romp over Cincinnati. The Braves now lead the majors with 15 home runs.

The big blows were homers by Earl Torgeson, Sam Jethroe, Willard Marshall and Connie Ryan.

New York Giants walked Ralph Kiner Thursday to get out of trouble in the ninth. Instead Nanny Fernandez followed with a game-winning home run to give Pittsburgh a 3-1 victory.

Fear Of Taxation On Capital Gains Slows Buying

VANCOUVER, May 5 (CP) — Fear of the federal government's taxation policy on capital gains has slowed investment buying in Canada, it was reported today in business circles.

Taxation authorities find a tendency to tax profits of certain transactions as capital gains, causing, it is claimed, slowness in the flow of risk capital.

Government officials are following tax laws to the letter, but it is reported the present act is not definite in showing the boundaries of income itself.

Court Decisions

"Under the new law and by recent decisions of the courts, we are seeing what we used to consider capital gains, taxed under the guise of income," H. Howard Stikeman told a meeting of businessmen here.

Mr. Stikeman is a Canadian member of the International Association for Public Finance and Fiscal Law.

He says it now is technically possible to tax all stock market trades where it can be established the shares were purchased with the intention they should be sold for a profit in a business way rather than held for an investment.

Finance Minister Abbott denied such an intention in his budget speech. But Mr. Stikeman said:

"Business and professional men alike are left to determine whether a transaction gives rise to taxable income or not as best they can.

Too Complex

"The whole taxation structure is so complex, that an accountant and lawyer now have to conduct preventive tax practices. He must so advise his client in advance of any transaction that the tax danger is minimized wherever legally possible under the law."

He said the uncertainty is a result of defective draftsmanship or lack of foresight on the part of legislators.

Mr. Stikeman said such a levy will slow down investments, especially in Western Canada where there are large capital expenditures either pending or under way.

"The lack of precision," he said, "leaves the business community in a state of increasing uncertainty and now is tending to inhibit the risking of capital in any venture which might possibly lead to the taxation of profits revived."

'Buck' St. Denis Set Judge Calgary Drama

TORONTO, May 5 — (CP) — Michel St. Denis, founder of London's Old Vic School of the Theatre and adjudicator for this year's Dominion Drama Festival, is prepared to don a 10-gallon hat and lead a parade in Calgary, if that's the order of the day.

He left here Thursday night with D. Park Jamieson, of Sarnia, chairman of the festival, for the big drama week opening in Calgary next Monday.

Mr. St. Denis was over once before, to adjudicate the festival at Ottawa in 1937.

The 1937 festival was largely composed of one-act plays with simple settings. Next week at Calgary he'll see a week of full-length plays, each professionaly compete with full production equipment in staging.

English Company Buys John Inglis

TORONTO, May 5 (CP) — The English Electric Company Ltd., of Britain Thursday announced purchase of a controlling interest in John Inglis Company Ltd., a Toronto firm.

The announcement, made here by Inglis president, Major J. E. Hahn, gave no purchase price but it was reported more than $2,000,000 was paid for the controlling interest.

Maj. Hahn, Inglis president since 1936, will retain his position and will continue company operations with the present executives.

English Electric is one of the world's largest producers of electrical equipment. Through wholly-owned subsidiaries and associated companies, it maintains a world-wide business in electrical, hydraulic and general engineering contracts. The company also manufactures a jet bomber.

The John Inglis firm manufactures a wide range of products for shipbuilding, steel, mining, and paper industries, and household and sporting appliances, in 25 buildings on 11 acres of land in west-central Toronto. During the war it had large contracts for Bren guns. Inglis early in 1948 acquired as a wholly-owned subsidiary, the English Electric Company of Canada, St. Catharines, Ont., after holding control since 1945.

Barbara Ann Makes Hit In U.S. Ice Show

HOLLYWOOD, May 5—(AP)—Figure-skating star Barbara Ann Scott made her debut with "Ice Capades of 1950" Thursday night and did it with the same graceful precision that won her world acclaim and the 1948 Oympic crown.

The petite blonde from Ottawa was featured in two numbers and was easily the hit of a hit-filled show—her first paid appearance in an ice extravaganza of this type since she turned professional last year.

She skated before a packed house of 6,500, including scores of Hollywood personalities.

Here To Skate

As to whether she has any immediate screen aspirations, Barbara Ann merely smiled and said, "I am here to skate in the Ice Capades. My agent will tell me what to do after that."

She was the only performer who was called on for encores, and she also took five curtain bows. Her first number was the Olympic routine and her second was skating ballet interpretation to the strain of "Because."

In reviewing the show, the Los Angeles Times said:

"The real top note is the appearance of Barbara Ann Scott, whose skating has singular grace and whose personal charm is persuasive to the ultimate degree. What she accomplishes seems not so difficult in essence but it is done with great ease and simplicity, concentrated in a final glide completely around the rink, its fine artistry distinguishes this young champion's work."

The Los Angeles Examiner referred to Barbara Ann as "dazzling."

Jail "Perfect Woman"

TUEBINGEN, Germany May 5 —(Reuters) — Blonde Gertrude Scholtz-Klink, 47, Hitler's "perfect woman" and No. 1 Nazi women's leader, was sentenced to 2½ years imprisonment by a denazification appeal court Thursday. Her husband, Joseph Heissmayer, a former S.S. colonel-general, was classified as "a major Nazi offender" by the same court and sentenced to three years.

SMOKE RISES FROM A BURNING HOME in Krestova, a "dog-patch" type village in British Columbia, 250 miles from Vancouver, after police broke up a two-day fire and nudism demonstration of the Doukhobors. Seven of the unpainted, one-storey frame homes were burned by the Doukhobors, who said they were protesting against the hydrogen bomb and warning of a third world war.

Sideline Charles Louis To Return?

CHICAGO, May 5 (AP)—The spectre of Joe Louis haunted the heavyweight boxing scene today with National Boxing Association champion Ezzard Charles sidelined for at least 90 days by an ailing heart.

Louis, currently on an exhibition tour in Brazil, says Charles' possible retirement from the ring because of his health "is going to change my plans."

The Brown Bomber's partner in the International Boxing Club, Jim Norris, says he believes Louis "would like to be the first heavyweight champion to win back the title."

The 35-year-old Louis, popped back into the already complex heavyweight picture Thursday when Charles flunked a rigorous, three-hour physical examination by the Illinois Athletic Commission and was declared "not fit to fight at the present."

Charles was adjudged to have "a vascular condition of the heart."

Charles Surprised

"It is our suggestion that Charles be re-examined in three months to determine whether he is fit for fighting," the report of two commission physicians said.

The commission's findings came as a surprise to most observers. Charles was speechless.

He refused to comment on the doctors' report. Previous to the examination he told reporters he was in "perfect shape" and ready to take on Freddie Beshore June 7 in a twice-postponed title scrap in Buffalo.

Lake Season Delayed Produce Piled Up

PORT ARTHUR, May 5 (CP)—Senator N. M. Paterson said on Thursday the late start in the Great Lakes shipping season has strained shipping facilities.

Senator Paterson, president of Paterson Steamship Lines, said in an interview that everything was "piled up . . . everyone wants their grain, coal, paper and iron ore shipped at once."

The season's opening was about four weeks late.

Ships were still being slowed and occasionally stopped by ice conditions along the lake routes and in the St. Lawrence River.

Senator Paterson said he believes the rush will continue "until the end of June."

Welterweight champion Ray (Sugar) Robinson and Robert Villemain, French middleweight King, will clash at Philadelphia June 5 in a 15-round fight, promoter Phil Glassman announced Thursday. Glassman billed the bout as "the greatest middleweight match since Rocky Graziano's memorable battle with Tony Zale in Chicago three years ago."

Middleweight champion Jake Lamotta of New York Thursday night won a unanimous 10-round decision over Joe Taylor of Binghamton, N. Y., after a rousing non-title boxing bout at Syracuse, N. Y.

Lamotta weighing 169 pounds —nine pounds over the division limit—dropped his opponent for a nine count in the final round for the only knockdown of the fight. Taylor weighed 162.

A revision of tournament dates and strong emphasis on junior development will be features of the Canadian Lawn Tennis Association's 1950 plans. The word came from Jim McAvity of Montreal, CLTA president, on Thursday night at Vancouver. McAvity said dates of the junior championships have been pushed back as far as possible so young players will have incentive to practice all summer. The junior final will be at Ottawa again this year, starting Aug. 28. The CLTA will distribute $3,000 to member associations promoting junior events.

Members of the Major-Minor League Executive Council held a long, drawn-out meeting at Cincinnati Thursday but Walter Mulbry, secretary of baseball, said "nothing was done that could be put in the form of announcement." Mulbry said there was a discussion of the complaint by officials of the Mexican League that American clubs are enticing their better ball players to the United States.

RESCUES DRIVER TRAPPED IN CAB OF SUBMERGED TRUCK

Russell Yard, 25, of Vancouver, B.C., frees man after repeated dives into icy harbour waters

1. After visiting friends on a tanker, William Hagsted climbed into and started the truck which had been parked on the refinery wharf. When the wheels accidentally hit the side of the wharf, the vehicle was thrown 30 feet down into the chilly 39 degrees above-zero water.

2. Russell Yard, a refinery employee, waited only long enough to see that others had gone for ropes and to phone the inhalator squad. Then, without removing his clothes, he plunged into the frigid water. The harbour was 12 feet deep and Yard had to make several dives before he was able to grapple with the truck door.

3. Getting the door open under water was no easy task . . . but Yard persevered, finally dragging the driver free and bringing him to the surface. At the wharf, both men were pulled up to safety. We proudly add the name of this Vancouver hero to the list of those who have won THE DOW AWARD.

Sicily Blast Kills Fourteen

CATANIA, Sicily, May 5 (CP) —Fourteen persons were killed and 40 were injured Thursday in an explosion at a chemical factory five miles outside Catania.

The blast occurred while workmen were attempting to extract explosive from a store of heavy-calibre aerial bombs. The dead were buried under tons of earth, stones and debris while most of the injured were struck by splinters of flying glass.

First reports said that 30 bombs weighing 3,600 pounds each went off in the explosion. They blew up when a workman was taking the caps off one of them in an effort to recover its contents for industrial uses.

Origin of the bombs could not be learned immediately. During the war Catania was an important air base.

The base was subjected to heavy aerial attack itself just before the allied invasion in 1943. Catania was captured by British troops, with the First Canadian Division encountering some of the heaviest fighting of the Sicilian campaign not far away.

Today's explosion gouged a hole 25 feet deep at the factory and rocked this city of 245,000.

Quebec Liberals Pick Leader At May Parley

By WILLIAM STEWART

QUEBEC, May 5 —(CP)— Quebec's once-powerful Liberal party will bring together here May 19-20 more than 1,000 supporters from all corners of the province to lay out a program and pick out a leader to revive its shrunken fortunes.

It will be the old party's first provincial convention in a dozen years. At a stormy convention here in 1938, the Liberals chose Adelard Godbout as chief and the following year in provincial elections overthrew the first Union Nationale government of Premier Duplessis.

This time delegates to the party rally will assemble two years after a shattering election defeat in 1948 which reduced its ranks in the Quebec Legislative Assembly to eight supporters in a House of 92 members.

Organization of the convention has been under the general direction of Geo. Marler, 49-year-old Montreal notary who sits in the Legislature for Westmount-St. George and has headed the little Liberal group in the House since the 1948 election.

No Definite Sign

Mr. Marler has given no definite sign yet that he will be a candidate for the permanent party leadership. He became temporary leader last year after Mr. Godbout, who lost his own seat in 1948, was appointed to the Canadian Senate.

Men definitely in the running for the honor of leading the party, the responsibilities that go with it and the opportunity to set the Liberals on a course aimed to bring them back into power, are:

George-Emile Lapalme, 43-year-old member of parliament for Joliette-L'Assomption-Montcalm;

Jean-Marie Nadeau, 43-year-old Montreal lawyer who ran unsuccessfully in the last election against Agriculture Minister Laurent Barre;

Horace Philippon, 50-year-old Quebec lawyer whose unsuccessful campaign in Quebec county against Nationalist Rene Chaloult was one of the highlights of the 1948 election.

One or two others are in the position of Mr. Marler—not committed to run in the leadership election or clearly out of it.

They include 55-year-old Wilfrid Hamel, Quebec district Liberal party organizer and former lands and forest minister, and Hon. Philippe Brais, KC, 56-year-old legislative councillor and prominent Montreal lawyer.

Doxee Couple Married 54 Years

APSLEY, May 5—(ENS)—Mr and Mrs. Morris Doxee, are celebrating the 54th anniversary of their wedding quietly at their home here today.

Morris Doxee, of Glen Alda, and May Snortt, of Coe Hill, were married at the home of the bride's father, John Snortt, on May 6, 1894, by the Rev. F. W. White, Methodist minister of St. Ola, formerly of Coe Hill. The Misses Nelo Clark and Alice Piry, both of Coe Hill, were bridesmaids and the Rev. Oford Dickson and Charles Rollins were groomsmen.

The couple farmed at Glen Alda ten years, after which Mr. Doxee worked as sawyer in S. L. Purdy's lumber mill for 13 years and then in other mills.

They kept a general store at Purdyville from 1930-1946, at which time ill-health forced Mr. Doxee to retire. They lived in Lakefield for a short time, later coming to live in Apsley.

Of their family of three children, Mrs. Ollie McAuley (Vera) lives in Chandos; a son, Ray, lives at Glen Alda, and Mrs. L. McAuliffe (Evelyn) died a number of years ago.

In politics Mr. Doxee is a Conservative and he is a member of the United Church. They are both in splendid health. Mrs. Doxee is a valued member of the Women's Institute.

Canada Speech All A Mistake

CAPETOWN, May 5 (Reuters) —Prime Minister Daniel Malan of South Africa Thursday blamed "a message which was incorrect" for resulting in his being quoted Monday as saying that Canada is dissatisfied with her position in the Commonwealth.

Speaking in the Senate, he referred to an overseas report of a speech he made Monday, in which he said there has been a change in the structure of the Commonwealth and, as a result, there should be a change in the King's title.

When the report was published in Ottawa, quoting Malan as saying Canada is dissatisfied with her Commonwealth position, Prime Minister St. Laurent said in the House of Commons that there was "no justification" for such a statement.

Misunderstanding

Wednesday Reuters News Agency, which distributed the dispatch which was carried by The Canadian Press, said there had been an "apparent misunderstanding" in the story.

Enlarging on this Thursday Malan told the Senate:

"About the attitude of Canada, whether she wanted to remain in the Commonwealth or not, I did not say a word and I said nothing which comes near that.

"What happened in the Canadian parliament was the result of a message which was incorrect."

Isolate Indian

HURON VILLAGE, Que., May 5 —(CP). — Dr. Gaston Jean, medical officer at this Indian reservation on the outskirts of Quebec City, Thursday issued an order barring visitors from the home of Jules Sioui, 43-year-old Huron in the 72nd day of a hunger-strike for independence and self-government for the Indians. Dr. Jean said Sioui is no longer able to stand up on a scale to be weighed.

Two In Lords Leave Liberals

LONDON, May 5 (Reuters) —Two more members of the House of Lords Thursday joined the breakaway from the Liberal party—now fighting desperately to maintain its existence in the face of Conservative "wooing."

The Peers are the Marquess of Willingdon, 50-year-old son of the former Viceroy of India and Governor-General of Canada, and 40-year-old Viscount Cowdray.

Recently the Marquess of Reading and Lord Rennell left the Liberal party and crossed over to the Conservatives.

Lord Willingdon and Lord Cowdray have not so far joined them—they have merely broken with the Liberals.

Lord Willingdon said he is out of sympathy with the Liberal party's decision not to discuss the party's future role with the Conservatives.

Parents Co-operate In Health Program

COBOURG, May 5 —(ENS)— The program initiated March 1 this year by Northumberland and Durham Counties Health Unit, in conjunction with the counties medical association, whereby children who entered school during the current school year receive a medical examination from their family physician, has been very well received, it is revealed by the health unit headquarters here.

Under this scheme the pupil has the examination started by the public health nurse at the school and the results are entered on a special report form. The child is then taken to the family physician who completes this examination. The examination is free, but the parent pays the doctor for any additional service which may be required.

It is the belief of the family physicians and the staff of the Health Unit, that this program will be effective in improving the health supervision of children.

Many children who otherwise might never have gone to their doctor, have had this examination. As a result, defects which may seriously impair a child's health and learning ability have been discovered and in many cases corrected. Diseased tonsils and decayed teeth have been the principal defects in this group.

Up to April 26, there have been 470 examinations. The total number of children eligible under this scheme, is not yet available but it is estimated that approximately 40% have had their medical examination.

Visit To Great Cathedral Climaxes Tour Of Paris

By JEAN E. STENTON

PARIS April—Paris' greatest jewel, the Notre Dame Cathedral, should be kept as a climax before leaving the city. Seen under a warm spring sun, it has indescribable beauty. The architecture, stained glass and carvings are lovely and the view from the outside balconies encompasses Paris for miles. Nearby is the Seine, with its many bridges, and other landmarks stand out clearly against the sky.

When visiting this great church never go in a conducted tour. You should go when there will be few people and wander around and try to absorb the beauties which the building contains. Its greatest and most spectacular offering is the three great rose windows, two at the sides and one at the front. Nothing in France can surpass this stained glass which is a product of the 13th century. The beautiful blues, purples and reds can no longer be duplicated because the art has been lost. When the sun shines through the huge rose windows, the entire church is bathed in a soft mauve and blue mantle. During the war, all the stained glass was well hidden from the Germans who tried very hard to locate it.

There is gorgeous marble and mosaic work throughout the building and a great deal of gold inlay and gold plating. Everything is in keeping with the Gothic architecture. The high, vaulted ceilings are so restful and graceful and the narrow columns make it a scene of complete splendor. The beautiful windows were something that grip the heart and we stole away inspired as a group of chattering tourists arrived on tour and were whisked around to the continuous accompaniment of a shrill guide's voice.

Lovely Iron Work

The doors into the church are unique, I have been told. There is not only a lovely design around the portals, but each door is covered with a delicate, intricate iron work. To reach the first balcony, you climb a narrow, spiral staircase of 150 steps. It is definitely one-way traffic, but so great were the holiday crowds that the passageway was jammed with people trying to pass and walking was dangerous.

On the first balcony, you see the magnificent gargoyles carved out of stone and a wonderful view in every direction. From here you can enter the bell tower to see what Parisiens affectionately call "le Bourdon" because if its peculiar tone. The great bell, which is only rung on very special occasions, weighs 13 tons and takes eight men to operate. The clapper alone weights one ton, and both bell and clapper move at the same time, unusual in anything so big.

The great bell, which can be heard from one to 10 miles, has a very unusual and beautiful tone. Marie Therese and other ladies of the court donated their precious jewels and gold to make it. This collection was melted down in the square before the cathedral and it is these components which make the sound so lovely and different.

Point Zero

In the square in front of the Cathedral is a small bronze plate in the sidewalk. Originally it was gold, but was long ago replaced. This is Point Zero. It is from here that every distance in France is measured. When you speak of the distance between Paris and Marseilles, it means the distance Point Zero to Marseilles.

Another odd little gem hidden away from the outsider, is a small Greek Orthodox Church, St. Julien le Pauvre, across the square. It is not big, but has strange architecture and some interesting items.

In contrast to Notre Dame, Ste. Chapelle is a delicate jewel, almost hidden away, and on a much smaller scale than its sister church. Standing in the heart of the city, it soars skywards, slender but strong, delicate and fragile.

In 1238, Emperor Baldwin II offered to give St. Louis the most precious of all relics—the crown of thorns—in payment of a debt. St. Louis wanted something suitable to house the great relic and he had the Sainte Chapelle built. No building was ever raised with greater enthusiasm and love. Building began in 1246 and finished in 1248. In the 16th, 17th and 19th centuries, the beautiful church was no longer appreciated and it went through troubled times with flood, fire and Revolution. It narrowly escaped complete destruction in the revolution and it was only in the 19th century as other buildings crowded it out, that new interest was aroused.

Strange Building

Today it is shut in among the buildings of the Palais de Justice, and it must be sought out in a small courtyard. The essential feature is the division into two unequal storeys, which is due to the purpose for which it was constructed. The upper storey, set aside for the King and his suite, was on the same level as the royal apartments, while the lower storey was occupied by the staff. The building has unusual architecture and appears to soar into the air.

In the lower chapel, there are four great bays, with simple pointed arched vaults. One of its greatest beauties is the rich and splendid fullness of the mouldings. They characterize the primitive Gothic and harmonize perfectly. The columns, which serve as pillars, are slight and graceful but rest on solid polygonal bases and are crowned by large capitals. The walls are decorated with trefoil arcatures and stamped with twelve medallions adorned with bosses and glass-work representing the 12 Apostles. Some of the paintings date back to Louis XIII. Also uncovered were some of the 13th century wall decorations and the walls have been repainted in a reasonably accurate design. This pattern is fleurs de lis on an azure ground and towers of Castille on a red ground, ribbons upon gold. The early stained glass windows were destroyed by a flood in 1690 and the present ones were painted in the 19th century.

If the lower chapel seems lovely, the upper one is breathtaking. The architecture here is one of the most perfect examples of Gothic art and keeps within the bounds of perfect measure and balance.

Has No Walls

The beauty of the upper chapel lies in its great windows, which replace all the walls. The employment of the pointed arched-roof which throws all the thrust on the pillars, relieves the walls of any weight. All that is required is a point on which to rest the burden. The logical outcome was that the windows were made larger and larger and the walls hollowed out more. The chapel seems to be made up of a translucent partition, ribbed by narrow vertical bars. It is one single nave. Around it are ranged the statues of the 12 Apostles.

The whole of the chapel is one shimmering color, as though set with gems. Many of the paintings have been restored and then the great sweep of stained glass windows pours in soft colors. All the stained glass, except the rose-window, belongs to the time of St. Louis in the 13th century. The gorgeous blues and violets, with the sun behind them bathe the whole hall in soft shades. The rose-window was made in the 15th century, when glass work had become decadent. The warm mosaics of the 13th century were succeeded by duller tones featuring pale greens and whites, toned down by grisaille, which stands out hard and cold against the dark blue background. This great rose window had to be put back in place, piece by piece after the war. It has taken nearly six years, for it was only completed in time for this Easter.

Eastern Touch

Something altogether different is the gleaming white Sacre Coeur Basilica in Montmartre. In one of the oldest quarters of the city, it was built to complete a vow and the architecture appears Byzantine. The outside was done with a special stone which retains its sparkling white color. This is in sharp contrast with the dingy colors of the remainder of Paris' buildings. There are many flights of stairs to reach the entrance, but the view and the beauties of the church are worth it.

This church was only completed in 1910 and inside it has lovely marble work and gold inlay. It too has a great bell, but weighs only nine tons and is called "le Savoyard." The greatest dome can be seen against the sky, towering above most other buildings from almost any point in the city. During the war, the Germans deliberately let 13 bombs drop which damaged only one small section of the church and some of the stained glass windows. Parisiens still seethe at such deliberate destruction and point out indignantly that it is an unmistakeable landmark and not near any military objectives.

From this strange building you can wander through the narrow old streets of Montmartre. Here are many of the original buildings and it still has a charter keeping it a small state within the city of Paris. You can see artists painting on the sidewalks any time of day and there is still one of the old mills left. There is an atmosphere left here that can be found in no other part of Paris.

52 Editors Help Rewrite Encyclopaedia

By MICHAEL O'MARA.

LONDON, May 5 — (CP) — "Chambers's Encyclopaedia" — England's answer to the "Encyclopaedia Britannica"—has been enlarged, re-written, re-edited, and put back on the book stalls in its first new edition since 1935.

The price—£42 ($130.20 for 15 volumes)—is considerably changed from when "Chambers's" first went on sale in 1859. Then it sold in weekly parts at tuppence ha'penny (about a nickel) each — but the reader had to keep buying for 520 weeks to get the whole work.

The great English standard encyclopaedia, the "Britannica," has for some years been published under the auspices of the University of Chicago. Now the London publisher, George Newnes Ltd., has taken over "Chambers's" which originated in Edinburgh under the editorship of booksellers, Robert and William Chambers.

Editorship was entrusted to scholarly Mrs. M. D. Law, a middle-aged Englishwoman.

52 Editors

Fifty-two advisory editors and more than 2,00 contributors assisted in the job of writing and indexing the 14,500,000 words. Among them are many of the best-known scholastics names of the world's universities.

George Parkin Grant, Professor of Philosophy in Dalhousie University, Halifax, edited the Canadian history section and Professor Ian Forbes Fraser of Columbia University, New York, author of "The State of French Canada," put together the Canadian literature pages.

Other contributors from Canadian universities include Professor Charles Best of the University of Toronto, co-discoverer of insulin.

Canadian newspapermen including Fred Kerner of the New York Bureau of the Canadian Press, contributed articles on Canadian sports.

Keep Hands Off Labor Leader

LONDON, May 5 (CP) —Differences appeared today to have developed between Britain's Labor government and one of its most influential supporters among the trade unions.

Arthur Deakin, a member of the General Council of the Trades Union Congress and generally recognized as organized labor's strong man, issued a statement indirectly criticizing the government's stand following the recent London dock strike.

In his statement, Deakin said he had no knowledge of the purpose of an inquiry which the government has announced it will hold investigating the strike, third major walk-out on British docks in the last two years.

Dispute Unofficial

"The dispute of last week was unofficial," Deakin said. "The union took its stand on a vital principle, that is, whether discipline and constitutional procedure should prevail.

"The union will view with alarm any proposal by the government to hold an inquiry without prior consultation with the parties concerned."

The strike, which cost the country about £10,000,000 ($31,000,000), ended when dockers voted to return to work Monday.

Careless In Morals

TORONTO, May 5 — (CP). — Leaders of four Protestant denominations said Thursday some Canadians may be "careless" in their moral conduct outside the churches, but there is good evidence they are strong in their religious faiths. In New York on Wednesday night a report of a National YMCA survey in the United States said that religion in the US appears to be losing ground "as a dynamic force in daily life."

Gets Senate Okay

OTTAWA, May 5 (CP)—Senator W. M. Aseltine (PC-Saskatchewan) Thursday asked the Senate to allow a western insurance company to do business in all Canada's provinces. He said the Saskatchewan Mutual Insurance Co. has been growing steadily and now is in a position where it should be allowed to expand beyond the west.

The Senate gave approval in principle to the private bill to make that possible and sent the measure to committee.

Gov't Press Releases Challenged In Commons

OTTAWA, May 5 — (CP) — A heated discussion developed in the Commons Thursday when Donald Fleming (PC, Toronto Eglinton) asked the government to say whether statements attributed in a press report to a government spokesman represented government policy.

James Sinclair, parliamentary assistant to Finance Minister Abbott, and Works Minister Fournier, government leader in the House, both stated that when the government had policy announcements to make they were made through cabinet ministers and not through unnamed spokesmen.

The discussion developed after Mr. Fleming referred to a Canadian Press dispatch of Jan. 11. It stated in part:

"The Revenue Department has stepped up its campaign to free large surpluses of unused and undistributed income accumulating in corporation treasureries, a government spokesman said today.

"Corporations have been asked to use the surpluses for expansion and development or pay them to shareholders or face additional tax action by the government."

Mr. Fleming continued:

News Disturbing

"Statements of that kind, and action of the kind referred to in this government release under the name of threats, have created a feeling of disquiet throughout the country."

He asked if the statements in the story represented government policy.

Mr. Sinclair said when the government wants a spokesman the spokesman is identified by name. Government announcements of policy on taxation would come from the minister of finance.

Mr. Fleming replied:

Issuing Publicity

"I do not propose to let that remark pass unchallenged, because every member in this House knows perfectly well that when the government wants to pass out some publicity, to make a statement without committing itself too far to it, or fly a trial balloon, they simply put out, through one of their multitude of publicity men in the various departments, one of these statements to the press, and the remarks are attributed to a government spokesman. . . .

"When the parliamentary assistant undertakes to say that the statement reproduced by The Canadian Press, and ascribed to a so-called government spokesman, is not equivalent to a government release, then he is just flying in the teeth of the facts. As every honorable member knows perfectly well, The Canadian Press would not take that statement unless it came from an accredited government source. . ."

Mr. Fournier said that when the government decides on a policy there are enough ministers to make the announcement, and "that is the way we proceed."

Government Says "No"

The argument ended after Mr. Sinclair said "no" to Mr. Fleming's repeated question as to whether or not the government has stepped up its campaign to free large surpluses and undistributed income that have accumulated in corporation treasuries.

Ella Raines Enjoys Looking "Mess"

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD, May 5 —(AP) —Ella Raines looks like a mess and she loves it.

Six make-up men worked for two weeks to make her homely for her role in "The Second Face." And they did a good job. Her nose looks humped and broken. Her hairline comes to the middle of her fore-head and her lips are straight-lined.

"I've been waiting for a chance like this," she enthused. "I want to be a dramatic actress and this is certainly a dramatic part. . .

"Not that I want to go through every picture disfigured, but the glamorless role gives you a chance to really act."

"The Second Face" is a story of the prejudice a homely girl faces in a world educated to glamor.

"Every magazine you pick up," explains Ella, "is filled with pictures of beautiful women and hints on how to become beautiful. It makes the homely girl the world's forgotten women."

Unfunny Comics

Billy De Wolfe says Canadians aren't funny in real life.

The wry-faced comic cited himself as an example. "I'm very quiet," he declared. "I don't even like parties. I'm very moody."

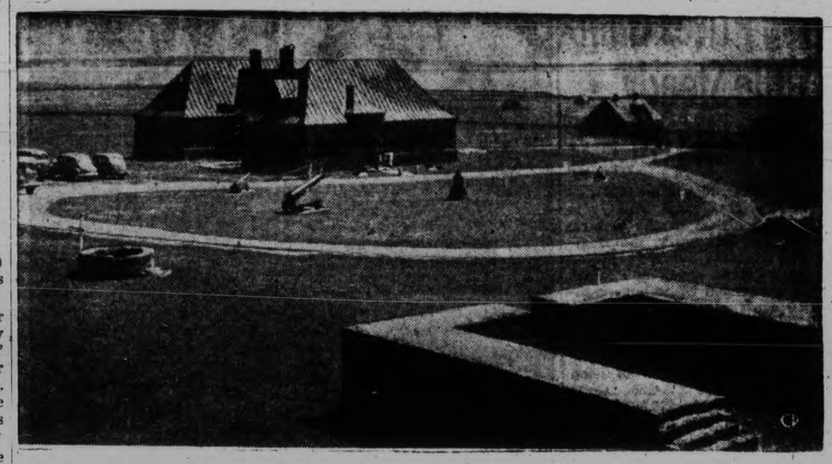
"Once in a while I do venture to a social gathering," he admitted, "but you'll usually find me off in a corner. Of course, I cut up just like anyone else when I'm with a small group.

"People usually think when they invite a comedian to a party that he will put on a show for them. I don't like to do that. I just want to do my acting on a stage."

Pearson Tells Group Good Faith Suspect

OTTAWA, May 5 (CP) —External Affairs Minister Pearson Thursday told delegates representing the Canadian Peace Congress that he was forced to "suspect the good faith of this movement" because it "viciously misrepresented" Canada's stand on atomic warfare.

The eight-member delegation, headed by Dr. James G. Endicott of Toronto, Congress chairman, presented Mr. Pearson with a petition asking that the atomic bomb be banned. The delegates said the petition was signed by 128,000 persons.



HISTORIC AREA — Fort Beausejour in New Brunswick was built by the French between 1751 and 1755, during their long struggle with the English for the possession of Canada, but before it was actually completed it was captured by the English. During the American Revolution in 1776 it withstood an attack by the invaders. After the war of 1812-14 it gradually fell into ruin and in 1926 it was established as a National Historic Park. This photo was issued by the Department of Resources and Development which maintains the National Parks and Historic Sites Service.

OMEMEE, May 5 —(ENS)— Mrs. H. Green was installed president of the Home and School Association at the annual meeting and other officers installed were:

Past-president Mrs. S. Northey, secretary Mrs. R. Kenny, treasurer Mrs. D. Hicks, first vice-president Mrs. H. Bent, second vice-president Mrs. P. McGuire, executive members, Mrs. R. Rawlins, Mrs. J. B. Hough and Mrs. Ralph James.

Added to these will be two representatives from the teaching staff. Mrs. Northy thanked all conveners for their co-operation during her two years of office and bespoke the same for the president elect. Mrs. G. N. Earle installed the officers.

The membership convener, Mrs. F. W. Posley, reported 64 members, nine of whom had perfect attendance. Eleven charter members were still with the association. Mr. Curtis attributed most of the credit to his pupils for publicity who had made posters.

A comprehensive report of the Federation Conference was given by Mrs. A. Stephenson.

The president opened a discussion on the raising of the membership fee which she explained was necessary. A motion was passed setting the fee at 35 cents for the coming year, the monthly silver collection to be continued also. The secretary was authorized to send sympathy cards to sick members.

On motion of Mrs. Kenny and Mrs. Rawlins, a manual is to be provided for each executive member.

Current events were given by Mrs. Stephenson stressing items concerning children and education. Entertainment was provided by four school children—solos by Temple Morcombe and George Pooley and a duet by Mary Ann Pooley and Verna Zufelt.

A motion of thanks by Mrs. Hough was extended to the children who sang and also to Mrs. Green and Mrs. Stephenson for reports presented.

Want Fishing

Damage would run into the millions.

The order to evacuate Morris came after a four-day struggle to keep the water out of the last dry stronghold.

The sandbag dike, watched on a 24-hour basis, cracked Thursday night. An army duck and RCMP yawl brought the hospital patients to the special train.

More Rain

In Winnipeg leaden skies dumped seven-tenths of an inch of rain and snow on flood-fighters trying to save their homes. The battle intensified in the suburbs, and was beginning in the downtown business section.

Continued rainfall predicted for today would swell already-sated sewers, sending the back-up into basements.

The Winnipeg Electric Company's giant central-heating system, situated on James Street about six blocks off Portage and Main, Thursday night cut service to buildings east of Main Street. More water around the half-submerged boilers would stop all heating service.

Two flooded subways were closed and bus and passenger traffic rerouted. Notre Dame Avenue East was blocked.

At the foot of Lombard Street, a scant two blocks from the Winnipeg Grain Exchange building, a broken dike cascaded tons of murky water into the streets. A temporary repair job was completed.

Calls for volunteers were carried on radio stations throughout the evening, asking help at threatened dikes along the Red.

The Canadian Press' flow of news from Eastern Canada was temporarily disprupted when water backed up into the basement of the Canadian Pacific Telegraphs building at Portage and Maine, lightning from storms farther east also hampered communications.

LONDON, Ont., May 5 (CP)—Curfew regulations to clear the streets of unattended children by 10 p.m. daily will be enforced in London this summer Mayor George Wenige said Thursday.

Bureau Expects 1950 Tourists To Break Record

OTTAWA, May 5 (CP)—Inquiries sent to the Canadian Travel Bureau for tourist information indicate that 1950 tourist traffic may break the record set in 1949.

Leo Dolan, director of the Travel Bureau, Thursday told the Senate committee on tourist traffic that a total of 188,210 inquiries —most of them from the United States—have been received. In April the number of letters asking for information about Canadian tourist attractions averaged 3,100 daily.

Information Offices

He said competition for the travel dollar is increasing and as a result the government is considering the establishment of elaborate travel bureau information offices in New York and Chicago. One in Los Angeles may be added later.

Mr. Dolan told Senator W. Rupert Davies (L-Ontario) that the travel bureau spreads its advertisements right across the U. S. As a result Quebec, for instance, which concentrates on advertisements in New England and the mid-Atlantic States, gets tourists from as far west as California.

Senator Davies said he knew that advertising rates had gone up considerably in the United States. Mr. Dolan said that was correct and as a result the bureau was using smaller ads in magazines where it once bought full-page advertisements.

Injunction Issued Against Union Head

TORONTO, May 5 (CP) — An injunction was issued Thursday restraining William E. Manicom, business manager of Local B-530 of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, from inducing union employees to break their contract with a Sarnia electrical firm.

Chief Justice J. C. McRuer issued the six-day injunction to A-1 Electric Ltd., and its president, Albert H. C. Fokul. The order restrains the union official from interfering with the company's sub-contract with the Austin Company, general contractors for a Dow Chemical Company project.

Company counsel, Norman Mathews, said action was taken in 1947 and 1948 against John Raymond, international vice-president of the union, and Karl H. Hadley and Floyd Pappe, president and business manager of the local at that time. The three were perpetually restrained from inducing a breach of contract with employers and interfering with lawful pursuits of the company.

Since that time, said Mr. Mathews, "we have been persecuted by the union."

Ask Airgun Ban

TORONTO, May 5 — (CP). — The Police Commission will ask Attorney-General Porter of Ontario for legislation allowing the city to ban the use of airguns and spring rifles. In the last 16 years windows smashed by airgun pellets numbered 9,132, street lights 4,307, automobile windows 204.

Bethany Minister Agrees To Resign

The Peterborough Examiner

VOL. C. No. 105 FRIDAY, MAY 5, 1950

Supply Meals For Strikers On Picket Line

The strike at the Peterborough Lock Co. entered its second day today with mass picketing in front of the plant at 7 a.m. and again at noon.

No disturbances of any kind have been reported. The factory is completely shut down and the only ones in it are three watchmen who went through the picket line without incident.

The strikers' instructions were to allow office staff and foremen through but management has moved to a suite in the Empress hotel where business is continuing.

At 4 p.m. today and again Saturday union members of Local 527, United Electrical Workers, will solicit food donations from shoppers and merchants. Canned goods are in particular demand but eatables of any sort will be welcomed.

"We're laying in provisions for a long siege, Romeo Leonard, president of the local, said today. Part of the east room of the union hall on George St. is being converted into a kitchen.

Already a gas stove has been brought in and connected and this morning there was a clatter of hammers as the workers constructed a large pantry. Canned goods and bread have been collected and it has the appearance of a fast-growing grocery store.

Stan Church, ex-army cook, is in charge of the strike kitchen and he is being assisted by other members of his committee—men and women. The meals will be for those on strike duty, including those walking the picket line.

The 180 production workers at the plant struck Thursday morning when the company ignored their ultimatum to commence negotiating for a 42½-hour week with the same take-home pay.

They also want men's minimum rates raised from 93 cents an hour to $1, women's from 82 cents to 87, a revision in the time schedule and seniority protection.

The company has said it is willing to re-sign the 1949 contract without the wage-opener clause or negotiate on the basis of the Conciliation Board report.

The Board recommended no reduction from the 45-hour week and no increase in pay. It called on the two parties to co-operate in securing greater production.

Jaycees Meet In Convention

Peterborough's first Junior Chamber of Commerce convention—that of Region 6 of the Jaycees—starts Saturday morning.

Attending will be 100 delegates and fifty of their wives, from Ottawa, Amprior, Kingston, Gananoque, Prescott, and Peterborough. The national president of the Jaycees, John Sheppard, of Hamilton, will attend.

There will be a civic welcome for the delegates tonight, although the official opening of the convention is not until Saturday morning.

A series of discussion groups, a banquet and dance, will precede the annual meeting starting Sunday morning. Theme of the meeting is Leadership, Your Future.

Five Women Purchased "Fresh Whitefish" Later To Find They've Invested In Carp

Fish for sale.

At least five Peterborough housewives thought what they thought were very fresh Lake Ontario whitefish from door-to-door peddlers Thursday afternoon.

Their fresh whitefish turned out to be carp, probably caught in the Otonabee or some handy ditch.

The five women who bought the fish paid 50 cents each for them. The fish were still alive.

One housewife became suspicious and phoned Game Warden Stanley Windsor and learned the truth. All the fish later located by police and the game warden were bought in the Roger St. area in east city.

But a report reached police last week that someone was selling carp on Lake St. in the south end as lake trout.

Thursday the fish were being sold by two roughly dressed men. Police want to warn housewives to make sure they know what kind of fish they are buying at the door before they turn over any cash.

Carp are eatable, but not many people eat them because they are largely scavengers. Carp are most easily recognized by their abnormally large dirt-brown colored scales.

Automobile Club Sponsors Safety Program In Schools

Commencing Monday the first series of safety films will be shown in the city schools. Two sound movie films will be shown in the junior and intermediate grades. The films are entitled "Safety to and from school", and "Safety Patrol". These pictures include training in the correct ways to cross streets, the hazard of darting between parked cars, the placing of confidence in police officers instead of fearing them, and the responsibilities of the children in general.

The schedule for the above films will be:

St. Peter's, May 8; Prince of Wales, May 8 and 9; Queen Mary, May 9; St. Mary's, May 10; Central, May 10; King Edward, May 11; Mays, May 11; Grove, May 11; St. Anne's, Queen Elizabeth, May 12; Queen Alexandra, May 12; Immaculate Conception, May 15; St. John's, May 15; Confederation, May 15-16; Sacred Heart, May 16; King George, May 17.

The school authorities and chief of police, J. W. Thompson believe that this time of year is opportune for this type of education since the children will soon leave school for their summer vacation.

Chief of Police Thompson has arranged for his traffic officers to give a few minutes talk on safety before the films are shown in the schools.

The Peterborough Automobile Club, with the cooperation of the school authorities hopes to plan a safety program for the fall school term.

Average Temperature During April 36.3

A glance at a summary of April weather recalls its perversity. The maximum was 63 deg. on the 18th as against 76 on the 30th last year; and the low was 14 deg. on the 9th compared with 24 deg. on the 17th a year ago. The average last month was 36.3 too near the frost line for spring comfort. Last year the average was 43.4.

Last year April saw only one-quarter an inch of snow; this year 4¼ inches. Rainfall was about the same: 2.45 inches a year ago and 2.46 inches this year. Total moisture was 2.88 in. last month and 2.47 in April 1949.

Farmers will confirm the final figures indicating ample dampness in the land. What they want is some sunshine to dry it.

Leo Murphy Made 20 Blood Donations

Sergeant Leo Murphy of the city police force today received a bronze lapel button from the Peterborough branch of the Canadian Red Cross in recognition of the 20 donations of blood given in emergencies in the city's two hospitals.

This is the top award the Canadian Red Cross can give to a donor. Sergeant Murphy has also given a number of blood transfusions of which the Red Cross has no record.

Another member of the police force to get the thanks of the Red Cross was Gordon Trennum who received a button for giving 10 donations.

Junior Choirs Compete Music Festival

St. Andrew's intermediate choir headed the list of honors at the Kiwanis music festival Thursday evening at Murray St. Baptist church, when children's choirs competed. The choir was the only one to enter the intermediate church choirs, under 18 class for which the set piece was Beautiful Saviour—Old Crusaders' Hymn arr. Griffith. This was a three part song. Awarding 87 points, Dr. Lang said the choir sang rhythmically, with a good tone.

Four junior church choirs opened the evening program and St. Andrew's were again the winners with 80 points. All Saints were next with 78 and Knox Church had 77.

In the intermediate chorus under 18, PCVS Form 9F won with 86 points followed by St. Andrew's girls' chorus with 84 points and Lakefield High School 82.

Awarded 86 Points

Form 9E PCVS, the only entry in the girls' chorus, two parts, under 17 class, was awarded 80 points.

PCVS School Choral Club singing unaccompanied in the girls' chorus under 21 class, won acclaim for its rhythmical singing and was awarded 86 points.

In the solo tenor class William Perry, Lindsay, was awarded 87 points; Reg. Peters, Peterborough, 82 and William G. H. Peltz, Peterborough, 80.

Verse speaking results were as follows: Grade 12—Laurene Keeting, Peterborough, 83; Kathleen Grier, Lakefield, 79. Grade 13—Marilyn Pomeroy, Peterborough, 80.

Public speaking, 18 years and under—Jack King, Peterborough, 85 and 78; Patricia Berry, Peterborough, 75 and 63. A choice of three subjects was given and King chose Conservation of our Natural Resources. Patricia Berry chose My Most Unforgettable Character. Each also had a free choice, King chose the floodings in Western Canada and Patricia Berry, her experiences at a summer holiday camp.

74,107 Volumes Circulate April

Total circulation of the Public Library and branch at the end of April was 74,107, an increase of 10,036 over the same period for 1949. William Graff told the Library Board Tuesday night. The adult and juvenile departments have increased circulations, 3,993 in the adult and 6,043 in the juvenile department.

Both adult departments showed slight increases in April over April 1949. At the main library 9,047 books were circulated this year in April as compared with 8,927 in April 1949. The circulation of 1,489 in April at the branch was an increase over last year of 283.

Both juvenile departments reported a slight decrease in April. The main juvenile department with a circulation of 4,646 was down 91 books in April 1949 and the branch with 2,748 was down 58.

Mr. Graff said in other activities at the library nine organizations used the auditorium and 12 the committee room.

Truck Leaps Highway Rips 9 Guard-Posts

A Bobcaygeon truck driver was uninjured Thursday night after a spectacular accident in which his truck flattened nine guard-rail posts and leaped off the road.

Robert Thompson appeared in court today charged with drunken and careless driving. He was remanded to May 30 on both charges by Magistrate W. R. Philp, and released on $1,000 bail.

Thompson was driving north on highway 28 down a hill near Burleigh Falls when his truck went out of control and hit the guard rail.

After striking the posts, the truck jumped the shoulder of the road and landed in a pile of boulders, stripping the front axle and front and rear wheels from the truck.

Painter Honored

Scott Medd, son of the late S. T. Medd and brother of Miss Mary Medd, Weller Street, has had three paintings accepted by the Royal Academy and one is hung in its current annual exhibition. To be accepted by the British Royal Academy is a signal honor coveted by painters the world over. Mr. Medd now lives in Bristol and London. An English painter, Robin Guthrie, who spent last year in Ottawa, has one of his Ottawa scenes accepted for hanging at the same show.

Pearson's Trip Cost $6,000 He Tells Fraser

OTTAWA, May 5 (CP) — External Affairs Minister Pearson said Thursday he will leave this week-end for North Atlantic Pact council meeting in London and hopes to be back in Ottawa by the end of the month.

Completing several days of testimony before the Commons External Affairs committee, he said he would be pleased to give members a report on the meeting on his return.

His last bit of committee evidence ironically involved his last trip abroad, the 20,000-mile globe girdling trip to the Colombo Commonwealth Conference in January.

He told Gordon Fraser (PC-Peterborough West) the RCAF flight had cost $16,000 of which half was borne by his department, half by the RCAF in the interests of long-range flying training obtained by the double crew. It was the most economical of three methods considered.

That amount was not far under a proposed charge by a foreign commercial airline for a regular flight which, however, would not have given the side trips to places such as Karachi, New Delhi, Hong Kong and Tokyo where conversations were held.

A third method considered was use of a chartered TCA plane but that would have cost "very greatly in excess" of $16,000.

She saw the bag in the fireman's hand.

Barred From Three Pulpits By Presbytery Committee Sunday To Be Last Sermon

BETHANY, May 5 (ENS)—Under pressure from a committee of the Peterborough presbytery and the official board of his pastoral charge, the Rev. W. N. Crandall has consented to leave the Bethany-Yelverton-Ebeneezer circuit. "It might be the best thing all around," he said today. This Sunday he will preach a farewell sermon at each of these small communities. After that there will be a new United Church minister for the three congregations totalling about 500 people.

But he still feels that the presbytery should have held a vote among the congregation before taking action.

Mr. Crandall sparked off a first-class theological row when he refused to baptize infants and said he was taking the Bible as his authority. His views have caused a deep split in the congregation—some insisting that he follow the practices of the United Church and others backing him up in his claim that there is no biblical authority for infant baptism.

Thursday night a special committee of the Peterborough presbytery and the official board of the pastoral charge met to decide on a course of action.

"They asked me to resign but I wouldn't," the 36-year-old minister told the Examiner. "But I agreed to accept the authority of the committee when it recommended there be a 'change of pastoral relations'."

"I still think no action should have been taken without the people being given an opportunity to vote."

"The Rev. Dr. James Semple, of Peterborough, one of the special committee appointed by the presbytery, explained that the change could be made either through a vote of the congregation or by recommendation of the committee. Local precedent favored the latter course."

Mr Crandall refused to consider the recommendation of the official board of the pastoral charge that he resign but he accepted the authority of the presbytery committee.

"I saw a good many of the board members there who seldom attended before," he commented. And he claimed that Fleetwood.

Say Shot Fired At Truck, Warrant Issued

A warrant was issued today for William Brick of Haultain, charged with shooting at Harry Rowe of Haultain with intent to do bodily harm. Rowe was not hurt.

Brick did not appear in court today when called by Magistrate W. R. Philp, and as he had already received a summons, a warrant was issued.

Police say the shooting resulted from a party Monday at which Brick was drinking wine. Rowe decided to go home and an argument followed.

Rowe got into his truck outside Brick's house and started to drive away. According to police, Brick said "I've got something in the house that will stop you." Brick went into the house, came out with a .303 rifle and fired a shot at the truck, police say. The bullet hit the running board and lodged in the muffler.

County Farm Notes

By HARRY THEOBALD

Three Calf Clubs Organized, And Two Forestry Clubs In Prospect — Tractor Club Holds Second Meeting — Objectives And Methods Similar To Young Farmers In Britain — Winter Erosion Worst In Ten Years, Frank Morwick Of OAC Finds In Central Ontario.

Three junior calf clubs for boys and girls of Peterborough district have been organized during the last week with a total membership around 70.

The dairy calf clubs has been split into two sections, one on each side of the Otonabee River.

This is the initial result of the preparatory organizing carried on by Robert E. Bell, assistant agricultural representative, on assignment to that special work by Frank Paterson, county representative.

Mr. Bell is reinforced by three club leaders who are assuming a great deal of the responsibility for the success of this effort among farm boys and girls of the area.

John Edmison is taking the dairy calf club on the west side of the river; Keith McIntyre is in charge of the group on the east side; and Lorne Pimmett or Indian River is leader of the beef calf club.

In the background is the tractor club already set up and ready for the season.

Most of the youngsters in the west side club are from Smith. Its members are: Douglas Clark, Barbara Mann, Nola Wilson, James McMullen, Donald Irwin, Ralph Sage, Pauline Fitzgerald, John Sanderson, Shirley Tully, Lorraine Middleton, Barbara Bulmer, all of Smith; and Dorothy Jackson of Emily township; and Barry Whitnell to Cavan. They become Mr. Edmison's charges.

The members of the dairy calf club east of the Ontonabee River are: from Ontonabee — Kathryn Thorn, Norman Blodgett, Dorothy Chambers, George Green, James Doris, Alan Stewart (Indian River), Wm. Chamberlain, Archie Davidson, Don Kindred, Jack Lang, Norma McConkey.

From Douro—Gerald Coughlin, Audrey Bolton, Gerald Bolton, Harold Bolton, Laura Bolton, Allan Bolton, Guelda Bolton, Mary Wood, Leo Moloney, Gerald Wood.

From Asphodel - Margaret Clark, Doris Brown, Eldon Van Volkenburg, James Leeper.

This group is headed by Keith McIntyre.

The beef calf club has gathered a lot of numerical strength as indicated by the fine attendance at the organization meeting Monday night.

The members are: From Otonabee— William Chamberlain, Donald Hutchison, Robert Hutchison, Arthur Dawson, Douglas Hubble, Murray Pimmett, Stephanie Stewart, David Stewart, Gary Stewart, Francis Walsh;

From Ennismore: Fergus Young, Patrick Young, Jerry Twomey, Edward Corkery, Robert Moloney, Jack Harington, Clair Harrington, and as prospects —William Crough and Frank Harrington.

Douro—John Allen.

North Monaghan: John De Nure.

Smith: Gerald Hancock, Robert Allen the club leader is Lorne Pimmett.

Each group elected its own officers as follows: beef calf club—Pres. David Stewart; Vive-Pres. Jerry Twomey; Sec. Murray Pimmett.

Dairy club (east) Pres. Mary Wood; V.-Pres. Alan Stewart; Sec. Gerald Coughlin.

Dairy club (west) Pres. James McMullen; V. Pres. Don Irwin; Sec. Barbara Bulmer.

As previously reported, Mr. Bell is delighted with the response to inceptive efforts.

"From here on it is up to us," he remarked to the Examiner yesterday. "I am very grateful to the three club leaders who have volunteered their help. We should have a good club year, and any way we are off to a favorable start."

✦ ✦ ✦

TWO FORESTRY CLUBS

Robt. E. Bell expects to organize two forestry clubs for boys and girls next Friday. One of them will be centred at Lakefield where a meeting will be held at 3 pm. Friday, and the other at Peterborough. The meeting here that night will be at 8 o'clock.

If the forestry club plans materialize as expected, and there is every assurance of it, Mr. Bell will have six junior groups under his supervision this summer.

1950 Erosion Severe

From enquiries received at Ontario Agriculture College, Frank Morwick of its soils department said yesterday that farmers were becoming actively concerned about erosion of their land and methods of its prevention.

"There has been more erosive damage to farms this last winter than at any other time in at least ten years," Mr. Morwick told the Examiner in Frank C. Paterson's office. "Plowed fields that were left without cover last fall suffered most."

Mr. Morwick said his observations extended over a wide area of Central Ontario, including Peterborough, Durham and Ontario counties.

"A farmer between Fergus and Orangeville said the other day that he had learned his lesson this winter, and would never again leave a plowed and cultivated field bare.

It appears to me that we have more fall wheat than for the last 10 or 12 years. That is a protection against rain and melting snow. Fall rye would probably be just as good, and even the root system of oats planted after harvest would help."

Mr. Paterson interjected the remark that farmers were doubting the established practice of late fall plowing on the lighter land such as sandy loam. They were turning more to spring plowing unless it was on heavy land.

Mr. Morwick was responding to a number of enquires in South Monaghan and Peterborough, from farmers who were thinking of replanning their land establishment, removing fences here and there and so on.

"I think we can definitely trace some of this interest to the demonstration we had at Huber Down's farm near Brooklin last fall. One of the first places I am going to is a farm five miles east of Bailieboro."

Replanning of farms is beginning to receive attention, Mr. Morwick said.

In the prevention of erosion he stressed overall fertility to establish strong root growth.

It was only a coincidence that Ford Stinson, head of the soil department of OAC, was here on Tuesday on a broad survey of the counties. He was accompanied by James Elliott, recent OAC graduate, who has been appointed for soil work this summer in York, Ontario, Durham and Peterborough counties.

JUNIORS IN BRITAIN

Continuing the junior theme, the London Free Press publishes this week a letter from Everett Biggs, who is attending Wye College, University of London (Eng.)

Junior Farmers in the Old Country are called Young Farmers. There are 1,350 local clubs with a total membership of 66,400. They are of two age groups. One is for boys and girls and ten years and up attending school. Their affairs are carried on as part of the general school activities, similar to our livestock clubs. The other is similar to the Junior Farmers of Canada.

The members elect their officers who are assisted by club leaders, and also by a small advisory committee of experienced farmers in each district.

The local clubs are members of the County Federation which, in turn, is a member of the National Federation, corresponding to the Canadian Council of Boys' and Girls' Club Work.

The individual clubs are resopnsible for their separate financing. "This money is found in the usual dances, shows or other money-making events. An innovation which seems to be working well is the growing of cash crop for sale, and by rearing and sale of livestock. Members who undertake this work for a club are compensated for labor and use of land. Profits go to the club treasury. In addition, members are required to make a small contribution.

The County Federation receives a small amount from each local club, and a fairly generous grant from the county council."

Most of that description of method of institution and also provision of means will impress local farmers as if it were applying to their own way of club design.

Mr. Biggs writes that farmers are required to pay a small charge for agricultural pamphlets. He does not advocate that practice in Ontario but he says: "A token payment would go a long way towards ensuring that our Departmental pamphlets would be read and not tossed out with other waste paper in the house."

Junior meetings begin promptly at 7 pm. and wind up at 9 o'clock, once a week.

Junior Farmers of Canada, 4-H Clubs in the United States and Young Farmers in Britain are nationally separate, but in their objectives and achievements they are all engaged in the same work on a far greater scale than the Smith or Otonabee youngster imagines.

In each country, their programs include tours, livestock judging, social, athletic, and cultural activities. In Britain some of the clubs conduct classes in "basket-making, fencing and gate-hanging, scything, thatching, walling and hedging."

It would be interesting to see some of Peterborough's Juniors doing a turn at scything, that is if they could find a scythe outside the family heirlooms that are relegated to wall places in the drive shed or barn.

✦ ✦ ✦

TRACTOR CLUB MEETS

Twenty-two of the 25 members of the Boys' Tractor Club attended the meeting Thursday night this week at the office of Cliff Curtis. Irwin McIntosh, club leader, gave a practical talk on fuel systems, carburetors and air cleaners. A farm safety film was also shown. Some of the parents were along with the youngsters.

SALE POSTPONED

Roseneath also reports that the auction sale of farm stock and implements that was planned by Delbert and Bruce Robins for Wednesday was postponed for a month. Few prospective buyers turned out. Arnold Poole, Hastings auctioneer, said the late season had piled up work on the land, and farmers could not take time off for a sale.

Feed the Babies

FOR LIFE and GROWTH

No matter how busy you are, this Spring, don't lose sight of the importance of giving your "young stuff" an extra-good start. Those first few weeks are the time when they set their course in life, for life; and the time too when they make best use of their feed.

Did you start your chicks on Chick Startena Checker-Etts last year? If you did, we don't need to tell you what a "flying start" these Checker-Etts give chicks — high vigor, high livability, fast growth. If you didn't, ask someone who did — he will tell you! Start your chicks right — feed . . .

Chick Startena

The pigs that make you money are the growthy fellows who get away to a good start, and keep on going. That calls for good feed for both the sow (she has to have it to milk well) and the litter. Balance your chop with the additional protein, minerals and vitamins they need . . .

Sow & Pig Chow

Once field work opens up, you haven't much time to spend on feeding calves. Here's a way that will save you time — save you milk and money, too, and raise real dairylike youngsters, growthy and thrifty. Many of our best dairymen follow this Purina Plan, and report first-rate results.

Calf Startena

and Turkeys too!

So many turkey raisers start their poults on Turkey Startena Checker-Etts that if you raise turkeys you are almost sure to have heard about their results, first-hand. Now, while you're laying your plans, bear in mind what you've heard, and decide that this year you are going to have results like that! Ask for

Budget, Veterans Discussed By Parliament

OTTAWA, May 5 — (CP). — Parliament knuckled down to business Thursday.

Much of the day was spent discussing budget matters. Then the House spent some time approving a few Bills and finished with a discussion on legislation to grant veterans' allowances to British Imperials.

Members from all sides of the Commons appealed to Veterans Minister Gregg extend the provisions to widows of Imperial veterans. The minister said this could not be done, that it would create "inequities."

Fuller Discussion

The appeals were made during consideration of a resolution prior to an enabling Bill, later introduced and given first reading. A fuller discussion of the subject is expected when the Bill is discussed, possibly later in the week.

First reading was given a Bill to appoint an additional vice-president of the National Research Council and third reading —final approval—was given to a measure reappointing the chartered accountant firm of George A. Touche of Toronto and Montreal as auditors for Canadian National Railways.

Most of the time was taken up with resolutions to Bills giving legislative effect to tax changes forecast in the March 28 budget.

After close questioning of James Sinclair, Parliamentary Assistant to Finance Minister Abbott, who piloted them through, these were finally approved and the necessary Bills introduced and given first reading.

Rubber Stamping

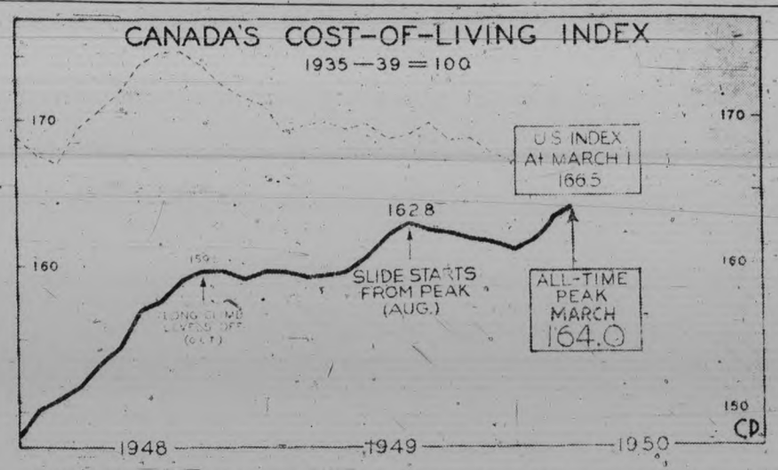
In the Senate, a move was approved to examine Senate committee machinery to pave the way for a detailed study of government spending. Senator Wishart Robertson, Government Leader, appealed to members to end "rubber-stamping" of government money Bills by the Senate.

During Commons discussion of resolutions to Bills to give legal effect to the tax changes proposed in the budget, Mr. Sinclair said genuine small businesses throughout Canada will obtain tax relief under the budget provisions.

Donald Fleming (PC-Toronto Eglinton) urged the government to put into legislation form its policy that capital gains are not taxable. Mr. Sinclair reiterated that this was government policy, but it would be difficult to outline in a Bill.

Mr. Fleming also urged that the government correct an anomaly by which tax reductions claims could be made on interest charges on a loan but not on interest under a hire-purchase contract. Mr. Sinclair said legislation to this effect would be brought in.

Ross Thatcher (CCF-Moose Jaw) pressed for a statement on whether the government planned to force private companies to distribute surpluses or undistributed profits next year if they do not comply with a provision in this year's budget. Mr. Sinclair said no one could predict what will be in the budget next year.



LIVING COSTS—Canada's cost-of-living index soared to record heights during March reaching an all-time peak of 164.0 on April 1. The previous record was 163.7 which was reached a month earlier. The dotted line indicates the trend of US living costs for moderate income families. It is not a comparison of Canadian and US living costs.

Cost-Of-Living Hits New Peak Food, Coal Up

OTTAWA, May 5—(CP)—Retail prices for a wide range of family commodities edged upwards in March following a general pattern set at the wholesale level.

With retail prices for beef, eggs, coffee and anthracite coal pointing the way, the March cost-of-living index moved up three-tenths of a point to set a new peak of 164.0. The index is calculated on the basis that 1935-39 prices equal 100.

Other price increases were noted by the Bureau of Statistics Thursday for drugs, cost of operating automobiles and floor coverings. Butter and clothing dropped slightly.

Advance 62%

As a result of the retail price changes, the Bureau noted that from August, 1939, to March 31, 1950, the cost-of-living index advanced 62.7 per cent.

Among the various sub-groups in which the index is divided, foods provided for one-half of the March advance by climbing from 204.0 to 204.5, just 4.7 points from the record 209.2 last July.

Price advances for anthracite coal in Ontario and Quebec provided the impetus for the other part of the index advances, sending the fuel and lighting subgroup to a record of 138.0 from 136.3.

In the homefurnishings subgroup, the advance in floor-covering prices moved that column from 166.3 to 166.4—a one-tenth of a point increase, bringing that group to within 1.7 points of its record of 168.1 touched last August.

Drugs Increase

Higher prices for drugs and for automobile operations moved the miscellaneous sub-group two-tenths of a point upward to a record 132.3 from 132.1.

Continuing a downward trend which became evident earlier in the year, the clothing sub-index slipped two-tenths of a point from 181.4 to 181.2.

Rents were not surveyed and the sub-index remained unchanged at the record of 132.7, reached after an advance of 7.7 points in February.

On the wholesale side, the index for industrial material prices hit 156.0 for the week of April 21, compared with 155.1 for the week of March 31. Wholesale farm prices gained seven-tenths of a point between March 31-April 28, from 147.9 to 148.6.

He died 95 years ago. Since the discovery, parishioners have been allowed to peer through a trap-door opening into the church basement to examine the sarcophagus and glass-covered face of the old church-builder.

St. Peter's CWL Discusses Centennial Garden Party

Arrangements for a centennial garden party to be held early in June on the grounds of the stone schoolhouse, corner Hunter and Rubidge Sts., were discussed at a meeting of the Catholic Women's League of St. Peter's Cathedral, held on Wednesday evening at St. Mary's school. The president, Mrs. S. J. Houlihan, was in the chair.

The sum of $25 was voted to augment the campaign for funds being carried on by the Athletic Advisory Club of St. Peter's High school.

It was decided to outfit five children for their first communion ceremony.

A comprehensive report of the past year's activities was read by Mrs. J. Begley. This covered a wide range of endeavor, including many social events and contributions to various worthwhile projects. Donations were made as follows: $25 to St. Vincent's Orphanage; $10 to the high school scholarship fund; $5 to the picnic for blind residents, and $5 to the Local Council of Women as a share in expenses of Brotherhood Week. Charitable gifts included three months' supply of milk for one family; $10 to a mother of small children; $15 to a new Canadian; $25 for a special gift; food and clothing for needy families.

The members took an active part in a bazaar held by the Ladies' Auxiliary to St. Joseph's Hospital, and in Christmas parties held for dwellers in the House of Providence, St. Vincen's Orphanage and the Children's Aid Shelter. They sent clothing to the orphanages here and in Cobourg and to a sale held by Boy Scouts. At Christmas time, 22 baskets of fruit and candy were sent to shut-ins of the parish and 17 welfare baskets were delivered to needy families.

The major project in which the members will interest themselves during the coming year will be the furnishing of a room in the new wing of St. Joseph's Hospital at an estimated cost of $500.

UN Commission To Point Up Unequal Treatment Women

By NORMAN ALTSTEDTER
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LAKE SUCCESS, N.Y., May 5.—(CP).—Discrimination against women takes another lambasting next week when an all-female United Nations commission meets for the fourth time.

The 15-member commission on the status of women will rip into a dozen topics pointing up the unequal treatment women receive in a variety of fields, including politics, employment and law.

Canada is not among the 15 countries represented on the commission.

One of the commission's targets during the two-week session will be the UN itself. A report by Secretary - General Trygve Lie shows that there are only three women employees in the UN's top-salary level compared with 177 men. Seventy-six per cent. of UN women employees are in the seven lowest pay groups.

Of 588 delegates and advisers to the last session of the general assembly only 24 were women. Senator Cairine Wilson of Ottawa was a member of the Canadian delegation.

The commission can take heart in a UN survey which indicates gains for women in the political field. Canada is listed among the 52 countries which now give women the right to vote and to be elected to public office on equal terms with men. But 22 countries still have legislation that discriminates against women and in 13 countries women cannot vote or hold elective office either by law or custom.

The commission will also look into sex discrimination in the legal field. A UN report on application of penal law to women emphasizes that the most important instance of discrimination against women in criminal law exists in the field of adultery.

Under French law, if a husband finds his wife and her lover in adultery in his home and kills them, his act is considered excusable. But a wife has no excuses if she kills her husband and his girl friends.

The survey says women generally suffer more severe punishment than men in sex offences.

Elizabeth Taylor To Be Wed In Simple Billowing Gown

HOLLYWOOD, May 5.—(AP).—Actress Elizabeth Taylor tomorrow weds Conrad Nicholson (Nick) Hilton Jr., an heir to one of the world's biggest hotel fortunes.

It's Hollywood's wedding of the year.

Her wedding gown, which probably will set the style for June brides the country over, is described by its designer as simple, with a high neckline, narrow waist, and billows below. The guest list numbers 600, but at least 10 times that many may tie up trafic outside.

It's the first marriage both for 18-year-old Elizabeth and for her 23-year-old, husky, dark-haired bridegroom. His father's 13 hotels, including the Waldorf-Astoria in New York City and the world's largest, the 3,000-room Stevens in Chicago, have been estimated to be worth $125,000,000.

The ceremony is scheduled for the Roman Catholic Church of the Good Shepherd.

Hon. Cairine Wilson Named Canada's Mother Of Year

By KAY REX
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA, May 5.—(CP). — Canada has a Mother of the Year, a dark-haired woman with eight children and seven grand-children who prefers the title of "Mrs." to "Senator."

She's Mrs. Norman Wilson of suburban Rockcliffe — better known as Senator Cairine Reay Wilson, one of the two women members of the Senate and a top figure in national and international affairs.

As Canada's Mother of the Year the 65-year-old senator will receive a gold pin from the American Mothers' Committee in New York which this year plans to make awards to mothers from each of the 59 United Nations.

Chosen for the award by the National Council of Women, Senator Wilson is the first Canadian to hold the title.

She took time out from attending a session of the Senate to express pleasure at being named for the award. However she is not sure she will be able to visit New York next Friday for the Mothers' Day breakfast when the decorations will be presented.

The title is only another in a long list of "firsts" for Senator Wilson.

First woman to become a senator in 1930, she was made Canada's first woman delegate to the United Nations in 1949. Before that she had lined up two other "firsts"—as the first and only president of the League of Nations Society of Canada and the first chairman of Canada's National Committee on Refugees.

Frog's Descant Tops Choristers

TORONTO, Ont. — (CP). — Grade II pupils aren't the only singers in Miss Muriel Perkin's class in suburban East York's Hartman Jones public school. Croaker, the class mascot, a two-inch swamp tree frog trills with the best of them.

Croaker entered Grade II as first-class exhibit in a nature-study lesson. It was only when nature study was over and music class began that Croaker's singing talent was recognized. Now he forms a major part of the class's choral work and entertainment.

Miss Perkins and her pupils aren't the only ones to be entertained by the "velvet frog" however. Principal A. M. Ballantyne, reporters and photographers have also thrilled to Croaker's peep-eep.

Mr. Ballantyne has made tape recordings of the class and Croaker singing together and he says he will have a permanent record made of the mezzo-soprano frog and his human accompaniment.

"People might not believe it without the evidence," he said. "You should have seen the children's eyes light up when they heard him singing with them. It's like something out of a fairy story for them."

Plans were made to include trustees as well as teachers at the convention. Considerable discussion took place on the proposed program. The president reported that he had contacted Mr. J. J. Thurston, of Cameron, president of the Ontario Trustees' and Ratepayers' Association, and he will be available as a speaker. It was decided to set up a panel discussion comprised of trustees and teachers to discuss the new school curriculum.

It is believed these proposed changes will stimuate interest and make for a worthwhile meeting.

A representative of the Junior Red Cross, Mrs. Orr, spoke to the meeting about the work of that organization in the schools.

Chicken Costs No More Than Good-sized Roast

By KAY REX
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA, May 5 — (CP) — Chicken may sound like man's dish but actually it costs no more than a good-sized roast. In addition it's a treat the whole family will enjoy.

Roast chicken is the favorite method of preparation. The cook will find that 30 minutes roasting time should be allowed for each pound, with chickens weighing four to eight pounds. Oven temperature should be betwe n 300 and 325 degrees Fahrenheit.

Pre-Cooked Chicken is a special treat.

Birds may be pre-cooked by steaming or simmering in a tightly-covered pan for 20 minutes before frying. No salt should be added to the water in pre-cooking since this tends to dry the flesh.

The pre-cooked chicken can be dipped in batter and deep-fried for 10 minutes o relse dipped in egg and crumbs and pan or deep-fat fried for five minutes.

Batter for fried chicken: Stir one beaten egg and three-quarters cup milk into one cup sifted all-purpose flour which has been seasoned with 1½ teaspoons salt and one-eighth teaspoon pepper.

Deep-Fat Fried Chicken: Prepare chicken for frying (steam or simmer). Dip in thin batter or in egg and crumbs. Heat fat in deep kettle to 350 degrees Fahrenheit. There should be sufficient fat to cover the chicken without overflowing the kettle. If possible use a deep-fat thermometer to keep temperature even.

Fry until a golden brown and thoroughly done—about five to 10 minutes.

Chicken Loaf with Mushroom Sauce is an ideal way of using up any leftover chicken.

Ingredients: two cups cooked chicken; one cup peas; one-half cup cooked carrots; one cup soft break crumbs; one-half cup milk; one egg; one teaspoon salt; two teaspoons onion juice; two teaspoons chopped parsley.

Put cold cooked chicken and vegetables through food chopper. Mix with crumbs, milk, beaten egg, salt, onion juice and parsley and pack in greased loaf pan. Bake at 350 degrees Fahrenheit for about 40 minutes. Unmould, slice and serve with mushroom sauce which can be made from condensed mushroom soup if fresh mushrooms are not available. Serve six.

Chicken Casserole — Ingredients: two tablespoons flour; two tablespoons fat; one cup milk; one cup chicken stock; salt and pepper to taste; two cups diced cooked chicken; two cups sliced cooked potatoes; bread crumbs; dash of celery salt.

Melt fat, blend in flour and add milk and chicken stock. Cook until slightly thickened. Season with salt, pepper and celery salt. Arrange greased baking-dish with alternate layers of bread crumbs, chicken and potatoes. Pour over sauce and dot with butter. Top with crumbs. Bake at 350 degrees Fahrenheit for about 30 minutes. Serves from five to six persons.

Makes World Jaunt After Games

VICTORIA, May 5 — (CP).— Oh for the life of an athlete when the athletic chores are done!

This remark is prompted by the itinerary of Joan Morgan of Victoria, young Empire Games swimmer, who is virtually travelling around the world to return home.

Her tour following the games in Auckland, NZ, included such places as Australia, Aden, and Colombo, and a trip through the Indian Ocean, the Mediterranean, into Southern France, and on to England.

700 Girl Scouts Take To Air, Get Their Badges

ORLANDO, Fla., —(AP)—This central Florida city probably has the most air-minded group of teen-aged girls in the country.

Instead of discussing the grooviest renditions of the current hit parade number, or the merits of this and that movie idol, talk among some 700 Orlando girls now turns to aerodynamics, wing stresses, [illegible]rmations and the merits of 100-octane gasoline.

It started when girl scout Rosemary Adams wanted an aviation merit badge for her uniform.

Dr. Adams said, yes, he would fly his daughter so she could get an aviation merit badge. Rosemary suggested some of the girls in her troop might like an aviation merit badge, too. Dr. Adams agreed.

The word spread. By the time Dr. Adams was ready to fly his daughter—and a few friends — some 700 other girl scouts had the same idea.

Confronted by the mass request for an airplane ride, Dr. Adams sought the help of flying friends. Four pilots, Frank Cabe, an insurance company branch manager; Col. C. D. McAllister, a military pilot with 6,500 hour of flying time; Gordon Gifford, chamber of commerce executive, and Clark W. Jennings, an attorney, volunteered to help.

Aviation Directors Help

The state aviation director, Wally Schanz, heard of the idea and volunteered the use of his plane. He promised other pilots would help if needed.

The idea spread to the Orlando Municipal Airport where ground crewmen, weather and communication technicians voluntarily set up a ground school, covering virtually every phase of aeronautics.

Now, Sunday is girl scout aviation day in Orlando. The first week five planes shuttled, the young feminine enthusiasts on 25-minute flights. The next Sunday six planes, all flown by volunteer pilots, swooped over the blue lakes surrounding Orlando, laden with breathless girl scouts.

The boy scouts now want to get into the act. Dr. Adams estimates it will take 25 aircraft to check out Orlando's boy scouts for their aviation merit badge.

But that's a mere detail. Pilots from miles around have heard of the unusual project and are standing by, ready to fly a cargo of air-minded youngsters who want aviation merit badges.

SMART AND PRACTICAL maternity fashions adapt new summer styles to suit the mother-to-be. Clever design insures a long life for these clothes after the baby comes. Sheer nylon printed in shades of pale green and yellow make the soft, full-skirted dress (left). This dress which boasts nylon's easy washability has a drawstring waistband adjustment cleverly concealed beneath the smartly-styled bow-tied sash. The practical appeal of wardrobe separates is combined in the ensemble (right). A white pique topper is shown with a sleeveless pale blue blouse and navy gabardine skirt. The skirt which is cut slim and straight has two zippered closings on each side to permit an expansion of 12 inches around the waistline.

What's Right

You hear in a round-about way of some honor that has come to a friend who lives at a distance.

WRONG: Feel that since the friend did not write you of the news you should not write a note of congratulations.

RIGHT: Be sure to write the friend a congratulatory note. Such thoughtful acts help to keep friendships alive through the years.

TEAPOT TRADITION

Tea is consumed by more human beings in all parts of the world than any other single beverage, except water itself.

Paralytic Ignores Handicap Makes 26 Parachute Jumps

By HAL BOYLE

SEATTLE, —(AP)— To some people a physical handicap is a death of the spirit. To others it is only a spur to victory.

There is a woman here whose life story is a living example of the truth that a courageous heart can rise above any affliction. She is Mrs. Emil Mehline, better known as Hildegarde, one of the leading restaurateurs of the northwest.

At the age of nine, Hildegarde —born Hilda Drahold, one of nine children of a landscape gardener —was stricken with infantile paralysis.

"For eight long years I had to wear a plaster cast from my hips to my neck," she recalled "But it made me determined to lead a normal life— to be like other girls.

When she was 17 she drove with some friends to the Tacoma airfield. "Stub" Campbell, an old-time daredevil who wanted a new stunt to thrill crowds at a forthcoming Fourth of July air show, asked the group of spectators:

"Is there any girl daring enough to make a parachute jump?"

"I will," volunteered Hilda.

And jump she did — from 2,000 feet.

"I was still supposed to be wearing my cast at the time," she said. "But I wanted to prove to my six brothers I could do something they couldn't. I didn't get paid for it, but someone passed the hat and collected $27.

In the next two years she made 26 parachute jumps in barnstorming tours with such fliers and stunt men as Campbell, "Tex" Rankin and Jimmy Doolittle. The most she ever earned for a jump was $50.

In 1928 the strapping on Campbell's chute snapped during a routine jump and he fell to his death. That ended Hildegarde's career as a stunt girl, too. H mother made her quit.

"Of course, I had no business making the jumps anyway, as the paralysis had left me with a twisted back," she smiled.

Hildegarde then started selling hamburgers at a local fair. She saved $300 and started her first restaurant. She did all the cooking and table-hopping herself.

Then she opened a large restaurant near McChord field, and likes to remember how once a general helped her wash dishes at 5 o'clock in the morning.

Today she and her husband Emil, a mechanical engineer, plan a chain of west coast restaurants featuring fried chicken prepared by her own secret formula. They also have formed a firm to market pre-cooked frozen chicken on a national basis.

"I never say can't," said Hildegarde, now in her 40's "I just don't believe in it. No one can afford to let himself go—or to give way to self-pity. People who do that can never win over their handicaps."

DOROTHY DIX

Boy With No Intentions Should Not Encourage Girl

DEAR MISS DIX: Will it break a 22-year-old girl's heart if she falls in love with me and finds that I will never marry her? I am not in love with her. I am just being friendly to her. She doesn't have many boy friends nor many attentions from them. I don't begrudge the hours spent with her so am not hurting myself.

Dorothy Dix

MARTIN L.

ANSWER: I commend you for considering the girl's side of the matter as well as your own. Most of the men whose attentions are without intentions are concerned solely with their own getaway and never give a thought to the hafm they have done to the girl.

Destroys Their Faith

Of course, girls whose affections have been trifled with, as the old phrase goes, do not die of broken hearts But their faith in men has been slain. The glamour of romance, the joy, the thrills of love are gone from them forever. It is a terrible thing for a man to rob a girl of these and to fill her heart so full of love for him that there will never be room in it for any other man Plenty of girls who get over first loves marry, but they have only the cold ashes of affection to give their husbands.

Consider also how unfair a deal you are giving a girl when you blight her chances of making a good marriage when you do not mean to marry her yourself. You know that if you take up all of her time and attention, if you are seen out with her everywhere that you keep other men away from her because they naturally assume that you are engaged to her.

You may say that you have been honest and fair with the girl, that you have told her that your attentions are merely platonic, but no woman will believe a man when he tells her that when he also keeps on coming to see her. The woman in love is the most outstanding fool in the world The only honorable thing for a man to do when he finds a girl is falling in love with him and he does not return her affection, is to keep away from her. Force her to realize that her case is hopeless. Let her find some new boy friend and give her a chance to marry and be happy.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: Is it possible for a woman to be in love with two men at the same time? I love my husband. He is a wonderful man and a good provider and I have been very happy with him, but he is not the romantic type. thinks I should take his love for granted, while I am just the opposite type, very sentimental, crave afection. Now I have fallen in love with another man, who is exciting and thrilling. Of course, I know my place is with my husband, but must I live forever as I have lived with a man who takes me for granted? Has my husband failed me in not trying to keep our love alive? How can I keep this other love from growing deeper? I have no children.

C. R. C.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: You have a good husband who is a good provider and a good home, and, if you have a grain of sense in your head, you won't risk losing these by having a flirtation with a man who is probably just amusing himself. The reason that most men make love to married women is because it is safe. They don't have to make good on their vows of devotion.

You are dissatisfied with your husband because he isn't as romantic as he was as a sweetheart, and because you have ceased to thrill at his presence. Well, my dear, that is life. That is marriage. And the same thing would happen even if you were to marry this fascinating stranger. He would cease to be romantic, too, when you saw him every day of your life.

So put all of this foolishness being in love with another man as well as your husband out of your head. The real cure for you consists in having a baby. That will keep you busy and give you something on which to expend your excess emotion.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: All my life I have wanted to be a trained nurse, but the boy I have been going with for two years opposes it very much. He wants me to be a teacher, or anything else tut a trained nurse. Must I change my desired profession to please him, or go ahead as I have planned?

UNDECIDED

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: If you are definitely engaged to the young man and expect soon to be married to him, you might be influenced by his opinion But if you are just vaguely, "going with him" and do not know whether he intends to marry you or not, he certainly has no right to prevent you from taking up the profession for which you have a vocation.

If all of your life you have felt a call to be a nurse, I think you would be very foolish to give it up for the whim of a boy who really doesn't know what he is talking about when he opposes it.

Suitcase Cot, High Chair Too

LONDON, May 5 — (CP). — British mothers worried about the quantities of nursery equipment necessary for holiday travel have had their problems solved by Robert Chivers of the Camberwell District Nursing Association.

Chivers has designed a suitcase-cum-high-chair-cum-cot.

A deep, roomy suitbase with jointed middle and flap-end, it can be opened out and supported on any ordinary chair. One half touches the floor in a leg-rest, the other forms the chair back with flap resting backwards to give head-room. A fitted tray keeps baby safely secured.

At night the case is opened flat on the floor and forms a cot.

Retired Teacher To Visit Ex-Pupils In U.S.

By CHARLES E. WHITING

RICHMOND, Surrey, England, —(AP)—A middle-aged "Miss Chips" has bid farewell to classrooms and started off for a lengthy visit with some of her "old girls" in the United States.

Miss Marion Mathews, retired headmistress of a girls' boarding school, is heading for San Francisco and the first of a series of reunions with 14 of her former pupils scattered from California to Massachusetts.

She will spend two years reliving old times with 14, all of them now married. Some were brides of US soldiers.

Looked Forward

"I've looked forward to going to America almost all my life," she told a reporter on the eve of departure. "I went through all the bombing during the war—I even drove an ambulance—with the hope in mind. Recently I thought to myself if I waited till I was 60 (the usual retirement age) I might be too old. So I decided to get started immediately.

"I've written to all the old girls who've invited me to visit them, telling them I'm on my way."

Miss Mathews, who left her post at Gainsborough Road girls school here at Easter, is in her "middle-fifties." She had headed the school since 1927.

Female Mr. Chips

The female version of James Hilton's fictional "Mr. Chips," beloved English schoolmaster sailed from Rotterdam recently on the Dutch steamer Duivendyk for the Panama Canal and California.

"I expect to be met at San Francisco by a man I taught as a boy in Grammar school," she said. "No, I won't tell you his name because I don't think he would like the publicity. He has a very influential position and has a charming wife and four lovely daughters.

Her first visit with the "old girls" will be at the home of Mrs. Irene Bowles of Fresno, Calif.

See California

"I plan to stay there and look around California for a long time. There are two other former pupils of mine in the film business. They're in Pasadena, but I don't remember their addresses. They are in my trunk which has been shipped."

Some of the cities she will visit, however, are Seattle, Portland, Ore., Chicago, Detroit, Cleveland, Boston, Washington, DC, and towns in Texas and Alabama she didn't remember.

One very important date is with a friend from her Oxford student days, Mrs. M. Shields of Dayton, Ohio.

Start Travelling

"She wrote me that she has just bought a new car and is all set to start travelling as soon as I arrive," said "Miss Chips."

One of her eastern stops will be a visit to Mrs. Vivian Mahoof of Hyde Park, Mass.

Miss Mathews, a Quaker, also plans to look over some of the Friends' schools throughout the United States.

"But no lectures," she said. "I've given up all that—I'm really retired."

Sunday with SEARLE

"I've got furs, haven't I? I'm cuddly aren't I? Tell me, what's Brumas got that I haven't got?"

Bexhill Preserves Ties With Canada

BEXHILL, Sussex, England, May 5 — (CP). — Mrs. F. M. Barrie, whose daughter lives in Calgary, is organizing an association of Bexhill parents whose daughters married Canadians.

The Calgary Highlanders were stationed in Bexhill during the war and many of them married local girls.

Mrs. Barrie's plan has been endorsed by the Southern Executive of the United States and Canadian Brides-Parents Association.

"We aim at keeping the parents together," said Mrs. Barrie. "Then, when the dollar question is a bit easier, we might be able to get the steamship companies to take us to visit Canada at a cheap rate."

Her own daughter is Mrs. Alan Allison of Calgary, who went to Canada in 1943 when her husband was severely wounded after 2½ years' service with the RAF

Sleek and sophisticated—fluffy and feminine—sporting and out-door—or just a good all-rounder—whatever your approach you'll find a fabric that seems created specially for you. Some have the cool, tailored beauty of linen, some are favoured for their wonderful draping quality. Some are soft and fine as gossamer—others have a lovely sheen like silk. Many, to safeguard your perfect grooming at all times, are marked 'Tebilized' for tested crease-resistance.
But all of them will launder faultlessly, are friendly to sunshine, and will last for years and years . . .

Made in Britain by
TOOTAL BROADHURST LEE COMPANY LIMITED, MANCHESTER, ENGLAND.
Some FAMOUS TOOTAL FAVOURITES
LYSTAV a spun rayon fabric of distinctive character, highly adaptable, with a sparkling linen-like surface and supple handle; is equally successful for softly draped or clean cut tailored styles. In many rich glowing prints and clear plain shades. Washable and marked 'TEBILIZED' for tested crease-resistance. $1.29 per yard.
TOBRALCO is simply the perfect wash cotton. Its world-wide reputation rests on its crisp, sparkling texture and gay colours that stay fresh through years of regular wear and repeated washing. The huge range of designs includes many specially created for beach styles and children's wear. $1.10 per yard.
ROBIA a delicate voile-type fabric of fresh, crisp texture, ideal for dainty blouses and light summer frocks. Surprisingly strong and hard-wearing. In many lovely colours, plain or with designs inwoven. Washable and marked 'TEBILIZED' for tested crease-resistance. From $1.59 to $1.98 per yard.
About CREASE-RESISTANCE
Many Tootal fabrics carry the additional trade mark 'TEBILIZED'. This indicates that the fabric has been treated and tested to ensure that it will resist and recover from creasing much as wool does naturally. Not uncrushable, but crease-resisting. Such fabrics wash perfectly if you avoid boiling and strong soap solutions.
THE TOOTAL GUARANTEE
Should dissatisfaction arise through any defect whatsoever in the material, Tootals will replace it or refund the price and pay the cost incurred in making-up.

Play Raises Funds For Floodlighting

NORWOOD, May 5 — (ENS) — Warkworth Dramatic Club was presented in Norwood Town Hall by the softbeall team, to raise funds for flood lighting.

The Dramatic Club presented the three-act play "Closed Lips" and Mrs. Roy Joliffe recited between acts.

part of the charge now merged with Bethany—was not properly represented.

Manse, Pay, To June

The special committee under R. F. Downey acted on the recommendation of the official board.

The Rev. Dr. Bruce Gordon, chairman of the joint meeting, refused to comment on the departure of Mr. Crandall. Already the dispute had received too much publicity, he felt.

Mr. Crandall and his young wife have permission to continue living in the Bethany manse until the end of June. And he will continue to get his $2,200-a-year salary.

The whole dispute is still in the hands of the Peterborough presbytery and it will probably be brought up at the Bay of Quinte conference meeting in Peterborough May 20-June 2. Mr Crandall's future as a minister in the United Church may be decided there.

United Church ministers have pointed out that his opinions are contrary to church doctrine. However, there is no likelihood of his being stripped of his clerical title or unfrocked.

No Unfrocking

He has received two offers to engage in children's work.

"I have received no definite offer of another ministry as yet," he said, "but my wife, who is a nurse, and I have received two offers to engage in children's work."

The Rev. M. J. Aiken, St. Andrew's Church, Peterborough, has given a typical view. "Mr. Crandall ought to abide by the usages of the church or resign," said Mr. Aiken, newly-elected chairman of the presbytery.

Mr Crandall's decision against infant baptism was arrived at after mulling the question over in his mind for 10 years.

He says he wants "to get back to the teachings of Christ," and he can find no justification in scripture for infant baptism.

"In my vows I said I'd preach nothing contrary to the Bible—and there's nothing in the Bible about infant baptism." Because infants have not reached "the age of discretion" he believes they are incapable of making the necessary spiritual decision.

Moebus To Address Guidance Conference

Howard Moebus, head of the Course Planning department at PCVS will speak at the morning session of the Queen's University Vocational Guidance conference Saturday. His topic will be "The Student Interview". Mr. Moebus will be accompanied by K. S. Wightman, superintendent of schools.

George E. Currie, principal of the Belleville Collegiate Institute, will speak on the assistance of a guidance program to the principal. A. G. Hooper, superintendent of secondary education for the Department of Education will be guest speaker in the afternoon.

Dangerous Practice

City police are dishing out parking tickets to drivers who persist in parking on the wrong side of the street and are going to stick a lot more on windshields before they are through.

"It's a dangerous practice," said Chief Constable John Thompson.

He warned that if awarding parking tickets did not cut down parking on the left side recently made illegal, he would raise the ante.

Chief Thompson said he would begin issuing summonses which would result in much higher fines than the $1 parking tickets. You take it from there.

Club Sees Films

NORWOOD, May 5 (ENS) — The 20-50 Club of the United Church met Wednesday night. Twenty couples were present. After business was discussed two films were shown and lunch was served.

Many Attend Funeral Of Robertus Wilson

ROSENEATH, May 5 (ENS) — The funeral of the late Robertus Wilson of Burnley, three miles southeast of Roseneath, was held on Wednesday at St. Jerome's Church, Warkworth. The service was largely attended, showing the high esteem in which Mr. Wilson was held.

Pallbearers were Charles Fanning, Earl Boyle, Cyril Roddy, Charles Bull, Clarence Down and Wellington Sweet.

Those carrying floral tributes were Jay McVety, William Beatty and Gordon Pratt.

Among those from a distance attending the funeral service were: Mr. and Mrs. James Bright, Toronto; Mrs. Roy Clarke, Mimico; Mrs. Frances Carruthers, Toronto; Mr. and Mrs. James Wilson, Campbellford; Miss Mary Rose Fanning, Lindsay; Mr. and Mrs. Gerard Wilson, Peterborough; Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Wilson, Sr., Castleton; Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Wilson, Jr., Campbellford.

London Driver Fined $300 Or Two Months

LONDON, Ont., May 5.—(CP) —Robert L. J. Hanson, 25, of London, convicted Wednesday of dangerous driving in the traffic death of 25-year-old Pauline Nevelle of London, was fined $300 or two months in jail.

Sentence was passed by Mr. Justice King at the spring assizes, and followed the return by a supreme court jury Wednesday of an acquittal on a charge of manslaughter, but a conviction on the driving count.

Must Behave Neighbors Told

"You people have got to behave yourselves if you're going to live next to each other," Magistrate W. R. Philp KC, warned two men and their families when he fined Floyd Walker $5 and $11.50 costs in police court Thursday.

Walker was found guilty of assaulting John Thompson, his elderly neighbour, who said he had known Walker ever since Walker was a little boy. Both live at Crawford's Grove.

Thompson said about three weeks ago Walker came and hit him on the side of the face with his fist and knocked him down.

"I was stupified," exclaimed Thompson.

Evidence was that the trouble started when Thompson reported to a neighbour, Mrs. Graves that Walker had jumped over her gate on his way to get wood. Through Walker's young daughter Mrs. Graves warned Walker to stop climbing her gate.

Walker said he had not jumped over the gate, but over the fence. In court Walker said he went over to Thompson to ask him, "Can't you find nothing to do but cause trouble?"

He added he then pushed Thompson, but did not hit him.

"This is a trivial matter," Magistrate Philp told Walker, "but Thompson is a frail old man."

To Thompson he said: "You'd better stay on your own side of the fence."

Thompson answered: "That's where I was."

ARMY TO TAKE OVER FLOOD FIGHTING

Nine States Hard Hit By Big Storm

Damage In Millions, Seven Killed In Tornado's Advance

KANSAS CITY, May 6 (CP) —An early May storm, powered by tornadic winds, slashed a path of destruction across the midwestern United States Friday. Seven persons were killed and scores were injured.

Property damage across a nine-State area was expected to mount into the millions of dollars.

The violent winds — which reached gusts of 100 miles an hour in some areas—battered the weather-weary north central states all day and into the night. Tornadoes struck at two areas in Minnesota.

There was snow, rain, hail and blinding dust. Flood waters plagued some sections.

The intense storm was over Northern Minnesota early today. High winds continued over most of the midwest but the U.S. Weather Bureau said they would diminish during the day. The storm moderated as it moved northeastward into Indiana, Michigan and Ohio.

Death Toll

Three persons lost their lives in the storm which swept over Iowa. Two were killed in Wisconsin and one each in Nebraska and Texas. Two traffic deaths in Illinois were attributed to the storm.

The strong winds whipped freshly-fallen snow across the western prairie lands of the Dakotas and Nebraska. Some six inches blanketed Central and Western Nebraska early in the day.

The winds of hurricane force extended through the Dakotas, Nebraska, Kansas, Missouri, Illinois, Iowa, Minnesota and Wisconsin. Texas and Oklahoma were "about back to normal" after Thursday night's tornadoes which killed one person and injured several others. Tornadic winds also struck Kansas Thursday night, injuring 52.

The wind storm struck with violent fury at the twin ports of Duluth, Minn., and Superior, Wis., on Lake Superior.

There was much damage to buildings. Trees were uprooted, power lines snapped and plate glass windows caved in. At least two homes in Duluth were destroyed. The damage in Superior alone was estimated at several million dollars. The winds, accompanied by heavy rain, reached velocities of 88 m.p.h.

PARK BECOMES LAKE—Volunteer crews, part of a round-the-clock force, battle the rising Red River at Elm Park in St. Vital a Winnipeg suburb. Hundred of sandbags are being thrown up to keep the river from the valuable residential property. On the left is an army truck used in helping fight the floods.

Jeep In Ditch Two Men Hurt

OSHAWA, May 6 — (CP). — A jeep's plunge into a ditch during a police chase Friday night injured two district men, one severely.

William Middleton 37, of Pickering, was reported in serious condition today in hospital here. Arden Wannop 25, of Brougham, received treatment for minor injuries and was charged with dangerous driving.

Police said they received a report that a jeep had gone off a road in the Whitby area. When they reached the scene, the jeep was back on the road and it sped away as they approached. They gave chase until the jeep went into the ditch and overturned.

Marriage Or Jail? He'll Take A Wife

MONTREAL, May 6 — (CP) — Walter Smercuick, 29, who, at his own request several weeks ago, was given a choice between marriage by May 5 or a jail term, appeared before Judge Gerald Almond Friday and admitted he was still a bachelor. He asked for another delay saying his intended bride first had to obtain a divorce. Judge Almond gave him until Sept. 19. Smercuick pleaded guilty previously to a charge of illegal possession of a firearm.

250 Million Cut Off Marshall Plan

WASHINGTON, May 6—(AP) —The Senate passed a $3,122,450,000 foreign aid bill Friday night after economy advocates had taken a $250,000,000 slice off the next Marshall Plan instalment.

Final passage climaxed three weeks of sporadic but heated debate on the global aid measure which the House of Representatives passed March 31.

Besides providing for continuing the Marshall Plan of economic aid to bolster Europe against communism, the bill calls for assistance to Korea and other areas.

Although administration leaders lost in their effort to win approval of the full $3,100,000,000 requested for the European Recovery Program, they scored a victory by gaining clearance for President Truman's point four plan to aid backward areas of the world.

By a 37 to 36 tally, the Senate adopted a $45,000,000 authorization to start the point four program after rejecting 41 to 33 a Republican move to turn the matter over to a bipartisan commission for further study.

Siamese Twins Thrive Prepare For Operation

EDMONTON, May 6—(CP).—Two tiny babies, who have thrived although bound together by nature, today are being nourished in hospital here for a rare and delicate operation that doctors hope will give them normal lives.

The children are Brenda Carol and Beverley Lynn Townsend, of Tofield, Alta., who are joined at the abdomen in front.

The babies weighed a total of nine pounds 12 ounces at birth. Today they weigh nearly 22 pounds.

"We expect a child to double its weight in the first six months," said Dr. Nelson Nix, a specialist in the team that will perform the operation May 14. "These babies have done better than that in five months."

Gives Thugs Wrong Signals Guard Foils Safe Blowing

HAMILTON, May 6—A quick-thinking night watchman early today foiled a daring safe-blowing attempt at the Palace Theatre and landed three men in police custody. Bound and blind-folded, 64-year-old Alex Davidson instructed two masked intruders to ring in in his watchman's clocks in the wrong order. The error from routine, flashed in alarm sheets of the Dominion Electric Protection Company, brought police and detectives to surround the theatre.

Arrested on charges of breaking and entering with intent were Bruce Rogers, 22; James Martin, 19 and Donald McLeod, 22.

About $2,500 in cash in the safe was untouched.

Davidson, standing near the office door, saw two men midway between him and the entrance to the theatre. Their faces were masked with silk stockings.

In an attempt to warn police, he fled down the stairway to turn in an alarm.

On the landing, he turned his ankle, and tripped, the two men pounced on him.

Tie His Hands

The men placed a blindfold over his face, tied his hands behind his back and led him back to the upstairs office. He was forced to lie on the floor behind a chesterfield, with an open umbrella over his head.

The two discovered Davidson's keys. He told them the keys were used to ring in his watchman's round of clocks. The clocks are connected with the alarm system of the Dominion Electric Protection Company.

Although he knew he had already rung two of the clocks in main floor, he directed the men to them, and to a third one, in the lobby. The first two should not have been rung a second time, and the third was rung out of order.

Police called by the protection service surrounded the theatre, whose back door faces the police station. Two men were arrested near the office door, and a third man was discovered hiding behind curtains on the stage.

Nationalists Nearing End

TAIPEI, Formosa, May 6 (AP) —A "blood transfusion" in the form of planes, spare parts, ammunition and other war equipment might save the Chinese Nationalists, but it must come quickly.

Because of Russian aid to the Chinese Communists, time is pressing, and the issue of Nationalist survival is much in doubt.

This represents the best possible consensus of foreign and Chinese sources in this island capital of the Nationalists.

The Nationalist situation is dark, and the only optimistic outlook—and not much of one at that—is that in China events do not always follow logical courses.

At present it looks as if the Reds will attack and conquer the outpost island of Chushan, then invade Formosa, throwing in an impressive armada of motorized craft and their new air force.

Two things could prevent this: a successful Nationalist resistance on Chushan, or a consequent upset in the Red timetable that would give Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek's Nationalists a breathing spell until next spring.

Make Exemptions

PANAMA, Panama, May 6 (AP) — Panama today offered foreign capital of 25-year tax exemption and other concessions on money invested here. An executive decree by resident Arnulfo Arias said the exemptions would apply to funds invested previously or in the future. Such capital, the decree added, would be exempted from import duties on machinery and raw materials and from taxes on income earned outside of Panama.

Carved Ice Statues Used At Film Star's Wedding

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif., May 6—(AP)—Elizabeth Taylor and Conrad (Nick) Hilton, Jr., head to the altar late this afternoon and thence to a reception featuring carved-ice statues of doves kissing and a horn of plenty spilling fruit.

There'll also be gustatorial trimmings—crablegs, chilled white chicken, smoked turkey and oysters—and champagne. Then the beautiful, 18-year-old film star and her 23-year-old hotel-heir bridegrom leave on a honeymoon that will include three months in Europe.

About 20 policemen were assigned to handle the thousands of fans expected to gather outside the Roman Catholic Church of the Good Shepherd.

It is the movie capital's wedding of the year.

Elizabeth planned a quiet day, following what her mother called a small dinner at the Taylor home Friday night. She added, "We've been going around in circles. It's certainly been hectic."

A recheck of seating accommodations at the wedding rehearsal Thursday night indicated that it will be possible to squeeze in all 700 invited guests including the elite of the acting world.

The hotel scion and the movie star will exchange wedding rings before Msgr. Patrick J. Concannon. The ceremony will be performed outside the altar railing. There will be no nuptial mass. Hilton is a Roman Catholic, but not Miss Taylor.

Asked how it felt to lose a famous daughter, Mrs. Taylor quoted a Spencer Tracy line from Elizabeth's latest movie:

"My son's my son till he gets him a wife. But my daughter's my daughter for all her life."

Three Dikes Broken At Winnipeg

Move 200 Patients From 2 Hospitals As River Overflows

WINNIPEG, May 6—(CP) —Military command of all flood control work in the flood-smashed Red river valley was expected to be announced today by Premier Douglas L. Campbell.

The reliable report circulated after three dikes broke in Winnipeg and neighboring St. Boniface shortly after midnight. New inroads by the Red flood were forecast.

WINNIPEG—Premier Campbell announced today that Brig. R. E. A. Morton, commanding officer of the army's Prairie command, has been named "directing officer of flood relief" in the stricken Red river valley.

It was learned martial law would not be involved.

Brig R. E. A. Morton, commanding officer of Winnipeg military district, would be asked to assume over-all command of navy, army and air force personnel and civilians used in flood-fighting. All civilian relief organizations would also work under his command.

Three hundred troops from Shilo, Man., are being sent for flood-control work and the RCAF threw 120 men and an aircraft into the battle. A force of 30 will work in the Wildwood Park area of Fort Garry until the emergency is over. Another 90 were assigned to the west Kildonan dike area.

Almost 200 patients were driven from two civic hospitals in Winnipeg's low-lying Riverview district.

Residents were ordered from their homes in part of north St. Boniface. Fifteen railway coaches were provided as emergency housing.

Streets Under Water

Four streets were under water in a river-bordering area in north Winnipeg, near the Canadian Pacific Railway station.

Scores of families in the threatened Wildwood housing development in Fort Garry municipality were told they should evacuate. Community Club officials said four-fifths planned to leave.

Two bridges across the Red—Norwood and Provencher—were closed to traffic.

Street car and bus service from many suburbs was curtailed—in some cases stopped.

Kilts Dresses? Asking Trouble

LONDON, May 6 (Reuters)—Scotland's crack kilted regiments today were flung into the sartorial war now raging between American columnist Robert Ruark and Britain's men's fashions arbiter, The Journal Tailor and Cutter.

Ruark, columnist for the New York World-Telegram and the Sun, returning to his assault upon British male dress styles, made what the journal calls his most dangerous squawk by saying "A kilt is a dress. Dresses are worn by girls."

"Even a dangling sporran doesn't discount the fact that a kilt is a skirt and a man looks very peculiar in a frock," he said.

Tell that to the Blacky Watch—and see what happens, was (in effect) the Tailor and Cutter's grim reaction.

It said: "Whilst Scotland is famous as a land where men wear kilts, America is equally notorious as the land where the women wear the trousers."

And it added darkly: "There are five kilted regiments in the British army, and Ruark should approach their members individually and inform them 'kilts are skirts and girls wear skirts'".

"We should like to see the immediate consequences," the journal comments.

Quebec Indian Drops His Hunger Strike

HURON VILLAGE, Que., May 6 (CP)—Jules Sioui, the 43-year-old Huron who gave up a hunger strike after 73 days of fast on a pint of sweetened water a day, was due to sip a little fruit juice today, one of the first steps in bringing him back to his normal 170 pounds. He now weighs but 112.

Friday, weak and growing confused, Sioui gave up his fast started Feb. 22 to obtain recognition of rights he claims for the Indians from Prime Minister St. Laurent himself.

Dr. Gaston Jean, medical officer at this Indian reservation, said it would take "about 10 days" before Sioui could get back to a normal diet and a normal physical condition.

Dr. Jean, who was called every two days to the asphalt-shingled house combining the Indian's home, grocery store and barber shop, said Sioui broke his strike by sipping a cup of tea.

Navy Sends Blankets

HALIFAX, May 6—(CP)—Blankets for flood victims are being provided by the navy and will be flown from here to Winnipeg, the R.C.-A.F. announced today. A twin-engined Dakota will take off for the prairie city later today with 500 blankets, the air force said. The blankets were requested by flood relief agencies.

Map Strategy To Halt Red Aggression

LONDON, May 6. — (AP) — The Big Three try next week to sketch a master design against Communist aggression. The foreign ministers of Britain, the United States and France will meet in London. The ideal outcome, it is felt here, would be a "western" foreign policy to replace those of individual powers —but that degree of unanimity is not altogether likely. Preliminary talks in London in the last two weeks have made it plain, however, that the three countries feel they must move closer together if they are to win the cold war. A western source expressed the view that no spectacular projects would come out of the meeting of Ernest Bevin, Dean Acheson and Robert Schuman. But policies set by the western allies as recently as a year ago are outdated. A new policy must be set in motion.

Negotiation Useless

A feeling has been expressed by Acheson in recent speeches and echoed by British diplomatic informants—that it is useless to even attempt negotiation of the cold war until Russia can be shown further aggression is impossible.

In previous Big Three sessions, policies were chosen with one ear cocked for a Russian knock at the door and the view that no course should be chosen which might irritate the Russians.

This time a course may be set to let the Russians know firmly that the west is determined to protect its freedom.

Opponents of this developing policy describe it as dividing the world into two armed camps and say it will make a shooting war inevitable instead of preventing it.

State Secretary Acheson is scheduled to meet with Foreign Minister Schuman in Paris Monday, and come to London Tuesday for talks with Foreign Secretary Bevin before the three get together.

Hold Calgary Youth In Brother's Death

CALGARY, May 6.—(CP)— A 21-year-old Calgary youth was charged Friday with the murder of his older brother a few hours earlier.

Richard Barclay was charged after the death of his 28-year-old brother, James, during a fight at their father's home.

Richard was remanded until May 13 for preliminary hearing.

Both Richard and James were home on visits. The slain brother, an able seaman, was on leave from the navy.

US Senators Assail Britain For Hiding Information

WASHINGTON, May 6—(AP) —Three Senators assailed Britain today for withholding full co-operation from the United States in the Klaus Fuchs atomic spying case.

Senator Edwin C. Johnson (Dem. Colo.), a member of the Senate House of Representative atomic committee, told a reporter he is shocked at reports that Britain has agreed to give the Federal Bureau of Investigation only limited opportunity to question Fuchs, convicted of passing atomic secrets along to Soviet agents.

Senators Styles Bridges (rep. N.H.) and Homer Ferguson (Rep. Mich.) said information the F.B.I. might get from Fuchs may be vital to defence plans under the North Atlantic Pact and ought not to be denied the U.S.

There has been no official statement but reliable reports are that the British government insists on fixing conditions under which F.B.I. agents can talk to Fuchs—an arrangement the F.B.I. is said to regard as inadequate if it is to get at the bottom of the atomic spying system.

A Senator who asked that his name not be used publicly said even these unsatisfactory arrangements were not agreed to by the British government except under pressure exerted by high American officials.

Johnson said he thinks this amounts to "very shabby treatment of the security problem" by Britain, adding:

"They ought to give us full and complete co-operation so that the whole case can be fully explored and so that any aides or assistants of Fuchs in this country can be unearthed."

Unemployment Declining As 10,000 Find New Jobs During April

Predict Employment In Most Areas Will Beat 1949 Record, Construction, Agriculture Good Bets

OTTAWA, May 6—(CP)—Unemployment in Canada is falling rapidly. From a peak of 434,700 at April 6, numbers of unemployed dropped to 424,300 at April 20 with indications of a rapid seasonal increase of employment in most industries. The Labor Department reported Friday that the actual decrease in unemployment at April 20 was higher than figures indicated, since many registered job seekers had found work but had not notified the National Employment Service offices.

Of the total of 424,300 job seekers registered with employment offices at April 20, some 69,000 were workers claiming supplementary unemployment insurance benefits.

Exclusive of those who had registered for supplementary benefits since they went into effect Feb. 28, there were 355,300 persons registered for work with the employment service at April 20—a decline of 12,600 from April 6.

The Department said by far the largest proportion of workers seeking supplementary benefits were found in the loging districts of Quebec and the Maritime Provinces.

To Beat Record

It was expected that the total number employed in most industries and regions would exceed last year's records. The outlook for the construction industry was "particularly favorable," and labor requirements in agriculture and transportation should be "at least as heavy as last year."

"New construction expenditures in 1950 of an anticipated $2,300,000,000 is 12 per cent higher than in 1949, while the overall level of public and private investment for new construction and for machinery and equipment is expected to reach $3,600,000,000 in 1950, or five per cent higher than in 1949."

The Department said many of the new job openings had been created by the opening of navigation on the Great Lakes.

Germans Outraged Rocks Red Conceit

BERLIN, May 6 (AP)—Rocked by the outraged German reaction to Russia's claim that all German prisoners of war have been repatriated, the Communists today launched a furious counter-offensive.

The Russian-controlled press and radio denounced as "poisonous lies" German and allied charges that hundreds of thousands of Germans still are being held in the Soviet Union.

The Communists reiterated old charges that the United States is withholding captured records of German army war dead in order to give the impression thousands of Germans still are alive in Russia.

These charges have been denied by the western powers as "Communist calumnies."

Prorogation Appears Very Distant

OTTAWA, May 6 — (CP) — Judging by the progress parliament has been making lately, it's going to be a long, hard pull to prorogation this summer.

Most of the discussion came as the House began consideration of Transport Department estimates totalling $82,000,000. After five hours of talk it passed the first item—that for departmental administration totalling $1,012,000. Estimates for all other departments besides transport remain to be considered.

One of the major items is an amendment to the Official Secrets Act under which 20 persons were prosecuted in the espionage trials of 1946. Contents of the bill were not officially disclosed, but it was suggested it may include a provision to allow prosecution of Canadians who break the act's security regulations while abroad. At present only those who break the law in Canada can be prosecuted.

Won't Meet Tribes

At the House opening Mr. St. Laurent said it is not planned to hold meetings with representatives of various Indian tribes prior to introduction of a bill to amend the Indian Act. He indicated that those interested—includig the Indians—would be given time to

New Zealand Ends Rationing

WELLINGTON, N.Z., May 6 (CP)—New Zealand's National Party Government Friday announced a 70 per cent slash in subsidies on foods and other commodities.

At the same time, it was revealed that all food rationing will end June 4 when butter will come off the ration. It is the only food item still rationed in New Zealand.

A number of foods still are on ration in Great Britain. They include meat, bacon, butter and other fats, tea, candy, cheese, and canned products such as fruit, meat and fish.

Prime Minister Sidney Holland of New Zealand's National (Conservative) Government said in a broadcast that subsidies are being cut by £12,000,000 from their current level of 17,000,000 annually.

Cleveland To Prevent Another 'Noronic'

CLEVELAND, May 6 (AP) — The fire department announced today it is taking steps to prevent disasters similar to the fire which struck the steamer Noronic in Toronto last September.

Capt. J. R. Dempsey of the fire prevention bureau outlined these moves:

Water connections are being placed on all passenger ships docking here so that fire engines can pump lake water into the vessels' sprinkling systems in emergencies.

Ship telephones will be connected with the city phone system when the vessels are in port.

The fire department will conduct weekly inspections of Detroit & Cleveland Navigation Co. ships plying between the two cities. Cruise ships will be inspected weekly or as often as their schedules permit.

Japanese More Arrogant Than In 1940, Finns Find

By RUSSELL BRINES.

TOKYO — (AP). — Japanese government officials are doing a good job of antagonizing many of the foreign business men upon whom they may have to depend for the country's revival.

In some respects, the Japanese are more arrogant than in 1940, when they started telling foreigners they no longer needed them.

The big current issue is over proposed tax rates on personal incomes, but this is merely symbolic of numerous unanswered questions on how the Japanese intend to treat foreigners when they get full autonomy.

The proposed tax legislation provides some exemptions for foreigners "contributing to Japan's economy," but it still would take up to 55 per cent of earned income, with the heaviest load falling on low-salaried foreigners.

Key Japanese officials rather sternly have refused further changes in response to protests by the American Chamber of Commerce in Japan. The Japanese have the authority to suggest concessions, even though occupation headquarters must approve the final program.

The foreign business men have expressed willingness to pay equitable taxes. But they object to rates higher than those in their own countries, because they say these unusually high rates were set for reasons that should not involve foreigners.

Japanese taxes always have been high on paper because the Japanese assume nobody will report accurately. Japanese business concerns keep double and triple sets of books to avoid paying full taxes. The Japanese also are taxed heavily to try to pay for the war they lost and for the costs of occupation and rehabilitation.

The Shoup Report

Foreign businessmen contend neither of these reasons for high taxes should apply to them.

Neither of these points was mentioned in a tax-reform blueprint prepared some time ago by a special mission under Carl S. Shoup of Columbia University.

The Japanese seized on the Shoup mission's proposal to apply full rates to foreigners while ducking its recommendation that the entire tax reorganization program should be adopted at once. The Shoup report itself stated no foreigner would be hurt if his home office would increase his salary by 35 per cent to meet taxes.

Both Japanese and occupation thinking has been pretty generally dominated by the attitude that all foreign businessmen in Japan are making fortunes. This idea has been encouraged by the relatively high, but by no means unusual, living standard of representatives of major foreign companies. They obviously are making money—but there is no evidence of a gold rush.

From the beginning, the occupation has placed what it calls "commercial entrants" in a separate category from military and civilian members of the occupation.

Foreign business men have taken beatings on such things as housing. They live in second-rate hotels at first-rate prices, or have had to buy inadequate houses at inflated costs. They pay what amounts to exorbitant taxes at the legal rate for the yen on imported cigarettes and some foods.

In business matters they report they find the Japanese governments choked with red tape and staffed with unco-operative bureaucrats who like to show authority.

Wild Indian Rhinoceros Takes Over Busy Town

NEW DELHI, May 6—A wild rhinoceros, one of the few still inhabiting Northeastern India, virtually took possession of the busy town of Golaghat in Upper Assam this week after it had killed two persons and had driven the population from the streets, according to an Indian news agency report.

The account of the jungle monster's depredations said the authorities of the town could not kill the animal without special permission since rhinoceri are protected by game laws to prevent their extinction in Assam. The officials were said to be awaiting such permission.

Then the rhino took a leisurely swim in the town reservoir while residents cleared the streets and closed their shops, leaving Golaghat virtually a dead city except for the marauding rhino.

WINNIPEG GRAIN

WINNIPEG, May 6 (CP) — Coarse grain futures on the Winnipeg Grain Exchange Friday rallied from early losses and closed higher. Trading was fairly active. Some buying was attributed to strong United States markets.

In the export business, 1,400,000 bushels of wheat were transferred, with the United Kingdom being allocated 470,000 bushels. Switzerland bought 370,000 bushels, Belgium 190,000, South Africa 370,000, and Colombia 30,000. Class 2 wheat, for export to countries other than the United Kingdom, rose 1 cent to $2.18.

Three Dikes

Red Cross, municipal officials and other agencies were besieged with emergency calls for aid. But there was no indication at dawn of any fatalities or injuries.

Winnipeg's hydro central-heating system was cut off in some parts of the city.

The Henderson highway, last paved road into Winnipeg from the east, was flooded and closed to traffic.

Other Dikes Threatened

All other dikes in the Winnipeg area threatened to collapse, eroded by the constant pressure of the still-rising Red river which already had left all but one Southern Manitoba town under water.

Radio stations blared warnings through the night, and admonitions to residents of the two cities to be calm.

The Red river level at Winnipeg at 4.30 a.m. EDT was 25 feet—eight feet above the flood-risk level and the highest it has been here in 88 years.

City Engineer W. D. Hurst said it might well go up another foot. That would threaten at least part of Winnipeg's power system.

Strong winds put choppy waves on the rain-pounded river during the night and into today. The weather warning for the whole Red river valley continued.

Lose Circuits

Communications companies lost circuits west of Winnipeg at the height of the gale.

Army and civilian ambulances were taking every patient out of King Edward and King George Hospitals in Riverview. Forty or 50 were moved during the night to Deer Lodge Military Hospital. Another 135 or so less seriously ill were taken to their homes

Donald M. Cox, secretary-manager of the hospitals, said none of the patients in the hospitals was in critical condition.

The huge St. Boniface Hospital, across the Red river from Winnipeg's business section, was seriously threatened. Emergency radio calls went out for volunteers to bolster its shaky dike.

All day Friday, the Red river level rose. Flood workers toiled ceaselessly in a heavy downpour. By nightfall the situation was urgent; by midnight it was critical.

Then the river took over.

At 3.25 a.m. EDT the gale pushed the Red through a dike fronting a commercial-residential section between the Louise and Redwood bridges in North Winnipeg near the C.P.R. station. Barber, Edward, Grove and Hallet streets were inundated.

Tributary Overflows

Within minutes, the tributary Seine river—swollen by a backwater from the Red—overflowed in North St. Bonface.

Radio stations broadcast urgent calls for volunteers to try to stem the break. The water spread quickly from Canada Packers feed division, near Whitter Park race track, south to Provencher St.

Families in the semi-industrial area were warned to get out. They were taken to railway cars spotted at St. Boniface.

Then a dike paralleling Henderson Highway in North Kildonan was reported broken Only one secondary road remained open to the east.

Another dike was breached on the Red's west bank in Riverview, at Brandon Avenue.

The Red has risen a foot in 12 hours up to early today.

City engineers warned residents that cracking of the most important dikes would mean three or four feet of water over three or four square miles of residential property.

"All previous estimates of the flood crest are likely to be exceeded," said city engineer W. D. Hurst.

Morris Ghost Town

Morris was a ghost town today. The last handful of sildier and residents fled yesterday after a dike guarding the Morris Hospital, last cell of resistance, was ripped out for keeps.

Ten other Southern Manitoba communities were isolated. Others had still-passable rail or highway lines, but no place to go. Food, livestock feed and flood-fighting equipment were at a premium. Cattle were being shot.

A Canadian National Railways train brought 160-odd persons—including 13 hospital patients—out of Morris Thursday. Late last night the remainder left by army amphibious "duck" or boat, on a second attempt. The first was unsuccessful because the barrier Morris River was too choppy.

A Canadian Pacific Railway relief train arrived early today from McTavish, about 34 miles southeast of Winnipeg, with 32 other evacuees. Most of the surrounding farmland was flooded. Cattle were packed into boxcars to sit the crisis out on a railway siding.

Ease Rulings For Old Ships

OTTAWA, May 6.—(CP). — Transport Minister Chevrier told the Commons Friday night it was not the intention of the Government to force older-type passenger ships out of service by too stringent enforcement of new safety regulations.

The new regulations, contained in recommendations made by the Kellock Commission following the disastrous Noronic fire at Toronto, would be much more stringent than before.

In fact, he said, some shipping operators had protested against them, but after consultations "I think they realize that we are not being unfair."

Where older ships were giving a real and necessary service, such as to residents living on islands, the minister thought the responsible inspector "will use his judgment." It was not intended that ships should be forced out of service.

CENTENNIAL DOINGS

As the outstanding start to the Centennial celebrations, the Right Honourable Louis Stephen St. Laurent, Prime Minister of Canada, and Madame St. Laurent will visit Peterborough two weeks from today, May 20th. The City Council and the Centennial Committee have planned a programme of events marking the visit of the Prime Minister. These include greetings by the school children to the Prime Minister — the children will be assembled in several of the City parks and the Citizen's Band will be in attendance. During the morning the party will also visit several of the City's larger industries.

In the afternoon the Prime Minister will officially open the group of buildings constituting the new Peterborough Civic Hospital.

In the evening the main event will be the Civic Reception to the Prime Minister and Madame St. Laurent at the Kawartha Room, Empress Hotel, to which all citizens may obtain invitations by applying at the City Clerk's Office.

STREET DECORATIONS

Considerable effort is being made by the Civic authorities to properly decorate the streets of the City. The co-operation of individuals and companies is required to make the decorating of the City a proper success. It is particularly asked that every resident should make it a personal responsibility to decorate his home, and the companies to decorate their places of business.

Further details on the visit of the Prime Minister and other events will be published from time to time by your Centennial Committee.

Why Should British Liberals Be Conservative

It is widely believed on this side of the Atlantic that the British Liberals are so violently opposed to the Labor Government that they naturally and gladly rebound into the Conservative Party. If they do not support the Conservatives in every way possible, they are incredibly stupid. If Liberal M.P.'s absent themselves on a close vote in the House they 'blunder' or, to put the most charitable interpretation on it, they are almost criminally careless.

* * *

The Brantford Expositor slipped into this uncritical, biased or uninformed assumption Thursday when it remarked irritably on the Liberal Party's refusal to join the Conservatives "in an election deal to put the Socialists out of office." Clement Davies, leader of the Liberal Party has informed Lord Woolton, who had issued the Conservative invitation, that the committee of Liberal M.P.'s had no intention of compromising the independence of the Liberal Party. The Expositor finds it hard to conceive how the suggested alliance would compromise the party's independence. And it reflects on the "blunder" last Monday when a snap vote was taken, and Labour was able to 'hang on to power by a slim margin of one vote' because all the Liberal M.P.'s were not in attendance to vote against the Government.

* * *

There is the assumption that Liberals abhor Labour and therefore must love the Tories. Has the Liberalism of Gladstone, Asquith, Lloyd George, of millions of cottage people who writhed under squiredom and thousands of other people of good will and fine minds—liberal to the bone—so utterly perished? And is it true that the Conservatives are closer to Liberalism than Labour? An examination of the policies and records of all parties might show that there is closer affinity between Labour and Liberal than between Conservative and Liberal.

* * *

Another assumption is that the Liberal Party is so stubbornly independent that it might lose all independence by passing out of existence. It should not be forgotten that two and a half million Britons voted Liberal at the last election, even if only two handfuls of their candidates were successful. It is further assumed that the Liberals would not lose their independence if they joined the Conservatives, an assumption that political history does not support. And if Liberals joined Labour would they have less independence?

* * *

Finally, are Liberal M.P.'s wanton or careless because they abstain from a close vote and miss the chance to defeat the Government? Many thoughtful, patriotic M.P.'s, whether Conservative, Labour or Liberal, do not want a government upset now. Elections are costly, and a series of elections in one year is unstabilizing to country and economy. There are few indications now that elections results would differ materially from those of three months ago. No major issue has been raised which would sway the voters overwhelmingly to one party or the other. The Liberal M.P.'s may be doing a statesmanlike job in refusing to upset the apple-cart now.

Communist Countries Batten Down Their Hatches

During the war Russian and other eastern European servicemen came in contact not only with western European customs, standards of living (wristwatches were prized!), but also with westerners themselves. The contacts were not numerous, nor always with the most opulent of western countries, nevertheless the western virus of plenty and democratic conduct infected the easterners. Thousands of soldiers and hundreds of officers and civilians on diplomatic wartime missions returned to Russia and its present satellites envious of the west, discontented with the ways and regimes of their own nations. These bearers of western germs have been speedily decontaminated or ruthlessly quashed. And Russia has taken special care in these post-war years that westerners situated in the east are not allowed to mingle with others. Even by their clothes and freedom of speech these westerners are, in Communist eyes, the bearers of contagious germs.

There are two purposes of the self-isolation of Russians and satellites from the West, and the segregation of westerners living in those countries. The Easterners will not learn about the West, and the western visitors will not find out what is going on in Russia. Much more subtle, and as effective as the Iron Curtain, is the wall of ignorance and mis-information which Russia has created between East and West. The satellites have been slower in adopting the policy, but they are making up for lost time by flagrant interference and a bitter campaign against westerners. The pace has been specially hard in the last ten months.

Bulgaria demanded the withdrawal of the United States Minister to Sofia. A U.K. Charge d'Affaires in Roumania was arrested. The campaign against diplomatic persons in Czechoslovakia has been particularly blatant. Two attaches of the U.S. Embassy in Prague were expelled on 24-hours' notice. The French Military Attache and his secretary were ordered to leave within twelve hours. Sergeant Danko and Corporal Vanier, members of the Canadian Legation in Prague, were expelled on twelve hours' notice. In March three senior Dutch diplomatic officials in Prague were ordered to leave Czechoslovakia within eight days. Apart from the interference with diplomatic persons, there are the well-known arrests and trials of American, British and Dutch businessmen.

Interference with international organizations has been marked. For instance, the Polish Y.M.C.A. has been nationalized and re-organized as a Social Work Centre. The Polish authorities said that the Y.M.C.A. was an instrument of Protestant Christianity and incompatible with Communist orthodoxy. International relief organizations' work, —such as the Red Cross, the Quakers and UNICEF, has been almost terminated. Newspapermen are receiving special attention, their freedom of movement restricted, their numbers reduced. Private citizens are now subject to arbitrary arrest and trial for espionage or similar charges.

The situation is alarming. The interference is carefully organized in each satellite country and the Soviet policy of insulation now encompasses half Europe. Canada still maintains diplomatic missions in Czechoslovakia, Poland and Yugoslavia and Russia. Their members' freedom of movement and intercourse within those countries is so limited as to reduce their usefulness. Nevertheless, any contacts are better than none.

Annie The War-Monger

The German Communists have condemned Annie Get Your Gun as "a war-mongering play". They are speaking, of course, of the film, in which Betty Hutton stars as Annie Oakley; she is described as "a grinning monster" and is accused of "war-mongering with sex appeal". Just how this is done we cannot say, but the idea is an interesting one. would that all war-mongering could be done so pleasantly! A war conducted entirely by armies of girls as pretty as Betty Hutton, directing their sex-appeal at each other—what a delightful prospect.

It must be understood that the film has not yet been seen in Germany—only pictures from it. But it is in the best Communist authoritarian tradition to condemn things unseen.

We have racked our brains for anything which might have given the Communists the notion that the film was war-mongering in purpose. We can only imagine that it must be that song with the provocative refrain:

Anything you can do
I can do better:
I can do anything
Better than you.

To communists, of course, any such claim from the other side is utterly intolerable.

NOTE AND COMMENT

More than half the estate of the late Sir Harry Lauder has been consumed in death duties. What a joke Harry could have made about that—and it wouldn't have been a joke about the Scots!

Our Spring Prize for the most beastly pun goes to the Brantford Expositor which says: "Queenie, lioness at Lincoln Park Zoo, Chicago, is 'expecting' come July; she'll probably go to a lion-in hospital."

The Marchbanks Correspondence

To the Rev. Simon Goasle, B.D.
Dear Rector:

Do you believe in reincarnation? I don't suppose you do, and neither do I, but it is attractive nonsense, none the less. I ask because it occurred to me last night that I might possibly be a reincarnation of Queen Elizabeth. I read that she "passionately admired handsome persons and he was already far advanced in her favour who approached her with beauty and grace. She had so unconquerable an aversion for men who had been treated unfortunately by nature, that she could not endure their presence". I feel just the same. I like handsome people, particularly women. I also like people who are fascinatingly ugly. It's the in-betweens who give me eye-strain and I generally treat them with bad-tempered indifference.

So perhaps I am Queen Elizabeth returned to earth. Have you noticed that people who believe in reincarnation never imagine that they were a person of no importance in another life? Have you ever heard one claim that he was a slave who worked quite contentedly on the Pyramids, and died of rupture at 32? Or that he was a peasant who neglected to go to see Joan of Arc burned because he was mending his roof? Or that he was a Scottish crofter who saw young James Watt watching the tea-kettle and said "Yon laddie'll never amount to owt"? But the world is full of unrecognized Napoleons, Cleopatras and similar great ones.

Yours sincerely,
SAMUEL MARCHBANKS
(or possibly Queen Elizabeth).

To Miss Nancy Frisgig
Charming Nancy:

I have your note in which you say that you wish you had lived in the Middle Ages, because it must have been such fun. I'm not so sure. Do you know that during the greater part of what we call the Middle Ages nobody had a bed? They slept on heaps of straw, quite naked, and it was considered pernickety to change the straw more than two or three times a year. Those who had beds slept in curious contrivances which caused them to lie at an angle of forty-five degrees; it must have been rather like sleeping standing up. Do you know that there were no chimneys in those times? Fires were built in the middle of the main room of the house, and the smoke escaped through a hole in the roof, but only after it had whirled all around the room and choked everybody. When, late in the Middle Ages, chimneys were introduced, they caused more outraged complaint than the Kinsey Report.

But the real trial was the music. Last week I had a chance to hear quite a lot of medieval music, played on a lute, and recorded by a modern expert. I suppose you think of a lute as a charming instrument which young men would have played under your window to show that they loved you? Ha, ha. The lute sounds pretty much like a guitar with a cold in its head. A catarrh, in fact. Ho, ho.

So when you are tempted to idealize the Middle Ages, imagine yourself lying naked in dirty, tickly straw, breathing smoke and listening to the lute. There is really a great deal to be said for modern comfort.

Yours as always,
SAM.

To Samuel Marchbanks, Esq.
Dear Sam:

The psychologists, I see, are up to their old tricks of dividing mankind into classes according to the shape of their skulls, their physical contours, and their pulse rates. Why don't they ever consider some of the really important classifications which we all know. I refer to People Who Are Chronically Punctual, and People Who are Chronically Late: Losers, as opposed to People Who Never Lose Anything: People Who Never Forget A Face, and People Who Can't Remember Faces: People Who Always Have Change and Stamps, and People Who Never Do. And so on.

I myself am a man who is never late. If I am asked to dinner at seven o'clock I arrive on the tick of seven, usually finding my hostess without her face on and my host in the bathtub. I never lose anything, but most of my acquaintances seems unable to keep even quite large and repulsive objects. I am unable to remember faces and names, and I suffer torture, because I assume automatically that I have met everybody and grin and wave at all sorts of people, without uttering a sound. I always have change and stamps, but I move in circles where these things are unheard of, and it costs me a lot of money.

Psychologists never bother about anything really important.

Yours petulantly,
AMYAS PILGARLIC.

To Chandos Fribble, Esq.
My good Fribble:

The papers tell me that Gian Carlo Menotti is not going to call his new opera "The Leper" because some doctors have asked him not to. They are discouraging the use of that word. And as "The Sufferer from Nodular Foci of Inflammatory Cells" is not the sort of opera title which draws crowds to the box office, Menotti is going to find a completely new name for his piece.

But if the word "leper" is to be taken from us, what shall we do? For generations we have been accustomed to describe people who do not agree with us as "moral lepers". What are we to call them now?

There is a great tendency, which must be resisted tooth and nail, to give up calling nasty things by nasty names. I urge you to use your teeth and nails to the best advantage in the struggle to keep all nasty words we can in constant use. The world's greatest need, at present, is for more nasty words.

Yours contumaciously,
S. MARCHBANKS.

To Big Chief Marchbanks
How, Marchbanks!

In Ottawa now, Marchbanks. Got business with government. I see by papers some Quebec Indian want government to give freedom back to Indians. No good. Indians got too much sense. Who wants to be free and work for government, anyway? Every place I look here I see sad faces. Glasses. Bald spots. Government no job for happy man.

Indian here I used to know on reserve. He get ambition. Go to school. Everybody say smart Indian, give him a chance. He work. And work. Now he got place in Government. Work like devil. Got black hat. Got briefcase for carry sandwiches. On reserve his name Joe Halfwit. Now he called Mr. J. Frontal Lobotomy. Sad sight, Marchbanks. How again!

ONE WORLD

Germany And Atlantic Union

From RICHARD LOWENTHAL
In Berlin

FIRST reactions by responsible German politicians to the idea of an Atlantic Council with powers outside the purely military field have been cautiously but definitely favourable. There is as yet very little public discussion, but both Government and Opposition leaders are studying the idea with intense interest and hope.

Continued German hesitation to join the Council of Europe must not be taken as indicating a desire for "neutrality" or hesitation to line up with the Western world. Whatever present differences and discontents, both Dr. Adenauer (Chancellor of West German Republic) and Dr. Schumacher, the leader of the Socialist Opposition, have lately stressed to their followers that Western Germany's choice has long been made in favour of the free world.

One important cause of hesitation in formal commitment so far has been the lack of a security guarantee which would assure, in the event of war, an effective defence of Germany territory and excluding, say, a planned withdrawal to the Rhine. Accordingly, one reason why German leaders welcome the idea of an Atlantic Council is that it might give even a disarmed Germany some form of membership in the Western security system, and therefore a chance to argue its special security needs.

There is one difference, however, in the attitude so far taken by Government and Opposition. Dr. Adenauer is anxious that any plans for an Atlantic Council should not prejudice the chances of a closer European, or possibly continental, union. It is not accidental that his latest speeches have emphasized the potential role of an organized Europe as a factor of peace between the United States and Russia, and that his most recent interview speaks of the common task of France, Italy and Germany.

Dr. Schumacher, on the other hand, believes that the Council of Europe may decline in importance once the Atlantic Council is created, and he would not be sorry about it. He feels that the invitation of the Saar State has largely spoiled the Council of Europe as an instrument of co-operation between equals, and that experience has shown that the narrower a West European community the more will it be afraid to admit Germany on a basis of equality. In his opinion co-operation in the wider framework will be easier for Germany just as it is for Britain, though for different reasons.

(Special to The Examiner from the London Observer.)

Family Tree Gone Wild

(Grand View, Man., Expolent)

A middle-aged widower, Mr. Brown, had a 17-year-old son, Jim. Mr. Brown married again. His second wife was 21 years old. The couple had a daughter, Sadie.

After a few years Mr. Brown died. His son Jim, by the this time a full grown man, and being no relation to his stepmother, who was only four years older than he, they got married. They now have a son—Bill. Here we have Jim married to his stepmother, and Sadie, who is really Jim's sister, but his wife's daughter, calls Jim Daddy.

Then little Bill calls Sadie his sister, when she is really his aunt, being a sister of his father, Jim. Sadie calls Bill her brother, when he is really her nephew, being a son of her married brother. It's all legal, and confusing and interesting. Think it over.

Unconsidered Trifles

PALATABLE

A certain well-known gambler failed to pay a large note when it became due and, in consequence, the loan shark who held it waxed highly indignant and berated the debtor in bitter and extremely uncomplimentary terms. Whereupon the gambler, greatly insulted, poked a pistol in the lender's ribs and barked: "Eat that note, you lily-livered dollar grabber."

With some difficulty, the money lender chewed up the document and swallowed it. A few weeks later, to his utter amazement and delight, the gambler fell into a highly profitable run of luck, and paid off the obligation in full.

A little later the gambler came to the money lender and applied for another loan. He was quickly and cheerfully accommodated.

There was a thoughtful expression in the money lender's eyes as the gambler took out his pen and prepared to make out a note to cover the obligation.

"Wait a minute!" the money lender cried. "Would you mind writing that on a soda cracker."

Bible Message

(From the Authorized Version)

Now faith is the substance of things noped for, the evidence of things not seen. (Heb 11: 1.)

✧ ✧ ✧

And when they were come to the multitude, there came to him a certain man, kneeling down to him, and saying, Lord, have mercy on my son: for he is lunatick, and sore vexed: for ofttimes he falleth into the fire, and oft into the water. And I brought him to thy disciples, and they could not cure him.

Then Jesus answered and said, O faithless and perverse generation, how long shall I be with you? how long shall I suffer you? bring him hither to me. And Jesus rebuked the devil; and he departed out of him: and the child was cured from that very hour.

Then came the disciples to Jesus apart, and said, Why could not we cast him out? And Jesus said unto them, Because of your unbelief: for verily I say unto you, If ye have faith as a grain of mustard seed, ye shall say unto this mountain, Remove hence to yonder place; and it shall remove; and nothing shall be impossible unto you. Howbeit this kind goeth not out but by prayer and fasting. (Matt. 17: 14-21.)

✧ ✧ ✧

By faith Enoch was translated that he should not see death; and was not found, because God had translated him: for before his translation he had this testimony, that he pleased God. But without faith it is impossible to please him: for he that cometh to God must believe that he is, and that he is a rewarded of them that diligently seek him. (Heb. 11: 5, 6.)

First Irish Pioneers In Western Townships Ancestors of Ops, Emily, Ennismore, Smith

By HOWARD PAMMETT, M.A.

The locations made to the Irish were in the following townships: Emily 142, Ops 7, Ennismore 67, Smith 33; Douro 60, Otonabee 52, Asphodel 36, Marmora 11: total 412. In Emily township, approximately 604 persons were placed on their lands by John Huston, the surveyor, mostly in the back concessions 7 to 12, only a few among the Protestant "old" settlers in the south concessions; these last were the half-dozen Protestant families among the emigrants brought out by Robinson. Before the road to Emily was cut, the first groups were taken out the Communication Road, up Chemong and Buckhorn Lakes, across Pigeon Lake, and down Pigeon Creek, on a scow. The names of these Irish follow, in order from front to back of the township.

First In Ops

In Ops township to the west, which was surveyed 1823-24, there was little or no settlement before John Huston brought out about 30 Irish through Emily from Scott's Mills in the autumn of 1825, and located then on seven lots in the 10th and 11th concessions, fairly close to the earlier settlers in Emily and Cavan. These seven locatees were: Michail Kenny, James Kenny, John Conyngham, Charles Corneille, James McGuire, Richard Nagle, James Conynghan.

In 1827 the Purdy family from the United States began to build grist and sawmills on the Scugog in the middle of this township, on a reserved townsite, where had been a Mississaga camp named Onigahning, "the portage." Numerous settlers came soon after, but it was not until 1834 that John Huston was ordered to survey the townsite which for decades was known as Purdy's Mills, later renamed Lindsay.

Irish In Ennismore

The Irish were the first settlers in Ennismore Township, which was surveyed only a few months before. Much friction was later caused by a mistake in the survey, as revealed by a letter of James Brenan in the Crown Lands papers: "There was a mistake committed in the survey of every lot in the 4th concession of said township, which left the south half of each lot more than 100 acres. Shanties had been built by Government on this mistaken tract, and settlers placed in them, who knew very little about either ports or lines, only to commence working where they were stationed." When it was resurveyed later, some lawsuits resulted. Huston took the Irish out through Smith and across Chemong Lake by scow.

P. G. Towns, in an article on early Ennismore tells the story of how Patrick Gallivan, going across the lake with the first scow-load, jumped to the bank and exclaimed: "Behold, gentlemen! I am the first settler in Ennismore!" They were located on all the concessions from the 2nd to the 11th, a total of 67 locations and about 290 persons: in sequence from south to north:

Patrick O'Donnell, Bart Lingane, Timothy Curtin, John Collins, Pat Lynch, Mark Linnehan, Denis Linnehan, Simon Bourke, Pat Frihy, Pat Foley, Wm. Foley, Denis Shanahan, Pat Sullivan, Owen McCarthy, Thomas Sullivan, Patrick Toomey, Bart Sullivan, James Pone, John Sullivan, James Mahony, Joseph Bolster, John Hickie, Thomas Foley, John Bolster, John Molony, Michael Carew, Pat Sullivan, John Sullivan, Wm. Condon, Cornelius Driscoll, Joseph Bolster Jr., James Stack, Pat Costello, John T. Sullivan, Daniel Costello, Michael Costello Jr., Pat Collins, Pat Brick, Michael Driscoll, Pat Shanahan, Denis Keheler, Wm. Fitzgerald, John Keleher, John Pone, Cornelius Sullivan, Edmund Gillman, John Stack, John Twoomy, Robert Stack, Cornelius Howran, Thomas Cahill, Cornelius Driscoll, Jr., John Curtin, Thomas Keane, John Ellis, Joseph Sheehan, Daniel Foley, Denis Driscoll, Timothy Keene, Daniel Donoghue, Arthur Donoghue, Timothy Donoghue, Pat Murphy, Pat Gallivan, John Gallivan, Garrat Gallivan. The Gallivans and others in the north end, the narrows between Pigeon and Buckhorn Lakes, regularly went to Scott's Mills by boat down Chemong Lake and in the Communication Road.

Smith Irish

Smith Township was already partially settled, and there were only 33 Irish locations here, totalling about 135 persons, mostly, in the north concession 11th to 13th, with a few in the south from the 1st to the 7th. The locatees were, from south to north: Michail Shine, Daniel Shine, John Sullivan, Daniel Burgess, Wm Burgess, Daniel Connell, John Bolster, Wm. McDonald, Henry Gardiner, Cornelius Deane, Richard Andrews, Richard Thornhill (the clerk), Edward Fitzgerald, Thomas Fitzgerald, Eugene Callaghan, Andrew Daly, Owen Daly, Denis McCarthy, Thomas McCarthy, Denis Hanan, George Hanan, Cornelius Crowley, Jeremiah McCarthy, John Walsh, John Young, Francis Young, Henry Daly, John Daly, Wm. Young, Samuel Young, Cottrel Lane, John Lane, Patrick Bourke.

Several of these were placed on lots which had been earlier located and abandoned, and this caused trouble later on, as these letters indicate:

"To Wm. Chewett, Acting-Surveyor-General, York, 12th Feb. 1830. Sir, I beg to acquaint you that I located one of the Irish settlers under my superintendence in 1825 on lot 20 in 7th conc. Smith in consequence of finding it with no settlement duty done upon it. As James Roseborough was located on it originally and now claims it, I am of opinion he should be allowed to locate the south half of 26 in 10th conc. Smith as it appears vacant—P. Robinson."

"Hon. Peter Robinson, York My Dear Sir, Since writing you this afternoon, a person has called on me who holds a location ticket for the 35th lot in 12th conc. of Smith, on which one of the Youngs (Francis) was located in 1825, although I find that Young has made his improvements on lots 36 and 37 on the river, where he says he was placed thro mistake of McKinnon, the person employed to place him. As I understand the person holding the location ticket has gone to York to see you, I have thought proper to suggest that lots 35-36-37 if disposable be withheld until Young, who is a very good settler, should be confirmed in his location. Young intends erecting a sawmill this summer. The location ticket is dated June 1826, some months after our locating the settler (Young). Cobourg, 25th March, 1828.—Alex McDonell."

Some of those in the northern end of Smith were taken to their lots up Chemong Lake, while others went up a trail cut along the west bank of the Otonabee through the thick forest. Being far removed from Scott's Mills and their market, some of these settlers like Lane and Bourke did not stay on their lands. Most however, like the Youngs, remained and prospered, as we shall see.

Bancroft: Senator Billa Flint And Early Village Industry

By W. A. DAVY.

Ed. Note: On March 25th on this page, we published an account of a pioneer woollen mill in the village of Bancroft. In this article, Mr. W. A. Davy, a senior resident of Bancroft, whose family has been associated with the village since its earliest days, throws further historical light on Bancroft.)

The earlier settlers of Bancroft included Mr. James Cleak of London, England, and Mr. John Charles George, I think of Ireland. Mr. Cleak secured the settlers rights to lots 59 and 60 Hastings Road and lots No. 1 Concessions A and B, Township of Faraday. His son James secured lot No. 61 and Mr. George 62 and 63, Hastings Road.

In 1874 Senator Flint obtained lots No. 59 and 60 from Mr. Cleak. This is the land on which the Power Site is situated. Senator Flint, who was a lumberman and owner of a large sawmill in the City of Belleville appeared to have a hobby of helping to build up rural communities.

First Flinton and then Bridgewater (now Actinolite) then York River which is now Bancroft.

I would like here to disgress a little in this account.

My father, William D. Davy, who was of UE Loyalist stock, was born in the township of Ernesttown in the vicinity of Millhaven in 1837. He spent his early years there and at the village of Sydenham where he learned the trade of millwright, later moving to the village of Queensboro where he was employed by Daniel Thompson in the operation of his saw and grist mill. It was here the writer was born in 1869.

In 1875 my father decided to move with his family to North Hastings and after a two day trip from Queensboro we arrived at what was later known as the Vankleek Settlement on Nov. 12th 1875. But even at that date we moved with horses and wagon and not with oxen and jumper.

Then during the summer of 1876 my father moved with his family to the hamlet of L'Amable where he was employed by the Jarman family in the improvement and operation of their saw and grist mill.

Two Schools - One Teacher

It was during this year that I as a small boy got my first view of what was to become the somewhat pretentious Village of Bancroft and my home. It happened in this way.

The School Section was rather large and included the hamlets of both L'Amable and York River with the result of having two school houses but with only one teacher who was obliged to travel and teach alternate weeks, first at one school and then at the other. It was during one of these weeks the writer along with other of the pupils of the L'Amable school were conveyed to the York River school and as there were no school buses in those days we were content to travel with horses.

Then in 1878 my father was employed by the late Hon. Senator Billa Flint to come to what was then York River to install improved machinery in both his saw and grist mill and in 1879 he moved his family there. During the summer of 1880 Senator Flint installed wool working machinery in the upper story of his sawmill. These machines consisted of a picker and carding machine, the picked wool being converted into rolls which was in turn made into finished yarn by the women of the community with their spinning wheels. As a boy I remember my mother operating one of these spinning wheels and it is almost unbelievable the finished yarn that was made in this way.

In 1883, Senator Flint decided to erect a new mill for his wool working machines which included a spinning machine and a couple of looms for making flannel and fullcloth.

This mill which unfortunately later burned was located upon the land now occupied by the Bancroft Planing Mill.

Then in the early part of the year 1884 my father who then was superintendent for Senator Flint sent teams to what was then Bridgewater to bring these machines to their new location. It was at this time that Mr. and Mrs. Fuller came here where he was to superintend installation and operation of the woollen mill. It was during the year 1879 that the Senator had the name of the Post Office changed from York River to Bancroft.

Senator Billa Flint Names

I understand this was an expression of honour to Mrs. Flint whose maiden name was Bancroft (Phoebe Bancroft). This along with a street named Phoebe Street and Flint Avenue is I think the only thing to commemorate a man who devoted several years of his life helping the residents of Bancroft and vicinity with little or no thought of remuneration for himself.

The Senator was a staunch prohibitionist and would not allow the sale of intoxicants on any of his property, he gave generously to every worth while undertaking. He erected what was then known as the Town Hall, would now be called a community hall, and was erected upon the land now occupied by the present community hall.

This was a gift from the Senator as was also the land now occupied by the United Church.

In his early years the Senator took an active interest in the Municipal affairs of the County of Hastings, he occupied the Warden's chair for a number of years.

If you can in your mind picture a man occupying a comfortable home and business in the City of Belleville driving over the old Hastings Road both summer and winter, giving his time and money with the object only of serving others, that man was the Hon. Senator Billa Flint.

Tourist operators in Burleigh and Harvey townships bordering the Kawarthas, while shining up their places for the coming summer business, will be wondering what is in store for them in the forest tent caterpillar menace, come June. Entomologists of the Science Service, Canadian Department of Agriculture, predict three tourist areas will be infested this year. These are, north of Sioux Lookout, east of the Soo and the Muskokas. Nothing was said about the Kawarthas in particular. We are keeping our fingers crossed after looking the situation over last June.

Like the old riddle, which comes first the egg or the chicken, the tent caterpillar cycle follows this pattern. Eggs laid by moths in August on twigs of trees come to life next May as caterpillars when foliage begins to appear. These hairy, dusty-brown insects with slate blue stripes and white spots, clip the young leaves down in showers. Poplar, oak, maple, birch and basswood trees and their undergrowth are soon stripped. Only the most vigorous trees refoliate.

By the end of June, caterpillars are fully grown, one and one-half inches long, and seek sheltered spots to spin yellowish cocoons in which they spent the pupal stage. From this, until the rusty-brown moths appear in early August, the beginning of another cycle is reached.

Spray The Little Beasties

A 50 per cent. solution of DDT sprayed on ornamental trees and buildings will effectively control limited areas. A standard stirrup pump with extension hose is the best spraying equipment. Applications should be made as soon as foliage starts to thin out.

It has always been my theory that caterpillars spread by water from one area to another. Many years ago in the Sioux Lookout area mentioned above, the menace spread from infested main shore lines to adjoining windward islands within a few hours after the morning breeze came up. I saw this happen several times. In the main, moths are blown for miles to lay their eggs wherever they light but water-borne caterpillars are a secondary method of spreading.

Everyone is incorrectly guessing how much later spring is this year. Charley Pilon of 530 Gilmour St., can tell you it is ten days late. Why? His pet albino robin "Whitey" came back from the south ten days later this year. That was about two weeks ago. Whitey is a female that first landed at the Pilon home five years ago fall southbound. She came back the folowing spring and each year since.

How To Give Birds The Gate

Peterborough Nature Club's Morley Powell handed me some good suggestions about keeping undesirable birds from family bird houses. Due to backward weather, it is still not too late to heed some of his hints. (1) Make entrance just large enough for desired tenant. (2) Do not put perch or step at the entrance unless it is intended for purple martins; it only assists intruders to bother inmates. (3) Keep entrance hole plugged until desired birds arrive, thereby giving them a better chance to hold their own. (4) If sparrows or starlings take possession, shut them in for half a day, or, kill them outright; if you live outside the city, you may shoot them.

P. A. Tavener, Canadian field naturalist, says that bird house builders must conform to the customs and idiosyncrasies of the birds rather than to their own ideas of convenience and beauty.

Big Sportsmen's Showing In June

The news is out. Peterborough's first sportsmen's show will be held at the Civic Arena on June 2nd and 3rd, sponsored by the Peterborough Fish and Game Protective Association. Big things are planned such as bait casting tournament, archery demonstrations by experts, displays of gun relics, wild animals and all the outdoor paraphanalia you could think of.

There will be a mongrel dog show for the kids, an old-time fiddling contest and suitable raffle prizes such as a kicker, a rifle and a bicycle. The hard-working show committee is headed by Don Smedmor (phone 5196), with Ed Highland, Jack Baldwin, Norm Bradley, Wilfred Perry and many other members on various subcommittees. Already several display booths have been contracted by various firms. It looks like a bang-up do just coming over the horizon.

SMALL FRY: Pedagogue E. A. Druery of King George School came up on a beaver dam within a block of the city limits while prowling for trout last Saturday; sorry I can't reveal where it is on account of vandal menace . . . Freelance writer Francis Love of Omemee will have an article in May's Rod and Gun magazine about Peterborough entitled "The Fishingest Town" . . . Port Hope Yacht Club have finally invaded Rice Lake with their four snipes and several power boats; they will use Art Metcalfe's "Pineridge" for a clubhouse and his water front for mooring. New docks are abuilding and craft already arriving from The Front . . . Mounties made the big pinch in Toronto this week taking 160 game birds in one frozen locker plant; everything is in order in Peterborough lockers, so operators tell me . . . The Ontario Travel and Publicity Bureau will report any instances to the Foreign Exchange Board this year wherever they learn of service station operators, tourist homes and restaurants failing to allow U.S. tourists full exchange on their money; this is a tip-off to Peterborough district people . . . I will not labour the slim trout fishing luck on opening day but rumour has it that Rufus Payne and Jack Arnott did exceptionally well by themselves in both speckles and browns; unable to get either by phone to verify. YOU ask them how many and where.

If you want to go back again next year to your favourite trout fishing spot, heed what lands and forests men say: "Watch your fires and smoking materials." Lack of green growth, crisp, dry leaves and dead grasses, make trout time fire hazard time. Take care.

Ladle In A Pot Of Gold

Love's Philosophy

The fountains mingle with the river
And the rivers with the ocean
The winds of heaven mix for ever
With a sweet emotion;
Nothing in the world is single;
All things by a law divine
In one another's being mingle
Why not I with thine?

See the mountains kiss high heaven
And the waves clasp one another;
No sister-flower would be forgiven
If it disdained its brother;
And the sunlight clasps the earth
And the moonbeams kiss the sea:
What are all these kissings worth
If thou kiss not me?

OLDEST STUCCO HOUSE IN PETERBOROUGH

Inch-Thick Planks Sustain This Home

By ROBERT HATTON

Easily the oldest house of its kind in the city is this 110-year-old stucco covered stripped house on the east side of Armour Rd. just south of McFarlane Ave., owned by Mrs. Mark Burnham and Miss Annie Erskine.

The house was built by Donald McFarlane on 40 acres of land in 1840 and named it Auchinellan after his father's home. He constructed it first as a high single storey cottage. The walls were made by laying inch thick planks one on top of the other and hence was called a stripped house. In

LONGEVITY

Among many evils and naughty affections which follow the nature of man, corrupted by sin, none bringeth greater inconvenience than the inordinate hope of long life. This is the cause why we defer the reformation of our lives, and remember not that we have an account to make at the last day.

John Northbrooke, 1577

1874 the second storey with three front dormers was added in a style reminiscent of the Scottish houses familiar to Mr. McFarlane in Scotland.

After Mr. McFarlane died, his wife's brother, Donald MacKellar, came out from Scotland, looked after it and farmed the land. He cleared part of it, including the hill which became The Lookout, now part of Ashburnham Memorial Park. But, through the years the land was gradually sold.

After passing through the hands of various members of the family in partnership with others, it was taken over by John Erskine, father of the present owners. Peterborough has two streets named after Mr. McKellar and Mr. Erskine.

Until recent years the grounds of the house were always well kept. Two large lilac bushes at the front of the house dominated the lawn. A tennis court was once the pride of the family.

A few years ago, it was rented and deteriorated.

Mrs. Burnham and Miss Erskine hope soon they will be able to re-occupy the house and return it to its former fine appearance.

Pioneer Rescuers, 85, 78

By MRS. GERALD MARRYAT

On the 20th of March, 1872, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Birdsall were returning from Hastings by the lower road. Finding the road badly drifted, they turned off onto the river, and almost immediately the horses broke through the ice, dragging the sleigh with them. In his efforts to free his valuable team, Mr. Birdsall fell in himself.

Mrs. Birdsall hastened as quickly as possible to the nearest house, the old stone homestead of the Pioneer Humphries. Robert Cayford Humphries and his wife were alone but there they set out at once and in spite of danger to themselves from the frantic struggles of the drowning horses were able to grasp Mr. Birdsall's hands and pull him out of the icy water. In getting him to their home, they experienced considerable difficulty as he had injured his hands and arms on the ice in trying to save himself. If you know the location of the Humphries' homestead, now the home of their great-grandson, Max., you will appreciate their problem; for Mr. Birdsall's clothing at once froze solid and hampered him at every turn.

But at last they were all in the warm house and able to attend to frostbitten hands and soon dispatch a messenger to Mr. Birdsall's brother, who sent for Dr. McCrae of Keene, for Mr. Birdsall's limbs began to swell at an alarming rate.

Mr. Birdsall recovered in a few days and the others suffered no serious effects, but the horses were lost. At any time such an act of heroism is worthy of admiration, but when Mr. Humphries was 85, having been born in 1787 and Mrs. Humphries was 78, having been born in 1794, the praise of the Peterborough Review of March 29th was well-merited. Today the Royal Humane Society would doubtless have awarded them their Medal for Life-Saving.

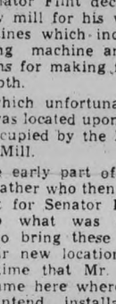
Two Drownings

All such adventures, however, do not have such a happy ending. The Otonabee poet, Alexander Graham of Keene, commemorated another tragedy in verse. In October, 1849, two Otonabee men were drowned almost in sight of land, but no one answered their call for help.

"Oh how solemn is the news
That is going round
That a boat hath upset,
And two men there are drowned.

'In such weather who are they
Who did their lives hazard?
The one is John Robertson
The other Joe Blizard", etc.

Two Peterborough men, George Hughes and Capt. Robartes, were drowned while coming down Rice Lake on Oct. 20, 1862, causing widespread sorrow. The Peterborough Review of May 15, 1863, reported the finding of Mr. Hughes' body at the same time as that of Mervyn Richardson, only son of George Richardson, agent for the Prince of Wales for the Duchy of Cornwall, and nephew of Sir James Richardson, Bart. of Castle-Hill Co. Tyrone. The Peterborough Review of May 15, 1863, reported the arrival of the widow from New York and the removal of the young man's remains to St. Peter's Cemetery in Cobourg. One wonders whether the father has been in the party accompanying the Prince of Wales when he crossed Rice Lake on his way to Peterborough in September, 1860, and whether he might have told his son of the beauties and sport to be had in the Gore's Landing vicinity.



Hints On Horticulture

SEWING SEEDS IN BOXES: Obtain an ordinary box or flat receptacle 24 inches by 12 and 4½ inches deep. Make a few drainage holes in the bottom and place an inch layer of leaf soil or pieces of broken turf thereon. Fill the box to one inch of the top with finely screened soil composed of two parts of well-rotten loam, two parts of well-rotted leaf soil and one part of sand. Press the soil firmly, but not unduly so, by means of a smooth object, and leave the surface uniformly smooth.

Having prepared the box, mark off rows two or two and a half inches apart. Sow the seeds thinly, cover them, and after watering, place the box on the hot bed or in sunlight (preferably under glass), giving protection at night against cold.

TRANSPLANTING THE SEEDLINGS: When the seedlings are large enough to handle, that is, about the time they show their first true leaf, transplant them in more permanent quarters which will allow more space for development. Remember, that owing to freer circulation of air and light seedlings develop more rapidly and become more robust than when transplanting is unduly delayed. They are also better able to combat the many insects and fungus pests which prey upon them.

There is no general rule as to the distance apart seedlings should be transplanted. It should be such, however, as to allow of unrestricted development until they reach a suitable size for outdoor planting.

Joan and [illegible] go fishing often. Sometimes to distant places. When they were first married, they decided to open a special savings account and deposit regularly. Now they are able to enjoy it.

You too can enjoy the same opportunities. By depositing $3.66 weekly, in five years you can have $1,000.00 cash.

Patrick Resigns From Rangers, Surprise Move

NEW YORK, May 6—(CP).—The long and brilliant reign of the Patrick clan in big-league hockey has come to an abrupt ending with the surprise resignation of Lynn Patrick as coach of New York's Rangers.

The 36-year-old son of Lester Patrick, the famed "silver fox" of hockey, announced late Friday that he is leaving the Rangers to take up a coaching job with Victoria Cougars of the Pacific Coast Hockey League next season.

At Victoria, his birthplace, Lynn will join his 66-year-old father in running the Cougars. The Patricks have a financial interest in the club which has a working agreement with Montreal's Canadiens.

The news of Patrick's resignation came as a distinct shock to hockey fans here, since no evidence of such a move previously had been hinted. He had done a solid job in guiding the Rangers to the final round of the Stanley Cup playoffs in his first full year as coach, only to lose out to the champion Detroit Red Wings four games to three.

RCMP Halt Supervision Of Saliva Tests

OTTAWA, May 6 (CP)—Commissioner S. T. Wood of the RCMP said Friday that the force no longer intends to supervise saliva tests at Canadian race tracks.

He said the decision to stop supervision of the tests was made "recently." It would be up to the various racing associations in the country to make arrangements for such supervision in the future.

The RCMP has supervised saliva tests at race tracks in Ontario, the three prairie provinces and Quebec for a number of years.

The tests are conducted at all regulated race tracks to ensure that no winning horse in a race is given a stimulant that would artificially raise the animal's normal performance. Tests also are carried out on any other horse whose performance is subject to suspicion.

Here And There In Sports . . .

By The Canadian Press

Two groups of gentlemen — those who work at playing baseball for the Boston American League Club, and those who work at writing about the gentlemen who play baseball—compromised Friday on a question of privacy.

The Red Sox had announced with considerable dignity that they wanted no writing gentlemen barging into the privacy of their dressing room after games —at least not for 30 minutes.

The sports writers protested with some vehemence that most of the Red Soxers were fast dresseds and that at the end of 30 minutes most of them had departed from the dressing room for parts unknown. That made it difficult for the writers to thresh out knotty points about the game not clear in the press box—questions of scoring, or just what happened in a double play. After all, they had a job to do, too.

So reasonable did this seem to the baseball players that their spokesman, Dom DiMaggio, Friday announced they had relented by 50 per cent. The reporters now are unwelcome in the dressing room only during the first 15 minutes after each game. After that, say the modest baseballers, it's open house.

Harry Doughty, president of a Toronto motor agency has been appointed to the board of directors of the Toronto Argonaut Football Club, it was announced Friday night. He succeeds John A. Stuart, who resigned last week.

In making the announcement, Bob Moran, president of the Big Four Club, emphasized that Argos "are engaged in a major rebuilding job."

Moran said he intended to build Argos into a "strong team." Several outstanding Canadians and imports have been lined up, he said.

Goody Rosen, former fence-busting major league baseball player and an outfielder last season with Galt Terriers of the semi-pro Ontario inter-county loop, has turned to softball.

Manager Sam Shefsky of Toronto Tip Tops, announced Friday Rosen will not be returning to the inter-county this season but had signed with the Tip Top club.

Walter (Dip) Nichol has been signed to manage Waterloo Tigers in the Inter-county Junior A Baseball League, it was announced Friday. He succeeds Johnny Moyer.

At Washington, Li'l Arthur King, of Toronto, British Empire champion, Friday night scored a technical knockout over Herby (Biff) Jones of Washington at two minutes, 43 seconds of the sixth round in a main bout at Uline Arena.

Young Lester Felton of Detroit, bolstered his hopes for a shot at Ray Robinson's welterweight title by soundly whipping Tuzo (Kid) Portuguez of Costa Rica, in a sizzling 10-rounder at Detroit Friday night.

Smythe Lauds Lynn Patrick

TORONTO, May 6 (CP) —Resignation of Lynn Patrick as coach of New York Rangers of the National Hockey League will be "a big loss to the league," said Conny Smythe, managing director of the Toronto Maple Leafs, today.

Patrick, the youngest NHL coach, announced his resignation in a surprise move at New York Friday, saying he intended to join his father, Lester Patrick, in operating the Victoria Cougars of the Pacific Coast League.

The younger Patrick in a telephone call from New York said that "unhappiness" in the big city, plus a desire to learn the actual business end of hockey from the ground up, prompted his decision. Patrick, whose Rangers were defeated by Detroit Red Wings in the Stanley Cup finals last week, said he and his wife were both unhappy in New York because "it's no place to bring up kids, especially living in an apartment." He has three small children.

Smythe expressed regrets at the league's loss. "He knows hockey and its players and he was a credit to the NHL in which he had a definite future," the Leafs manager said of Patrick.

New Hi Hoe Club Holds Initial Meeting

MARMORA, May 6 —(ENS)— The initial meeting of the Hi Hoe Club was recently held at the home of Miss Marjorie McCoy. The election of officers resulted as follows:

President, Jean Deline; vice president, Clara Fleming; secretary-treasurer, Gwendolyn Terrion; leaders, Ruth Bateman and Marjorie McCoy. Fees were fixed at ten cents for each meeting.

Garden seeds and pamphlets were distributed and members were told the general outline of club work.

It was decided to hold Achievement Day at Marmora Fair, when each member will exhibit a collection of vegetables.

The next meeting will be held in the latter part of June at the home of Jean Deline.

Lunch was served by the hostess, assisted by Ruth Bateman.

Toronto Loses Fame No Longer Most Hated

TORONTO, May 6 — (CP) — A man whose opinion carries some weight came up Friday with a controversial pronouncement on a controversial subject.

Leo Dolan, director of the Canadian Government Travel Service, said Hogtown, the "most-hated city" in Canada, is practically extinct.

Mr. Dolan, who has travelled thousands of miles in Canada, told a Rotary Club luncheon that Hogtown has been replaced by Toronto, a city where people aren't so bad after all.

People still call Toronto Hogtown but they no longer do it with venom, said Mr. Dolan. The change of character had all taken place in the last 10 or 15 years although he couldn't explain why.

Harry Steele, old-timer of Ontario baseball, died at Winnipeg 13 years ago today, at 91. Steel was a member of the Guelph Maple Leafs who won a world championship in the 60s. Steele's death left only one surviving member of the team, the Rev. Ephraim Stevenson, of Guelph.

A little hockey item ere the balmy breezes blow. The local Triple Links will sponsor an OHA junior "B" and an OMHA juvenile "A" club again next winter, they decided at a recent meeting. This working executive was chosen: President, Elmer Pearse; vice-president, Vic Brown; secretary, Glen Edwards; treasurer, Bob McQuaig; manager, Len Simonds. The coach and other officials required will be named at a later date. Though sponsoring sports from junior down is generally a losing proposition financially, the Oddfellows don't do too badly one way and another, working hard to raise money to keep Peterborough youth in organized hockey, and the club deserves much credit.

Speaking of organization, the baseball setup should be well handled here this summer. Seniors and intermediates go on their own, while Riverside Park is under the Recreation Commission. The minor association, having its own executive, will have an advisory and assisting committee made up of the following: Vern Dawson or George Clarke, Lloyd Grose, Len Simonds, Ed Murphy and Johnny Russelle of the senior club; Dit Clapper, Cy Whatley, the Rev. Jos. O'Sullivan, Alex Kay, Al Watkins and Ray Pammett of the PMBA; and Alec Sinclair, Wilf Langan, R. J. Bolton and Clare Collins of the Recreation Commission. They will serve three, two and one year terms, this and the committee officers to be decided upon at an early meeting.

Encourage Minor Ball

The minor ballsters had a capable executive last year, one that made them money for the first time in years, but it should be even better this semester, with that advisory committee back of it. And with the promise of more parks and later floodlights at Riverside. Everything possible is being done to encourage the sport so that in time a completely homebrew senior club can be fielded here—something never done before. It is expected that a 16-team minor association will operate from peewee right up, though the junior situation is still obscure. The long-standing debt should be whittled away down this summer if the raffle and the Tip Tops' exhibition game next month prove successful.

Let us emphasize again two important rule changes in the PMBA this year, so that managers and players act accordingly. It is now necessary for all players to have their birth (not baptismal) certificates in the hands of the secretary by July 1, or they play no more until this has been done. It is also required for the winning team each game to have the scorecard or book in the hands of the section convener within 24 hours, or that game is forfeited. Yes, the executive decided to put teeth in these rules this season, so they're now a "must".

Like SOS, COD and PDQ

Some of these initialled short shorts for local athletic bodies reminds one of a bowl of alphabet soup spilled all over the table. You've got the PMHA, the PMLA and the PMBA representing minor hockey, lacrosse and ball here. First one is affiliated with the OMHA, the second with the OLA and the third with the OBA. Of course, the senior teams here have connections with the OASA, PWSU, OHA, OLA, OBA, LOBA, OABA and so forth. Not forgetting the fact that PCVS and SPS teams are in COSSA competition. See what we mean? Alphabet soup, and you needs must know sports to understand all these monickers. If we missed some, it's just an oversight. OK?

The GE shop golf circuit has its 1950 opening at Kawartha Club on May 15 and opens a home-and-home competition 'gainst the Lamp Works in Toronto on May 27. More girl swimmers are expected for the shop club. Tennis and golf shapes up well once more, and Prexy Bob Batley recently presided at the windup CGE shop hockey league. UEW opens its soccer season this aft at three 'gainst Kingston Vimy at King Edward Park.

Circular Stage To Appear In New York

By PAT USSHER.

NEW YORK, May 6 (CP) — Manhattan play-goers don't often see the back of an actor, but they are about to get more rear views.

The occasion is the arrival in New York of the Arena Theatre—a circular stage in which the audience surrounds the performers.

A theatre-in-the-round is due to bow into the ballroom of a midtown hotel (The Edison) shortly. Starting May 29, the room will be converted into an arena capable of seating 500 persons.

First production is billed as "the show-off," starring Lee Tracy. Three weeks later another revival, "Julius Caesar," will move in. The theatre will be managed by David Hellweil and Derrick Lynn-Thomas, and the producers hope the venture will become year-round affair.

Hartman Sauce

Paul and Grace Hartman injected a dash of seasoning to the local stage with their new revue, "Tickets, please." The new occupant of the cofonet theatre stage is spotty in character and some sketches are near-duds. But the proceedings take on zest when the Hartmans are on hand, and happily they are present often.

Fly Chilled

Christopher Fry's "A Phoenix Too Frequent" made a fleeting appearance on the Broadway stage but the play—part of a double bill—was withdrawn after five performances. The critics quickly put the chill on the first professional production of the work of the young British playwright on any United States stage.

The three character, one-act play in verse proved too talky for New Yorkers. The case appeared insufficiently rehearsed, although Vicki Cummings, as a Roman slave girl, gave a witty and discerning performance.

"Freight," the other one-acter in the bill, was a melodrama dealing with negro-white relations in the southern states. Author Kenneth White made his sole non-negro character a deep-dyed villain and thereby—through over-emphasis—failed to put over his point: that negroes as well as whites are entitled to be treated as human beings.

Toronto-born Lloyd Richards made his Broadway debut in the short-lived "Freight," as Oz, one of a group of negroes fleeing in a freight car from the scene of a lynching. Another negro character was portrayed by Dots Johnson, who made his first stage appearance in Canada, in a touring company of "The Hasty Heart."

Footlight Footnotes

Play closings are in the news these days as well as openings. Productions which already have announced closing dates include "I Know My Love," the Lunt-Fontanne vehicle (June 3); the "As You Like It" revival with Katharine Hepburn (June 17), and the musical drama, "Lost In The Stars, (July 29). The last, however, is scheduled to go on tour for the summer and to return to Broadway in the autumn. "The Velvet Glove," a gentle comedy with Grace George and Walter Hampden in the cast, leaves this week-end. Closings last Saturday in addition to the Christopher Fry-Kenneth White double bill, were "Caesar and Cleopatra." after a successful run of 151 performances, and "With A Silk Thread."

Sport Shorts From Britain

By MICHAEL O'MARA, Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON, May 6.—(CP):—Gib Hutchinson, 37-year-old Regina-born goalkeeper for Brighton Tigers, is the recipient of the sternest decision handed down this year by the disciplinary committee of the British Ice Hockey Association.

Gib drew suspension for the balance of the season after a match between Tigers and the Harringay Racers at Brighton in which Referee Jimmy Campbell was felled by a flying puck from Hutchinson's stick. The puck caught Chappell in the mouth just as the game ended.

The committee ruled that while it was felt that Hutchinson had not intended to strike Chappell with the puck, his act nevertheless was "irresponsible and uncalled-for" and had to be penalized.

The game ended 2-2, with Chappell lying on the ice unconscious, the fans jeering, throwing coins and programs and both teams' tempers at breaking point. Chappell had disallowed a Tiger goal 20 seconds from the end that would have given the locals victory.
